Top Ranked Leopards Practicing For Playoffs

By BRAD WALKER Texas Tech Journalism Student

Success, it is said, can take its toll. But until Tuesday night, nobody seemed capable of making the New Home boys basketball team pay up. The Leopards, headed for a bidistrict playoff battle with Loop on Feb. 24 in Brownfield, lost for the first time Tuesday in a practice game against Aspermont, but still have a record of 25-1 and are ranked No. 1 in the Texas 1A poll.

cah, but they are not talking about the state tournament yet.

"We're looking more for regionals than state right now," Faubion said. "The kids would like to go to Austin, but that's easier said than done."

The regional, or third, round of the selves," Faubion said.

Faubion was unsure of what to expect this season even though New Home had made the playoffs two years in a row.

"We knew we had the nucleus, but we didn't know how good we could be," he said. "I'm surprised how well it came together." The pressure of an undefeated season continues to mount as the door-die postseason nears, but Faubion said his team has not been affected. "That (the pressure) hasn't been as much of a problem as I thought it would be. I think they go into games thinking they can win. We've had a tough schedule, so being undefeated was really unexpected," Faubion said. Two brothers lead the Leopards statistically. Senior post Gaylon Paul leads the team with impressive numbers (27 points and 14 rebounds per game) and "can at times dominate a game," Faubion said.

Downtown Smashup Kills Tahoka Man

A 24-year-old Tahoka man was fatally injured and two other young persons were seriously hurt early Saturday morning when the car in which they were riding went out of control, overturned and smashed top-first into the side of the Whitaker Hardware building in downtown Tahoka.

The accident on the north side of the Lynn County courthouse square just before 2 a.m. Saturday fatally injured Otis Pendleton III, who died at 8:30 a.m.Saturday in Lubbock General Hospital. Lubbock County Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack had not ruled in the death by Tuesday, pending autopsy and police reports. According to Tahoka Police Dept. reports, the accident occurred as a 1989 Chevrolet IROC-Z driven by Yolanda Lela Bailey, 23, of Tahoka, and a 1974 Chevrolet pickup driven by James Antu, 18, of Tahoka, were both headed north on Main St. at a high rate of speed when both cars went out of control near the caution light at Main and S. 2nd, and the car continued north to S. 1st, where it hit the curb next to the hardware store, struck the upper awning and slammed into the building, apparently with the top part striking it broadside.

The pickup struck a curb on the west side of the courthouse and within five minutes after the alarm was sounded, and had Pendleton out and in the ambulance en route to the hospital 14 minutes after arriving at the scene.

Reportedly the two vehicles involved bumped each other just before the accident, but investigating officers said they could find no evidence that the cars sideswiped.

Services for Pendleton were scheduled Wednesday in Mission Baptist Church in Tahoka.

School Board Changes Principals' Assignments

Tahoka school board extended the contract of High School Principal Charles Cate for two years at the regular monthly meeting of the board Feb. 9, but an assistant high school principal's job was combined with another position and the resignation of elementary principal Gaylon Gassiot was accepted "with regrets."

Cate's contract was extended through school year 1990-91 on a unanimous vote. The job of assistant high school principal, now held by Tom Culbertson has been combined with the athletic director's position, an action that was passed by a 6-1 vote. And Minnie Lou Ash has been

The board went into closed session to discuss personnel before opening the session to vote on the principals.

All board members and Supt. Dr. Duane Carter were present. Board members are Hays, Thalia Burks, Billy Davis, Mike Huffaker, Richard Lopez, Delbert McCleskey and Nedra Young.

New Home coach Jeff Faubion said his team survived a rugged regular-season schedule, including wins over Lubbock Christian and Padustate playoffs would be one step farther than the Leopards reached last year. New Home finished 23-7 in 1988 after losing to Whitharral in the area round. Faubion doesn't doubt that loss is still remembered by some of his players.

"They would like to get farther in the playoffs and redeem them-

ONE OF THE REASONS I detest cold weather is because that is the time when I get colds, and everybody around me gets colds. Either they give them to me or I give colds to them. Colds are another example of 'It's better to give then receive.'

All the medical big-brains in the world have not come up with anything better than chicken soup for treatment of colds. The doctors can give you shots or pills, which deplete your bank account and maybe give you a feeling that you are being cured, but actually most of that stuff doesn't do much other than to alleviate the suffering somewhat while the cold runs its course.

I really don't know if a person can catch a cold just by being cold and wet and miserable. I do know that most colds are caught from somebody else, so I think maybe I have a preventive, if not a cure, for the common cold.

At the first sign of a cold, the person who has it should be shot in the head and buried quickly in a germ-proof box someplace where no right-thinking people ever go, like Philadelphia, for example. That way the germs would never be caught by anyone.

This plan should not be implemented until I get over my own cold, which, at my usual rate of recovery, should be about 27 weeks.

The colds which are going around now are being spread like a chain letter. You catch a cold, then you give it to two other persons, warning them that they must, in turn, give it to two more people each, and send a bottle of Dristan to the person at the top of the list.

KNOTHOLES: Naps really are good for you, according to a story I read in some magazine recently. The story said research shows people operate at a higher level of efficiency in late afternoon if they take a nap after lunch, for example. Hard to do when you're working for the other guy, though.". My nomination for the most useless activity in the world would be those big wheel pull deals where they put a pickup on some tractor wheels or whatever and charge people $11 to watch them. That's the dumbest thing I ever saw, other than professional wrestling.

Darrell Paul, a wing, averages 14 points and 12 boards a game. Point guard Coby James also averages double figures with 12 points per contest.

Guard Joe Solarzano joins James backcourt and Carey Rudd is the wing opposite Darell Paul. Faubion said he normally uses nine players each game.

Faubion has scheduled a number of practice games before the playoffs begin to keep his players fresh. He hopes to maintain the squads' intensity.

Passengers in the car with Miss Bailey were Pendleton and Tracy White, 26, owner of the car. All three were taken to Lynn County Hospital by EMS ambulance and Pendleton was later taken to Lubbock. Both sustained injuries described as serious, but their conditions were reported as "much improved" by Tuesday, and it was reported that both might be released as early as Wednesday.

intensity). That's why I'm trying to get in as many practice games as I can," Faubion said.

"The emotions are just not there in practice games. I'm afraid we're going to lose our intensity. We depend a whole lot on that," Faubion said. "When we're flat we're not very good. When it's a big game our guys seem to rise to the occasion."

New Home will play a practice game against Bronte Saturday in Big Spring.

GENE LINN Lost Battalion To Be Subject At Rotary Today

Gene Linn, long time Lubbock travel agent and world traveler, will be the speaker for the Tahoka Rotary Club at their regular meeting on Thursday, Feb. 16. The subject of Linn's presentation, which will include color slides, will be the Lost Battalion.

The men of the Lost Battalion were mainly from Northwest Texas and began their military careers as members of the 131st Field Artillery, 36th Division, Texas National Guard. The Lost Battalion was a World War II unit that was captured by the Japanese in March of 1942 and spent most of their 41-month imprisonment helping to build the "death railway" from Moulmein, Burma, to Bangkok, Thailand.

Linn's contact with the Battalion began in 1976 when he planned the first of two group tours for the men to return to Southeast Asia and "retrace" their steps from the time they left the United States until they were released from captivity in Thailand in 1945.

Linn and his wife, Vema, served as tour escorts for the second of the tour groups in 1981.

A Question of Property Rights

By Walter E. Williams

Before the surgeon general calls for the National Guard to interdict cigarettes, let's examine smoking issues. The key issue isn't the health of smökers or the nuisance and possible harm to bystanders; it's property rights: the right to keep, acquire, use and dispose of one's property as one sees fit.

Virtually everyone would agree you have the right to smoke and create a nuisance and possibly harm the nonsmokers in your own house. Why? You own the air in your house and can decide how that air will be used. Anyone offended by your smoking can simply choose not to visit your house. Or, if he wishes, offer to pay you not to smoke in his presence.

On the other hand, you have the right to prevent others from smoking in your house, because you own the air and can decide how it can be used in your home.

It's not an issue of whether "passive" smoke harms you or not-it's a matter of property rights. What advice would you give a person who said, "I go to Williams' house, and I'm really bothered by cigarette smoke"? You'd probably counsel the person against such visits.

The more difficult issue involves cigarette smoking in other places, but considering property rights can help us there as well. Should smoking be allowed on airplanes, in restaurants or in the workplace? The answer is not that different from whether smoking should be allowed in your home. It should depend on the wishes of the owner of the airplane, restaurant or workplace. People can simply choose whether they want to use (or work in) a facility based on its smoking policy.

"But," you say, "people have the right to work eight hours in a smokefree environment!" That's right, but do they have a right to dictate how an owner will use his property? Suppose your friend was my maid and complained to you about cigarette smoke in my house-her place of employment. You'd probably counsel her to either get another job or put up with the cigarette smoke.

The more difficult case comes in instances where there are no clear private property rights. This would be the case of publicly owned facilities such as airports; federal, state and municipal office buildings; and schools. Who owns the air in these places? If non-smokers own the property, then clearly they have the right to declare these places to be smokefree; the opposite applies if smokers own the property. It just happens that the courts and federal regulatory bodies have decided this aspect of property rights in favor of nonsmokers.

The conflict between smokers and non-smokers has been resolved using the coercive powers of the state. This is increasingly being extended to areas where property is privately owned. The use of police powers in matters essentially private are offensive to most Americans; however, centering the smoking issue on harm allows some people to get a better night's sleep after using state force to impose their values on others.

"But the government is supposed to protect us from harm," you argue. Using that argument, the government could ban mining, playing football, driving, swimming and a host of other activities. "Williams," you say, "that's not the point; government's supposed to prevent us from harming others!" When I married my wife, or decided to teach at George Mason University, I harmed other women and other universities; they lost the opportunity to contract me.

The job of government is to prevent one person from violating another's property rights. Government bans or restrictions against smoking on privately owned property is an unconstitutional usurpation of power. In

Feeding Infants Meat

Q. My baby has just started eating Gerber Lean Meat Dinners. How do these products compare to the single-ingredient meats and vegetables?

A. Gerber Lean Meat Dinners combine meat and vegetables in one jar. Each serving (4.5-ounce jar) provides at least 40 percent of the U.S. RDA for protein for infants

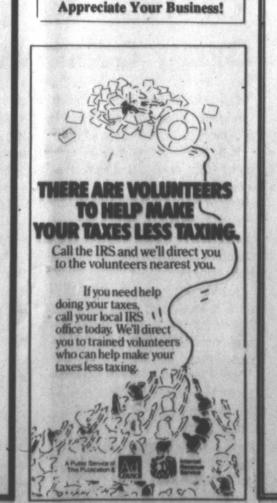

The meats used in the Lean Meat Dinners contain less than 10 percent fat. The total percent of calories from fat in these dinners is about 30 percent. The percentage of calories from protein and carbohydrate reflects current pediatric recommendations for caloric distribution. About 30 percent of calories should be from protein and fat, and the remaining calories should be from carbohydrate.

Lean Meat Dinners have more protein than plain vegetables or vegetable with meat combinations. Vegetables provide other nutrients such as Vitamins A and B6 and riboflavin. A serving of strained meat (2.5-ounce jar) provides more protein than a serving of lean meat dinners. Lean meat dinners should be used in your baby's diet to replace separate servings of other strained foods. Serve these dinners along with milk and fruit for a balanced meal

A Look At Cost Of Health Care

By BYRON ALLAM IDS Financial Services, Inc. When people talk about retirement, the discussion eventually comes around to three major concerns; outliving financial assets; keeping pace with inflation; and paying for health care.

A recent study for Transamerica Life Companies found that today's middle-aged people are strongly self-reliant and optimistic about their ability to provide for themselves during retirement. Yet many of these people don't realize what self-sufficiency after retirement may cost, especially when it comes to health care.

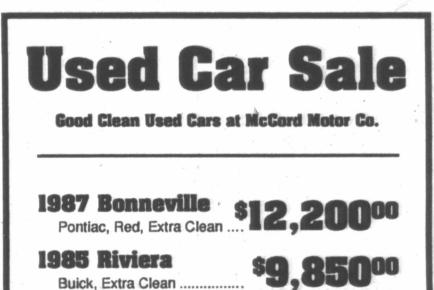

This lack of awareness is understandable. Most people in their pre-retirement years don't get sick enough to run up significant medical bills. If they do, they're usually covered by an employer-provided plan that pays comprehensive benefits with low out-of-pocket maximums. And if employees pay part of the premium themselves, it's removed from their paychecks before they have a chance to miss it. The resulting complacency could be financially hazardous, because of early retirement. According to a recent survey conducted by the Social Security Administration over a 10-year period, more than half the persons who retired between ages 50 and 59 did so involuntarily. Even at age 65, the portion of involuntary retirements was a significant 30 percent.

Health insurance benefits provided by employers are not usually vested or guaranteed to retirees. They're payable only as long as the employer is able and willing to keep the group plan in force. Larger employers are required to offer group medical insurance benefits to terminated employees, but only for 18 months after termination, or until the ex-employees have the right to convert to individuals medical coverage without medical evidence of insurability.

If all this leaves you with visions of an escalator out of control, consider the following steps: Plan to pay more. Pre-retirees should plan now to pay more for health care in the future. They should prepare themselves for higher insurance premimums, and they should expect to pay a higher portion of their medical

Training Spotlights Three Areas Of Child Care Provider Skills

Three areas of skills employed by persons who provide child care to area families will be explored in depth during a one-day training conference March 11 in Lubbock,

"Participants can choose from 12 workshops which are geared toward three major professional interests," said County Extension Agent Annis Brown. The training conference will be conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, with cooperation from several state and community agencies.

The program will be in the education building of the Broadway Church of Christ, 1924 Broadway, Lubbock. It begins at 8:30 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m.

Four of the 12 workshops are especially designed for day care center managers, said Dr. Kathy Volanty, South Plains District director with the Extension service. Four other workshops are tailored for home day care providers, and four will offer day care providers additional information on creative activities and at the conference.

Completion of the day-long training will provide participants six contact hours toward state requirements.

Additional information and registration is available at the County Extension office in Tahoka. The phone number is 998-4650, and the mailing address is Box 669, Tahoka, Tx. 79373.

Tahokan Gets Scholarships

The College of Home Economics at Texas Tech University awarded $65,000 in scholarships to 149 students for the 1988-89 school year. One student from Tahoka was among the recipients.

The Booer-Wolf Scholarship for $400 and the Jewel L. Taylor Scholarship has been awarded to Zane Curry of Rt. 5, Tahoka. Curry is a graduate student majoring in Housing and Interior Design.

Head of Household To List Children

Many taxpayers filing as head of household have been needlessly delaying their tax refunds by forgetting to list the names of qualifying dependents or children, the Internal Revenue Service says.

To file as a head of household, a taxpayer must be unmarried or qualify to file as unmarried, and provide more than half the cost of keeping up a home that is the principal home of the taxpayer and the taxpayer's unmarried child (who may be either a dependent or not), or a married child who must be the taxpayer's dependent

Other qualifying relatives such as an uncle, sister, niece, or son-in-law, must be the taxpayer's dependents, and actually live with the taxpayer the entire year. The taxpayer's dependent parents, however, may qualify even though they do not live with the taxpayer. The taxpayer must have paid more than half the cost of keeping up their home in order to qualify for head of household filing status.

To be considered unmarried, the IRS says, one must be single, legally separated, divorced, married but living apart for at least the last six months of the tax year, or widowed. Without a child or qualifying dependent, the IRS stresses, unmarried taxpayers are not eligible to file as head of household, and if they do not qualify as surviving

DRY MOUTH

While aging is perhaps the commonest cause of mouth dryness, several drugs, including antihistamines, diuretics, blood pressure medication and mood elevators can produce dry mouth as a side effect. Regardless of cause, it should be treated promptly because oral dryness can cause sudden and dramatic dental decay. Even with temporary dryness, keep the mouth continuously moist with sips of water or an artificial saliva product.
