Spinning more than wool

Susanne Grosjean, 55, a Maine wool spinner, thought up the idea for a calendar featuring her sister spinners in all their glory.

"Wearing Wool: Celebrating the Ancient Art of Spinning and the Ageless Beauty of Women" features 20 women, ranging in age from 33 to 70.

Some are lying face down wearing only their woolen socks. Others have bits of wool or a strategically placed sheep to protect their dignity.

Grosjean says the calendars are selling so fast they can't keep them in stock. The group is using the proceeds to fund a trip to Ireland and to benefit breast-cancer research.

Woods not only busy golfer

Tiger Woods wasn't the only golf champion busy this weekend. David McCaslin of North Myrtle Beach, S.C., shot seven holes-in-one Sunday in the final round of the Mini Golf Hartford Open in Simsbury, Conn., holding off his two younger brothers for the win.

His paycheck is a bit smaller than Tiger's; McCaslin took home $1,000 for a record 9-under-par 30, breaking his previous record of 33 at last year's tournament.

Danny McCaslin of Morrisville, N.C., won $400 and Matt McCaslin of Cary, N.C., earned $300 after finishing second and third, respectively.

County hires former Crosbyton EMS chief

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Bailey County commissioners hired a new director of emergency medical services Monday, a man who formerly held a similar position at Crosbyton.

The county had received three applications for the position, in addition to the two applicants interviewed last week.

Scott Murray told the commissioners in his interview that he had been EMS director at Crosbyton for eight and a half years and a consultant to Dickens County for 12 years.

He said he resigned at Crosbyton six weeks ago and has been working in the emergency room at a Dimmitt hospital.

He added that he was raised at Spur (in Dickens County) and had worked in Muleshoe as a contract EMT about 12 years ago.

The other new applicants were Johnny Brooks, a Castro County emergency medical technician, and Matt Cox, a Lamb County paramedic.

Brooks said he lives at Olton and had nine years with Lubbock EMS after spending most of his life in farm and ranch work.

Cox said he grew up at Bula and has been with Lamb County for two years. He is working on his bachelor's degree in EMS administration, he said.

The two local applicants were Kem Bales and Julie Mason, both already employees of Bailey County EMS. The former director of the service, Chris Thompson, resigned to take a job with Amarillo EMS. He started work there Monday.

After hiring Murray, commissioners also had a lengthy budget workshop Monday.

Three more now in custody over Farwell casinos

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

A spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said Tuesday that three more people have turned themselves in on charges connected to the June 12 raid on Farwell casinos.

She added, however, that there is still no information available on the specific charge the suspects will face.

The three recent arrests were identified as Sherrilyn Frances Hailey of Winner's Circle casino, Darrell Ross Cook of Border Games, and Robert McAffos, whose link to the case was unavailable. No other information on the suspects was available.

Arrested the day of the raid was 58-year-old John George Kiousis of Post, owner of George's Goldstrike.

Parmer County Sheriff Randy Geries was not available for comment Friday afternoon.

State police led the raid, which reportedly involved a special unit of the attorney general's office as well as Parmer County sheriff's officer, Farwell police and Friona police.

Authorities reported that $47,000 in cash was seized at the three casinos.

Tela Mange, the state police spokeswoman, said Tuesday that a total of $90,000 has been seized in connection with the case thus far.

Ronnie Puckett charged in Lazbuddie pot case

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Ronnie Puckett of Lazbuddie was arrested Friday in connection with a marijuana bust authorities made on his farm last fall.

Puckett, 47, is charged with possession of between 50 and 2,000 pounds of marijuana, a second-degree felony. He posted a $10,000 bond.

Julian Domínguez, an investigator with the district attorney's office, said Tuesday that Puckett's case is expected to go before the next Parmer County grand jury, but a date was not available.

Puckett's father, 74-year-old Vernon Puckett, was arrested Oct. 18 in the original raid. Authorities said they also recovered between 200 and 300 pounds of marijuana from the farm, where they

School board drops residency requirement for principals

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

In a move that sparked lengthy and spirited debate before the vote, the Muleshoe School Board voted 5-0 Monday night to abolish the requirement that principals live in the district or move in within a year of being hired.

Superintendent Gene Sheets said that since 1991, the district had required principals (but not other administrators) to live within the district, and he said he could live with the rule but he felt that superintendents should be required to live in the

Tour de Muleshoe has biggest ride yet

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
Organizers of this year's Tour de Muleshoe can heave a big sigh of relief: The seventh annual ride had the most riders ever — 150.

Perhaps even more significantly, the event drew more local support and participation than ever.

This year's out-of-town riders came from Clovis, Lubbock, Amarillo, Pampa, Borger, Dallas and other places. A couple from Pampa won the $500 worth of Southwest Airlines vouchers.

This year's event T-shirt was designed by Wells Hall of Muleshoe, and there were many favorable comments about the unusual design. A number of riders purchased extra shirts.

The ride is sponsored by the Muleshoe Heritage

Foundation to benefit the Heritage Center. Primary help comes from First Bank, Muleshoe State Bank, United Supermarket, Leal's, Bamert Seed Co. and Five Area Telephone Cooperative. Lowe's fur-

Small crowd attends city's public hearing

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

The crowd was small at Monday night's public hearing on the city's proposed application for a Texas Community Development Program grant.

Kay Howard of Lubbock, the city's grant administrator, explained that such grants are available mainly for infrastructure (water and sewer lines, including such projects as related to new low-income housing), but also for housing renovation, planning and zoning work.

City officials have discussed seeking such a grant for drilling new water wells.

In addition to Mayor Victor Leal, citizens who commented (mainly about water issues) included Patsy Chance, Linda McGonagill and Don Dyer.

Howard said the city has until Sept. 26 to apply for the grant, and the funds probably ready in May 2003.

ments. He advised leaving the policy as it was.

Rene Torres agreed, adding that "I'm sure Mrs. (Priscilla) Mestas' daughter would be a big asset to our district."

Mestas recently asked to be re-assigned from her duties as an elementary principal, citing personal reasons. She lives in Portales.

David Tipps said, "I don't like having a policy we can't live with, and we were just about to that point with this one."

Tipps added, "We have people here in town whose kids go to other districts. If we make this a rule that you have to be here, your kids have to be here, what kind of job are you going to do? Your employees need to be happy to do a good job."

Bruce Barrett said, "Two years ago (before his board service began), I'd have been 100 percent for saying they have to live here."

Now, he added, he realizes that the district's biggest pool to draw from is Clovis-Portales.

Board President Nick Bamert said he has confidence in Sheets: "There's no doubt that you're going to hire the very best person." He added that he'd prefer that route "rather than hire anyone because they're willing to move here and help the tax base."

Sheets encouraged board members not to make a decision right away if any of them needed more time to think about it, but he acknowledged that "the timing is horrible."

He said he needed to start interviewing Friday in order to complete the process before July 1, the date at which districts would no longer have to let their personnel out of next year's contracts.

Tipps made the motion to end the residency requirement; Barrett seconded.

Cindy Purdy was not present.

Vehicle Disposal Event Extended

Area residents have a unique opportunity to save money when selected dealers are chosen by Ford Motor Company to compete with each other to dispose of excess national inventory. This year is no exception. Spokesmen for the seventh annual Battle of the Dealers Great Tent Event competition have announced the disposal sale has been extended through this Saturday.

Chuck Daggett, co-owner of Chuck Daggett Motors, commented, "The real winner of this contest every year is the buyer. Friends and acquaintances frequently ask me when is the best time to buy, I've got to say it's now. With the additional inventory Ford sends us for this sale, plus the low interest rates and increased rebates you can't get from many other dealers, this really is the best time of year to buy."

To accommodate all the extra inventory of cars and trucks, this year's event is being held at Greyhound Stadium on Highway 70, halfway between Clovis and Portales.

"Winning this competition is important to us," Alva Carter, co-owner of Chuck Daggett Motors remarked. "It means additional allocations of vehicles from Ford next year, plus with the great pricing and incentives from the factory during this sale, we're able to pull out all the stops to win. We want to have this same opportunity again next year - we'll do anything to sell these cars."

A local farmer said, "My lease was expiring on my old Super Cab so I really was pleased when I heard about this sale. As tough as farming is these days we need to save all we can. I really appreciate the new lease they worked for me on my Crew Cab Powerstroke. I've wanted a truck like this for a long time, but I thought I couldn't afford one. They had about 20 of them so I got just what I wanted. The first price they quoted was below what I thought I'd have to give. This sale made a big difference."

Finance manager Chris Wood said, "This is the sale of the year. I can't believe some of the deals the sales managers are bringing in. People are driving new cars and trucks out of here for as low as $169 a month and used vehicles as low as $89 a month. I hope Chuck knows what he's doing - selling vehicles at such low prices."

A recent graduate of ENMU from Portales, bought a new 2002 Ford Escort ZX2 and said, "When the salesperson quoted my payment I thought he had made a mistake. I never dreamed a recent graduate with very little credit like myself could drive a new ZX2 for such a low payment. I don't know how he did it but I'm glad he did!" Ford is offering lower interest rates, as low as 0.9%, and has increased rebates in many cases for this event. Wade Rutter, a sales manager at the event states, "The additional incentives Ford is offering for this sale are phenomenal, and they are not available to dealers in Lubbock or Amarillo."

One proud new owner said, "We were here last week but we decided to shop around. We went to Lubbock last weekend but they couldn't offer the same thing. We came back here to buy, it was the best deal."

Jon Zorn, a used car manager, said, "When we first agreed to participate in this event we didn't think about how this special pricing on new cars and trucks would affect the used vehicle market. Now we are forced to lower those prices and we've obtained special used vehicle financing, as low as 5.7%, so our used vehicles are competitive and affordable."

One of the salespeople commented, "The managers said to sell these used cars at whatever price and terms necessary to make them competitive. I hope I don't get fired when they see some of the deals I've made."

One buyer that traveled all the way from Arizona had this to say, "We wait for this sale every year. We bought two pickups here last year and got great deals but this year is the best yet. We needed to trade some others for a few months now but we waited. We ended up buying three - an F-150 Super Cab, a Super-Duty Crew Cab 4-wheel drive and a Chevy one ton dually. I'm glad we waited, they sold 'em plenty cheap enough. Too bad they don't have these kind of tent sales more often."

A sales manager at another local dealership who asked to remain anonymous said, "I hated it when I heard that battle tent had been extended. We didn't sell anything to speak of last week. It's totally unfair when a big company like Ford pours so much money into a local event. It's almost impossible for the rest of us dealers to compete. I've actually had to advise some of my own customers to buy at this year's event because there's no way we could match those prices or payments without losing money. I wish they hadn't extended it and I'll just be glad when it's over so we can start selling cars again. I might as well have gone on vacation!"

Daggett said, "We're open every night this week until nine o'clock, we're even staying late on Friday and Saturday so all area residents can take advantage of this opportunity."

The Battle of the Dealers Great Tent Event has been extended until Saturday, June 22nd and will not be extended again. Look for the tent at Greyhound Stadium on Hwy 70, between Clovis and Portales. (paid advertisement)

Extension honors dwarf ruellia as Texas Superstar

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Texas Cooperative Extension has honored a form of ruellia — becoming popular with dryland gardeners in recent years — as a “Texas Superstar.”

The plant (Ruellia brittoniana) is being widely marketed as “Mexican petunia,” and the form singled out by Extension officials is the “dwarf Mexican petunia.”

(This is a case where people might not buy something called ruellia, but will latch on to petunias without question.)

Ruellia flowers are similar to petunia flowers, and the dwarf ruellias are not too unlike petunia plants. One difference between the two is that ruellia is reliably hardy. (If you've had petunias survive winter in a sheltered spot, then you know that they are also perennials — but tender ones.)

Petunias may be drought-resistant, too, but the ruellias tend to be more so. They will, of course, stay a lot more attractive with some irrigation — and also with a high-phosphorus fertilizer, according to the Extension Service.

They prefer full sun, but will tolerate some shade (note that they don't flower as abundantly in shade, but the foliage is attractive).

For some reason, the dwarf varieties being developed for gardeners are not as aggressive as the species, although I think it's aggressive only in rich soil — not usually a problem in High Plains yards.

“I first observed ruellia growing in the neglected space between a sidewalk and the street in San Antonio,” said Dr. Wayne Mackay, a horticultural researcher at Texas A&M-Dallas, in a story released by the Extension Service.

Mackay went on to say that “the bright purple, tubular flowers were in full bloom in the hottest part of the summer and showing no signs of being neglected, although they were certainly in a tough location,” he added.

Just recently, a pink-flowered dwarf called ‘Bonita’ has been introduced, and there are varieties with flower colors in just about any shade between pink and the original purple.

Ruellias have been available at just about any gardening center.

There are other species in the family, but they are less commonly available.

The Texas Superstar program honors plants only after extensive field trials in which plants are left to fend off pests on their own, without pesticides.

Another Texas agency is offering a freebie that could be valuable to many people.

“A Green Guide to Yard Care” offers environmentally friendly tips on mowing, mulching, composting and landscape design and care.

The 28-page guide also includes a four-step method called Yard Wise aimed at maintaining a healthy yard with “less cost, less work and less waste.”

Too bad it doesn't tell you how to do all that without getting away from the air conditioner.

Anyway, the free guide is available on the Internet at www.tnrcc.state.tx.us (click on “publications”) or by calling (512) 239-0028 and asking for publication number GI-28.

All-star events help high school sports addicts

By DELTON WILHITE
Journal sportswriter

Hooray for all-star games! Since the state track meet ended another year of high school athletics, I have tried to do what I suppose others do — watch television.

The muscles in my right thumb have grown three times stronger than they were before the school year ended. Any strength coach will tell you that repetition builds muscles, so after changing channels a thousand times a night searching for something worth watching, I have really built the strength in my right thumb.

It is almost embarrassing when people see both of my thumbs at the same time and the right one is so much larger than

FROM THE STANDS

I may need to work at being a switch channel surfer — makes me wish I were ambidextrous.

The Greenbelt Bowl in which Jeffre Skipworth and Lincoln Riley played earlier this month in Childress was a nice break for this high school sports nut.

D.J. Domínguez had just been in the inaugural West Texas Baseball Coaches Association all-star game in Lubbock the week before. Earlier, Britni Gartin and Jessica Carpenter played in the Golden Spread all-star basketball games in Amarillo.

These all-star games give the athletes one more opportunity to play the game they love — and they are at a time of year when college coaches are able to watch these athletes in action — not just on videotape.

In these games, the players also have an opportunity to play with rather than against athletes that have been the competition for the past four to six years.

Almost every all-star with whom I have had the good fortune to visit talks about how much fun they had playing with the best athletes in the area. They are also surprised at how quickly those who have provided some of the most fierce competition become good friends.

The sharing of playing time is a bit of a problem for the all-stars, but they have almost as much fun watching from the sideline as they do being in the game.

If my count is correct, 16 Mules and Lady Mules have signed for college careers in the past five years. I understand Domínguez is close to signing to play college baseball.

This is a very strong endorsement of the Muleshoe program.

But I'm afraid that until football and cross-country season begins this fall, I will have ample time to learn to switch channels with my left hand.

TOPS NEWS

June 6

Laverne James, TOPS No. 34 leader, presided over the June 6 meeting, held at the Muleshoe Church of Christ. Alma Robertson led both TOPS songs.

The previous week's minutes were read by Elaine Coburn and approved as read.

Weight recorders Alene Bryant and Linda White conducted the weigh-in for 11 members and revealed weekly and monthly results.

Joline Franklin was the best loser in the weekly report. Ruth Clements and Lucille Harp tied for first runner-up; Polly Otwell tied with James as second runner-up.

In the monthly report, White was best loser and Retha Knowles second runner-up. (The first runner-up did not want her name in the newspaper.)

James' program was titled "Fun Is Basic," and she pointed out that the title applies to activities for both adults and children and is important to maintaining health.

"When did you have your last laugh, and when's the last time you smiled?" she asked. "We need to stop taking things so seriously and enjoy being with people who enjoy being with us."

She also talked about beans, lentils and cholesterol, saying the legumes deserve a "princely" spot in the human diet because they are high in protein and low in fat.

June 13

TODAY'S RECIPE

GREEN ONION PANCAKES

- 3 cups unsifted cake flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- 3 Tbsp. (approximately) vegetable oil
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/3 cup cold water
- 1/3 cup chopped green onions and tops

In a bowl, combine the flour, salt and 2 tablespoonfuls of oil.

Mix in boiling water with a fork or chopsticks. Let dough stand for five minutes.

Stir in the cold water and gather the dough into a ball.

On a lightly floured board, knead the dough five to six minutes or until smooth and satiny.

Cover with a damp cloth and let rest for 10 minutes. Then knead lightly, adding green onions a few at a time during kneading.

Roll the dough into a 16-inch-long cylinder. Cut crosswise into 1-inch pieces and keep covered.

To make a pancake, cut a piece of dough exactly in half. Roll each half into a ball, then flatten slightly into a pancake.

Roll each pair of pancakes into 6-inch rounds.

Brush oil lightly on top of one round and cover with the other round. Press the two rounds lightly but firmly together.

Place on an ungreased wide frying pan with a nonstick finish over medium heat.

Add a pair of pancakes and cook, turning once, until pancakes are blistered by air pockets and lightly browned, one to two minutes. (If overcooked, the pancakes become brittle.)

Remove from the pan and stack on a plate while cooking the remaining pairs of pancakes.

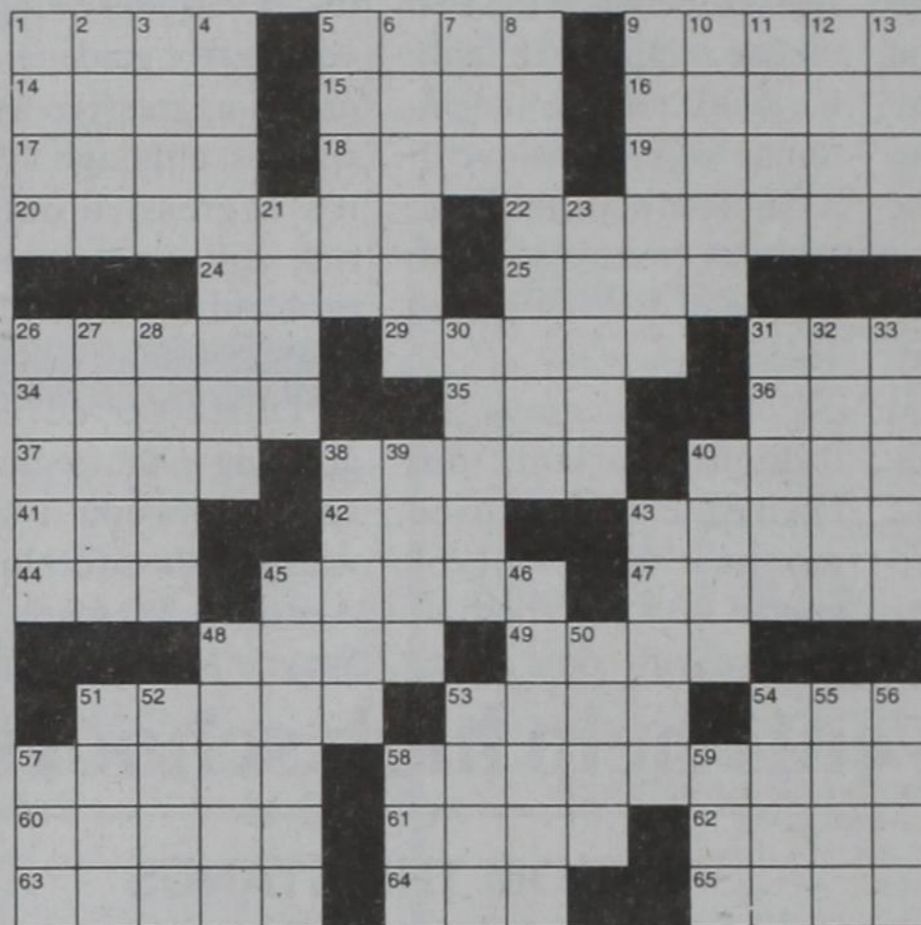

Pancakes can be prepared a day in advance and stored in a plastic bag at cool room temperature.

To reheat, wrap the pancakes in a clean dish towel and steam in a bamboo steamer for five minutes.

When ready to fill, peel off one pancake and put filling on the unbrowned side.

GOOD OLD DAYS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles being reprinted from 50 years ago in the Journal and related to Lubbock's contract to pump water from Bailey County.)

May 8, 1952

Citizens of Muleshoe "hit the ceiling" Sunday when they read the announcement in the Lubbock Avalanche that the Lubbock City Council has acquired water rights under more than 50,000 acres of land near the city, in perpetuity.

Water being the lifeblood of the Plains, the people not only hit the ceiling, but the more they contemplate the possibilities, the more they are inclined to stay on the ceiling.

After the Avalanche broke the story in its Sunday issue, the people began to discuss it over the phone, on the farms, after church services and wherever as many as two got together.

Knowing that it is a vital thing, Loyd Roberts, chamber of commerce president, called a few men together to discuss it Monday night. Men kept dropping in until the few numbered 30.

After much discussion it was decided that three men from the chamber of commerce and three men from Bailey County Farm Bureau would meet here with Lubbock representatives to seek more definite information.

Both sides unconvinced

Accordingly, Jesse Osborn, Myron Pool and Al Hall of the chamber of commerce, and O.C. Thomson, Joe Sooter and Ross Goodwin of the Bureau met last night with these Lubbock men: Steve Matthews, city manager; L.A. Purtell, through whom the water rights were acquired; and E.K. Hufstelder Jr., a former member of the Lubbock City Commission.

This group talked for three hours. The Avalanche report this morning said: "Lubbock didn't convince Muleshoe the plan wouldn't deplete the South Plains water supply, and Muleshoe didn't convince Lubbock that the development should be abandoned."

More to come

Further developments are to come in the matter. The people of this part of the Plains, to put it mildly, are reluctant to see the cities stretch their long and powerful arms into this principal basin of water from which flows the water to a vast area of fertile farm lands.

They admit Lubbock's legal right, of anybody's legal right, to buy water wherever the landowner is willing to sell, and the landowner's legal right to sell such resources.

That doesn't lessen their fear of the thing to which this "opening wedge" might lead.

One local leader said he did not fear that Lubbock's taking a few million gallons a day from this territory would seriously impede irrigation here; it is the obvious possibilities that some future Lubbock City Commission will not be bound by any consideration of the benefits of proration or moderation and might mine this field, even sell water elsewhere if it desired.

One speaker at the Monday night meeting said: This is but one fact of the struggle that is coming out just now into the open — between the big cities on the one hand which wish to grow and on the other side the small towns and communities and the agricultural interests.

He said in many parts of West Texas, water is being sought more eagerly than is oil.

What the future action of local people might be, the Journal cannot report. The local men who attended the meeting last night will report, however, to their bodies and a future meeting is indicated.

The editor of the Journal has, since Saturday night, talked to anyone he could find who wanted to talk about the water situation, and who didn't, and he found that practically everyone is worried to some degree and disturbed. Many are disturbed less than others, but some are just plain alarmed.

Some minimize the effect that Lubbock's taking out water under 80 square miles of Bailey County land will have on the water table.

Yet virtually all are aware of the potentialities over the next few years and mainly the next 100 years.

It seems certain to this paper that if there is any way in which the people of this immediate territory can discourage Lubbock, that will be done.

Indications are that concern is felt not only in Bailey County, but in Lamb, in Parmer, in Castro, and in other parts of the irrigation belt.

Muleshoe and Bailey County will not be alone in the coming controversy.

STUDENT COMMUNITY ACTION CLUB

The end of school does not mean the end of Student-Community Action Club activities. The last week of school actually instigated a new year for club members.

Club sponsors Gina and Chris Mardis and Jean Allison hosted a barbecue luncheon in the school cafeteria for the installation of officers, which traditionally had been held in August just before school starts.

The sponsors decided this year to have the installation at the school in order to get the old and new officer together more easily.

After the luncheon, each outgoing officer read the duties of that office, then presented the new officer with a scroll listing those duties.

Carmen Flores (left), outgoing president of the Student-Community Action Club, reads the duties of the office before passing the scroll to Erica Whalin.

New officers are Erica Whalin, president; Jenny Hall, vice president; Bailey Barrier, secretary; Jodie Hawkins, treasurer; Elida Diaz, reporter; Stacey Mata, historian; Landon Sheets, chaplain; and Che Chávez, parliamentarian.

New officers and members were initiated into club activities by helping with the seventh annual Tour de Muleshoe bike ride, held June 15.

Club members have helped with this event each year as honorary members of the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation board.

Hall and Mata represented the club during the Friday-night setup for the bike ride at Bailey County Coliseum.

Other members went to the Coliseum on Saturday morning to pick up supplies for the bike ride's Sudan rest stop, traditionally manned each year by the club.

Members worked in two shifts, greeting riders until the 40-mile and 100K riders were in.

Club members also are scheduled to assist in the July 4 celebration at the Coliseum.
