Dynamite discovered in ditch

The remains of a case of dynamite discovered by a hitchhiker Wednesday afternoon could have fallen from a truck or had been thrown away according to local officials. Approximately 30 pounds, or two-thirds of a case, was found three miles north of Ozona in a bar ditch on Highway 163.

State mowers had passed over the cardboard carton which had been flattened by rain. The sticks of dynamite had begun to crystallize on the outside, an indication that the explosives were in a highly dangerous state.

Sunfading of the 1982 vintage dynamite had not occurred, leading officers to believe that the material had not been in its roadside location long.

A county dump truck loaded with sand was used to transport the plastic wrapped explosives to a pit on the Bill Baggett Ranch for detonation. One fresh stick of dynamite was placed with the explosives to ensure detonation when John L. Henderson of the Ozona Volunteer Fire Department fired a rifle into the mass.

Baggett told officers that a construction company shed left on his property contained several types of deteriorating explosives. Examination of the shed by firemen and officers revealed approximately 500 pounds of ammonium nitrate, half a case of dynamite and an empty box which had contained blasting caps.

Although the building on the Baggett Ranch is near where the dynamite was found on the roadside, there is no indication that it was taken from that location. The storage shed was locked according to Chief Deputy Jim Wilson.

Ken Land, bomb technician with the San Angelo Fire Department, was in Ozona Tuesday to assist in determining the safest way of disposing of the materials. Deterioration has reached the point that the materials are highly dangerous according to Wilson.

Land advised soaking the explosives with diesel fuel and burning them on the spot. This was accomplished Tuesday afternoon with no mishap. Fuel from a county truck was used to saturate the materials inside the building where they were stored. Ozona Fire Marshal Steve Kenley and firemen Dorris Haire, Bob Falkner and John Henderson were on hand to assist as was Eddie Moore of the road department and Steven Williams and Steve Bueno of West Texas Utilities. Power had to be cut to a line passing directly over the metal building where the explosives were stored.

Deputy Jim Wilson commented that he had lived in many places and this was the first place he had ever been where everyone came willingly to assist without being asked.

"Anyone wishing to dispose of any type explosive should call the Sheriff's Department," said Wilson. "Materials should be disposed of properly, not abandoned or dumped."

Judge Fields proclaims Airport Day

Crockett County Judge A. O. Fields Monday proclaimed Oct. 25 Ozona Airport Appreciation Day, starting the ball rolling toward a busy schedule.

Texas State Senator Bill Sims will open the day's activities by presenting a Texas flag to the airport at 10 a.m. U. S. Senator Phil Gramm has sent a U. S. flag which will be hoisted at the same time. A flag pole is being erected at the airport for the occasion.

Twenty Confederate airplanes have confirmed their participation in the activities. Three AT-6's have been added to the list along with a F-4 Corsair, P-51 Mustang, and a B-25, as well as several PT-13's.

The CAF planes will open their static displays immediately after the flag raising ceremony so visitors may walk around the planes and look at them at close range as well as talk to the pilots. Between 12 and 2 p.m., several of the planes on display will stage "fly-bys".

Various civic organizations will open assorted food booths at the same time. These will sell food and drink throughout the day until 5 p.m.

Several model airplane demonstrations will be interspersed throughout the day.

The Lions' Club will begin serving barbecue at 5 p.m. which will coincide with the last model airplane demonstrations. Tickets for the barbecue will soon go on sale.

A continuing price decline in the natural gas market means another refund to West Texas Utilities Co.'s retail customers in December.

WTU officials announced on Oct. 2 that a request was filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for permission to refund a total of $6.9 million in retail revenues collected in excess of actual fuel costs, and to lower its fuel charge rate for the months of December 1986 through April 1987.

Under WTU's proposal, all existing retail customers would receive refunds through one-time credits to their bills in December. A typical

Garden Club makes plans for Christmas in October

The Myrtle Post Garden Club met Monday night, Oct. 13, at the home of Mrs. Jim Dudley.

The president, Mrs. P. K. Smith, called the meeting to order to discuss the goals and program organization for the year.

Since this is the last regular meeting of the Myrtle Post Garden Club for 1986, the club has decided to have Christmas in October.

Maridel Dudley is in charge of organizing an end of the year and Christmas trip for the club. The group is taking a sightseeing trip to Lost Maples near Leakey as soon as fall color starts to show.

Discussing of past accomplishment on the landscaping of Emerald House led to future goals for Emerald House. Myrtle Post Garden Club will kill weeds and plant grass, bulbs and marigolds in the upcoming year.

A motion was made and carried to assist the Helping Hands with a cash donation now and a pledge of continued support during 1987.

Arbor Day was set aside to improve the park near the rodeo grounds. A plan to set out two crepe myrtles every year for the next ten years to add color was decided.

During our year ahead, Myrtle Post will have such topics discussed as killing undesirable grass and weeds, pruning, conservation of wildflowers and wildlife, glycerin and drying plants, landscaping with native plants and flower arranging. Lectures will be given on different flowers along with slides.

residential customer would receive about $17.

The fuel rate--known as the "fixed fuel factor"--is approved by the PUC. When the actual cost of fuel is below the approved rate, the over-recovery is returned to the customers, with interest.

WTU's base rates have not changed since December 1984. Company officials have indicated that a rate increase likely will be necessary next year after the new coal-fired Oklaunion Power Station near Vernon is completed and placed in service. The assured supply of coal under a long-term contract is expected to stabilize WTU's power plant fuel costs and to partially offset the necessary base rate increase.

People, Places, & Things

I won't very often repeat a subject covered in an earlier column, but there seems to be so much confusion and concern over the hunting/fishing license issue that I feel like further explanation is warranted. After all, this column is here for information, not entertainment, so I'll do my duty as a public servant and try to clear up the muddled minds of those sportsmen aware of, but unclear on, the new licensing requirements.

The first part is easy. No change from years past. Everybody (youngsters, oldsters, rich and poor) must have a license in their possession while hunting deer or turkey so they can tag the critter when the kill it. Doesn't make any difference where they're hunting - on a lease across the state or the horse trap behind the house - they still have to have some kind of license so they'll have the tags that are attached thereto.

Where the confusion arises is over those who fall in the category we used to call "exempt". A Texas resident, under the age of 17, or 65 and over, and some disabled veterans, are eligible to buy a hunting license at a reduced fee ($6.00), but they still have to have the license - to tag the deer or turkey, right? Right. But from this year on, they have to have a license to hunt anything in the state of Texas - doves, deer, squirrels, snakes, butterflies - anything that walks, slithers, hops or flies. And this applies to everybody. Young and old and in-between.

So now let's move on to the next "new" law. (It was really in effect last year, but Wardens across the state were instructed to advise folks, and not write any tickets on this one for a year to give everybody a chance to get used to the idea.) Everyone 17 years of age or older must carry a driver's license or Department of Public Safety-issued personal identification card, along with their hunting license, while hunting. It is a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement policy to issue citations for failure to comply only in the event the transgressor was violating some other game law - like too many doves, or hunting at night, or --- you guessed it, no hunting license, and so on. In this case, lack of proper identification would be a separate offense. Along with other reasons, this law is there so Wardens can cite violators to court, instead of chunking everybody in jail because we don't know for sure tho they really are. No positive identification and fictitious information have been a problem in the past where John Doe was issued a citation but failed to show up and pay the judge ten days later like he promised. And a Game Warden's left standing at the door of Joe's Barn 'n Grill in Odessa with an arrest warrant in his hand and a look on his face that says "I'll never trust the public again!"

You fishermen thought I'd forgotten you, didn't you? All of the above also applies to everybody fishing in the public water of Texas. If you're an adult, by Texas law, you're gonna just have to put your ID in that zip-lock bag in your tackle box along with your fishing license. And although youngsters under 17 don't need an ID, they must have a Special Resident Fishing License, as do the kids 65 and over. Used to, they didn't have to have a license, but now they do when fishing in public waters. Won't cost a dime - it's free. So why have to have it, you say. Because the folks in Austin want to know how many fishermen are using the resource, and they'll get copies of all licenses issued. My guess is that it has something to do with how much money the legislature will let us have in the future to try to make fishing better across the state, but then I'm just guessing. Now, you're not going to see some six-foot Game Warden towering over an eight year old kid with a cane pole and a string of perch, writing him a ticket 'cause he didn't get his free license. But there's more than one way of enforcing the law, and that's all I'll say about that. Point is, parents, get the kid his license so he can get used to obeying the law, instead of breaking the law just because he can get away with it. Start 'em early, start 'em right!

While we're on the subject of kids and licenses, you might consider a Lifetime Hunting License or Lifetime Combination Hunting/Fishing License for your favorite young sportsman. Good Christmas present. Hunting costs $300, Combination is $500. And if you figure that inflation will probably cause the cost of licenses to increase in the future along with everything else, you might find that it's not a bad idea for the not-so-young sportsman. Deer and turkey tags are to be issued annually, free of charge, to holders of the Lifetime licenses. If you're interested, write to TPWD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, 78744, or check with a TPWD field office for an application. Closest one to us is in San Angelo, 3407 South Chadbourne.

Not much to report in regards to archery season. I did, however, hear about a lady in Sutton County that got her a deer with a bow. Seems that after she shish-ka-bobbed the brute she had to chase it a long way to catch up with it, and when her husband came on the scene, she was trying to kick the deer's hind legs out from under it to get it to go down. Must've been some sight! Generally speaking, the first two weekends were pretty well rained out. I just hope the running water didn't wash away the first good quail crop in years. Regardless, it should be a good winter for stock and wildlife alike.

KayCee Ladies plan activities

The KayCee Ladies met Monday, Oct. 13 with the Halloween Carnival as the first topic of discussion. A motion was made and carried to have a choice of homemade chili con carne either with or without beans, plus a piece of cornbread served with each bowl.

The next topic discussed was a covered dish supper which the KayCeess have each month for their families. This month it will be held at the Parish Hall on Sunday, Oct. 26, at 6:00 p.m. Members present decided what they each would bring.

Various ideas were brought up pertaining to ways of helping the community. These ideas will be discussed further at the next meeting.

After the meeting was adjourned, refreshments were served.

Thirteen members present were: Joyce Galvan, Janell Tambunga, Nina Martinez, Elma Buckner, Jill De La Garza, Elena Ybarra, Isabel Ybarra, Mary Fierro, Lupe Cervantez, Mary Ybarra, Fannie De-Hoyos, Armenta Sanchez and Patsy Gutierrez.

Sims speaks to Lions and their Ladies

Lions Club members and their wives learned about the inner-workings of the state legislature Monday night from Sen. Bill Sims. Sims was guest speaker at a special dinner meeting held at the Civic Center.

Claiming to represent the largest senatorial district in the world (65,000 square miles), Sen. Sims said he got into politics by accident. The Paint Rock ranchers and former county agent became familiar with state government as a lobbyist for the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association. He has been executive secretary of the association for 20 years.

"Usually you get into the legislature and then lobby," said Sims who considers lobbyists to be the third arm of the legislature because of their valuable contribution of information.

Emphasizing again and again how well the American system of government works compared to other countries, Sims explained the ins and outs of the recent special sessions which resulted in budget cuts and finally a tax bill.

"I'm sorry we passed it," said Sims of the tax bill, "but I truthfully know of no other way we could take care of the finances of our state."

Sims told listeners "the thing that will probably kill us here in the United States is the people who stay home on election day."

Lions Club president Garland Davis was master of ceremonies for the event. The speaker was introduced by Steven Williams, program chairman, and the invocation was given by Rev. Jim Gray.

Dee Keilers led the Pledge of Allegiance, and the 50 persons attending were registered by Cynthia Berry, wife of planning chairman Richard Berry. Mrs. Marilyn Chalmers provided piano music during the hour prior to dinner.

Court considers sales tax, adopts insurance resolution

Learning of the resignation of Dr. Don Carlisle from the Crockett County Hospital medical staff was an unscheduled item at Commissioners Court Monday. "The commissioners have nothing to do with this," said Judge A. O. Fields after Carlisle employee Lori Williams read a cover letter which accompanied the letter of resignation. "The board (hospital board) has to handle it first," said Fields.

Copies of a three page letter giving reasons for resignation were handed to the commissioners shortly before the close of the meeting.

During the discussion portion of the meeting, Judge Fields told commissioners that recent legislative action will allow Crockett County to have a 1/2 cent sales tax. An election must be held by Aug. 31, 1987 to pass the tax, and tax revenue must be used to reduce ad valorem taxes, said Fields. The judge estimated that $40,000 to $50,000 would be generated by the tax now whereas it could produce upwards of $80,000 in a good year.

Sales taxes in Crockett County are down 54 percent from the same period last year according to the current report from State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

No discussion followed on the tax matter.

Commissioners voted to create a resolution indicating that the county wishes to be eligible for the National Flood Insurance Plan. Passing of the resolution enables residents residing in a flood area to purchase flood insurance.

The measure passed on a motion by Jack Williams seconded by B. W. Stuart.

Judge Fields informed the court that an Aug. 13 state inspection of county pools had resulted in a four page, 40 item letter of deficiencies. "The Health Department could have shut us down at that time," said Fields.

Among the deficiencies mentioned by Fields were: no toilet tissue in the restrooms, cracked gutter tiles, an open sewer pipe in the boys' restroom and frayed electrical cords in reach of persons stepping from the pool.

Dorris Haire of the Ozona Volunteer Fire Department told commissioners that a previous estimate of $900-$1000 for replacement blades for a Hurst Tool (Jaws of Life) was in error. The blades will cost $2,200, said Haire.

A rescue saw, available for $877, would do the same thing, only faster, reported the volunteer.

Commissioners voted, on a motion by Sostenes DeHoyos seconded by B. W. Stuart, that the saw be purchased from the fire department's 1986 equipment fund.

Continuing rains have halted fencing of the right-of-way on Hwy. 1973 and brought paving to a halt. Paving is still incomplete in Precinct 2 because of the weather, said Eddie Moore, road supervisor.

"We're just trying to keep the roads open," said Moore. River Road was opened Thursday and Friday, and weekend rains closed it again, commented Moore.

Parks Supervisor Onecimo Ortiz told commissioners that repairs need to be made at AA Street where Gurley Draw comes in behind Inn of the West. Ortiz was told to see to the necessary repairs and also check on a washout problem where a water line has been laid near the entrance to the jail.

Mine's running good," said Garland Young of the Civic and Youth Centers. An end of football season dance is being tentatively planned for Nov. 15, said Young.

Minutes of the annual library board meeting were read by Louise Ledoux. At the Oct. 6 meeting, board members elected June Cameron and re-elected Sherry York whose term was expiring.

Commissioners voted unanimously to accept Mrs. Cameron on the board on a motion by Williams seconded by Stuart.

Jerry Hill gave the monthly financial report from Helping Hands. During September, commodities were distributed to 182 families (541 people) with a food value of $1636.73.

There were 899 meals served averaging 42.8 meals per day. Donations for the meals were $772, an average of .85 per meal.

Helping Hands is now on the commodities program which should cut cost of meals considerably, said Hill. The organization is also on the Food Bank in San Angelo where canned foods may be purchased at .10 per pound.

Bill Boswell reported for the hospital board. An account of the meeting is carried elsewhere in this issue of The News.

Court members and County Attorney Tom Camerson went into executive session to discuss law suits and personnel problems. No vote was taken after the group returned from executive session.

The court approved purchase of light bulbs for the ball parks for the coming year and approved sending two county employees for spraying certification training before adjourning at 11:30 a.m.

"...lead us not into temptation"

Rev. Richard Altenbaugh

What is the difference between "temptation" and "sin"? Do a large number of temptations equal a sin? These are important questions. We are often beset with many and various temptations during the day and at times feel guilty as if we had sinned, when we really haven't. On the contrary, when temptations are successfully overcome through one's effort strengthened by God's grace, we grow in grace and virtue!

A temptation is a suggestion or inducement to do something morally wrong. A sin is to deliberately and freely choose to do the wrong suggested. The suggestion is presented by the mind and the imagination...It may come from other persons, places or things. Sacred Scripture gives the sources as three...the world, the flesh or our inclination to sin, and the devil. Evil thoughts and desires pop up in us when we least expect them. There is no sin if after realizing their immoral character, we discard them.

Here are ways we can utilize to overcome temptation.

Jesus encourages us to pray often--especially in times of temptation. "lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil." (cf. Mt. 6:13)

Our mind can only concentrate on one thought at a time; to get rid of a bad one... concentrate on something else. Resist the beginnings of temptation--a snowball at the top of a hill is easier to stop than when it is halfway down, picking up momentum and size, every foot...every second.

Avoid persons, places and things that past experiences show have been an occasion of sin. Just say No!

Remember that Christ and all else suffered temptation - this is one way of increasing the character of our good habits (virtue)...like gold tried in the furnace. (cf. 1 Peter 1:6 & 7)

His grace is sufficient for us. (cf. 1 Cor. 10:13)

God loves you. His power is great, yes, but He is known more for his love and mercy.

CROCKETT SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

36th Annual Report

Conservation Districts:

The ranchers of Crockett County, realizing the importance of conserving the soil, water, and plant resources of the county, organized the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District in 1950. The basic objective of the District is to use each acre of land according to its capabilities and to treat each acre in accordance with its need for maintenance or improvement. A further function of the District is to coordinate and make available assistance from various federal, state and local agencies through a unified program of planning and action.

The primary source of help the District offers landowners is the technical assistance of the Soil Conservation Service. Through a Memorandum of Understanding with the USDA and SCS, the Crockett District is able to furnish technical assistance to ranchers, farmers, and others in the preparation of a complete soil and water conservation plan to meet the needs and specific capabilities of each land unit.

The Crockett District is governed by a board of five directors, each representing one subdivision of the District. The directors are resident landowners and are actively engaged in ranching or farming. These directors are elected by other landowners and hold the responsibility of coordinating and administering conservation activities within the District.

It is the responsibility of the elected board of directors to develop a long range plan of work. This program is actually an inventory of the land and water resources and problems of the district. It describes the actual conditions bearing on land and its use. Conservation needs and treatments are outlined in the program of work and details solutions to problems and resources available to accomplish district objectives.

Our survival and existence depends entirely on preservation of our agricultural base. Each person in the district has an interest in the land and must share in the responsibility of preserving its productivity.

Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District is providing leadership in meeting this responsibility.

Conservation Education

The Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District co-sponsored the second annual conservation education field day tour for the sixth grade students of Ozona on April 23, 1986. The purpose of the tour was to give the students a basic understanding of what our renewable natural resources are and how they must be properly cared for to sustain our current way of life.

The students were taken to the Bill Baggett ranch where they were presented subject matter on range, wildlife, and soils.

At the range stop, they learned many of the basic principles of range management practices necessary to sustain the productivity of our rangelands.

The soils stop consisted of learning the characteristics of soil formation and some of the conservation practices used to prevent erosion.

Subject matter presented at the wildlife stop included management practices for game and non-game wildlife species and a presentation on wildlife laws and regulations.

After lunch, they had the opportunity to see a sheep being shorn. They were then given presentations on wool and mohair as it relates to Crockett County and Texas and the processes wool and mohair go through to become a finished clothing product.

The entire day was enjoyed by all who attended, and the district plans to continue this educational event annually.

Conservation Rancher

Pleas Childress III was chosen as the recipient of the 1985 outstanding conservation rancher award by the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District. The award was presented to Pleas at the San Angelo Area Awards Banquet held at Angelo State University on February 27th, 1986.

Pleas operates three separate operating units in Crockett County totaling approximately 21,000 acres and has continued the excellent job of range and ranch management that his father, P.L. Childress Jr., started many years ago. He primarily runs sheep and cattle and normally stocks light on all three ranches giving him a built-in drought plan. He is a firm believer in proper grazing use and has found through experience that the range recovers faster after periods of dry conditions by stocking lightly.

All three ranches have been under the Great Plains Conservation Program in the past with some much needed fencing and water development being completed. With the addition of fences and water development, Pleas has been able to utilize various grazing systems. He is currently operating a four pasture, three herd system and a two pasture switchback grazing system. He is also practicing selective deferrment which is working as well as any of his planned grazing systems.

Pleas has been improving the quantity and quality of desirable forage not only through well executed management practices but also through an extensive brush control program. Over the years approximately 14,600 acres of brush have been treated by various control methods. Range seeding has been done on some areas and has provided excellent cover and grazing.

The improvement of desirable forage not only helps his livestock and protects his soil, but has also improved his wildlife habitat which in turn has improved the quality of wildlife. Pleas works with his hunting leasees to educate them on improving the quality of deer, turkey and other wildlife species found on his ranches.

The Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District was proud to present the 1985 outstanding conservation rancher award to Pleas Childress III for his excellent working understanding of range and ranch management and his wise use of available resources.

Johnson Draw Watershed

The possibility of flooding in Ozona similar to that disastrous day of June 28, 1954 has been greatly reduced by the construction of seven floodwater retarding structures on Johnson Draw watershed and two miles of channel improvement through the town of Ozona.

Through the initiative and cooperative action of local people and ranchers, the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District, the Crockett County Commissioners Court, and the Soil Conservation Service, the construction of these structures was completed by 1959.

Throughout the years since their construction there have been numerous rainfalls in which minor flooding damage might have occurred had these structures not been in place. These structures are designed to detain runoff from 78% of the watershed above Ozona. Runoff from the watershed is temporarily held back by the structure and is slowly released at a safe and controlled velocity.

The seven structures and channel improvement are inspected annually by the local sponsors and every five years by SCS engineers. These inspections are made to ensure all structures and the channel are functioning as planned. Presently, all structures and the channel are in very good condition due to the good maintenance and repairs made by the sponsors.

The Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District encourages landowners to implement an overall wildlife management program that will exist in harmony with their current livestock operations. The district provides assistance in developing wildlife management programs through the Soil Conservation Service.

Calcium needs during pregnancy explained

The old saying about "eating for two" during pregnancy is more fact than fancy. While a pregnant woman is certainly not advised to eat twice as much as she normally does, she is urged to plan balanced meals that will meet the nutritional needs for both herself and her growing baby. This means a diet rich in protein, vitamins, and minerals - especially calcium.

The bone conservation induced by increased hormone levels during pregnancy may have a beneficial effect on bone quality through life. Of course, if calcium intakes are low throughout pregnancy, that may have a negative effect on the bone health of the mother in later years and of the newborn infant at birth. While it seems clear that pregnancy has good effects on overall bone health, studies have not confirmed that many pregnancies produce better and bigger bones. It is true that a woman who has never been pregnant is at a higher risk of developing osteoporosis than a woman who has been pregnant. Research is currently underway to learn more about the relationship between pregnancy and bone health.

Calcium is the body mineral responsible for good bone health. In an average adult, 99 percent of his/her calcium is stored in the bones, and sufficient amounts of dietary calcium will ensure normal strength and density of the bones. During pregnancy, the fetus needs calcium for the ongoing maintenance of bone that occurs throughout the life cycle. Because the fetus receives its nourishment directly from the mother's blood, the pregnant woman must include a variety of calcium-rich foods in her diet to provide needed calcium for the fetus and for her own bones. Most doctors recommend that pregnant patients include plenty of milk, cheese, yogurt and other dairy foods in their diet to ensure adequate calcium intakes.

Fortunately, nature devised an ingenious set of reactions in the physiological system of pregnant women that favor and increase retention and utilization of ingested calcium:

- the body's absorption of dietary calcium is increased to compensate for the needs of the fetus; the average individual will absorb about 30 percent of the calcium in foods he/she eats and drinks, the pregnant woman will absorb 50 percent to 60 percent.

- the natural excretion of dietary calcium via urine is decreased.
- the production of estrogen and progesterone is increased and has a positive influence in conserving calcium in the woman's bones.

The Recommended Dietary Allowance of calcium for pregnant women is 1200 mg. per day - that's 50 percent higher than the RDA of 800 mg. per day for average adults. Pregnant teenagers, however, require and RDA of 1600 mg. of calcium per day. This higher number reflects the tremendous dual need for calcium of the fetus and the young woman whose own bones are at the peak stage of growth. No matter what the age of the mother is, if calcium intakes are low, the fetus will "rob" needed calcium from the mother's bones. There is also epidemiological evidence that eclampsia (hypertension) during pregnancy may be related to inadequate calcium intake.

Single hepatitis case confirmed in Ozona

A case of hepatitis was diagnosed in the Ozona Junior High last week causing concern among parents, faculty and the student body.

An eighth grade cheerleader was confirmed through lab tests in San Angelo as having hepatitis.

"I've not received the lab report yet," Crockett County Medical Officer Robert Owensby said. "We won't know until then whether or not it is Type A or some other type of hepatitis. But hepatitis A is the most common."

Owensby emphasizes that the disease is not very contagious and is usually not transmitted except through close personal contact.

"Most of the time hepatitis A is endemic and not epidemic," Owensby said. "The virus is usually passed through contaminated food or drink. The best way to prevent contacting the disease is by hand washing after going to the bathroom."

Exposure to a person in a classroom or work situation who is later diagnosed as having the disease is not usually a sufficient means of hepatitis transmission.

Immune serum globulin (ISG) may be effective in preventing hepatitis A after exposure if administered within one to two weeks. Several conditions should be met before ISG is administered including a confirmed diagnosis of hepatitis. To be at risk of contacting the virus, an individual must be exposed to a case when the virus is infectious. Casual contact at work or school is not considered a risk.

A person who is developing a hepatitis case is infectious during about a two week period prior to developing jaundice or yellowing of the skin.

"The incubation period varies from case to case," Owensby said. "The liver, the largest gland in the body, is affected by the hepatitis virus. There is no medical treatment for the disease. No antibiotics will cure it."

Hospitalization is not usually necessary unless the patient vomits excessively. In that case, hospitalization may be necessary in order to feed the patient intravenously. Rest is the recommended treatment, according to Owensby.

"It is best for a patient to avoid large amounts of meat," Owensby said. "The patient usually tolerates sugar well."

The disease in children is often milder than that experienced by adults. Often children do not experience jaundice. Some children may have symptoms which seem to be only a bad cold lasting for a short time which are actually hepatitis.

In some less developed parts of the world, many individuals may experience flu-like symptoms for a few days which are in reality hepatitis and then go on about their lives, according to Owensby.

"Every year since I've been in Ozona there has been one or more cases of hepatitis," Owensby said.

"It seems that there is a case about every six months. Last year there were three cases, one after the other. "Often we never find out the source of contamination," he said. "Good sanitation and washing the hands after going to the bathroom are the best prevention."
