Negro Given 20 Years In Lazbuddie June 7 Dump Yard Shooting

A verdict of guilty of murder with malice was reached by a jury in 154th District Court in Farwell Saturday in the June 7, 1966 shooting of Leroy Lovelace at the dump yard near Lazbuddie.

Roy James Renfro, a 51-year-old Negro from Earth, was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

The defendant allegedly used a .303 caliber British-made rifle, which was later found at a farm where he was employed.

The case went to the jury at 11:30 a.m. after testimony was completed Friday, and the verdict of "guilty" was returned at 4 p.m.

Following the verdict, the defense and prosecution attorneys Bill Hall and Jack Young, delivered supplemental arguments, before the jury was dismissed to decide the sentence.

In the defense address, Hall said, "There should be some thought given to the facts and how they happened in the case." District Attorney Jack Young said he wasn't going to ask for a sentence of a certain number of years, but was asking for punishment commensurate with the magnitude of the crime committed.

He also said the jury should take into consideration what he called "the three purposes of punishment--to punish, to rehabilitate, and to deter other from committing the same crime.

Testimony Friday dealt with a signed confession introduced as evidence by the prosecutor. Renfro told the court that at the time he signed it, he didn't know what the confession meant.

He testified that he couldn't read or write, but could read the Bible, "only by the word of God."

Renfro was arrested and charged with the murder before Parmer county Justice of Peace, J.R. Thornton Farwell shortly after the shooting.

Sheriff Charlie Lovelace said at the time of the shooting, initial reports indicated the LeRoy Lovelace, 260-pound, 40 year old Negro of Earth, was working at the dump ground near his pickup about 2 p.m. June 7 when the man identified as Renfro drove up in another pickup.

The dead man's wife, Loreta, 44, was with her husband at the time and told Sheriff Lovelace Renfro began arguing with her husband then the fatal shots were fired.

Mrs. Lovelace was also injured in the fracas from what was believed as bullet fragments and was hospitalized here soon after the shooting occurred.

If anyone wishes to examine the books, there is a display in the Curriculum Office in the Junior High Building. The public is invited to see these books.

Those attending were: Bill Taylor, Pauline Guin, Eloise Thompson, Evelyn Burchel, Mary Crane, Inez Middlebrook, Lena Hawkins, Gladys Eggers, Buddy Sparks, Joyeline Costen, Ruby Lambert, S. L. Texas Division CFP Chairman. Also attending the presentation ceremony were Dr. Eleanor Dolan, director of research for the AAUW; Mrs. Gilbert Orcutt, President of the Dallas Branch; and Robert E. Baker, executive administrator for the Moody Foundation.

The College Faculty Program was begun by the AAUW in 1962 when the Rockefeller Brothers Fund granted $225,000 for a three year experimental program in 11 southeastern states, including Texas. Aimed at women 35 years and older who were holders of at least a bachelor's degree, the program enabled twenty-six Texas women to re-enter college training to prepare themselves for college teaching.

Because of the critical shortage of college teachers the program is being reactivated in Texas. Three women -- Mrs. Agnes Burney Starnets of Dallas, Mrs. James Younglove of Houston, and Mrs. Henry V. Curtis of Denison -- shared in the $2,000 gift from the C. Penny Company of Texas, with which the program was initiated in Texas.

College Faculty Program Chairmen of the eighty-four Texas AAUW Branches are seeking qualified women over thirty-five who have at least a bachelor's degree and have made a definite decision to teach in college and commit themselves to professional work in higher education. The fund furnishes partial support, that is, tuition, fees, and a personal stipend which is based on need. Only Texas women are eligible for grants from Texas funds.

"We hope to have at least seven outstanding Texas women in Texas schools preparing to teach Texas students," said Mrs. Eric Smith. "We will need at least thirty applicants from which to choose the 1967-68 awardees and alternates."

Application may be made locally to the Chairman of the College Faculty Program, or to Mrs. J. W. Hutchings, P. O. Box 2302, Longview, Texas, 75601, or to College Faculty Program, American Association of University Women 2401 Virginia Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. 20037. Since completed applications must be in Washington no later than February 1, 1967, applications and requests for further information should be made without delay. Winners of the awards will be announced May 15, 1967.

The College Faculty Program is supported by gifts from businesses, foundations, and interested organizations and individuals. Donations for the 1967-68 applicants are being received now.

Once nematodes get at your cotton, yields go down and so do profits. But with FUMAZONE® 86 soil fumigant applied at only 1 to 2 gallons over-all an acre, you can take care of root-knot, sting, meadow and other nematodes—those tiny soil pests that attack plant roots, suck away profits. FUMAZONE 86 soil fumigant increases yields up to $200 an acre. Many High Plains ranchers just like yourself tell us that's exactly what happened to their yields after their soils were treated with FUMAZONE 86. It can be applied right from the drum. No

Could you ask for greater flexibility? Sure you could. So here it is. Apply FUMAZONE 86 before planting, at planting or after planting. It's the only type of soil fumigant that can be used on living plants. Ask your Dow Farm Chemicals supplier about it. The Budget

President Lyndon Johnson has asked Congress to approve budgets that will run eight and nine billion dollars in the red for this and the next fiscal year. That would add seventeen billion dollars to the national debt.

Considering the somber fact that the national debt is now well over 300 billions, and that this year it is costing the people of the United States fourteen billion dollars to pay the interest on it alone, there is good reason to think twice before stepping up the total by seventeen billions in the next two years.

Granted the war in Vietnam cannot be abandoned (regardless of how one feels about the wisdom of our course in that Asian land) and that it is costly, the issue boils down to the question whether spending on domestic programs (and foreign aid) will be reduced or whether high spending will continue both for military and Great Society programs.

In the end, it is the responsibility of Congress to assert itself on the question of financial responsibility and the 90th Congress certainly has a mandate to do so. If it fulfills its obligations to the people, it will reduce domestic and foreign spending to protect the dollar, the economy and the average citizen-against inflation.

A New Conservative

GUEST EDITORIAL—

A new creature is afoot in Congress, a brand of legislator the nation has had little opportunity to examine and evaluate. He is the new breed of conservative that came into office in last November's stronger-than-expected Republican resurgence.

Congress, of course, has had various types of conservatives before. The chief difference between these and the new breed is that the old were largely from rural America, or at least held views oriented to an agrarian culture, while the new conservative is a product of the suburbs.

The traditional conservative concerned himself with such issues as fiscal responsibility, state's rights and business freedom from government restraint. The new brand may not dissociate himself from these issues, but it appears he will be more attuned to the specific problems of a largely urbanized society—traffic congestion, air pollution, education, and job opportunities and housing.

A Texas, Rep. George Bush of Houston, may typify the new breed. In a "Republican State of the Union" television presentation he displayed energy and enthusiasm for his new job. He emphasized the need for the Republican opposition not simply to be against what the administration is for in attempting to solve the nation's problems but to submit programs of its own, programs that are sound and promising of results.

To many this new conservatism may not sound like conservatism at all. It may not be conservatism as previously defined. But it may be representative of the ascendant opposition to what has now become identified as "liberalism."

No Reward for Tyranny

GUEST EDITORIAL—

THE IMPRESSION is sometimes created that the proposals to recognize Red China and give it entry to the U. N. are unanimously supported by American liberals. A distinguished group of liberals, led by Sen. Paul Douglas, recently declared publicly that this is not the case.

In a recent full-page advertisement in the New York Times, the liberals asked these questions of those who call for the two steps:

1. Would such recognition "encourage political democracy and hasten freedom" within China, or would it merely convince the tyrants that their tyranny has been rewarded by the rest of the world?
2. Would recognition bring peace to Asia and reassure the neighbors of China or would it encourage Peking to pursue the present policy of open aggression and active subversion?
3. Would recognition of Peking encourage the independent nations of Asia or would it discourage them and convince them that they must give in to the cause of Red China?
4. Would the admission of Red China to the U. N. make it a more effective instrument to keep the peace or would it add a crippling veto and further undermine the ability of the organization to respond to aggression?

Any individual who is honest must see the obvious answers to these questions provide no moral or practical reason for accepting the gangster regime of Mao as members in good standing of either the family of peace-loving nations or the United Nations.

The signers of the statement declared: "As liberals, we oppose tyranny whether of the fascist or communist variety. As advocates of peace, we believe in resisting aggression whether it flies the banner of the swastika or the hammer and sickle. As ones who hope we have learned something from history and the events of our lifetime, we believe dictatorships which also subvert or attack their neighbors must be opposed and not rewarded whether in Europe or Asia."

No conservative in conscience can argue with this splendid stand. It states a belief that cuts across ideological and party lines, a belief that is firmly based in the hearts of men on both sides of the political fence.

For most conservatives, the quality most highly valued and most necessary to conserve is human freedom. The need for standing shoulder to shoulder for freedom is "something from history and the events of our lifetime" that most of us liberal and conservative alike, have had to learn together.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN--Following views by Sam Wood, Capital Correspondent for the Austin American-Statesman and other publications of the Fentress group of Newspapers, Inc., present a very comprehensive picture of the rule change adopted by the Texas House of Representatives.

Here's what Mr. Wood, a longtime student of State government operations, has to say: Speaker Ben Barnes, whose House lieutenants say he can have an unprecedented third term as speaker if he wants it, will leave his stamp on the Legislature for years to come even if he decides to seek greener pastures in the 1968 election year.

Under the rules change adopted by the House committees at the close of the current session, thereafter, except for the rules and House administration committees, future speakers will be limited to filling vacancies. Normal attrition would take the Legislature through at least six and possible eight regular sessions before the committee majorities appointed by Barnes would be dissipated.

The extensive rules changes sponsored by Speaker Barnes are one of a series of steps moving the Legislature toward a permanent status similar to that of Congress. Following will be proposed amendments to the Constitution authorizing annual sessions, higher annual salaries for the speaker and lieutenant governor.

It can be expected that as the Legislature becomes more permanent in nature, after seniority on committees has been established, and the annual salaries of lawmakers climb to higher brackets, the rate of turnover in the Texas House, now about one-third every two years, will be sharply reduced.

One of the reasons given by sponsors of the Texas House seniority system and permanent committees is to strengthen the prestige of legislators and help them in their campaigns for reelection. As a starter the seniority system is one of no actual benefit, but it establishes a trend toward the seniority system in Congress.

The rules change recommended by the speaker and unanimously adopted by the House after coaching from the senior interim committee which wrote them, kills off one theory that the best protection the

The Books You Read

A casual glance at the shelves in any bookstore, or a glance at the titles of the paperback books in any drugstore, reveals a quantity of fictional trash.

We wouldn't insinuate reading fiction is a complete waste of time; on the contrary, much fiction is educational and it provides an escape for those seeking relaxation, a break from the daily grind.

Nevertheless, there is a lamentable dearth of non-fiction reading in the book field, both in the hardbacks and paperbacks, when it comes to true adventure, inspirational and romantic books. There is no reason why a true story cannot be as exciting, as unbelievable, and even as romantic and inspirational, as a fictional one. In the United States, however, comparatively few readers take the time to look for books containing true stories, which usually are more educational and are quite often just as exciting or interesting as fiction.

Our reading habits in America have been sullied by an over-emphasis on violence and sex and the sooner we concentrate on worthwhile subjects, the better it will be.

WASHINGTON BUREAU NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

LBJ's Program—
The Mood in Congress—
The Economic Crunch—
Fourteen Billion Interest—

Washington, D.C.--President Lyndon Johnson delivered his long State of the Union speech with more than his usual effectiveness in an effort to win Congress to his fiscal proposals but indications are he is in for trouble.

In essence, the Johnson proposals for the remainder of this fiscal year and fiscal 1968 (beginning July 1st) are that both the Great Society and the war in Vietnam be continued. To do this the budget would be in the red by eight or nine billion both years.

Since Congress is not in the mood to vote that much more spending than income, and since the war must be financed, and since even these deficits will require the Johnson six-percent surtax, it seems obvious some domestic spending will be cut.

Interestingly, there are more than a thousand new districts in the U.S. in which the various new domestic aid programs of the Johnson Administration are offering the people money. It is in these fields that spending is sure to be reduced.

At the recent Governors' conference it was made clear to the President that many federal aid programs overlapped what states are already doing and that others had not been coordinated with existing state programs in the same field.

To achieve better federal-state coordination, the President has asked his assistant for federal-state relations, former Florida Governor Farris

Bryant, to immediately improve coordination and liaison between the federal bureaucracy and the states. Bryant is hoping to acquaint state Governors and officials with federal planning and new programs so that states can share in planning and direction of Great Society programs.

But this improved cooperation will not be achieved instantly and meanwhile there is disenchantment in Congress with the idea of large deficits in both fiscal 1967 and 1968 at a time when the dollar is already under pressure and gold is continuing to drain away from the United States.

Thus Congress is certain to anger the President in trimming some of his domestic programs and it is a good question whether the Johnson tax proposal will be enacted, though it appears to have a good chance as this is written. Congress is likely to vote money asked for Vietnam for few members want to risk the charge of refusing to back U.S. soldiers in Vietnam.

Adding new federal debt is nevertheless unpopular at this time for today's high interest rates mean the government (the taxpayer) is paying this year fourteen billions in interest on the national debt alone. Another seventeen billion added to that, from two deficit years, would increase the annual cost to more than fifteen billion dollars a year--in interest alone on the national debt!

any place in the State of Texas, to compel their attendance, and to compel the production of all books, records, and instruments, and to issue attachments where necessary to obtain compliance with subpoenas or other process, all of which may be addressed to and served by either a sergeant-at-arms appointed by such committee, or by any peace officer of the State of Texas; and to cite for contempt, and cause to be prosecuted for contempt, anyone disobeying the subpoenas or other process lawfully issued by it, in the manner provided by law."

This section is not talking about a House investigation committee charged by resolution for a specific inquiry. It refers to future permanent committees of the House -- 23 committees that can do what Section 36 says they can do -- and although Barnes, Hale, et al say it never will happen, they have issued an engraved invitation to future politicians in the House for witch hunting on a scale they desire.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm, has been watching television, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editor:
In between newspapers lately I've been listening to national politicians being interviewed on television, on such programs like "Meet The Press" and "Face The Nation," and I have decided that my trouble is I don't know how to answer questions.

For example, some politician will be asked: "Does the present conduct of the war in Viet Nam suit you?"

His answer: "No."
"Why not?"
"I cannot imagine our letting a war drag on and on for years."
"What would you do to end it sooner?"

"I would hope that by taking a harder look at the situation we could figure out something better."

Or the question might be: "You recently stated that the Federal government is spending too much money. Do you still think so?"

"Certainly."
"Where would you cut spending?"

"I would hope that by taking a closer look at the entire Federal program we could cut out all waste and non-essentials."

This is what I'm talking about, and to bring it down to a local level, I don't see why I can't think to answer like that. For example, if a store owner sticks a past-due bill in by face and says, "Do you intend to pay this?" "Do you intend to pay this?" "I should answer "Certainly."

"When?"
"I would hope that by reviewing my entire financial situation I could work out some way to keep it from dragging on and on."

The only trouble with this system is that not enough store owners apparently listen to those television programs. I tried it out and their replies wouldn't be suitable for family television.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

P.S. I don't know why the sports writers didn't say so, but as I understand the results of the Super Bowl, the Green Bay Packers beat the Kansas City Chiefs, $15,000 to $7,500.

New Device to Aid Cancer Research at Hospital

HOUSTON--An experimental unit that accepts blood from donors and separates certain components needed for treating cancer patients is now being used at The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

According to Dr. R. Lee Clark, Director and Surgeon-in-Chief at the institution, the automatic blood cell separator developed jointly by the National Cancer Institute and International Business Machines Corporation offers several possibilities for cancer research and treatment.

"This new unit," he said, "should prove extremely useful in bringing the benefits of the newest innovations in cancer research to the patient's bedside."

The physician working with the unit at M. D. Anderson is Dr. Emil J. Freireich, internist; chief, section of research hematology; assistant head, department of developmental therapeutics; and professor of medicine. The blood cell separator was developed initially at NCI by Dr. Freireich and George T. Judson, an engineer and IBM Fellow.

Dr. Freireich is the first physician to use the unit in vivo--receiving blood directly from a donor, separating out certain elements, and returning the remaining blood to the donor.

The blood cell separator used by Dr. Freireich for his earlier in vivo studies was a prototype of the present model, which has been streamlined by a number of innovations. "However," Dr. Freireich points out, "the present unit is still an experimental mode. It is our intent to continue development of the separator until it operates even more smoothly in doing the job we have cut out for it."

Dr. Freireich will use the present blood cell separator to obtain components from whole blood needed for treating patients with different types of cancer, and for research on the causes and cure of the disease. For example, patients with leukemia (cancer of the blood) are frequently treated with drugs to rid their bodies of diseased blood elements. But these drugs also destroy healthy parts, including the blood platelets which are used by the body to arrest bleeding.

To replace this loss, platelets must be taken from a healthy donor and transfused into the patient. Since transfused platelets survive only one to three days in a patient, platelet transfusions are needed as often as two or three times a week.

Although a method has been available for some years to remove platelets from blood while allowing the remaining parts of the blood to be returned to the donor, the method is time-consuming and thus discouraging to donors.

The blood cell separator, which fractionates blood continuously through a spinning centrifuge, can separate the platelets from the remainder of the blood in one sixth of the time taken by the old method. Further, using this separation technique, the amount of platelets gathered for transfusion is increased.

Another application of the blood-separating unit will be the gathering of white blood cells. Following drug treatment, leukemia patients have little or no resistance to infection. Usually such a resistance is built up and maintained by white blood cells. When these cells are diseased or destroyed, the body's defense mechanism against infection does not function. Transfusions of white blood cells enable a patient to stiffen his resistance until his own body begins to produce white blood cells again.

In the past, the major problem preventing regular transfusion of white blood cells has been the difficulty in acquiring the cells. In normal persons, the white blood cells make up only about one per cent of the body's circulating blood. Most of the white blood cells are in the bone marrow or lymph nodes, and therefore, are not readily available for exchange. By using the new separator, a person's entire blood volume can be run through the machine, thus allowing a greater opportunity for removing available white cells. There is no danger to the donor, since the white blood cells are replaced from the bone marrow reserve almost as soon as they are removed.

At M. D. Anderson Hospital, the blood cell separator will be used for cancer research, be used for in vitro as well as in vivo studies. In vitro studies involve the separation of blood already drawn from donors, for example, to separate blood stored in blood banks.

The experimental in vivo blood cell separator is the third instrument of its kind to be developed by IBM. The other two in vivo units have been installed at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Maryland, and Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, New

The Naked Runner

By Francis Clifford

Laker is drawn into produces an astonishing sequence of events in East Germany and Copenhagen. Along with a wartime comrade named Karen, whom he has never stopped loving, and his teen-age son Patrick, he is engulfed by a drama which illuminates and comments on the things men will do to each other when they are sure enough of the cause they serve.

Here, without question, is the finest achievement yet of a brilliant storyteller whose previous novels have already won him an international reputation. Masterfully plotted and un-falling in narrative sweep, The Naked Runner firmly establishes Francis Clifford in the front rank of contemporary novelists of suspense. Set mainly in Leipzig, the story tells how Sam Laker, civilian, but a veteran of World War II intelligence, reluctantly agrees to act as temporary unpaid agent for West during a private business trip to East Germany. He is assured that it will be a routine mission involving no risk. But in the course of a few days he is caught in the clutches of an organization of deadly efficiency and ruthlessness that turns him from a successful, fatherly English businessman into a cold and paranoid killer. The appalling dilemma that Francis Clifford is the pseudonym of Arthur Bell Thompson. Formerly an industrial journalist whose occupation took him to Burma, India, Pakistan, most of Europe and Scandinavia, he has devoted himself full-time to writing fiction since 1959. He is the author of Act of Mercy, The Green Fields of Eden, The Hunting Ground and The Third Side of the Coin. He lives in Weybridge, Surrey, with his wife and two sons.

ENMU Coach Lees Resigns Post

A new head football coach is expected to be named at Eastern New Mexico University within the next few weeks following the approval Tuesday (Jan. 17) of a request by coach B. B. Lees for reassignment.

The request by Lees, head football coach at Eastern since May, 1964, was "accepted with regret," President Charles W. Meister said.

"I have the highest regard for Lees both as a man and as a coach," he continued. "It will be difficult to find a suitable replacement for him."

Working with a committee which is now actively screening applicants for the head coach position, President Meister said a decision is expected "within the next few weeks."

Credentials of applicants should be directed to the Eastern president.

Lees' new assignment will involve the teaching of physical education as well as coaching a spring sport. A graduate of Eastern, he assumed the head coach's duties from a position as assistant coach in 1964 and compiled a 9-18-1 record in three seasons.

Commenting on the change, Lees said, "I have worked with an outstanding group of young men in the past several years. My assistants, Carl Richardson and Wayne Gares, are as fine as any I could have had. My association with the athletes and other members of the coaching staff has been a rewarding experience."

Grain Sorghum Producers Hold Annual Meeting Here

The annual meeting of Bailey County Grain Sorghum Producers Association was held January 14, 10 a.m. in the Bailey County Electric Cooperative meeting room.

Charles Daniels, A.S.C. manager answered questions for the producers concerning current farm programs.

Y.F. Snodgrass area Grain Sorghum Producers Assiation representative explained what the association has been doing and what their future programs are expected to be. He called for additional financial support for the association from local producers.

"It was the expressed belief of those present, that as many directors as it took to properly represent the various areas of production in the county should be elected and that these directors, from their number, would elect their own officers.

"The president, which they elected to lead them, would be the county producer who would serve as director to the Association at the Amarillo board meeting.

The following directors were elected: Ben Roming, Aubrey Heathington, Bryon Gunter, Delbert Watson, Donnie Mc Call, Horace Hutton, John Blackman, Sam Hopper, Arvis Grogan, Lewis Scoggin, C.J. Feagley, and Jimmy Black.

W.B. Little past President was asked to serve as advisor for the above group for the period of one year of at least until the directors were well organized. Nominated and Elected as Elevator Representative was Ben Yeager.

A letter urging support of GSPA was drafted by the Association and presented to the group. The group moved to have this letter sent to each farmer in the county and that the letter would be signed by the county directors who had been elected. Aubrey Heathington would sign as acting chairman of the group. At the organizational meeting, Aubrey Heathington was elected president; Delbert Watson, vice-president and Byron Gunter, secretary-treasurer.

Past officers were W.B. Little, president; and Bill Wimberly, secretary-treasurer and elevator representative.

Even the ash tray rides smoother in Chevrolets

When you're down at your dealer's trying out a new Chevrolet, be sure you pull out the ash tray. Notice how nice and easy it glides, never hanging up or even scraping. The reason is, it rides on ball bearings. Four shiny little ball bearings. (Take the tray all the way out and you'll see them.) You say you don't even smoke? Then look at it this way. That ash tray is a symbol of the way we make cars: Paying extra attention to the little things as well as the big ones, as a way of making extra sure your '67 Chevrolet gives you that sure feeling
