Lynn County Hospital Gets Satellite Link To Continuing Education Programs

by JUANELL JONES

Lynn County Hospital, with the aid of a federal Rural Health Transition Grant, is now offering its medical staff continuing education programs through a satellite link to Texas Tech University's MEDNET program. The program allows nurses and physicians, and other interested medical staff, access to up-to-date medical information and workshops which may be viewed locally at their own convenience.

Hospital Administrator Louise Landers is pleased with the new program, saying, "Small rural hospitals operate with limited personnel and most of our areas are experiencing an acute shortage of family practice physicians. Because of this, it is especially difficult, for those who need it the most, to be away long enough to participate in as many Continuing Education programs as they would like."

Lynn County Hospital was awarded a $39,793 three-year grant in September, 1990 to use in purchasing the Mednet (Rural Medicine Satellite Network) program. This first year, the hospital received $19,950, with the remainder to be paid over the next two years with reapplication. The grant application was submitted through West Texas Rural Health Providers by Project Director Eddie Gaffie of Lubbock.

This grant will pay for all fees of the service for the next three years, with no local funds appropriated for the Mednet program. The grant pays for all equipment associated with the program, along with a $450 monthly fee from Mednet for services. The only fee which the hospital will carry will be the telephone calls which link the viewer with the lecturer on the Mednet program during question and answer sessions. After the grant runs out in three years, the hospital will seek other funds to pay the monthly Mednet fees.

"We feel very fortunate to have received the grant enabling us to have access to this benefit of improving our skills and knowledge on a continuing basis," said Mrs. Landers. There are several rural hospitals who have the satellite program, but did not receive a grant for funding, one of which is the hospital in Lamesa. Denver City, Friona and Van Horn hospitals received a grant for the Mednet program at the same time as Lynn County Hospital.

According to Jannis Childress, Patient Services Coordinator at Lynn County Hospital, who is in charge of the Mednet program, it is an invaluable aid to the medical staff here. A satellite dish was installed at the hospital, and hooked up to a satellite programmer, video recorder and television set, along with microphones which can be linked to the Mednet conference center to allow discussion between the viewer and the lecturers.

"I think that once we get used to having access to these kinds of programs, we'll find it invaluable," said Mrs. Childress. "It will be wonderful to have a library of video tapes on hand for resource and review."

Since the local hospital connected to Mednet, they have received programs on such topics as Alzheimer's disease, grief and depression, low back pain, pediatric trauma, and spinal cord injury rehabilitation, as well as many others.

The concept of the Mednet Network was conceived as an interactive outreach system individually connecting Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center with rural hospitals or clinics in its immediate service area. It is funded by the Department of Health and Human Services and TTU.

Although all lectures and workshops are video-taped by Mrs. Childress, the programs are live when viewed via satellite dish. Anyone watching the program live has access to the Mednet conference line which links the viewer with the lecturer giving the program. The viewer can speak into a microphone system to converse with the lecturer at the end of the program, asking questions or voicing praise or criticism for the program.

Mrs. Childress plans to videotape all programs and create a library at the hospital, so that medical personnel may review the continuing education programs at their own leisure. "If they don't watch it live, they have up to a year to view the program and receive continuing education hours," she said. It is mandatory for nursing personnel to take continuing education courses, she explained.

The system is intended to provide on-site continuing education in the form of grand rounds (in which a physician makes patient rounds and comments on the cases), case conferences, and workshops for physicians, nurses, and allied health professionals.

This system saves time and money, not only for hospitals who must employ temporary staff when a staff member travels to a medical workshop, but also in travel costs for the individual. Lynn County Hospital physician Dr. Richard Wright commented, "To a doctor who is tied to the place, the Mednet Communication System is invaluable."

For the staff at Lynn County Hospital, the Mednet program will save the medical staff innumerable trips to Lubbock or other cities for continuing education programs, while at the same time offering invaluable in-house resource material on hand at all times.

MEDICAL PROGRAM—Lynn County Hospital is now offering continuing education to its medical staff through the Mednet program, offering video lectures on a wide variety of subjects, such as this one on foot problems.

Woodwork...

ON THE WEEKEND of March 9-10 Sweetwater will host its annual Rattlesnake Roundup, an event attended by lots of people, but one which will never count me or my wife (especially not her) in attendance.

I don't like anything about any kind of snake, and she is even worse than I am about snakes. When a snake is shown on television, she either switches the channel or leaves the room.

I'm not quite that scared of snakes, but I do hate them, and so far as I'm concerned, a snake is a snake and should be killed, as soon and as dead as possible. My Bible says the devil is a serpent; and it seems like to me it also says somewhere that Noah made a mistake by putting two snakes on board the ark, and that all snakes need to be destroyed.

Ogden Nash once wrote this poem:
*The cobra's mouth is filled with venom;
He crawls upon his duodenum.
He who messes with a cobra
Is soon a wiser he, and sobra.*

I have a friend who gets upset with me when I kill what he calls a "good-snake", two words which should never be used next to each other. He is one of those people who say some snakes kill other pests and are good to have around and won't hurt anybody. He is reasonably intelligent otherwise.

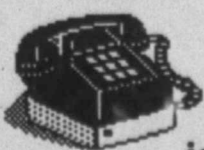

Some people even think it's funny to threaten folks like me with live snakes. Nobody has ever threatened me with a live snake. If anybody ever does, both the snake and the person will be past tense as soon as I get back from wherever I run to.

When I was three years old, I was bitten on the foot by a copperhead. I have hated snakes ever since.

In conjunction with the Rattlesnake Roundup, there will be a couple of foot races on Sunday, including one listed as the "10K Run." This is six miles, which is further than most of us could walk, ordinarily. However, I noticed that following the race will be a demonstration of snake-handling by Jaycees.

If I were in the race, I could run a lot better if they'd have the demonstration before the race, right at the starting line.

Out of the Woods

The wayward thoughts of Juanell (Wood) Jones

Since I have been writing a few stories about people who are involved with Operation Desert Storm for this newspaper, my father jokingly referred to me as the war correspondent and asked if I wanted the paper to send me to the Persian Gulf. I laughed, and said if he wanted to buy me a ticket I might head in that direction, but not to expect me to end up there.

This was at the dinner table the other night, and our 9-year-old son immediately got a stricken look on his face and begged me not to go. It wasn't a very funny idea to him, and I assured him that we were just joking and that of course I was not going to war.

I can't imagine how mothers and fathers explain to their children that they are going off to fight a war. You can't tell them that everything is going to be okay, because it might not turn out that way. I hope that is something I never have to deal with, and I am reminded to be grateful that there are enough other people who are willing to be in the military so that I don't have to.

I explained to my son that I had just written a story about a man who had been in the military for five years, and just returned from the Persian Gulf. I figured he would ask me for some battle stories, but he was more interested in the time limit, asking me how long somebody had to stay in the military. I told him that it depended on how long you signed up for, and he contemplated that for a few minutes, and then in all seriousness said, "I guess I could sign up for, oh, about an hour and a half."

We all burst out laughing, and I said that once you signed a contract with the military, they had you for as long they wanted you, for at least a year. He got a disgusted look on his face and said, "Well, then, I don't think I'll sign their contract." Good idea, I told him.

I don't think I'll sign up, either. I would make a lousy soldier. I don't take well to orders (just ask my dad), and I think they get up too early in the morning for my health, and I don't figure you can go make chocolate chip cookies any time you want to just because you get the urge.

Also, I don't guess they'd let me do some of the other things that I just have to do regularly to survive in this world ... things like eating Mexican food at least once a week ... daily doses of doritos and hot sauce ... shopping trips at least twice a week ... reading mystery and romance novels until two o'clock in the morning ... and writing a column about anything I feel like.

No, I guess I'll just stick with the job I've got. My boss understands at least some of these things ... he likes to go eat Mexican food with me. Sometimes he even reads my columns.

Parker Pharmacy Now Offering Public Fax

Public FAX International of Irvine, California has this week designated Dayton Parker Pharmacy, of 704 S. 1st Street, Tahoka, as a local agency in the Public FAX 7,000 member nationwide fax network. With its selection, Dayton Parker Pharmacy, is able to offer more than just basic "fax to fax" service. Local businesses and residents can use the Public FAX network to send fax mail even to people who are without fax machines of their own.

When a sender wants to fax something to someone who is not fax-equipped, the recipient is directed to a nearby Public FAX network location to pick up the urgent material. The purpose of the network is to make fax capability universal. People with fax can send to people without fax and vice versa, thereby saving them the one-day delay that comes with having to use overnight letters.

Another service offered by Public FAX agencies is the provision of a free fax number. Without requirement of guaranteed usage, Dayton Parker Pharmacy, of Tahoka will allow area people to use its local fax number as their own. This number is 806-998-4109. Users can issue the number to would-be fax senders or even print it on their business cards and stationery. There is a small per-page charge for materials received. Dayton Parker Pharmacy makes immediate telephone calls to advise local users of fax mail that has arrived and then keeps it confidentially in a personal folder until it is picked up.

Other service features include the capability of sending pictures and photographs and having mail faxed for international delivery via IN-TELPOST. Also, messages to Operation Desert Storm can be faxed for free.

Bridge Winners

Winners in the Feb. 19 duplicate bridge game were as follows: First, Al Postar and Genny Park; second and third, Auda Norman and Betty Taylor; second and third, Marge Maddox and James McAllister.

NOTICE

Dear Customer, The City of Wilson has been notified by the Texas Department of Health that the water being supplied by our system exceeds the following maximum constituent level for Nitrate specified by the Departments "Drinking Water Standards: which were promulgated as required by the "Safe Drinking Water Act", Public Law 93-523 U.S.

The limit is set at 10 milligrams of Nitrate as nitrogen per liter of water. The amount of Nitrate in the water we supply was reported to be 10.5 milligrams per liter.

Adults and children over the age of 6 months need not be concerned about drinking water from the tap. An excess Nitrate intake by an infant under the age of six months may reduce its available oxygen supply and possibly produce "blue baby" symptoms. Parents are advised to find other sources of drinking water, such as bottled water, for their infants under 6 months of age. All doctors and hospitals in the area have been notified of this situation.

We are continuing to test water every 90 days. If you have any questions or concerns about this situation, please call Roy Isham Water Superintendent City of Wilson, 806-628-6221 or 806-628-6283. City of Wilson Nitrate 10.5 s/s Roy Isham, Water Supervisor

Out-of-state banks want to give you quick decisions... But can't.

When opportunity knocks, how long are you willing to let it wait at the door? If you're like most Texans, not very long.

If you're banking at one of those big, out-of-state holding company banks, you might not have much of a choice.

Sure, they'd like to give you a quick answer, but in most cases they simply can't. You don't have that problem with us.

We're one of the "I's of Texas." Your Independent, "hometown bank" that helped build this town.

We don't need permission to lend you money from some committee in New York, North Carolina or Ohio. Because we make our decisions right here.

When your business is on the line, you don't want excuses. You want answers.

The I's of Texas.
