County has been placed under emergency quarantine because of the pink bollworm, inspectors for the Department of Agriculture finding one of the leaves and trash ginned in the county.

County's Cotton Crop Nets Farmers 4 Million Dollars

Cotton farmers of Haskell County have already pocketed an estimated $4,000,000 as proceeds from this year's crop harvested to date, on the basis of county-wide ginning reports assembled up to and including Friday, October 24 in the office of County Agent F. W. Martin.

On that date, ginning total for the entire county totaled 22,000 bales, and local buyers estimated that cotton and seed for that portion of the crop already ginned would average around $200 per bale. Cost of gathering this year's crop, however, has cut deeply into net farm revenue, Martin said, and scarcity of pickers has also been a handicap to the farmers.

Yield from the 1947 crop in Haskell County is variously estimated at between 35,000 and 40,000 bales compared to total production of 23,000 bales last year. Acreage in cotton increased from 90,000 in 1946 to 140,000 acres this year, Martin estimated.

Weekend rains halted gathering of the crop and resulted in some damage to grade which will be reflected in a slight decline in price, local buyers said this week.

Up to Thursday morning five Haskell gins had processed a total of 5,900 bales for the season, a gain of only 500 bales from last week's report, as a result of recent rains.

Cotton ginned before the rain was bringing 29c per pound, basis 15/16 middling, Thursday, and cotton gathered this week was bringing 27c on the local market. Seed held to last week's quotation of $95 per ton.

Locations Staked For Two Wildcat Oil Tests in County

Staking of two new oil tests in Haskell County in widely separated wildcat territory was announced this week, with drilling operations on both tests due to start at an early date.

Near the south line of the county, one mile northwest of Stamford Pan-American Production with Texas offices in Houston, staked location Tuesday for a rotary test to the Ellenberger expected at around 6,000 feet. Location is in H&C Ry Block 1, 1750 feet from west and 525 feet from south lines, Section 92, Abstract 942. Pan-American has assembled a 4,000 acre block in that area, and the new wildcat is approximately a mile west and a quarter mile south of an unsuccessful try for oil development last year drilled by Thomas D. Humphrey of Dallas. Rotary rig for the test is expected to be moved in next week.

Location for a new wildcat to attempt development of production from about 4,000 feet, two and a half miles north east of Haskell has been filed as the A. L. Wagoner et al No. 2 Breusted, north offset to a wildcat drilled last year, and located 330 feet from the north and east lines of lot 25, J. Scott survey 118. Permit is for 4,150 feet with rotary.

The new location is a long east outpost to the Galloway & Smith No. 1 W. C. Norton, which was recently abandoned with no shows reported to total depth of 4,122 feet. It was located 330 feet from the north and east lines of subdivision 24, J. Scott survey 118.

1.67 In Rain Boosts Grain Prospects

One of the most beneficial rains in several months fell generally over Haskell County and a wide area of West Texas during the week end, boosting prospects for ample moisture for the winter grain as well as benefitting pastures and fall gardens.

Total precipitation in Haskell from Friday night through Sunday amounted to 1.67 inches, according to Mrs. H. J. Hambleton, local weather observer.

The moisture fell slowly, most of it being absorbed with very little run-off. However, farmers and stockmen report that a measurable amount of water was received in surface tanks.

The rains halted gathering of the county's cotton crop for several days, but pickers were able to return to the fields in most sections of the county Tuesday.

New Street Lights Will Be Burning At Early Date

Haskell's new street lighting system is due to be placed in operation within the next week or ten days, if work of installing new poles and lines can be continued without interruption. The Free Press was informed Wednesday.

Installation of the new system, which will include additional lights in the business section and along the highway west to the Haskell County Hospital, has been underway for several weeks by a West Texas Utilities Company crew under supervision of Mitt Adams, district line superintendent and Doc Lindsey, crew foreman.

H. C. King, local WTU manager, said the new system would include the addition of twelve lighting units leading from the business section to the hospital, with addition of units extending one block from the square in each direction.

All lights in the business section will be 10,000 lums instead of the present 1,000 lums, and in the residence section new lights will be increased from 600 to 1,000 lums.

Operation of the system will be entirely automatic, with a new transformer and time switch added to control the installation.

As soon as poles used as standards for the light brackets have had sufficient time to "weather" the entire installation will be coated with aluminum paint to add to their attractiveness, King said.

City mail delivery—long-sought objective of the Chamber of Commerce Lions Club and other civic groups, is soon to become a reality in Haskell.

Postmaster J. M. Diggs, who has worked with the civic groups since the proposition was first advanced, has been notified that the project was officially approved by the Post Office Department October 17, with the service to be inaugurated Monday, November 17.

Postmaster Diggs urges all patrons desiring to take advantage of the delivery service to have their boxes in readiness when the schedule is inaugurated.

Several inspections and surveys have been made by the Post Office Department during the past year to determine eligibility of Haskell for the additional postal service. One of the final requirements necessary was the revision of the house numbering method, and this change was recently completed.

Gross receipts of the Haskell postoffice have annually been in excess of the minimum required for city mail delivery for years, and principal obstacle holding up approval has been met in sidewalk and paving extensions, street lighting, house numbering, etc.

Post office department outline of the mail delivery project contemplates service for 2,500 patrons out of the city's present population of 4,430 residents.

Delivery facilities will extend to practically all areas of the city west from Avenue A, and will extend west to the Hospital area and also embrace the residential section in Southwest Haskell.

Parcel Post delivery will be included, to serve both the business and residential sections.

Two postmen will be added to handle mail delivery, one covering a route on foot serving the principal residence section, with the southwest section of town and outlying areas to be served by a mounted postman.

Temporary carriers for these routes will be employed until permanent carriers are appointed under Civil Service examination.

Postmen will start on the delivery rounds at 8 a. m. each day, making one trip daily.

Four combination mail collection boxes will be installed as a part of the new project. Three of the boxes will be in the business section—one at the Post office corner, another at the northwest corner of the square, one on the southwest corner of the square, and the fourth one block west of the North Ward school in the residential area.

Mrs. A. W. Cox Retires After 30 Years With Post Office Department

When the money order window in the Haskell postoffice closed Friday, Oct. 24, it marked an eventful date for Mrs. A. W. Cox, clerk and Civil Service Board secretary in the local office who retired from the department on that date after thirty years service with the Post Office Department in two states — Oklahoma and Texas—and who had spent sixteen years of this time in the Haskell office.

When she transferred to Haskell in July, 1931, R. G. Foote was postmaster. He was succeeded by Mrs. Leo Southern, and later by J. M. Diggs, the present postmaster. "Changing of national party administrations has never affected service in the two offices where I have worked," Mrs. Cox said. "Naturally, I have my party preference, but the postoffice department has always been considered a public service for everyone."

Although Mrs. Cox had anticipated and looked forward in recent months to the day of her retirement under Civil Service rules, she admits feeling a reluctance to leaving the work in which she has been engaged for three score years and declares it will take a long time to reach the point where she will "feel at home" away from her former duties in the office.

More than likely, Mrs. Cox, during her thirty years with the department, has extended service to more than one and one-half million postoffice patrons.

A former school teacher in Oklahoma, she decided that a Civil Service position was more to her liking and after successfully passing the test, was appointed a clerk in the Durant, Okla., post office in October, 1917, where Sam Swinney, a Democrat, was postmaster. "There wasn't anything especially difficult about the work," Mrs. Cox recalls, "but during the first few days I had a desire to return to teaching." But the changing faces and personal contacts ever-present at the postoffice windows became more interesting and the former teacher soon found the work extremely fascinating and in a few weeks she had decided to make the new profession a career.

During the 14 years she was with the Durant office, Mrs. Cox worked under the administrations of three postmasters, Swinney, a Miss Butler, and Milas Mhoon, the latter two during the Republican administrations of Harding Commenting on her request for transfer from Durant to Haskell, Mrs. Cox said she and her husband had always wanted to come to West Texas. When she first began her work in Durant, a college town and center of the agricultural section of southeastern Oklahoma, the city had a population of approximately 9,000 people. "The postoffice was in a nice Federal building, and everything was conveniently arranged," Mrs. Cox said.

But Mr. and Mrs. Cox had heard a lot about West Texas, and they wanted to investigate. Mr. Cox, a farmer-stockman, and his wife picked Haskell and she asked for transfer to the local postoffice.

Following her retirement, Mrs. Cox plans to devote most of her newly-acquired leisure to a lifetime hobby of oil painting and piano music. She is a talented artist and gifted pianist and has long looked forward to the day when she could devote more of her time to intensive study in her chosen hobbies.

Retiring Minister Expresses Appreciation For Loyalty of His Congregation

I would like to use this means to thank the people of Haskell for every kindness rendered and for their beautiful spirit of cooperation during my long pastorate.

REV. H. R. WHATLEY

I naturally think of the First Baptist Church first. That pulpit will always be the most sacred place on earth to me. There I have read and gave my best effort to explain the Word of God.
The members have been loyal and responsive. Their words have been encouraging. Their love for me has humbled me and I shall always think of them as God's elect.

The Mens Bible Class almost occupies an equal place in my thinking. These men are my pals.
I will not take the credit for the marvelous growth of the class. It has grown because its members had religion and worked to enlist others. The fine religious fellowship in this class is unsurpassed. This class has inspired me to do my best. It will inspire any teacher. It has a great teacher now.

I have also been interested in the other churches of the town. I have often told my people that I could pray God's blessings upon every church that preaches Salvation by grace. Many of my very best friends are members of other churches. I am grateful for every organization that helps hold the moral standard high.

Then there is a group that does not belong to any church. This group has manifested a spirit toward me that I greatly appreciate. They have always manifested a courteous spirit. I am not ashamed to say that I love them and am ready to help at any time.

Many have asked about our future plans. We expect to live in Haskell. The best I can find out you are helping to make this blessed privilege possible. Thank you a thousand times. After a period of relaxation I expect to announce for evangelistic work.
God has blessed us in this type of work and I like it. Pray for us.
Sincerely,
H. R. WHATLEY.

How women and girls
may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui, many women say, has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time" to come. Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes. Try it!

Hallowe'en—New Style

Hallowe'en, which comes tomorrow, reminds us that it is a night to tempt youngsters to commit various minor depredations and sometimes to overstep the bounds of propriety.

The suggestion is made that communities can avoid these exuberant excesses of young people by providing a special program of entertainment. The experience of several communities has demonstrated that this wise provision by the adults of the community tends to prevent the occasional happening of unfortunate incidents.

Of course, nobody takes Hallowe'en seriously in the present enlightened time. When men and women believed in witches and ghosts, October 31st was a night of fear and some trembling. These days, the evening is enlivened by the appearance of youngsters, in mask and fancy costumes, who take advantage of the gala occasion to enjoy themselves.

The Hallowe'en ceremonies had their origin among the Druids, centuries before the Christian era. In time, some Roman rites were added and observance of the day varied in accord with local custom. Hardly any of them are observed in this enlightened era and Hallowe'en now serves to remind us of the credulity of human beings, including the most learned in some centuries, which resulted in the death of thousands of people who were accused of practicing witchcraft.

Speaker Stresses Educational Program At South Ward PTA Meeting

L. R. Burkett, Deputy State Superintendent, discussed "A Desirable Educational Program For Texas" at a meeting of the South Ward Parent Teacher Association Thursday October 23.

"The first thing necessary to any school is cooperation of the school and parents," the speaker pointed out. Other things stressed were:

- 1. Well trained teachers — trained physically, mentally and morally. In order to have well trained teachers they must be paid adequate salaries. A beginning teacher with a Bachelor's Degree should not be paid less than $2,400 a year.
2. First class school system, with good roads and adequate transportation.
3. A 12-month school; nine months of academic work with three months recreational work.
4. Adequate school buildings with adequate equipment, such as visual and sound aids, projectors, radios, etc.
5. A well-developed adult education program for each community with the state. Such a program is essential in order that each community may keep step with general progress made in politics, in health, in religion, in economics and in education throughout the world.

6. A program on the Junior College level which will meet the vocational needs should be developed. These colleges should be so located and equipped and should be offering such courses as will meet the needs of the territory surrounding the colleges.

7. A program of education that will meet the needs of all exceptional children, including the very bright with the physically handicapped. Also, a program for the kindergarten children. Such a program should look to the welfare of each child from the viewpoint of health, physical training, and social relations. To accomplish the above program, it will be necessary to have a law enacted on attendance that can and will be enforced.

8. A program of counseling and guidance on the state level which will direct each child and adult into recreational and occupational environment. In order to bring this about, counseling and guidance must become an integral part of the training of each teacher, administrator, supervisor and specialist.

9. A code of ethics must be adopted which will cause school boards, administrators, teachers, and patrons to be more nearly honest in their dealings with each other and more loyal to one another in the development of such a program and in the administration of school affairs in general.

10. A unified State Department of Education, democratically administered by having the State Board of Education and State Superintendent elected by the people at the time all trustees of the school districts of the State are elected. Public free schools were organized for the purpose of carrying on an educational program and for the general diffusion of knowledge which is essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people.

All of the County Agricultural and Home Demonstration Agents in District III met in Wichita Falls for a two-day Rural Housing Clinic. Tyrus R. Timm, Extension Economist in Farm Management, W. S. Allen, Agricultural Engineer for Housing, Mrs. Bernice Claytor, Specialist in Home Management, Frances Arnold with the Extension editorial staff and representatives of several commercial organizations concerned with building participated in the meeting. The general recommendation was to rebuild or repair farm buildings now while crop prices are high rather than to wait until crops bring in less income.

General farmstead planning the use of electricity now available to farmers, costs and availability of various kinds of building materials, placement of farm buildings, arrangement of rooms, and insulation materials were discussed. We have sets of floor plans and some of the other materials or bulletins in our offices.

The Haskell County Home Demonstration Council will have a regular meeting in the district court room here at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

Clubs having their Achievement Day programs during the first week of November will be New Mid, Tuesday; Lucky, on Wednesday; Center Point, an all day meeting at the club house on Thursday; Dennis Chapel on Friday. This year each club will add its annual educational report at the Achievement Day meeting and see which has the best average report in the county.

Officers of the South Ward PTA are Mrs. Lillian Townsend, president; Mrs. B. B. Pitman, vice president; Mrs. Wilburn Green, secretary; and Mrs. John Crawford, treasurer.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our deep appreciation to our friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness extended during the illness and death of our father and brother; to members of the Haskell Hospital staff and Dr. Kimbrough and Dr. Nail for their untiring work and attitude; and to everyone who helped in any way during our darkest hours. We also appreciate the beautiful floral tributes to his memory, and pray God's richest blessings on each of you.—The Hand Children, Mrs. Clyde Baty. 1tp

There is still time to plant some of the frost-hardy vegetables such as mustard, collards, spinach, turnips, and onions if quick maturing varieties are used. Spinach and collards will withstand rather cold weather. Cool weather vegetables will grow faster if four or five pounds of 5-10-5 commercial
