Law Enforcement Dispatch Co-Op Plan Considered

City and County officials have been talking informally about combining some aspects of law enforcement in the city and county, and city council members Monday night authorized further talks to work out details on combining the communications operations.

It was generally agreed, however, that contracting with the county to have the sheriff's office handle all the city law enforcement also may not be feasible at this time. City manager Carl Reynolds and County Sheriff Stanley Krause were scheduled to meet to work out details on combining just the dispatching service, which presently is split with the county

Obscene Calls Are Reported

A Tahoka woman told police that she has received five obscene telephone calls during the last week, with at least four of them believed to be from the same person.

In Lynn County jail during the week, were three persons who have been in jail for some time after being sentenced, and one person jailed during the week on a traffic warrant.

doing the dispatching for all the county, including the three cities which have officers, during the day, and the city handling all the dispatching at night.

This leaves the city with the need to hire a new police chief to take the place of Jack Miller, who has resigned effective May 3. The council Monday night voted to appoint Reynolds as temporary law enforcement administrator until such time as a new chief is hired. "This will give us more time to study the situation," said Mayor Jim Solomon. He added that Reynolds' duties in this area will not give him any authority as a law enforcement officer on the street; he will just be in charge of the officers who do the work.

Miller has been on the police force for 28 years. Solomon advised the council that the city has two fulltime officers in addition to the chief, two dispatchers and two fully certified reserve officers.

Newly-appointed council member Nick Summitt was sworn in. He will serve for one year in the place which Solomon had until he was elected mayor.

Also present were members Richard White, Dalton Wood and Jim Thomas. Tom Cooper was absent. Mark Stutz of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal was present.

Morin Qualifies For Regional

Johnny Morin of Tahoka placed second in the district shot put, with a toss of 46-5 Saturday. Trey Teaff placed third in the 110 hurdles, with a time of 15.4, but only first and second place winners go to regional.

In team totals, Tahoka, with no track facilities at the school, was last with 19 total points. In the girls division, Tahoka had just 3 points.

In district tennis, Shawn Stotts placed third.

School Board Votes To Hire Cage Coach

Tahoka school board members voted in a called session at noon Tuesday to offer a contract to Charles Cate, 42, of Ingram, to be head boys basketball coach and mathematics teacher in Tahoka High School next year.

Cate, who has 16 years' experience as a coach and math teacher, is a graduate of McMurry College, has been married for 19 years and they have two boys, Chuck, 13; and Brandon, 10. The family is Methodist. He has a master's degree from the University of Houston.

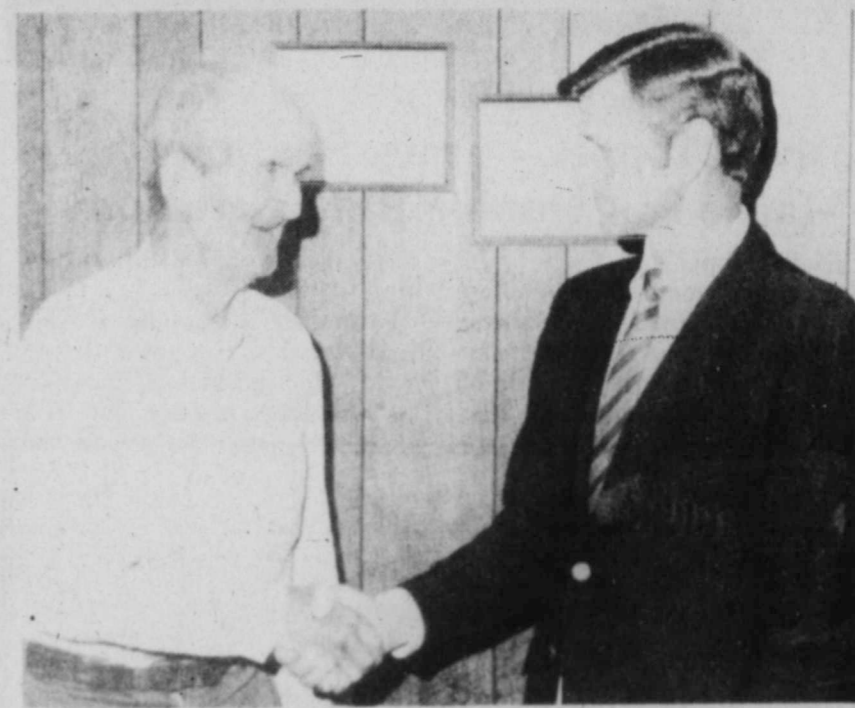

School board members also accepted a bid from B&S Construction of Lubbock to repair the paving on the gymnasium parking lot, and the work was started immediately. Tuesday afternoon. The contract was for $3200, and representative Steven Bailey said the company would guarantee the work five years.

Cheerleader sponsor Hedy Bufe explained some recommended changes in policies regarding cheerleading eligibility, and the board adopted a change which makes sophomores eligible to be either varsity or junior varsity cheerleaders. Currently only juniors and seniors have been eligible for the varsity squad. Freshmen remain eligible for the JV.

The board discussed at length the possibility of converting at once in junior high to a promotion policy which the state has made mandatory for next year for both junior high and elementary. The policy involves requirements of grades of 70 or above in certain basic courses, plus a 70 average or better overall, and apparently will render the present minimum competency system pointless. The board finally voted to leave things as they are for now, and make necessary changes next year.

CITY WORKER RETIRES — Hope Hardt, employe of the City of Tahoka for more than 20 years, was honored Friday afternoon with a reception as Hardt worked his last day for the city. He was presented a gold watch from the city by Mayor Jim Solomon, right, in appreciation for his years of service. Hardt's wife Jean also was on hand for the ceremony. (LYNN COUNTY NEWS PHOTO)

Tornado Warning Signals Outlined

Four short blasts of the fire sirens in Tahoka is a signal for residents to take cover from a violent storm, citizens were reminded this week. In Tahoka, the four short blasts will be repeated after a brief interval, and it means a tornado has been sighted moving toward the city.

A continuous tone is the regular fire signal, summoning volunteer firemen. Three short blasts is a fire practice signal, but this signal is never sounded when there is threatening weather. Two short blasts is the all clear signal. Residents of Tahoka are urged to clip the following portion of this story and post it in a convenient place in their homes:

TORNADO AND FIRE SIGNALS
CONTINUOUS TONE — Fire alarm.
THREE SHORT BLASTS — Fire practice.
FOUR SHORT BLASTS — Take cover.
TWO SHORT BLASTS — All clear.

At Wilson and O'Donnell, the signals are reversed, with a continuous long blast meaning take cover, and a wavering siren signal for a fire. New Home is the same as Tahoka.

Thursday night at 7 p.m. Parents are asked to meet at the school for a planning meeting for the athletic banquet.

WOODWORK

BY DALTON

AT 2 A.M. SUNDAY we will instantly lose an hour of sleep, as it suddenly becomes 3 a.m. with the semiannual changeover to Daylight Savings Time. You will get that hour back next October, if you hang in there until then.

What I have been wondering about is what would happen if you had something scheduled at 2:30 a.m., since there won't be a 2:30 a.m. this Sunday. Would it be okay to tell the IRS, for example, that you will pay your income tax at that time, this Sunday only? Or could you get by with telling the Guinness Book of Records that you held your breath from 1:59 a.m. to 30 seconds past 3 a.m.?

Anyway, we don't hear as much comment pro or con on daylight time these days; apparently most have accepted the system. There are still a few people around who gripe about having to go to bed when the sun is still up, or having to get up and go places before daylight (there's a song in the Methodist hymnal entitled "Those Who Sit In Darkness", but I don't think it has anything to do with daylight time).

Daylight time is no problem to me. It's always light when I get up in the mornings.

EATING OUT is something we do much more often than we did when we had children living at home. It's just more convenient and no more costly to eat out than to fix a home-cooked meal. Of course, a home-cooked or even home-unwrapped and warmed meal usually tastes better than restaurant food, especially if you eat most of your meals out. Except when I fix the meal at home; you can only eat so many fried eggs and grilled cheese sandwiches.

At a restaurant the other day, a couple of the women (both of whom work in offices during the day) were explaining why they don't like to prepare meals at home except on special occasions. One said she didn't mind fixing the meal so much as the cleaning up afterward.

I immediately suggested that someone needs to invent dishes you can eat, so there would be no washing them up afterward. "What about the stove?" she asked. I admitted that would be more of a problem, but maybe not insurmountable. Not long ago I read about a guy who ate a Piper Cub, or a combine, or some such thing. He supposedly ground up the metal parts and ate them, and supposedly was still around to tell about it. This has to be a not-recommended meal however.

REGIONAL 1-A UIL WINNERS—These three O'Donnell High School students will advance to state competition after winning at the Regional 1-A literary meet held April 13 at South Plains College. Letter to The Editor

Dear Dalton:

Saturday I went to Plains to the district track meet. I watched our youth participate in this meet and they did fairly well. As I watched, I wondered what they could have done if they had had a decent place to practice. Why can't our school build a practice track for our youth. I realize that to some people track is not as important as football and basketball, but to the youth that participate, it is important. Considering they practice on grass and dirt, I think all the youth who participated Saturday should be recognized as youth who care about our school and don't give up and quit on our school. They are to be commended.

Sincerely,
Nancy Monk

It pays to plant Paymaster grain sorghum

GR 1018

Relative Maturity: Medium-early
A medium-early hybrid with very good yield potential for many growing environments. GR 1018 is widely adapted from north to south and east to west. Medium plant height with a very good stalk rating. Semi-open heads with average to good head exertion under most conditions. Bronze colored grain. GR 1018 has performed very well under varying plant populations and good management practices in irrigated and dryland areas.

Sweet Sioux IV
The superior forage hybrid from Paymaster research.

Sweet Sioux IV is an exceptional forage hybrid, with the potential for top yields — high in nutrition, digestibility and palatability. Cattle seem to taste the difference and experience shows that if given the opportunity, they will usually graze Sweet Sioux IV to the ground before moving on to other forage. When they do, Sweet Sioux IV has the potential to snap right back. In good management systems and with favorable growing conditions, Sweet Sioux IV has produced up to 1,000 pounds of green weight per acre per day. Suitable for most soils (except highly acid ones), Sweet Sioux IV is ideal as a grazing crop or as hay, haylage or greenchop — particularly in management systems that call for repeated grazing or cutting cycles.

Forage sorghum hybrids

250 S

250 S is a sweet, juicy-stalked, male sterile forage sorghum adapted for many uses as a top forage crop. This hybrid, in the absence of a source of pollen, will be at least 95% or more sterile. Plants will usually grow 6 to 9 feet in height with very good standability. 250 S is medium-early in maturity and will flower approximately 65 to 80 days after planting. It is adapted for use as silage, greenchop, hay and late summer or fall grazing.

Relative Maturity: Medium-early
A newer medium-early hybrid, 1022 has an exceptional yield potential. In research trials and PEP, this hybrid has consistently outyielded other hybrids of comparable maturity, including GR 1018. It has performed especially well in dryland locations. Mid-bloom is approximately one to two days later than GR 1018 but will be comparable in maturity at harvest. Medium plant height with an excellent stalk and exceptional leafiness. Bronze colored grain held in light colored glumes. 1022 is widely adapted and has the potential to deliver top performance under many growing environments.

It pays to plant Paymaster cotton

Paymaster 404 cotton is an early, storm resistant variety that has been exceptionally productive over a wide range of test conditions. The variety has high levels of tolerance to both Verticillium and Fusarium wilts and is well adapted to both irrigated and dryland conditions throughout all of the stripper cotton growing areas of the Southwestern U.S. Paymaster 404 is similar in appearance to Paymaster 303 except plants of Paymaster 404 grow slightly taller and fruit higher off the ground. The staple length of Paymaster 404 is approximately 1", being 1/32" to 1/16" shorter than that of Paymaster 303. The micronaire of Paymaster 404 is approximately .4 units higher than that of Paymaster 303, and the bolls of Paymaster 404 are considerably more storm resistant than those of Paymaster 303.

145

Paymaster 145 cotton is an early, storm resistant variety with excellent tolerance to Fusarium wilt. Has performed especially well under heat and drought stress conditions. Test data indicate that the variety is especially well adapted to the stripper cotton growing areas of the Southern High Plains, Rolling Plains, Oklahoma, Central Texas and the Coastal Bend. Outstanding tolerance to the Fusarium wilt/nematode complex enables the variety to perform well in most areas where this problem exists. The fiber is 1 to 1 1/2 inch with the micronaire value usually falling in the high side of the premium range. Bolls are intermediate in size and are set well off the ground making the variety relatively easy to stripper harvest. The variety can also be successfully picker harvested. Lint percents, both on a stripped and picked basis, are usually very high.

303

Paymaster 303 cotton is a storm resistant, wilt tolerant, early, productive variety well adapted to the High Plains of Texas and the stripper cotton growing areas of New Mexico and Oklahoma. Bolls are large and have enough storm resistance that field losses are usually held to a minimum. This variety has shown very good tolerance to both Verticillium and Fusarium wilts and is considerably earlier than the wilt tolerant varieties that have been popular on the Texas High Plains in recent years. Plants are shorter than most Plains varieties and are not likely to grow excessively tall even when soil moisture is abundant. Lint turnout on stripped cotton is generally high, often being above 25 percent. The lint of Paymaster 303 is exceptionally white with the staple length commonly measuring from 1 to 1 1/8 inch. The fiber is not extremely coarse, but micronaire values usually fall in the premium range. Production over a wide range of test conditions

New 7563

Lankart brand 7563 is a new, high yield potential, multiple disease tolerant cotton variety that was available for the first time in 1984. This variety has performed especially well in the southern High Plains growing areas. 7563 is very tolerant to the Fusarium wilt-nematode complex and is moderately tolerant to Verticillium wilt. The fiber is longer than that of most stripper varieties usually measuring up to 1 1/8 inches, with micronaire values ordinarily in the premium range. Gin turnout is very high, storm resistance is good, and the bolls are set well off the ground, helping make harvest easier. A U.S. Protected Variety

What's Around The Corner

Biological response modifiers, gene-splicing, lasers, monoclonal antibodies, magnetic resonance imaging, oncogenes, tumor markers...

These terms represent some of the most stunning recent achievements in the scientific pursuit of controlling cancer, a group of more than 100 malignant diseases that will be diagnosed in almost 1 million Americans this year.

"Never before has humankind had so many exciting opportunities to do so much against cancer," states Dr. Isaiah J. Fidler, chairman of cell biology at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute at Houston.

But Dr. Fidler, the 1984-85 president of the American Association for Cancer Research, cautions that "no scientist should try to predict when all or even most cancers will be cured."

The ultimate goal of eliminating cancer as a human health threat will take more multidisciplinary research at the molecular level. When scientists understand exactly how and why genes are activated to start the cancerous process inside single living cells, then lasting control can occur.

"The more we learn about the basic biology of cancer, the more complex the problems are and the more we need to know. Secondly, from a therapy standpoint, we're doing pretty well at wiping out the original or primary cancers in many cases, but we haven't yet figured out effective ways to prevent or treat metastasis," Dr. Fidler explains.

Cancer is defined as the uncontrolled growth and spread of abnormal cells. It's the metastasis, or spread of cancer cells to distant body sites, that causes some therapies to fail after the primary tumors are eliminated by surgery, radiation, drugs or a combination of approaches.

From a fundamental standpoint of better understanding the workings of the cancer cell, probably the most recent dramatic development has been the discovery of about 25 different oncogenes.

Simply stated, oncogenes are essentially normal genes which have important roles during very early human growth and then lie dormant among an estimated 50,000 genes in each of the 46 human chromosomes, waiting for something--perhaps a carcinogen like cigarette smoke or a virus--to switch them on.

For some patients, this "turning on" process that leads normal cells to become cancerous occurs in childhood, but the majority of malignancies are not detected until the middle and later years. There is increasing speculation that once researchers know how the oncogenes are switched on, then procedures for turning them off can be devised.

"The key is understanding why these genes go out of control. We have lots of good clues. In fact, the whole field of genetics is just exploding before our eyes," notes Dr. Louise C. Strong, director of the Medical Genetics Clinic at M.D. Anderson.

Some cancers are known to be inherited, such as retinoblastoma and Wilm's tumor, malignancies of the eye and kidney, respectively. For these, Dr. Strong expects "real breakthroughs" in being able to spot the cancerous genes before some babies are born in much the same way numerous other genetic abnormalities are detected.

Knowing about oncogenes gives clinical researchers new options for both earlier detection and better treatments. One possibility centers on developing a blood test for recognizing proteins made by the oncogenes as a way of finding people at increased risks or with very small numbers of cancer cells. From a treatment standpoint, some scientists suggest there will be substances ranging from vitamins to drugs that can be used to turn off the oncogenes.

Monoclonal antibodies are identical proteins made by white blood cells fused with a type of cancerous cell to produce hybridomas. The monoclonal antibodies can be targeted to attack selected cancers through recently developed laboratory procedures. Radioactive agents hooked to these single-minded anti-bodies help hunt for cancerous cells throughout the body. This approach is being widely touted as a type of "magic bullet" because of the monoclonal antibodies' potential for finding both very small primary cancers and the beginning of metastasis as well as the promise for improving therapy.

Dr. Christopher L. Reading, assistant professor of tumor biology at M.D. Anderson, says there are several technical obstacles to overcome before monoclonal antibodies can live up to some of the advance billing.

"Most techniques for making and using the monoclonal antibodies are just not as efficient yet as we'd like, but remember this field is less than 10 years old. In time, I believe monoclonal antibodies will be applicable to virtually all cancers and be used routinely in combination with radiotherapy and chemotherapy," Dr. Reading explains. Cancer patients undergoing bone marrow transplants have benefitted the most from monoclonal antibody technology so far.

Other space-age diagnostic tools include specialized cameras for photographing physiologic functions. Several kinds of lasers are also available to help physicians find and remove cancerous lesions in difficult body sites. New anti-cancer drugs--and better ways to give them--also are on the horizon.

In spite of such accomplishments, all specialists agree the chief weapon against cancer today is an informed public that takes steps to prevent developing malignant diseases. There's no scientific substitute for practicing healthy habits that protect against cancer.

Cotton Today

Cost-Cutting Research Projects Approved: The Cotton Foundation's research screening committee has approved 28 research and educational projects to be funded at more than $750,000 during 1985-86.

Many of the projects are directed toward a goal of reducing cotton industry production and processing costs by 10 cents a pound within the next five years, according to Tommy R. Funk, Harlingen, Tex., cotton producer who heads the Foundation.

The projects are made possible from membership dues and special grants from 48 corporate firms supplying the cotton industry.

"These projects should help bring about the technological advances necessary for our industry to accomplish that goal," Funk said. "With the research and education programs we've got going for us through the Foundation, I feel good about cotton's future. Knowing we have this kind of support from allied businesses makes me confident that together we'll succeed in making the U.S. cotton industry the strongest in the world."

One new project, for example, would aid in refining a simulation power plant that converts gin trash by gasification into an energy source for cottonseed oil mills. A study indicates use of this by-product could reduce ginning costs $7.50 to $5.50 a bale and seed crushing by $6 a ton.

The committee voted to continue funding for annual surveys of cotton losses to various pests, and for evaluation of possible sources of yarn and fabric contamination.

The Foundation also will contribute $35,000 to help speed commercialization of the TC robotics system that will streamline garment-making and help increase the competitiveness

Enthusiasm is contagious. Ability to organize and plan. Leadership will require a certain amount of time in your schedule. How much time you devote to your project will depend upon your individual situation.

Initiative. A good leader tries new ideas, offers suggestions and continually strives to reach goals set by the group.

Vision. A good leader has the ability to look ahead and share with the group suggestions for broadening the program.

Faith in others and their abilities. Although younger 4-H members may have limited abilities, good leaders recognize what they can do and have faith in them.

TOOLS FOR 4-H LEADERSHIP

It's not necessarily true that, "Leaders are born, not made."

Everyone is born with a certain set of tools, and it is up to each individual to develop and use these tools, says Greg Henley, county 4-H program coordinator.

Studies of leadership activities show that, in most cases, what a person does to get ready for a leadership job is far more important than any personal characteristic that he or she may have been born with. Leadership is not a mystical trait that one individual has and another has not. It is learned behavior that anyone can improve by study and application.

Anyone can be a leader if he or she has the determination to develop the abilities that make a leader.

A good leader, like a good mechanic, needs good tools. Basic tools to develop leadership, such as in the 4-H program, include the following:

A genuine liking for boys and girls.

Ability to work with others and to get their cooperation. This involves developing qualities of friendliness, patience, sympathy, confidence and trust.

Enthusiasm for 4-H club work and its basic ideals and beliefs.

Scanning Social Security

BY BOOTH ROBBINS

What Farmers Should Know About Social Security

People who earn their living from farming should be familiar with how Social Security treats farm income and employees for Social Security coverage. Failure to be informed can mean reduced Social Security protection for the farmer and gaps in the protection for his or her employees.

Like other self-employed persons, the farmer gets Social Security credit if net earnings amount to $400 or more in a year. When net earnings are $400 or more in a year, the farmer gets credit for all earnings up to the maximum that counts for Social Security--$39,600 in 1985. A farmer may get credit if net earnings are less than $400 by using an optional method of reporting; call us for details.

Farmers who hire workers should note that it makes a difference how they are paid for Social Security purposes. A worker must receive cash wages of $150 or more in a calendar year or work on 20 or more days a year and be paid on a time basis to receive coverage under Social Security. It also makes a difference whether the farmer pays the workers directly or hires a crew leader to recruit and pay them. If there is no written agreement, then whoever has the final right to control the workers on the job is generally considered the employer, no matter who pays the workers.

Social Security not only pays retirement benefits as early as age 62, but it also pays disability benefits at any age to a disabled worker and his or her family, and survivors benefits to a worker's family. The protection also includes Medicare hospital insurance.

Farmers who need more information on any aspect of Social Security should call the nearest office and ask for any of the following leaflets: "Farmers...How to report your income for Social Security", "Farm rental income...does it count for Social Security?" and "Social Security Information for crew leaders and farmers". The number to call is 743-7381.

The books for the event open at noon. Teams may enter for $30 for three steers, progressive after one.

SCS Marks 50th Year Of Service

Saturday, April 27, marks the 50th anniversary of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service--a milestone in a voluntary conservation movement that has involved more than 2,000,000 farmers, ranchers and other landowners and operators.

"SCS can be proud of what it has done," said Billy C. Griffin, State Conservationist for SCS in Temple. "It has helped to reduce soil erosion, conserve water, reduce flooding, improve rangeland and protect other natural resources."

"In Texas about 200,000 landowners and operators voluntarily apply conservation measures with SCS assistance," Griffin continued. "They have built more than 220,000 miles of terraces, applied conservation tillage on 2.9 million acres of cropland, and are using planned grazing systems - with regular rest periods - on 13 million acres of grassland."

Griffin said SCS technical assistance is available through 201 locally run soil and water conservation districts.

SCS efforts in promoting conservation tillage and planned grazing systems today parallel the agency's early efforts in convincing farmers to use contour stripcropping, terraces, crop rotations, and other practices that returned eroded fields to productive cropland and pasture. Along the way, SCS has achieved an international reputation in the field of soil and water conservation.

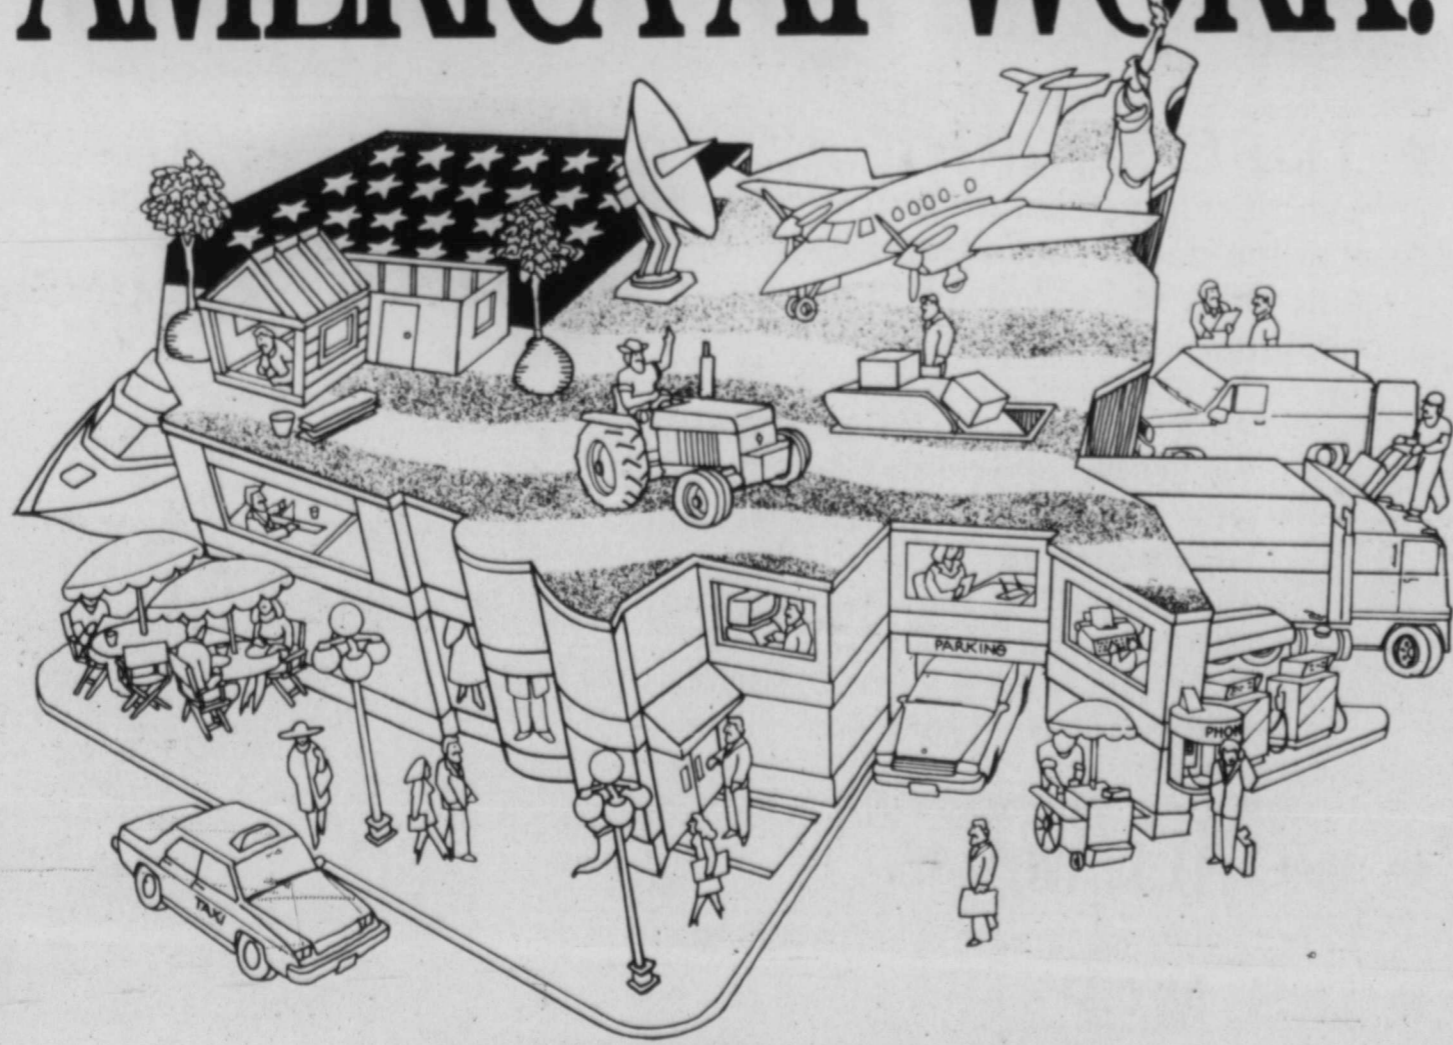

TEXAS ONIONS BOUNTIFUL--A bountiful onion harvest is under way in Texas. Onion production should be up about 17 percent in Texas this year despite a drop in acreage from 18,600 to 17,000 acres. Texas supplies about 65 percent of the total U.S. fresh onion stocks during April, May and June, notes a horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Most of these come from the Rio Grande Valley, Laredo and the Winter Garden area west of San Antonio. A considerable amount of Texas onions also are grown in the high Plains, Trans-Pecos and El Paso areas. This year's production is being boosted with a new sweet, mild onion developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

NEW 4-H SCHOLARSHIP FOR MINORITIES--A new national 4-H scholarship program targeted to minority 4-H members for pursuing a career in agriculture has been established with funding from E.I. du Pont de Nemours and Co. Ten four-year scholarships at $1,000 per year will be awarded to current 4-H members who will be enrolled as high school seniors in the fall of 1985, notes a 4-H specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The five-year program is aimed at expanding the number of minority professionals working in the agricultural industry.

CATTLE FEEDERS CONFAB--'Management for Profitability' is the theme of a Great Plains Cattle Feeders Conference, May 8-9, at the Texas County Activity Center in Guymon, Okla. Among topics of discussion will be the history of cattle feeding and future trends, feedlot fly control, removal and use of feedlot runoff and sediment, limit feeding of growing and finishing cattle, futures options, parasite control, interferon use, boxed beef cutout and merchandising slaughter cattle, says a waste management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.
