Four Men Sentenced In Burglary

Four men charged with burglary of a building owned by Lois Jones four miles north of Wilson were sentenced by District Judge George Hansard in Post this week after the four pleaded guilty.

Each was given a 7-year probation term and fined $1500 plus court costs. The four are Jackie Lee Cubit, 21, Larnce Steve Woodson, 25; Anthony Bernard Busby, 19; and George Lee White, 23. Woodson is from Big Spring; the others are from Slaton.

Also pleading before Judge Hansard was Bruno Rosales Jr., 22, of O'Donnell, who was sentenced to four years in prison for violating probation which had been assessed on a charge of theft of a pickup in 1985.

The home of Alvin Kitten, north of Wilson, was burglarized July 4 when someone kicked in a front door and took a black and white RCA television set and an RCA videocassette recorder.

Crime Line, 998-5145, is offering a $500 reward in that case, and is offering a $300 reward for information on theft of a Honda Z-50 minibike, stolen from the residence of Eddie Gassaway, four miles north of New Home on FM 1730 on Tuesday.

Tahoka police picked up four persons during the past week on arrest warrants; three of which were on failure to appear for traffic tickets and one person was jailed on an assault warrant.

Police investigated a burglary of a residence of Oleta Petty of 1705 South 3rd on Friday. Reported missing was $238 cash and other items.

In jail during the week were 15 persons. Included were two each for driving while intoxicated and failure to appear on warrants, and three persons on theft by check charges. One person each was in jail on the following charges: making alcoholic beverage available to a minor plus no liability insurance (third offense), carrying prohibited weapon, five counts of traffic

Young Woman's Body Found South Of City

The nude body of an unidentified young woman was discovered two and half miles south of Tahoka alongside U.S. 87 early Wednesday morning.

Because of the condition of the body, with the victim's face bloody and with evidence that she was beaten around the head and on the body, it was not immediately determined whether she was white or Mexican-American.

A Comal County deputy who had picked up a prisoner in Lubbock for return to New Braunfels noticed the body as he was returning from Lubbock, headed south on U.S. 87. The body was on the west shoulder of the south-bound lane, face up, with her feet toward the roadway.

Her hands were bound behind her with makeshift binding of cord and string, according to investigating officers. Apparently her feet also had been bound previously, they said.

The young woman apparently had brown hair, was short and slender and was estimated by officers to be no older than 20, possibly younger. Some of her clothing remained on her arms.

Texas Rangers were called in to head up the investigation, and the body was removed for forensic study to determine the cause of death and whether she had been sexually attacked.

Tim Schlichting, the Comal County deputy who sighted the body about 5:50 a.m. called Tahoka sheriff's office on his police radio.

Justice of the Peace H.W. Edwards went to the scene, but is withholding a ruling until the body is examined to find the cause of death. He said the case is a homicide, but cause of death needs to be determined.

Officers indicated they would seek identification from fingerprints and other methods, but no identification had been made by mid-morning Wednesday. No wounds other than apparent beating of the victim were immediately found.

Bids For Paving Sought

Bids for paving around the city swimming pool parking area and in the area of the baseball parks in the south part of town are to be opened July 27. City council members Monday night approved specifications established by engineers and gave the go-ahead for the project which will be paid out of funds left over from a Community Development Block Grant program.

All members of the council, Mayor Jim Solomon and City Manager Barry Pittman were present.

Bids were opened on a new backhoe for the city, but action was deferred pending response on an alternative plan for acquiring a used machine. V.F. Jones was reappointed to represent the city on the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, a two-year term, and councilmen discussed, but took no action on a resolution establishing procedures for the city judge.

Weldon Self appeared for Energas Co., advising the council that the franchise agreement between the company and the city is scheduled to expire Sept. 15. The agreement will then have been in effect for 20 years, and the company wants a new franchise. A sample ordinance was offered to the city for approval, and the council indicated it would take no action until the city's attorney has a chance to review it.

In addition to discussing plans to go ahead with a program to rid the city of junk cars, the council also heard a monthly report of activities of the Tahoka Police Dept., presented by Chief Ray Woodall.

Carrier Sees Huge Increases In Local Taxes If Veto Used

AUSTIN--Gov. Clements' continued vow to veto new state taxes will mean "very severe" cuts in programs and "huge" increases in local property taxes, state Rep. Steve Carrier (D-Roby) said this week.

The appropriations bill adopted by the Texas House of Representatives Thursday night makes major categories of state spending contingent on passage of an adequate revenue-raising bill. If the Legislature fails to approve the required tax measure, slated cuts in basic state services will automatically take effect.

"The House appropriations bill mandates grave consequences violation, public intoxication, assault plus no liability insurance, driving while license suspended plus no liability, speeding and speeding plus no seat belt used.

for the entire state," Carrier said, "and our area is by no means exempt."

According to a chart offered by Carrier, Tahoka schools, with a projected average daily attendance of 700, would receive $711,316 less per year under the new law. O'Donnell would get a cut of $456,638; New Home ISD would lose $137,069; and Wilson ISD would lose $184,423.

Without additional state revenue now, numerous institutions such as Texas State Technical Institute in Sweetwater, Abilene State School, and the Texas Tech University Medical School would be closed. Also, vocational education would be eliminated from Texas public schools.

Absence of a tax bill will have a "universally devastating" impact on local school districts and local property taxes, Carrier warned. Because the state will shift costs from state funds to local sources, drastic increases in local property taxes would be inevitable, he said, adding that in the 78th legislative district, for example, the tax rate in Tahoka and some other districts would have to more than double to make up for the shortfall. "Since the tax rate of most area school districts would exceed the legal maximum rate, those school districts would be forced to close," said Carrier.

The Levelland Chamber of Commerce and the Hockley County Early Settlers Association will sponsor festivities Saturday, July 11, on the courthouse square in Levelland beginning at 8:30 a.m.

WOODWORK

BY DALTON

ALTHOUGH I haven't read so many of them in recent years, I probably have read more western novels than any other kind, because when I was younger, that's all I read. And I remember that the cattlemen and the sheep raisers were always in conflict, and the cow people frequently referred to "them stinking sheep"

I always considered that not only ungrammatical but probably just a term used to show their displeasure. But the prestigious Wall Street Journal now says that sheep do indeed stink up the place. In fact, the June 30 issue says all of New Zealand (and presumably other countries where lots of sheep are raised) stinks. I guess folks around here who raise sheep knew that all the time, but sheep operations have never been one of my areas of expertise.

The western novels never taught me that sheep really had such a pungent odor. They did teach me that when someone doesn't do right, they should be shot, and they also taught me a lot of Mexican words. My Spanish vocabulary now numbers about 20 words, including such things as hombre, cayuse, sombrero, riata, senorita, mescal, enchilada and Los Ybanez. (Those last two were learned later in life).

Anyway, back to New Zealand, which most folks agree is a beautiful country. But the WSJ says that those millions of sheep munching on the hillsides, are producing so much methane that it's a pollution problem.

According to the story, each one of New Zealand's 70 million sheep produces about five gallons of methane a day. And it stinks. According to a New Zealand scientist, if a way could be found to harness the power of the methane gas produced, one sheep's output could power an automobile for several kilometers a day.

But that probably would be baa-ad for the American oil companies.

PIANIST VICTOR BORGE (one of my favorite entertainers) once told a friend he could tell time by his piano. His friend was incredulous, so Borge offered to demonstrate. He pounded out a crashing march. Immediately there came a banging on the wall and a shrill voice screamed, "Stop that noise! Don't you know it's 1:30 in the morning?"

MAKE FAST FOOD GOOD FOOD

"It's too hot to cook," is heard more and more as summer temperatures climb, and people turn to convenient fast food restaurants. Fortunately, smart consumers can find good nutrition values in their quest to beat the heat. "The restaurant industry is responding to the consumer demand for more nutritional and lower calorie meals, says Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutritionist. "Fast food chains are especially making an effort to attract health conscious people." Many fast food chains are trying to improve the nutritional value of their products by cutting back on sodium and fat. A few chains have even switched to using polyunsaturated fats in their deep fryers in efforts to gain public approval and patronage, Cooksey points out. Salad bars, pizza, and a variety of ethnic foods can be nutritious and low calorie if high calorie toppings aren't added.

Part of the basic concept of freedom in this great country of ours is that we may choose the physician we want to treat us and the pharmacy we want to prepare our prescriptions. This freedom of choice is part of our heritage and we guard it proudly and jealously.

We don't like to be told we have to get something at a particular place or from a particular person. Our pharmacy is proud to be a part of this community's health team and we hope you will want to choose us to be your pharmacy.

Motorists Urged To Prepare For Summer Driving

Motorists should prepare themselves for summer driving, according to Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety. With summer approaching many people are preparing for their vacation and he warned drivers that accidents can and do spoil vacations.

"Texans and tourists from all over the world will be traveling throughout Texas to enjoy our parks, lakes, scenery and the wonderful hospitality that Texas has to offer," he said. For the urban driver the expressway can become a bore, luring the weary into a false sense of security. "Drivers who normally drive on quiet country roads can panic in the confusion of the multi-lane mix of car and pedestrian city traffic," he cautioned.

He suggested for everyone to inspect their vehicle prior to leaving on the trip in order to eliminate the possibility of a minor breakdown miles from nowhere. Check out tires, fan belts, hoses and cooling system, air conditioning, and electrical system.

Just one small accident can ruin a vacation for everyone. Make this summer and your vacation a pleasant experience to remember, not a bad one. To help insure this, wear your safety belt, obey existing laws, and don't drink and drive.

The Bell X-1 was the first plane to officially exceed the speed of sound. It was flown on October 14, 1947 by Major Charles E. Yeager. The plane was nicknamed "Glamorous Glennis."

4-H PROJECTS KEY TO LEARNING

4-H projects are the "backbone" of the 4-H program. Projects help 4-H members grow because, as a member studies and works, he "learns by doing," points out Stanley M. Young, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Skills are learned and developed through practice such as sewing a garment or baking a cake. Publications and other project aids, project meetings, talks with parents, leaders and others all help members learn. But projects are real-life experiences that help 4-H'ers learn to make wise decisions, says Young.

First, a member must decide which project to take. Then, he must decide a lot of things as he is doing the project. In gardening, that would include such things as the location and what vegetables to plant. These decisions help members feel responsible for their own actions and give them personal satisfaction.

Learning to work with others is another benefit of a project, notes Young. The work is done in or near the home where the whole family can work and be together. As members work together, they share ideas and help each other. They learn to compare their work with what other club members are doing. In some projects, club members own their projects. When they do, they learn to care for their property and respect others' property.

Most 4-H projects are set up to meet the needs of boys and girls of different ages. As a member grows older and makes more progress, he has a chance to make more of his own decisions and do work that he could not do at an earlier age.

Besides the development of skills in a certain area, a 4-H project offers the 4-H member fellowship, leadership growth and personal development. The 4-H project, the most important part of the 4-H program, offers 4-H club members the opportunity for head, heart, hand and health development through many avenues of participation in 4-H, says Young.

Insect Clinic Slated July 17

Turnrow insect clinics will be held at various locations throughout Lynn County on Friday, July 17. Sites of the meetings are: New Home Co-op Gin 8 a.m.; Roadside Park (North of Tahoka-West side of road) 10 a.m.; O'Donnell Community Center 1 p.m. and Wilson Co-op Gin at 3 p.m.

Dr. Jim Leser and Dr. Pat Morrison, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be present to conduct the clinics. They will discuss the current insect situation and the outlook for the remainder of the growing season. Following the update the group will then receive demonstrations on scouting techniques, insect identification and other topics in field situations.

These will be critical meetings since insect management in our crops have become very important and require more emphasis on insect economics to be factored in the cropping season.

OUT OF THE WOODS

By Juanell (Wood) Jones

"MOMMY, I'M a big bug," our little 2-year-old girl claimed the other day with a grin. She likes to pretend, you see. And the reason she is pretending to be, of all things, a big bug is because she has seen plenty of the real thing around our house lately ... PLENTY, as in like the Old Testament Biblical plagues of creepy, crawly, ugly, big black critters on the march over all things great and small, inside and out.

Okay, maybe not quite that bad, but pretty grotesque, all the same. We've got trouble in bug city, all right, and it happens to be in and around our own home sweet home, along with the rest of the town it seems. They moved in after the monsoon season (a.k.a. "all that rain") and made themselves at home right away.

My husband noticed them first around the garage, where they had an assembly line to carry off crumbs of some delectable goody (old rotten pecans), and it was only a short while before they invaded the house.

One evening as I was peacefully propped up in bed reading a book, one of the more aggressive bugs crawled up on the bed to look me over. I whacked him with my book and gave him a decent burial in the trash can, then returned to my story. Moments later I made a startling discovery — those big black bugs can FLY. I came to this obvious conclusion when one of them zoomed between my nose and my book and made a perfect landing on a table a few feet away.

I leaped off the bed with a loud "eee-aaaiihh!" and sent him to an early grave to let him join his companion in the trash. My husband dashed into the room to see what had disturbed me, and I told him in no uncertain terms that it was time to spray the house for bugs. He agreed, but what really grabbed his attention to the problem was when later that night he scrambled out of bed muttering about "something crawling up my leg."

We turned on the lights and lifted the covers, and sent two more bugs to the trash. After that happened two more times in about a half hour, we were so jumpy that we imagined bugs where there were none, and didn't get much sleep that night.

Well, that was last week, and after spraying the house twice, the yard once, and letting off a 'bug bomb' underneath the house, we seem to have the critters under control. Mankind once again triumphs over bug-dom. Thank goodness for those nasty pesticides that pollute the earth's atmosphere, killing bugs everywhere so housewives can breathe easier!

Dear John:

John Deere Answers Your Lawn and Garden Woes

Play It Safe

Dear John: My kids will play with anything they can get their hands on. Do you have any tips on keeping my lawn mower from becoming one of their toys?

Dear Prudent Pop: Kids seem to be attracted to machinery, so it's important to explain why a mower is off-limits. Be consistent by keeping young children far away every time you cut the grass. Giving just one free ride on a lawn tractor or utility cart will undo all your serious warnings. And, just in case your children are still tempted to touch, make sure you allow the mower engine and muffler to cool before putting it away.

Dear John: Next to the dentist, there's nothing I hate more than collecting grass clippings. Can I leave them after mowing?

Dear Grass Catcher: A regular appointment for collecting grass clippings isn't always necessary. If you mow often enough to cut only one-third of the grass blade, you can leave the clippings on your lawn in most cases. A season's worth of decomposed grass clippings equals about one application of fertilizer.

But, if you're trying to achieve a lawn with a neat, pristine appearance, you'll want to bag clippings. Also, it's a good idea to collect clippings if they're more than an inch long because they can contribute to thatch or smother the grass and block sunlight needed for food production.

Dear John: How can I keep pests and disease from winning an attack against my border of perennials?

Dear Border Guard: You've already won half the battle if the flowers in your garden are healthy. Healthy plants can defend themselves against infestation and disease far better than weak plants. One of the best ways to hold the line on insect or disease damage is to provide good growing conditions. In addition, keep your garden clean of plant refuse. Decaying plants provide a breeding ground for pests and disease. Finally, scrutinize the plants regularly, looking under leaves, into flowers, and along tender new stems for early signs of insect or disease damage. If chemical warfare is needed, ask a county extension agent for a counter-attack plan.

A Visit With Your County Agent

By Stanley Young

A new "Cow-Calf Management Handbook" has been developed by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with two livestock industry groups to assist Texas ranchers in increasing their competitiveness and profitability under current economic conditions.

Stanley M. Young, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, notes that most successful cow-calf operations depend on a high percent calf crop weaned, high total pounds of beef produced by the herd, and a competitive market price for quality calves. All of these factors must be balanced against a reasonable and competitive cost of production, Young says.

To succeed, ranchers today must study all technological, financial and marketing tools carefully in an attempt to optimize return to an operation, Young says.

Young notes that cow-calf producers have many opportunities to cut production costs and increase returns by accessing research-based technology and applying financial management and marketing information included in the handbook. The handbook, which contains over 100 topics divided into seven major sections for convenient reference, is designed to serve ranchers who operate under Texas conditions. The materials are assembled in a three-ring binder for ease of updating by producers.

An office copy of the handbook has been placed for reference in each county Extension office, Young says. Producers who wish to inspect the book, secure order forms, and place orders for the book--which is priced at $40 per copy-- may do so by going by their local Extension offices.

CAPITOL JOURNAL

STEVEN A. CARRIKER
House of Representatives

The House took the first step to avoid closing our state's public schools, as the Legislature is finally making headway on the state budget. The House last week forwarded to the Senate both a spending plan and a tax bill to fund it. The $38.4 billion state budget adequately funds basic state services without excessive spending. The final face of the tax measure will be shaped to a great extent by the Senate, while the House spending plan should remain largely intact.

In trimming state spending, the House voted to eliminate the Texas Commission on the Arts. This move was requested by 91 percent of my constituents responding to the questionnaire at the beginning of the regular session. A portion of the funds previously used for the Arts Commission were transferred to deal with the child abuse problem in Texas.

In the frenzy of trying to package a spending plan, some legislators get out of hand. One Republican proposed to take money from the Texas Department of Agriculture's marketing program and transfer it to TDA statistics operations. As I told the House in opposing this plan, farmers do not need any more statistics telling them how quickly they are going out of business: farmers need markets. The House saw the folly of trading markets for paperwork, voting with me to preserve the TDA marketing funds.

In another attack, the Republicans sought to dismantle vocational education. This ill-conceived mistake also failed, as every Democrat in the House voted to keep vocational education. The Democratic unity left the Republicans standing alone in opposition to a vital educational program. In the current economic condition of our state, it is especially crucial to have productive educational programs which train our youth in practical and marketable job skills. Vocational education is one of the bright spots in our state's effort to create jobs and diversity its economy.

Requests for hearing must be received by the Commission within 30 days of the date of the first publication of this notice. More information on calling a hearing can be obtained through the Legal Division of the Commission.

New Immigration Laws Discussion Set July 16

The new immigration laws and its affect on the business and labor force will be discussed at 1:30 p.m. on July 16 at the Lyntegar Electric Co-op Meeting Room in Tahoka. Don Vaughn with the Lubbock Branch of the Border Patrol will be present to update the group on the new laws.

These changes could affect the labor force. Farmers and other interested persons are encouraged to attend the meeting and find out the liabilities in regard to the seasonal or annual labor force.

LINEN IS A COOL SUMMER FABRIC-If you're looking for a cool fabric to wear this summer, try linen. Its fast absorbency makes it a cool and comfortable choice for summer clothing. "Linen is a durable, and attractive fabric, says a clothing specialist. "It absorbs moisture, and dries fast, which makes it popular for women's suits, blouses, and jackets. Its appearance is deceiving," she says. "It's really a tough, long lasting fabric. Linen is a bit more expensive than some other fabrics, like cotton, but its durability makes it a good investment. Linen also wrinkles very easily," the specialist remarks. "To some extent, the wrinkling could be considered fashionable, but some people may not care for it. There are linens with durable press finishes and linen blends available that don't wrinkle as easily. Blends are less expensive, yet are still cool and comfortable."

EYES & NUTRITION

"We respond to eyesight degeneration by treating total body deterioration thru nutrition," states New Orleans ophthalmologist Robert Azar, M.D. "A change in diet (low-fat, low-sugar) plus vitamin-mineral supplements have led to postponement, even cancellation of costly eye surgery." Ask your vision specialist if nutrition might improve both your general health and eyesight.
