Oldest piece in the collection is a Roman coin found near Luxembourg, Belgium, that dates back to about 400 A. D. when the Roman Empire was in its glory. Other coins and paper money date back to other fascinating periods of world history and would be a credit to any numismatic collection. Included are three Spanish Pieces of Eight, one of which is dated in 1710, and some paper money made during the French Revolution. Other coins come from Iran and Iraq.

Lt. Col. Henry names as his most valuable souvenirs two black mahogany tables that were hewn out of giant trees, the tops being formed from slices of the logs. The owner wryly tells of buying both of them in the South American colony of British Guiana for $12.50. Both are hand-polished to a high luster.

Another part of the collection that would bring a fancy price on the open market from any lover of fine glassware are four sets of crystal glasses that were bought in Belgium for eighty and ninety cents each. There are eight glasses in each set.

Souvenirs on Display Date Back To Stirring Events of History

A souvenir collection gathered over remote countries the world over and requiring some three years in the process, is justly the pride and joy of Lt. Col. Herman K. Henry. A large part of the collection is on display in the show window of Jones Dry Goods Co.

Lt. Col. Henry modestly estimates the value of the collection at one thousand dollars, but others who have seen some of the articles that could gracefully adorn any souvenir museum, give the widely-traveled war veteran credit for considerable understatement.

Weather, as Usual, Very Unusual Here Last Several Days

Weather that might have been a preview of the various kinds that Texas has to offer on short notice, has caused even natives to wonder that it could be, as usual, so unusual.

A snow that started about 4 o'clock Saturday morning had blanketed the countryside by daylight with about one-half an inch. The moisture content in the vicinity of Haskell was not enough to be of much benefit to crops, but about four inches of snow fell in the Weinert area.

Most of the snow melted during the day after skies cleared early in the afternoon, but the rest of the day and Sunday continued clear and cold. The temperature shot upward Monday and by Tuesday it appeared that spring had gained a foothold. But citizens awakened Wednesday morning to find cloudy skies and icy temperatures again. A light snow began falling late in the morning, but disappeared when the sun came out brightly in the early afternoon.

Violent Deaths Claim 3 Victims Of Area, Including 2 in Family

Accidental Shooting Coroner's Verdict in Death of Pitman

A coroner's verdict of accidental death in the fatal shooting Friday afternoon of Albert B. Pitman was returned Monday by Joe E. Pace, justice of the peace, who conducted the inquest. Pitman was shot when Officer of Police J. H. Ivy dropped his .45 caliber pistol at Smitty's Annex, causing a bullet to explode.

Funeral service for Pitman was held Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the First Christian Church with Duane M. Overton, minister, conducting the rite. Burial was in Willow Cemetery, Holden Funeral Home in charge.

Pitman was working on the motor of a car at Smitty's where he was employed as a mechanic when the shooting occurred. Ivy was some eight feet to the rear and left of Pitman and was playing with A. B. Pitman, Jr., young son of the victim. The police officer bent over and the pistol slipped from his left shoulder holster, struck the concrete floor and detonated the bullet that killed Pitman. The missile struck his left thigh and ranged upward and lodged in his spine.

Ivy said the safety catch which ordinarily holds the pistol in place had accidentally become unbuckled. Luther Butler, another mechanic, also was working on the car and was standing between Pitman and Ivy when the bullet exploded. Witnesses said Butler could not have missed being shot by more than a very few inches.

Ray Darnell, another mechanic who was in the shop at the time of the shooting, said he thought someone had shot a firecracker when he heard the bullet explode. Others who were in the building at the time were Roy Pitman, brother of the victim, Roy Reynolds and Quinn Medford.

Pitman retained consciousness a few minutes after being wounded and asked that a doctor be called. Ivy assisted him to the north door of the building where he lost consciousness. Holden Funeral Home sent an ambulance and Pitman was rushed to the hospital where he lived an hour and fifty minutes after being shot. He died at 2:25 o'clock.

Dr. L. F. Taylor and Dr. Ernest Kimbrough, who attended Pitman at the Haskell County Hospital, gave him blood plasma continuously and he revived temporarily. Dr. Taylor said internal hemorrhage was the immediate cause of death. The wound paralyzed Pitman from the waist down.

Albert Bishop Pitman was born April 20, 1909, in Bell County where he lived until he moved here with his family in 1917. He had been a member of the First Christian Church since boyhood.

His survivors are his widow, Mrs. Pauline Pitman; five children, A. B., Jr., Reginald, Paula and Michael, all of Haskell, and Verna Lee of Dallas; parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Pitman of Haskell; two brothers, Rev. Herman Pitman of Los Angeles and Roy Pitman of Haskell; two sisters, Mrs. O. K. McClintock and Mrs. J. E. Zimmerman, both of Abilene; and grandfather, W. E. Pitman of Haskell.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the First Christian Church with Duane M. Overton, minister, conducting the rite. Burial was in Willow Cemetery, Holden Funeral Home in charge.

play. The play, "Fixit, Incorporated" should certainly prove amusing with these characters:

Dave Thompson, played by Tooley, who wants to cure the "ills" of the world. "Froggy" Edwards, played by Wayburn Oates, Dave's best pal, who is willing to help him. Alice Grey, (Catherine Davis) a stenographer, unemployed, but also willing to help. Helen Duval, Dave's sweetheart, who's willing to do all she can, is Carolyn Turner. Henry Oglevie, a manufacturer in search of a radio artist is played by Richard Baccus. Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiggenthal Hart, the henpecked husband and wife, who does the pecking, are very amusingly portrayed by Roy Glenn Johnston and Geraldene Barton. Phoebe Hornblow, or Verma Lee Marion is a spinster-pot of unique ability. Rosemary Lawrence, a problem for the fixers is Eddie Bess Fouts, and her suitor, who is secretary for the Laurences is played by Erwin Frierson. Sidelights From Washington

By George Mahon

Many farm and ranch people in Texas are experiencing a delay in getting rural electrification services. Where the delay is caused by the lack of funds by the local REA, much hope is offered by the fact that the President last week asked Congress to increase REA loan authorizations by one hundred million dollars. This would mean about five million dollars in new loans to Texas—more than to any other state—and would take care of the more pressing applications for the next few months.

Claude Wickard, head of REA, has asked some of us who have sponsored the REA program to try to get Congressional action on the new request by March 1st. This we are trying to do.

Prior to July 1st, the beginning of the new fiscal year, we plan to provide an additional and greatly expanded REA program. It is estimated that it will take seven years to fully complete the REA program of making electricity available to all rural homes. Only one farm home out of every three in Texas now has electricity. A rapid expansion of REA in Texas should be one of our major post-war objectives.

We were all for you Friday night. We really wish you had won. I see we have one true Juliet in our class. Betty Jane, you really are true to Herbert.

First, we wanna ask Jane if she had a bang-up good time at Aggie-land. Three whole days! Boy!

And how is this about Eddie and Felix—huh? A love triangle, maybe.

That surely was a good assembly program Wednesday. Boy, gang, the teachers really have the low-down on us, don't they?

And by the way (this isn't much on the line of blackmail) but we want to welcome Lowell Ross and Evelyn Mann to the Senior Class. Nuff for this week—victims. See you next with more blackmail.

Doctors Oppose U. S. Health Bill

FT. WORTH.—More than 100,000 poll taxes have been paid this year at the direct solicitation of the physicians of Texas by citizens opposed to socialized medicine and who also favor a constructive medical and public health program in the Texas legislature, Dr. Holman Taylor, Secretary of the State Medical Association of Texas stated recently.

"The State Medical Association made a strong appeal to its 6,000 members and the members of its Women's Auxiliary to see that all people opposed to the Federal legislation which would destroy the private practice of medicine qualified as voters," Dr. Taylor says.

"The results were most encouraging for we estimate that more than 100,000 voters qualified with the definite purpose of opposing unfriendly and destructive legislation both State and national. The physicians of Texas and their friends are going to take a hand in next summer's elections. They will support Congressmen in every district who are opposed to Socialized medicine and will favor legislators who believe in constructive public health measures."

Mrs. R. L. Lemmons, employee of the Holden Funeral Home, has recently received medical attention at Houston. She is now visiting in the home of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Payne, in Moody.

Designs Home Plan For Texas Weather

Austin, Texas.—Believing that farm homes in Texas and the Southwest should be designed with special attention to Texas climate, and to the demands of the family, Walter T. Rolfe, chairman of the department of architecture at the University of Texas has sketched his plans for such a home in the February issue of the Country Gentleman.

The kitchen and utility room—which provides for laundry, sewing, canning, home freezing, and food preparation—are located so as to permit the housewife full view of the out-of-doors, as well as well-lighter, cheerful, work rooms.

Living room and bedrooms open out on a garden, which is well-removed from the dust of the driveway. A large service porch can be used for a variety of purposes.

A fireplace in the living room has a double function with a cupboard above it for storage.

The house has many windows—particularly necessary for the heat of Texas summers—and has a flexible heating plan for either

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC—Any erroneous reflection upon the character, reputation or standing of any firm, individual or corporation will be gladly corrected upon being called to the attention of the publishers.

"Ye Shall Know the Truth"

While practically all newspapers are more or less privately owned, there is perhaps no other institution that is privately owned that has so many responsibilities and duties regarding the public trust. We believe it to be the duty of a newspaper to attempt to act as guardian of the public welfare, to learn about those things that may benefit or harm the community. By acting as a medium for public information, a newspaper can bring to light salient features of a controversy and aid in crystalizing public opinion.

But newspapers are bombarded by pressure groups that attempt to gain publicity for their causes, and the conflicting reports of opposing groups force the editors to dig beyond the surface for the true facts. A weekly newspaper acting alone can have no effect on a national question. But large chains of daily newspapers can pull a lot of weight with opinions of the public.

Of all the chains of dailies, there is none that tries harder than the Hearst press to influence public opinion. Its editorial policies usually advocate something that is a radical departure from conventional thinking. It has gained millions of readers by nurturing them on a diet of sensationalism. It usually gives the blackest headlines to those stories that most excite the imagination. In just such an attempt, the Hearst press recently fouled out.

The New York Daily Mirror brought its Sunday readers a nicely packaged feature on the modesty and virtues of President Truman: "There is no 'crackdown' in his system." There were to be three more such articles.

Then it happened. Hearst's New York Journal-American, sister publication of the Mirror, flashed a black headline the same day: The Tragedy of Truman: He Has Failed the Nation in Crisis. The story said "we have been robbed of our birthright and stripped of our honor because President Truman and his picked associates have had neither the wit nor the courage to face their duties."

So there is the evidence of the trials and tribulations of a newspaper. We are unable to coax out a single tear because the Hearstings misfired, but the evidence is a good case in point that newspapers are subject to the errors and frailties of human judgment.

The Role of Agriculture

The three great divisions of America's economic life are business, industry and labor. Agriculture is something of a mixture of all of them. It is industry because it must acquire land and make provisions for producing. It is business because the farmer must market the products. It is labor to the extent that many smaller farmers use their own families to work their crops.

Industry is not going to produce merchandise unless it can be sold for a profit to the businessman, who in turn sells it to the consumer for a profit. And labor demands a fair living for its part in production. Business and industry can hold their merchandise from the market if they do not get a profitable return from it. Labor has its strikes to force its demands.

But agriculture has no organization to compete with the actions of the others. If the farmer wants to buy something from a store, he is told what the price is. But if he wants to sell a bale of cotton, he does not have the right to say what he will take for it. Wall Street decides that for him.

While agriculture is the backbone of America's economic system, it has had no method of concerted action. It has had to depend on lobbyists and parity prices. The farmer traditionally has run far behind others in financial returns for his product, and yet the entire economy of the nation depends on him. The farmers, truck farmers and ranchers furnish our cotton, our wool, our meat and most of the other things that we eat and wear.

If farmers were organized to afford a means of demanding a certain price for the things they raise, then they could compete with others in the economic system for a higher return.

The nation might conceivably get along without new cars or radios. It could not get along without agriculture. But the loudest howling comes from labor. The strongest lobbyists in Washington are those of industry and business. The South is the nation's primary agricultural section and its representatives in Congress naturally are the strongest group on the side of the farmer. Representatives of other sections are not so interested in the welfare of farmers.

If and when the nation's farmers learn to organize and demand that they be given higher prices, then the economic scales will be more nearly in balance.

WHY AN AMERICAN LEGION MEMORIAL BUILDING?

The American Legion is in the process of building a recreational center in Haskell for the benefit of the returned service men and the public in general in Haskell County. Every citizen should be interested in such a project. The service men, in many instances have no home. His home has been blighted while he was away fighting for his country. He has no place to go and write letters, to read and chat with his friends.

The boys that do have a home are restless and should have some place to go for a change and feel that he is not barging in on someone. The community life is not the same as it was some years ago. The homes are not opened up to the general groups any more. Society is now too complex for that. The comradeship of soldiers acquired in the foxholes and under fire should be kept alive. Nothing will do so much to perpetuate good fellowship as a home for those of kindred minds. It was the spirit of comradeship that played a big role in winning the two World Wars. The building is to be a memorial for the returning service men of World War I and World War II. Do they not deserve a memorial? We are a free people today due to the valiant fighting of the service men from Haskell County and others of the same type. It is unthinkable that the people of Haskell County and other friends who own property in Haskell County will falter when it comes to creating a building that will truly express to our boys the appreciation we have for them and the splendid job they did to not only protect our property, but the lives of ourselves and our loved ones.

The memorial will not only help the service men, but it will be a place for the youth of our county to meet and enjoy their youthful energy. Did it ever occur to you, Mr. Citizen, that the well guided youth is the hope of our country? Our boys and girls drive miles to find pleasure in other towns and communities and usually return at an early hour in the morning to race up and down our streets in search of satisfaction for the yearning for some social relaxation.

The homes are no longer open to the boys and girls. Mom and Dad do not want to be bothered. They are too busy seeking pleasure and entertainment for themselves. The show is about the only avenue for the youth, but the show cannot furnish the opportunity for the boys and girls to get acquainted and have that social contact so essential for wholesome, youthful living. The youth needs some resturants, but he also needs an outlet for his social activities.

I once visited a youth center and I was delighted to note the various activities. Some were making music, others were dancing and still others were talking over the future home, perhaps, they were planning to erect. The restraining hand was not very evident, but still it was there.

It is also the intention of the sponsors of this building that it will serve for picnic gatherings, political gatherings and a place in general where civic questions may be thrashed out for the betterment of the city and county.

The question may be asked, why turn it over to the American Legion? We trusted our boys and men to stop the Germans on the battlefield or the Bulgie, to meet the cunning Japs in sea, in the air and on the land and I, for one, feel that we can place the responsibility of management and control of the Memorial building in no safer hands than in the hands of our service men. They are thoroughly representative of every interest in the county.

Ah—a capitalist!
Now—it's just a penny in a piggy bank. But soon his piggy bank will be full. Then the pennies will be taken to a real savings bank.

The bank will put his pennies to work. Some of the pennies almost certainly will be invested in electric utility securities. Financial institutions, including insurance companies, prefer such securities because sound, thrifty business management has made them a steady, dependable investment—as dependable as electric service itself.

So, the little boy has a personal stake in the electric service industry. Practically every American has—millions of people as direct stockholders, other millions of citizens as savers, depositors and life insurance owners.

This is the American private initiative economic system. It's called capitalism. It's a good system. It helped make America great. It produced to save the world. It had electric power in service than all sources of electric power of all enemy countries combined. And it will continue to open doors of opportunity for all little boys and girls with piggy banks.

Texas Wildlife Group Has Funds for Study

College Station, Tex. (A&M)—Funds totaling $128,773.56 have been made available in ten years by cooperating agencies for wildlife research and conservation through the Texas Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the A. and M. College of Texas, it was announced by Dean C. N. Sheppard, chairman of the unit administrative committee, today. The cooperating agencies interested in this work are the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, Austin, Texas; the Fish and Wildlife Service, United States Department of the Interior, Chicago, Illinois; and Washington, D. C. and the American Wildlife Institute, Washington, D. C. The College furnishes offices and participates in financing the Unit's work. The cooperating agencies are public and private organizations interested in furthering studies of wildlife conservation in Texas and neighboring states. Unit objectives are to study and promote the conservation of wildlife and to work out the best methods for doing this in the light of the experience of other states, and to relate wildlife conservation and increase to a balanced farm program. The Unit has worked in close cooperation with the Department of Fish and Game in the School of Agriculture at Texas A. and M. College, with the Division of Wildlife Research in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and with the game management specialist in the Extension Service. Work has been done on many game problems in Texas and a number of publications have been issued. The unit and cooperating departments have maintained close relationships with the Texas Game Fish and Oyster Commission and other agencies, and since 1941 have concentrated attention on practical aspects of the work such as fur resources and game production. Some of the results of the work include: A thorough study of the Attwater prairie chicken which determined the conditions for saving this vanishing species. The most important of these is the establishment of ample reservations. The efficacy of small fenced plots for bobwhite quail was found to be questionable. Bobwhite quail populations in the woodlands of East Texas were found to vary with the food supply, being low just after cutting of timber and maximum about the eighth year after cutting, decreasing to a low point as the forest attained an age of about 15 years. It was found that hybridization of the so-called Texas and Virginia quail does not lead to upset sex ratios. Investigations were made of the food habits of the Texas beaver and the practicability of its restoration throughout its former hereditary range in the state established. Wildlife resources surveys were conducted in Brazos, Walker, Kerr, Colorado, Harris, LaSalle, Young, Culberson and Brewster Counties, followed later by a comprehensive game survey of the entire state under the auspices of the Federal Aid to Wildlife Restoration program of the Texas Game Fish and Oyster Commission and United States Fish and Wildlife Service cooperating. A population study of the gray squirrel in eastern Texas, with an investigation of its life history, pointed out the conditions for its successful conservation. Methods were determined of counting squirrels, which are the most important game in eastern Texas. The problem of the Texas big-horn, a species threatened with extinction, was given attention, and it was shown that as the domestic sheep population increases the wild sheep numbers go down. A color key to Texas waterfowl was worked out. Studies of the gray fox in central Texas relieved the animal of primary responsibility for turkey shortage in that part of the state, assigning to depleted ranges the principal blame for wild turkey decrease and showing that of the predatory mammals skunks and snakes were probably the most serious, with horned owls, among birds, being implicated. Fur animals in general were shown to be large insectivorous and consumers of rodents, at least in the Texas Hill Country, although in some instances the ring-tailed cat, bobcat, gray fox, raccoon, and the various skunks became depredators on birds. The serious surplus of deer in some areas was emphasized, with resultant die-offs through shortage of feed, parasitism, or diseases. In no case was the number of bucks from growing up to be good trophy animals. A lumpy-jawed condition in deer was found to be an abnormality in structure rather than an infection. It was shown that since 6 deer consume as much feed on the range as 1 mother cow, 36 months old; 7 ewe sheep, 24 months or older; or 8 goats, nannies, 36 months or older, consequently allowance should be made for deer as well as livestock on the range. Extended winter movements of the wild turkey in the Edwards Plateau was explained by depletion of the 500 potential food plants present in that region through heavy grazing by cattle, goats, sheep, and deer.

Doctors Receiving Surplus Blood Plasma

Distribution of surplus blood plasma from the St. Louis warehouse of the American Red Cross to civilian physicians and hospitals in the 17 states comprising the Midwestern Area already has begun. The plasma is part of an estimated 1,250,000 units declared surplus by the Army and Navy at the end of the war. Plans for its distribution back to the civilians from whom it came were worked out by the American Red Cross in cooperation with the Association of State and Territorial Health Officers, the American Medical Association, and the American Hospital Association. Under the distribution plans, every physician and surgeon licensed to practice in Texas will have one complete unit of blood plasma in his bag. Every acceptable hospital in every community in the state will have a supply of the plasma which is ready for instant use in the treatment of any patient without charge for the product.
