Talent Time Roundup Continues for Fourth

It's talent roundup time in Muleshoe, and the drive is on to line up everybody who can sing, play, dance, yodel, mimic, whistle, tumble, or what have you. That goes for everybody in the Muleshoe trade territory.

Besides it might be worth as much as $125—if you are good enough to take first prize in Muleshoe's second annual Fourth of July celebration, sponsored by the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce.

Entries are beginning to come in at a rapid rate for the $500 talent search, but Roger Albertson, chairman of the talent division, says many more are needed. It's still a wide-open field, he said, in sounding another appeal for talented folks to take part in the celebration.

The talent contest will be the high spot of the entire celebration which gets under way at 6 p.m. with an old-fashioned basket picnic—you bring the food.

After the feed, there will be old-time visiting. It's a day when the old-timers, who haven't seen one another since last year's celebration, can get caught up with what's happened to Uncle Joe and Aunt Minnie, for instance.

The talent show is slated for later that evening with Gil Lamb as master of ceremonies. An out-of-town panel will do the judging to see who gets money ranging from $125 down to $15 for prize-winning acts.

The entire day's celebration will be climaxed with a gigantic fireworks display, directed by Earl Ladd of the Muleshoe fire department.

People—young, old, middle-age—who can perform are invited to strut their talents. Anyone in the Muleshoe area can enter by contacting Albertson.

The entire celebration from basket dinner to fireworks finale will be staged at the Benny Douglas stadium.

Sugar Beet Growers Hear Report of Washington Delegates

The Clovis Sugar Beet Growers Association met Thursday, May 31 to hear reports from two of their representatives who were recently in Washington to review sugar beet legislation. All interested parties were invited to attend.

Present from Muleshoe were Carl Bamert, President of the Bailey County Sugar Beet Growers Association; Harmon Elliott, Vice President; James Glaze, Secretary; Bobby Airhart, Director; Ernest Kerr and Frank Ellis, President of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce.

It was brought out at the meeting that existing Sugar Beet Legislation will expire on June 30, 1962, and according to reports of the two Clovis men just returned from Washington, the Senate Agricultural Committee has not at this time made recommendations to Congress for new Sugar Beet Legislation. It is anticipated that new legislation must be passed by Congress or the present law will be extended.

The Sugar Beet Growers Association are interested in new legislation, which would provide additional acreage for raising sugar beets in United States and construction of new mills in order to create a more diversified economy in farming areas. It has been estimated that approximately 45 percent of the sugar consumed in the United States is imported.

Representatives of the Bailey County Sugar Beet Growers Association have, in the past, been in both Denver and Washington to represent area farmers interests they expect to have people in Washington this month in the event new Sugar Beet Legislation is proposed.

Holly Sugar Corporation of Colorado Springs, Colorado, through County Agent J. K. Adams, has supplied seed for test plots to area farmers including Carl Bamert, Jim Green, Ed Littl, Joe Wheeler, Bill Millen, Bob Gable and others. Progress reports from these plots will be forwarded to Holly Sugar Corporation.

The Muleshoe Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring the D. S. Dudley Shows at the Boy Scout grounds in Muleshoe through Saturday, Chief Earl Ladd reports.

Proceeds will be used for the Firemen's General Fund chiefly to buy two-way radios and a base station for the department.

"This is a good show—good rides, good equipment," Ladd said. "We hope the people of Muleshoe will go and enjoy themselves and help the fire department at the same time."

Each Muleshoe merchant is being asked to purchase tickets in pairs, thus assuring that a farmer may attend the dinner free of charge.

Tickets are $2 each and may be obtained from any of the following merchants until June 10: Earl Harris, James Jennings, Frank Ellis, Bill Wimberly, Owen Jones, Irvin St. Clair, Bobby Airhart, Roger Albertson, Harmon Elliott, Spencer Beavers, John Smith, or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Farmers of the three south communities will be guests of Muleshoe merchants at the dinner to be served in the Needmore community center by ladies of the Needmore community club.

FIRST LOADS RECEIVED EARLY

Wheat Harvest Will Be Well Underway Within Another Week

Of the six grain elevators surveyed in the immediate Muleshoe area only three had received their first winter wheat before Wednesday. The wheat was bringing from $1.92 to $1.95 per bushel and contained from 10 to 13 percent moisture.

One elevator reported that they had received wheat from four different farms, yielding from 57 to 60 bushels to the acre for the owners. Their wheat tested 11 to 12 1/2 percent moisture content.

These loads came from the farms of Jack Schuster on Route 5, Lester Howard of the Needmore community, Carl Bamert and E. N. McCall, both of the Muleshoe area.

Another elevator reported a load of wheat from the farm of Amal Hansen near L. A. Z. B. U. D. D. I. E., testing 13 percent moisture. His wheat produced 56 bushels per acre.

The farm of J. G. Arna produced some Tascosa wheat for another elevator, testing 16 percent moisture and the grain men had not determined at the time what the acreage was.

Some of the wheat in the area still needs a few days of ripening before combine sickles will be permitted to touch it. Farmers are hoping that weather conditions will leave off hail prior to cutting time, and grain men are looking forward to their having the new grain in their bins.

The Earth Elevators received their first load of wheat Tuesday coming from a dry land farm that had been severely damaged by hail. The wheat was badly shrivelled and of light test.

J. J. Coker of the Earth-Springlelake community brought in the first load of wheat to the Springlake elevator on Monday, June 4th, and had followed this with a load each day. His wheat comes from an irrigated field and ran 11.79 percent moisture and tested 59 pounds.

R. L. Byers, Jr. owner of the Springlake elevator has just completed a new office and display building housing his farm supplies and hardware department and new scales will allow the weighing of the largest of trailer trucks.

One appliance — an electric combination refrigerator-freezer — does both jobs — freezing and refrigerating . . . for those who are without the space for two separate units. It's a most useable electric appliance, giving the homemaker immediate, convenient storage for frozen foods and providing adequate cooling space for non-frozen foods, too. This appliance disproves the old adage that you "can't have your cake and eat it, too." And, the new models with their efficient new insulation give you more space, in the same-size cabinet than many older models.

how to kill Johnson grass that strangles your cotton

You've probably read about the chemical with the long name that makes it easy to kill Johnson Grass - Hexachlorocyclopentadiene. ORTHO C-56 contains it. We've seen it work. We recommend it for controlling Johnson Grass in cotton fields. Here's why it's so effective.

ORTHO C-56 has penetrating power far beyond the ability of simple kerosene or oil. It rapidly soaks through the waxy coating of the leaves and shoots straight to the root. You'll see plants turn brown while you're still in the field. Not just the tender, young shoots of Johnson Grass. C-56 penetrates the heavy wax coating of older plants, too. (Some stubborn Johnson Grass may need more than one application, however.) And despite its unusual potency—even during drought or in low temperatures when oils are usually less effective—C-56 will not sterilize the soil.

To reduce to an absolute minimum the risk of injuring your cotton plants while killing grass, we suggest applying C-56 with the new ORTHO gravity hand sprayer. We have them available now at the special low price of $7.95. So don't wage a losing battle with Johnson Grass. Just press the button and knock it out—with C-56 and the ORTHO gravity hand sprayer.

Let's talk about the higher profits you can expect from cotton protected by this lethal combination. Phone, or better yet, drop in and see us.

ANN PHELPS TO CAMP SWEENEY

Miss Ann Phelps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Phelps, left Saturday for Camp Sweeney at Gainsville for a four-week camping session beginning June 3. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps drove their daughter to Gainsville.

Camp Sweeney, in its twelfth year, offers horseback riding, boating, water skiing, swimming, riflery, archery, crafts, basketball, volleyball, gymnastics and other outdoor sports.

Results of the magazine's nationwide sampling of future doctors in 17 medical schools are revealed in the June issue, published today. The schools surveyed account for about one-third of the total U.S. enrollment in medical education.

Many of the students said that nationalized health care—if it comes—would cause them to lose interest in medical careers, to drop out of the field entirely, or to migrate to other countries to practice. Some said that a nationalized system comparable to that in Great Britain would, in their opinion, aggravate an already serious U.S. doctor shortage by discouraging many able young people from studying medicine.

Seventy per cent of the students interviewed on campuses from California to New York said they oppose use of the social security system to provide health services to persons 65 and older. About 30 per cent supported this idea, which is currently before Congress in the form of the King-Anderson bill.

Week's Calls Raise Total Fires to 76

Calls of five fires were answered by the Muleshoe Volunteer Fire Department this week, Chief Earl Ladd said, making a total of 76 the first six months of 1962. On May 28, a fire began for "no apparent reason" in the home of Nina Woodridge. Minor damage was reported. During the worst of last Thursday's sandstorm, 2,000 acres of grassland burned on the Phelps and Haisell Ranches, southwest of town. Set by lightning, the fire necessitated four hours of fighting by 14 firemen, 8 from Haisell ranch, and Commissioner Ike Stinson furnished two maintainers.

A freak accident was reported in a car fire on the 1400 block of West Avenue D when Pat Childer's car had one tire burned off and damages to the right rear and back of the car. While putting on a trailer hitch on the car, the blacksmith's torch hit the gas tank to start the fire. On Sunday, a grassfire burned two blocks in back of the N. W. Lee residence in the Lenau addition. The fire was started from a trash barrel, Ladd said. At 11 p.m. Tuesday night the firemen were called to extinguish a smoldering fire at the City Dump, north of the city. It was controlled in an hour, Ladd reported.

Fifteen year-old Willie Washington was greeted with jubilation shouts, even from close contender, in a spot landing contest Sunday morning at the Muleshoe Flying Service as he glided the Piper J-3 Cub in to take first place over adult contestants.

The race for top spot began when Don Bryant, fourth flyer in the contest, touched down 22 feet and 7 inches away from the goal line. Flying fifth, H. C. Elliott overshot the area on the first two passes and settled in on the third and final approach to take the lead with 16 feet and 2 inches.

Two lines were drawn across the east-west runway at a distance of 200 feet apart. Another line drawn halfway between the two, was the target spot. Measurements were made from the center line to the point where the wheels first touched the ground. Take-offs were made to the west and approach to landings from the east. To qualify, landing had to be made within the 200 foot area with power off.

Washington was reluctant to enter the contest after he had watched several commercial, private and other student pilots try for the mark and miss during the two week period prior to contest time. He was persuaded to fly by Hugh Yeates and on his first try he over-shot the west mark. After taking off on the second run, Washington cut the power on the small craft to the north of the airport, made a 180 degree turn and glided in. With the right wing low, the right wheel hit center on the target line with the left wheel slightly in advance. When both wheels touched down, the measurement was 4 feet and 9 inches, the best for the day.

Morgan Locker, riding in the plane with the contestant said when Washington was approaching the landing on the second run, he could hear the crowd roar as they knew that he was going to come in very near the target. On approach to the final landing, using the same method of approach, he set the craft down at 11 feet from the target, to become the only contestant to make two landings within the designated area.

Don Bryant, having just given way to Elliott for first place, then more recently to Washington, showed one of the truest forms of sportsmanship when he was observed in the front line of the "rooting section", yelling "Hold that thing up, Willie, hold it up boy!" When the landing was complete, he turned and said, "People he flew that thing all the way."

Aside from all pilots making exceptionally good landings safely, the outstanding sportsmanship shown was something to be remembered. All contestants had a desire to win the trophy with the Cherokee mounted atop (first place) but all of them were very happy to see it go to the youth as an encouragement for the work he is doing toward a career in aviation.

Entrants other than the winners were: Gloria Herrington, Betty Williams, Beth Watson, Ray Preure, Sam Damron and Bill Jim St. Clair. Alternating air judges were Jack Little and Locker. Ground judges were Hugh Yeates, Jack Little, Willard Heathington and Herbert Griffith.

EMERGENCY LANDING

Four local men experienced some uncertain minutes last Thursday night as they circled Muleshoe with landing gear trouble. Piloting the Comanche was Jack Little with Ed Little as co-pilot and passenger were Wylie Baker and Bill Millen, who were returning from Plainview where they attended a Natural Gas meeting.

Upon entering the traffic pattern, Little pushed the button to lower the retractable gears and all electric power went out immediately, including beacons, lights and radio. This was the first indication Little had that they were having trouble.

Unable to find the flashlight which is kept in the plane for emergency use, Ed Little held a cigarette lighter near the panel for Jack to read the instructions to lower the gears manually. The lighter soon burned out and then gopher matches were their only means of light to finish the operation.

After about 20 minutes they got the wheels lowered and landed. Morgan Locker, who had made an unsuccessful attempt to contact the plane from the office radio, watched from the ground and they circled. He said that he expected some excitement among them when they got the craft on the ground, but all four were very calm. Bill Millen commented, "I sure was glad to have Jack for the pilot during that deal."

Little flew Navy fighter aircraft off carriers during World War II and made a number of emergency landings during that time. The Comanche was taken to West Texas Aviation in Lubbock Saturday where it was given a complete check by Piper mechanics. They reported that the power failure was due to a dry battery, and nothing was mechanically wrong with the craft.

TIPS...

FROM THE OFFICE OF HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT

by ANN GRAHAM

There are some invisible enemies of the housewife in her many efforts to provide wholesome, serviceable things for the family, including good, long-wearing clothing, and fabric care. We are concerned here only with clothing and fabrics, and of course, those who make them, how they are made, the defects or faults of them that are completely hidden from the housewife. That's right completely hidden from their view.

By this we mean for instance, an inner lining in a garment in many car coats, jackets, etc. that will eventually fade all over the garment in the cleaning process.

Naturally, the garment is there after washing. They have completely lost their investment in the garment. "Why didn't the merchant from whom I purchased the garment know this and warn me?" "Why didn't the dry cleaner who caused this garment to fade know this?" These and other questions are asked, for they are in the mood to blame someone and we can understand how they feel.

There are also coats and jackets with a plastic lining sewed inside, completely hidden from view. You can't possibly know this hidden fault is there, and it appears to be a nice, warm jacket, just what the husband wants or the son needs, so it is purchased. It must be remembered though, every garment made for wear MUST BE CLEANED some day by some method.

Eventually the jacket becomes soiled and during these busy days women don't have time to wash such a heavy garment, besides, it may be that the last time a similar garment was washed it did not come out clean. The answer is to rush it to the neighborhood cleaner. What happens? The cleaner spends far more valuable time than usual in spotting and working the deeply imbedded stains out and then dry cleans it. After cleaning he puts it in his tumbler to remove all odors and to dry it, but when he takes it out of the tumbler it is as stiff as a board! Why? The plastic lining that was hidden from your view when it was purchased, hidden from the merchant when he put it in stock, and hidden from the cleaner, was not drycleanable. The heat in the drying of the garment caused the stiffness.

The customer is exasperated and we naturally can't blame her. You might ask why does the merchant sell this kind of garment, or why doesn't the cleaner know how to handle such garments? The question could also be asked, "Why did the lady purchase such a garment?" The answer to all questions is, the fault of the jacket was HIDDEN from all of those involved by the "people who made it!" They are the ones who are totally to blame for the loss.

And here is more shrinkage of garments has been a big problem in the clothing and fabric field for many years.

What can be done about it? There are two things you can do, as we see it. If you are buying ready-made garments, regardless of the fabric, you can ask the sales person if they guarantee the material to be pre-shrunk. If they stall around and seem evasive, then it is evidently up to you whether you wish to "take the chance." In purchasing yard goods the same thing should be done and if they are evasive, then ask for a sample, perhaps one inch wide by three or four inches long and take it to one of our members-a fine, progressive cleaner-and ask him to take the exact measurement of the sample, then lay it on one of his steam presses and steam it thoroughly. Measure it again and if it hasn't been pre-shrunk the shrinkage will show up immediately.

Parmer County Farm Bureau News

By RAYMOND EULER

"Am I for a free agriculture, or a managed agriculture?" The fact is, a person or individual cannot be for both. There is no such thing as freedom and security. As security is guaranteed by a government or any other group powerful enough to manage men, freedom must be denied.

Most farm leaders know that agricultural people favor freedom in agriculture in words by about 53 percent. In action, fewer than 3 per cent favor freedom in agriculture. Approximately 4 per cent actually favor the supply management approach.

The question is, why do farmers and ranchers continue to plunge forward in this move toward a managed agriculture? The answer obviously lies in the fact that most agricultural leaders and individuals believe that we can go just a little further without being completely destroyed. Most of the remedies being offered in the form of legislation in Washington are reluctantly accepted by farmers thinking they can do nothing to prevent the move toward a managed agriculture.

This results in a scramble among producers of agricultural products for the benefits of the programs offered, at the same time knowing that they will eventually destroy him.

In the final determination, the problem can be reduced to one simple question that each individual farmer and rancher in the United States of America must decide once and for all. This is the question posed at the beginning of this column.

It is very clear that farmers and ranchers who say that they are for freedom and continue to cooperate with such programs as the 1961 and 1962 Feed Grain Program, vote for marketing quotas or fail to vote against the program, or refuse to vote at all are simply kidding themselves. In the long run, these producers will find they have voted for a controlled agriculture during a time when they were declaring they were for freedom.

If the farmers and ranchers of the United States continue to cooperate with the various programs offered by the United States Congress, they can be assured that the time of a completely managed agriculture is at hand.

All of the above is copied from "Facts For You", prepared by Bill Wedemeyer, Director of the promotion and Research for Texas Farm Bureau. We have the complete text, two or three pages in the office, if you would like to read more details regarding these hard facts.

Your membership in Farm Bureau is solicited and you will be welcomed.

"We don't want to give them (growers) a tremendously profitable price, but let's let them get just enough to keep them working as hard as they have in the past so consumers can continue to enjoy cheap turkeys." This is a quote from a USDA official, dated January 11, 1962, regarding plans for control of turkey producers.

The Senate has passed the administration farm control bill and it is now ready for the consideration of the House.

Farm Bureau urges you, if you are opposed to the bill, to write your opposition to your represent-

Facts From The Farm Bureau

We would like to make the general observation that the approach in this proposed legislation on proposed new controls on agriculture seems to treat the nation's agriculture as some sort of an invalid industry unable to thrive without increasing resuscitation and transfusion from the Federal Government.

This seems to us a distorted or warped picture of agriculture and the nation's farmers, who have shown, and continue to evidence, a remarkable capacity for dynamic forward thrust and adaptation to rapidly changing conditions.

An industry that has reduced its work force by one-third, increased its output by one-fourth, has a 50 percent increase in its dollar volume in the 15 years since the end of the war, surely is not a sick or dying industry. During this same period, the net investment in farm plant and equipment has increased every year.

We recommend against providing authorization to the Secretary for the acquisition and resale of farmland for use as public recreation and fish and wild life protection, and for "more economic uses" of land. Present acquisition is limited to submarginal land not suited for cultivation, and resale is not authorized. As we understand the intent of this provision, it is to give the Secretary an immense power to divert land from crop production as a part of a huge land diversion program.

In action-urging contacts with businessmen, we stress the special need for hard-hitting support of farm leaders in their "fight for freedom!"

Airmail letters, telegrams and telephone calls to Congressmen that leave no doubt about the back-home sentiment toward the unprecedented and far-reaching controls proposed may well be a major factor in close decisions on key votes on the Farm Bill, now pending in the House after passage in the Senate.

On the other hand, lack of evidence of back-home concern about proposed new controls on agriculture may be interpreted as a general willingness to accept them "by default."

SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER CLAIMS

Farmers Can Stand Stock Market Fluctuations Better Than Tycoons

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm looks at the stock market this week, from quite a distance.

Dear editor:

I know farmers aren't supposed to be as well let's say, mentally alert as big business men, they're supposed to use brawn more than brain, but sometimes I wonder.

For instance, when the stock market took a nose-dive recently, what happened? Why, big business all over the country began shuddering, members of the Stock Exchange got jittery, the newspapers were full of expert advice and explanations, and people began wondering if the bottom was going to fall out of things. Is this another 1929? they asked.

Some people with stocks even became a little panicky, and the more worried they got the more they sold. "Why, just think," one man complained, "yesterday my stock was worth $70 a share. Now it's worth $40." He was plenty worried.

But here's the point. Every time somebody sold a stock, somebody else bought it, and after it was all over the stocks apparently climbed back up to about where they were before. People kicking themselves at first for not selling sooner, then kicking themselves for having sold.

Business people ought to associate with farmer more and they'd come to learn how to be calm under such situations. It happens all the time in farming. Many's the time I've had a crop in the field I figured was worth so much money, only to find out when I hauled it to market it was worth 30 per cent less. Every farmer knows what it is to have a steer worth $100 today and $70 tomorrow.

If farmers got panicky under such a situation, they'd stay that way most of the time. Wild fluctuations in the stock market may run big business men bererk, but fluctuations in farm prices are as ordinary to a farmer as dry weather when he needs a rain and rainy weather when he needs sunshine.

On top of this, most of the losses in the stock market are paper losses, a stock will keep, it's not like a hog that's ready for market. In farming, the losses aren't paper losses. This doesn't necessarily prove that farmer are smarter. They just don't scare so easy.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

MRS. LAMBERT'S MOTHER SUFFERS HEART ATTACK

In Our Time

IT'S THE LAW in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

PARENTAL CONSENT NEEDED FOR CARE

It's a good idea to give written consent for necessary medical care if your child leaves home for a visit or camp night, or if you plan to be away for any length of time.

For example, a summer camp nurse may bring a boy into a hospital with an acute case of appendicitis. But the doctor may well hesitate to go ahead and operate without the parent's consent.

Is the doctor arbitrary, and is such permission just a legal technicality? No, he is well within his rights, though he may give first aid—but only for emergency treatment where a child's health or life may be at stake. He is likely to put off follow-up care until he can reach the child's parents. A relative or baby sitter generally cannot grant consent for a child's treatment.

Even an adult must request treatment and grant consent to medical care on his own before a doctor can give it to him. Children cannot do this.

By going to your doctor you show your willingness and consent to accept his treatment. Your consent is assumed also when you ask for a house call by the doctor, or if as a result of an accident you come to a hospital for emergency treatment. If you are unconscious, the doctor may well give you emergency care, yet later he should get your consent to further treatment.

Minors cannot consent to medical treatment, and except in dire emergencies, their parents or guardians must give it for them. The consent should not be broadly or loosely phrased, but should be as specific as circumstances permit.

The principal reason for having the consent in writing is to avoid later misunderstandings. It is a protection both to the patient and physician.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

VISITORS FROM PLAINVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Smith and Mrs. Matt Pool were Sunday guests of the Lee Pools and W. M. Pools.

June, 1962 And June, 1944

It has now been eighteen years since American soldiers landed in France during the darkness of the morning of June 6th, 1944. This was, of course, the biggest amphibious operation of its kind ever undertaken and the democratic countries which were mounting the effort had been planning this operation for years.

It was necessary that American, British, Canadian and other soldiers land in Europe if Hitler was to be defeated and that is why the gigantic operation was staged.

We look back on the valiant efforts of the war years and it is sometimes easy to be cynical about them. It is easy to say, regarding fighting with the Russians, that we were actually fighting the wrong enemy.

But hindsight is always better than foresight and at the time of World War II the immediate menace for England and America and the free world was fascism. Hitler was murdering people in many, many countries — in the name of fighting Communism.

It may be true that he was against Communism, too, but he operated a dictatorship that was similar to Communism. And he was bringing about more deaths and destruction in the former free world at that time, by far, than were the Communists.

It is true that we aided the Russians tremendously and that they took advantage of us after the war and that, if we had it to do over again, we might conduct our affairs with them differently.

The important thing to remember in June, 1962, is that the great landings of 1944 brought about a great wage of unity of purpose and solidarity among the American people. They were as one in their hopes and thoughts. The defeat of Hitlerism was necessary and it was accomplished. For that, June, 1944, should be remembered.

We might also remember that, as a nation, the more united we are the stronger we are. Those who seek to divide us, to turn one element of the population against another, must not succeed — as they have, in some cases, in recent years.

40,964 ACRES RELEASED TO AREA

High Plains Gets Bonus Acres

According to Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. farmers on the High Plains have received a "bonus" of 40,964 acres of cotton allotment for planting in 1962 under a law authorizing the voluntary release and re-apportionment of cotton allotments.

A law which went into effect in 1960 permits farmers to release cotton acres they do not plan to plant to their county ASCS committee and retain "history" planting credit on their farms. All acres released within a county that are not requested or utilized by that particular county or zone are then made available for re-allocation to other zones.

Releases were distributed to the counties on the basis of such factors as hardship, number of applications filed for added acres, amount of the allotment reduction from 1961.

The "bonus" will boost the total acreage available for planting in the 23 PCG counties to 2,396,816 acres as compared to the 1961 total of 2,442,627 acres.

The "bonus" acreage for area counties include:

County	Acres

USDA Official Checks Area For Screwworms

Charles Black, USDA Animal Disease Eradication official, is in Bailey County last week checking all herds in feed lots, ranches, and farms. He arrived last Tuesday and will remain in the area until the territory has been completely covered, J. K. Adams, county agent, reported.

If screwworms are found to be a problem in any area in Bailey County, a special release or "drop" of male sterile flies will be made, Adams said.

Early Irrigation For Cotton Told

County Agent, J. K. Adams, said that the extremely dry conditions of last May have caused some drying of the soil furrows. "Plants appear to be in a dehydrated condition. Some cotton plants are dying. Knowing that early irrigation is not recommended, some area farmers are still turning to early irrigation as the best way to keep cotton alive."

The best practice seems to be the use of short sets of sprinklers he said. Farmers without sprinklers and who can water, know by experience that watering down the cotton furrow is very bad.

"However, some of the very best cotton farmers are making a furrow in every other cotton middle. This puts water into one side of the cotton root zone and the air comes in from the other side so the cotton does not have to succumb to shock and seedling disease," Adams said.

Joe Harbin of Bailey County REA said that sprinkling plus light cultivation seems to look better.

Walter B. (Jack) Little, who farms in the West Camp area has experimented with the furrow method and reports that his cotton is doing well and is holding moisture and keeping the killing static electricity condition from burning the cotton. Little is completing some 200 more acres by this method.

Some blow sand cotton was plowed up to save several adjoining acres Monday and a week ago Tuesday after the high winds, Adams reported.

Conrad Williams, in the Stegall area, has 2,000 to 2,500 acres normally in wheat. Presently he has all but 320 acres plowed up. "Seven inches is the least amount in one year that I remember and we've had less than an inch in the first six months this year," Williams told County Agent Adams.

These responsibilities include the regular spray program, close and frequent observation of all animal, pre-treatment of all insects before they become infested with screwworms, early and intensive treatment of screwworm-infested animals and frequent retreatment. Also the collection of 10 worms from each wound for positive identification. These worms should be delivered to the local county agent or livestock inspector.

"Female flies laying eggs in fresh cuts, bruises or areas with fresh blood on new born calves will be laying eggs which will not hatch into the hated screwworm after such sterile fly releases" he added.

One case of the dreaded screwworm had been reported in Bailey County, so stockmen in the area must be vigilant. Responsibilities to the eradication of the screwworm program must be carried out, Adams said.

Adams also told of the new sterile fly production plant at Mission which on July 1 will produce 100 million sterile screwworms per week. Cattle below Mission have already been sprayed by USDA with Korlan preventive spray.

Eventual eradication of this costly livestock pest will come from a combination of the release of sterile flies and work by livestock owners. Stockmen should adhere closely to good screwworm management practices to protect their herds and help reduce screwworm populations. In order that maximum results can be obtained from the sterile fly releases.

Maps Published Indicate Decline Of Plains Water

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has announced the publishing of a map which indicates the decline of the ground-water table in the southern High Plains for the 24-year period, 1938 to 1962.

The map is prepared in three colors, black, yellow and red. It uses the different colors to indicate various increments of decline.

A total of five increments are shown—10-40 feet, 40-60 feet, 60-80 feet and more than 100 feet of decline since 1938.

W. L. (Bill) Broadhurst, Chief Hydrologist for the High Plains Water District made the decline computations revealed by the color map. His computations were based on water-level measurements made by the U. S. Geological Survey, the Texas Water Commission and the High Plains Water District.

According to Broadhurst, a decline map such as the one just published can be used along with other data to determine, within reasonable limits, the amount of ground water depleted from the reservoir, and the approximate amount of water remaining in storage.

"Percentage wise," Broadhurst states, "as an average for the 13 counties in the High Plains Water District, something on the order of 20 per cent of the ground water available to pumps in 1938 has been depleted. The percent of depletion for the counties in the District is: Armstrong, 32 per cent; Bailey, 13 per cent; Castro, 19 per cent; Cochran, 26 per cent; Deaf Smith 18 per cent; Floyd, 22 per cent; Hockley, 30 per cent; Lamb, 15 per cent; Lubbock, 44 per cent; Lynn, 38 per cent; Parmer, 12 per cent; Potter, 33 per cent; and Randall, 20 per cent.

The map has been reproduced in the Water District's non-advertising monthly newspaper, "The Cross Section" and mailed to the persons on the circulation. For others, who do not receive "The Cross Section" but who would like a copy of the map, it will be made available free of charge upon request. Address map requests to: High Plains Water District, 1628-15th Street, Lubbock, Texas.

SURPLUS CROP LIST

The Department of Agriculture announced on May 18 that they were dropping flaxseed from the list of crops designated as surpluses on lands leased from U.S. Government agencies, and that dry, edible beans had been added to the list.

The revised list of designated surplus price-support commodities follows: dry edible beans, cotton (upland and extra long staple), barley, corn, grain sorghum, oats, rice, rye, soybeans, wheat, and tobacco. Under the terms of the law, these named surplus commodities may not be grown on land leased from U.S. Government agencies; and if they are, they will not be eligible for price supports.
