Immigration Reform Act promises local changes

The new Immigration Reform and Control Act signed into law by President Reagan Nov. 6 promises important changes affecting Crockett and surrounding counties as well as the entire state.

Illegal aliens residing continuously in the U. S. since 1982 may now obtain legal status while employers may now be penalized for hiring undocumented workers.

The installation of a new Immigration and Naturalization Service facility at Mathis Field in San Angelo is expected to have an economic impact on Ozona and Sonora by possibly causing the closing of the immigration offices in both towns, according to Donald Coe, assistant chief patrol agent of the Del Rio sector.

Immigration officers assigned to Crockett and Sutton Counties may be required to live in San Angelo and drive to assigned areas on a daily basis. Coe says another possibility is that the Rocksprings-Comstock office will assume responsibilities for Sutton and Crockett Counties.

Presently only three immigration officers work out of the Ozona office with one of these living in Sonora and commuting daily. Ten officers are assigned to the Sonora office although one will be retiring very soon.

Congress has authorized a spending ceiling of $422 million in extra money for the INS to implement the new law. However, the money has not yet been appropriated.

"I don't think we will have the problem of funding," Coe said. "It is written into the bill."

The impact of the new immigration law is also being felt state and nationwide as well with illegal aliens now eligible to apply for temporary legal status which may be converted to permanent residency status after 18 months if the alien can demonstrate a minimal understanding of English and some knowledge of U. S. history and government.

The amnesty period begins May 5. Aliens who may have a right to amnesty forfeit that right, however, if they should leave the U. S. between the time the bill was signed into law and May 5.

They can apply to the immigration service for permission to return to Mexico temporarily and if this permission is granted the amnesty eligibility will not be jeopardized.

Apparently some aliens are sufficiently concerned about the forfeiture that fewer appear to be returning to Mexico, according to Coe.

"We can't be sure about this as we're not presently checking all southbound buses as at times in the past," Coe said. "But, it seems that there are not as many this year."

A federal judge in California has ordered the immigration service to stop deporting those aliens who appear to have a right to amnesty. These immigrants are to be given temporary work authorizations and allowed to stay until the amnesty period begins.

No one has any idea of the numbers of people who may be eligible for amnesty, but officials feel that several million applications will be made throughout the U. S.

The Texas State Comptroller's office has calculated that as many as 600,000 of the one million estimated illegal aliens in Texas may be eligible to eventually apply for American citizenship under the new law.

Several legal problems exist in the new legislation. One problem is the meaning of "continuous residence". Does this mean that the individual never left the U. S. for a single day from 1982 until the amnesty period begins? Or were short periods of visiting or residing out of the U. S. permissible? How long could these periods have been?

The potential tax liabilities of illegal aliens and their employers if taxes were not paid or withheld during the 1982 to May 5, 1987 period are other questions which must be addressed.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock feels that the effect on the state's finances will be minimal.

"For the most part, illegal aliens in Texas are paying virtually all the same taxes -- sales taxes, gasoline taxes and excise taxes -- as you and me," Bullock said. "If they become permanent citizens we aren't going to see a big jump in state revenue."

Bullock expressed the opinion that strict enforcement in the immigration bill might dry up a source of cheap labor for many Texas businesses and industries.

This opinion apparently is shared by members of agricultural organizations with the tax and labor

Flores selected to Class 2-A All-West Texas Team

By T. C. Tucker

Roger Flores' outstanding ability as a wide receiver during the 1986 football season enabled him to be chosen by the San Angelo Standard-Times to represent the wide receiver position on the All-West Texas team in Class 2A.

Senior Flores had five touchdowns and 767 yards receiving off 43 receptions. His 94 yard pass reception in a pre-district game helped push the Lions past Iraan 18-15.

Flores said that although he was surprised, he was pleased, anyhow. Only Flores represented the Ozona football team, which went 3-7 for the season.

Sharing the wide receiver spot with Flores was Mike Townsend from Big Lake. Townsend had only 617 yards receiving, but the fact that Big Lake went to the state semifinals helped in his being chosen.

The post-district experience helped Townsend make the Times' Super Team for the West Texas area. The Super Team was composed of the top picks from A to 5A schools. "I suppose the sportswriters know more about Townsend that helped in his being chosen over me," Flores said.

Flores provided a spark many times for the Lion football team, avoiding the double coverage endowed upon him and always popping up for the reception.

County gains producer

The Whitehead (strawn gas) field of Crockett County gained another producer with completion of Sonora Southwest Partnership, Irving, (amended from Statex Petroleum Inc.) No. 74 McMullan Ranch "B", surrounded by production and 15 miles southeast of Ozona, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 4,050,000 cubic feet of dry gas daily.

Production was through perforations at 8,442-992 feet, which had been acidized with 5,000 gallons and fractured with 80,000 gallons.

Drilled to 9,100 feet, with 4 1/2-inch casing set at 9,060 feet, it was plugged back to 9,022 feet.

Location is 4,104 feet from the north and 934 feet from the west lines of 22-G2-J.N. Friend Survey, Abst. 4802.

Illegal hunting violations down 25 percent

Violations for illegal hunting were down 25 percent this year compared to 1985 says Game Warden Rod Chalmers. Illegal hunting charges include night and road hunting. Of the 86 cases filed in Crockett County, 41 were for illegal hunting.

While illegal hunting cases were down, tag and license violations more than doubled in 1986. Failure to tag and using someone else's tags are included in this category which had 26 violations.

There were also three cases filed for violation of trapping regulations during deer season.

A total of $7,735 in fines was assessed as of the last day of the season. This figure includes court costs. Of the actual fines, 15 percent is retained in Crockett County and the other 85 percent goes to the state.

Only 11 percent of the people arrested were unemployed according to Chalmers.

Three men were arrested in another town in early December after an alert rancher got their vehicle description and license plate number when the men were hunting illegally on Hwy. 137 near the Strauss Ranch.

Although local officers never located the vehicle, several days later the game warden in their home city investigated the case; the men plead guilty to hunting from a vehicle on a public road and were fined $200 each.

Two subjects arrested in Sutton County Dec. 19 had killed a doe without a permit, skinned the animal and put a buck tag on it. One subject used last year's tag and one of this year's tags on deer. Fines of $175 were assessed the two men.

Two arrests were made Jan. 4 for hunting fur bearing animals from a public road. Fines were $100 each.

Five individuals were charged with killing deer from the road at night in late December.

Tax Reform brings changes

The increase in the sales tax rate from 4.125 to 5.25 percent went into effect Jan. 1. "Only the rate has changed," reminds State Comptroller Bob Bullock. "In every case what is and what is not taxable under current sales tax law remains the same when the new law goes into effect," Bullock said.

A special session of the Texas Legislature raised the state's sales tax rate one and one-eighth percent to deal with a shortfall of tax revenue caused by the collapse of oil prices. Also passed in the special session was a 5-cent gasoline tax increase. The two temporary taxes are scheduled to expire Aug. 31.

Sales tax deductions are no longer

Lady Lions take win over Alpine

By Allison Larisa Schoenhals

On Jan. 2, the Ozona Lady Lions started the new year off right by having the determination to overcome the Alpine Lady Bucks. This victory is what the Lady Lions need to get started on a winning streak. When the game got underway, Alpine appeared to be the obvious winner. The Lady Bucks held a narrow lead over the Lady Lions, but in the fourth quarter, Ozona put on the juice and ended the game with a five point lead over Alpine. The final score was Ozona 42, Alpine 37. Sophomore Stacy Lay, a consistent under-the-basket shooter, powered in 16 points. She also was credited for eight rebounds. Kelly Williams, an outstanding freshman, added eight points to the scoreboard. Her unexpected steals added some excitement during the game. Everyone on the team was able to play and did a good job contributing to the team effort. This win put the Ladies' season record at 5-10. This victory also added much needed confidence that the girls need to get back into district competition. A word to the wise directed toward the opponents of this "ready for action" team of girls would be to put the Lady Lions' past record behind them and look for some surprising results. "I though the girls played well especially in their come-back performance," commented head coach Rhonda Yarborough. "This win added some boosted confidence for the two tough district opponents, Forsan and Stanton, which we face on the road this week," she said. The Lady Lions will get a chance to prove their new image to the public on Tuesday, Jan. 6, as they battle against Forsan on Forsan's home court. The game is scheduled for 6:30 and is forecast to be a crowd-pleasing thriller.

Freshmen girls defeat Alpine

By Cople Davis

The Ozona Freshmen Lady Lions used only five girls to easily overpower the Alpine Lady Bucks last Friday 50-19. The Ladies played the last part of the game with only four players on the floor due to the loss of Terel Seahorn to fouls. The Ladies began the game with twelve quick first quarter points. Accompanied by their offensive power was a tenacious defense that allowed Alpine only four points. In the second quarter, the Lady Lions turned up the heat and added sixteen points to the total while continuing to badger the Lady Bucks on defense, giving up only five points. The score at intermission was 28-9 with Ozona in complete control. In the third period, Alpine made a brief run at the Lady Lions, but could not overcome the nineteen point deficit they had been blessed with in the first half. The Lady Bucks had their best offensive output of the game, though they had scored a mere seven points. The final period was a mirror image of the first except that the Ladies played without the services of post player Terel Seahorn who fouled out. Nevertheless, by playing on sheer momentum, the Ladies managed to add 12 more points to the scoreboard and hold the Lady Bucks to three points. The final score was Ozona 50, Alpine 19. The Freshmen Lady Lions now have a perfect 6-0 record for the season with two district wins.

Lions take third at Big Lake tournament

By T. C. Tucker

Beating Crane for the first time in four years, the Ozona Lions captured third place in the Reagan County Tournament Saturday, Jan. 3. Will Seahorn and Scott Denman led the way with their 16 and 12 points respectively in Ozona's 50-47 win over Crane. Leading for most of the game, the Lions pulled out in front by 12 at the end of the third quarter. Crane rallied in the fourth quarter, refusing to stay down. But the Lions pulled off a close, yet decisive win, placing in a tournament they have failed to make a spark in for the past four years. As always, Scott Denman controlled the boards with an overpowering 13 rebounds.

The Lions saw tournament action on Friday, playing against district opponent Big Lake. Here, the Lions showed their ability to control the game and lead. By halftime, Ozona held an 11 point lead and eventually extended it to 16 by the game's end with a score of 66-50. Denman sank 15 points as Sam Hightower and Mike Morrow followed with 14 and 12 points. Hightower stole the ball four times while Abel Lara had three steals. The second game proved disfavorable for Coach John Curry. The Lions played well against Greenwood, but shot poorly as the Rangers won 38-22. Ozona gained the lead during the first quarter and still held it by intermission. However, Greenwood led scorers with seven points and six rebounds. Denman had five points while Oscar Payne pulled down five rebounds. Besides winning third place, two Lion members, Denman, who had 32 points in the tournament, and Lara, whose defensive ability aided the Lions in the tourney just as he has done the entire season, made the all-tournament team. The Lions journey to Stanton Friday, Jan. 9. On Jan. 13, they host Rankin. Both games are district contests and will start at 8 p.m. for varsity action.

Computer science teacher Lane Scott is preparing to instruct on an NCR computer donated to OHS by Ozona National Bank. The unit will soon be ready for operation.

Second annual College Information Hotline to assist students

College-bound students and their parents are faced with deadlines, admissions procedures and financial aid requirements that can be confusing and frustrating. The Texas Association of College Admissions Counselors (TACAC), in conjunction with First City National Bank of Houston, will provide a toll-free telephone HOTLINE in January to help alleviate problems and make college admissions easier. Open to any Texas resident, HOTLINE will operate from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Jan. 10 and 11. The special toll-free number established to serve all callers is 1-800-253-8989. The HOTLINE is staffed with volunteer counselors, admissions officers and financial aid personnel who are members of TACAC. This organization is a professional education group of more than 600 members from colleges, universities, and secondary schools whose purpose is to make the transition to college a positive experience. With over 3,000 higher education institutions to choose from and over $14 million in financial aid available, the task of selecting and paying for the "right" college is a challenging one. The goal of the HOTLINE is to provide ready access to students, parents, secondary school counselors and others in Texas who need accurate and up-to-date information on any aspect of college admission.

The only mammal that can't jump is said to be the elephant.

Oklaunion

Our Declaration Of Independence

WTU's new Oklaunion Power Station is a coal-burner and it's our "Declaration of Independence!" We're no longer dependent on just one source of fuel for our power plants. Natural gas has always been our main boiler fuel, and right now it is plentiful and fairly priced again. But recent history has revealed uncertainties about the future supply and cost of natural gas.

Coal Delivery at Oklaunion

Our new "fuel mix" of coal and natural gas means cheaper energy for all our customers in the long run. In the short run, more stable fuel costs will help offset higher base rates necessary to pay for the new power plant.

We're happy the Oklaunion Power Station is coming on line! It will be good for our Company and good for our customers!

A look at the 4 - H philosophy

4-H is a distinctively American, non-formal educational, character and skills building youth program conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

4-H is keyed to the development of individual boys and girls so that they may become productive, contributing citizens. 4-H lays a broad and firm base for a lifetime of personal growth.

Further, the purpose of 4-H is to develop young people through the involvement of parents, other adults and volunteers who organize and conduct learning experiences in a community setting. The focus is on human interaction designed to develop skills, abilities and understandings in youth and adults as participating and influential members of their community. The central aim is for youth to acquire a set of skills for perceiving and responding to life's significant events.

Through 4-H, boys and girls discover an active method of turning their time into productive projects, identify with others their own age and other ages, acquire an interest and understanding of the private enterprise system, participate in meaningful and often physical work, and build strong family relationships.

4-H is effective because its educational services relate to youth's needs. Through informal, practical, learning-by-doing programs, 4-H helps boys and girls establish real-life goals and skills and become competent, productive citizens. The home, local club and community are the training grounds in which 4-H participants develop knowledge, skills and attitudes.

4-H, as an ever-renewing movement, takes pride in its contributions to American society for more than 75 years. It is not easy for a youngster to develop a realistic sense of his own individuality and yet have an awareness of his social role and responsibilities.

Youth who participate in 4-H will develop some capacity to function as generalists, no matter how they may later choose to specialize. A pattern of success built upon hard work spawns inner resources which permit young people to cope with unforeseen challenges and to survive

Sonora Mason named District Deputy Grand Master

A Sonora safety representative was appointed District Deputy Grand Master for the Texas Masonic Grand Lodge at its annual meeting in Waco Dec. 4-6.

He is Joe D. Brooks, past master of Sprayberry Lodge No. 1365 in Midkiff and Jal Lodge No. 65 in Jal, New Mexico.

As District Deputy, Brooks represents Grand Master John E. (Jack) Kelly of San Antonio in the 55th Masonic District during 1987. The district includes five lodges in Reagan, Sutton, Crockett and Schleicher Counties.

as versatile, capable individuals in an unpredictable world. Youth so educated will assure the necessary flexibility, adaptability and innovation for society.

Participation in the 4-H program is voluntary and open to all interested boys and girls regardless of race, color, creed, national origin or handicap who are between the ages of nine (or in the third grade in school) and 19.

The Grand Lodge celebrates its 150th birthday during 1987, having been founded in 1837 by Sam Houston, Anson Jones and other early Texas Masons.

Brooks said that special programs will be held in all lodges in his district to observe the Grand Lodge birthday.

The Grand Lodge is the governing body for 959 Texas Masonic lodges with more than 200,000 members, making it the largest fraternal order in the state. There are some five million members of the Masonic Fraternity worldwide.

Tax management with new laws

COLLEGE STATION -- Tax management is taking on some new twists with the new tax code that goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1987.

One change relates to the adoption of taxable years different from the calendar year, points out Dr. Ashley Lovell, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Under the new law, in general, all partnerships, S-corporations and personal service corporations must conform their taxable years to the taxable years of the owners, says Lovell. However, if the entity can establish a business purpose for having a different taxable year than that of the owners, to the satisfaction of the IRS, then it can have a taxable period different from the calendar year.

Regarding development expenses in farming and ranching, the new tax law provides uniform capitalization rules that cover costs of preproductive periods that exceed two years for developing orchards and breeding livestock, effective Jan. 1, 1987. There is a special election under which farmers may elect to deduct preproduction expenditures currently rather than having to capitalize them.

Amounts that are expensed off annually during the preproduction period will be subject to recapture as ordinary income when raised plants or breeding livestock are sold, notes Lovell. If the special election is made, then all assets placed in service during that period are ineligible for ACRS depreciation. Instead, they must be depreciated under the alternate straight-line method.

Deductions for soil and water conservation as well as land clearing also have been restricted by tax reform. The new law limits deductions for soil and water conservation expenses to those investments approved by the Soil Conservation Service or a plan drawn up by a state conservation agency, effective for such expenditures after Dec. 31. Land clearing expenses are no longer deductible after Dec. 31, 1985. This means that agricultural producers will have to capitalize such expenses, adding them to the basis of the land, says the economist. Producers will still be able to deduct brush control costs and other maintenance type expenses.

Beginning this Jan. 1, meal, travel and entertainment expenses for business purposes will be limited to 80 percent of the cost, adds Lovell. The new tax law also includes a phase-out of deductions for luxury skyboxes at stadiums, a limit on deductions for travel on cruise ships, and elimination of deductions for educational travel and other travel, such as to attend investment seminars.

Tax advisers can provide further details on various provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and how these will affect personal and business situations, says Lovell.

ACCIDENT

Only one accident was investigated in Crockett County during the New Year's holiday according to DPS Sergeant Glen Redmond. "We had an extremely quiet weekend," said Redmond with pride.

An 8:20 p.m. accident Friday occurred at the intersection of the north service road on I-10 and Avenue E.

Minor damage and no injuries resulted when a 1986 Ford pickup driven by Willie Vargas and a 1983 Buick driven by Gerald Duhon of Beaumont were in collision.

White recalls ranchhand

A MEXICAN NATIONAL ON RANCHO BLANCA AS TOLD TO ME

by Ted White

Benito let the other boys have the one tent, and he scraped out a private shelter under a rock ledge for his own bedroom. He sewed feed sacks together to make a bed, and he folded an extra sack under the high end for a pillow. He had a way of collecting all sorts of items for his bedroom in a strictly legitimate sort of way. He would hang tooth brush, mirrors, comb, and numerous possessions on tree limbs above his head. Other things he would keep under his bed. He was fond of the wood rats that scampered across his bed at night, but he never allowed them to eat his soap. He kept himself and his clothes clean, his camp in order.

Benito seldom bought any clothes, other than shoes. He would nail extra thick soles and heels on his shoes fashioned from old automobile tires. I began handing him my old pants and shirts that were too tattered, even for me to wear, and that left them in a dismal and irreparable condition. He would wash these clothes and mend them so neatly that I was downright envious. He was thirty or forty pounds lighter than I, but those clothes seemed to fit him perfectly.

One time I gave him two pairs of pants that were in especially bad condition. One pair was entirely out in front, and the other pair was rent asunder in the rear, from stem to stern, so to speak. Benito seldom settled the problem by stitching the two pairs together, one pair inside the other. The tight fitting Levis fitted neatly inside the khakis. After much sewing, he trimmed the edges, and presented himself in the finished product which was a thing of beauty, and a work of art. These pants - the plural is used advisedly - lasted three years. He wore them only in winter time since the double waist bothered him in hot weather, as well as the inconvenience of the two rows of buttons.

Even though Benito wore my old clothes, he wore his own shoes. With his one hundred thirty-five pounds of pure muscle, his black Indian eyes, and his raven black hair, he really controlled the ground he stood on. His time belonged to me, but his soul was his own. He performed every task ably and carefully. He never worried about the tasks that lay ahead, but concentrated on the one at hand.

He was a good windmill, and he could dig and tamp a rock post hole to perfection. He was not a bronc rider, but he could bring in the sheep. I saw a snorty little old pony throw him off one morning without half trying, and he hit right on his head. One time he rode Raya three days, and she threw him off three times. The third trip to mother earth was somewhat more than a gentle glide, so he came in to the ranch with a helluva limp. It got harder and harder for me to convince the cowboys that Raya was plumb gentle.

Benito was taciturn and moody, but he was so quiet and even outside that I never learned to read his thoughts or moods. He may have had murder in his heart at times, but he kept it buried deep inside. I never had occasion to criticize Benito's efforts.

Our only conversations were one-sided ones. Talking to Benito wasn't very enlightening. He would answer si or no with about three shades of meaning, the third being no meaning at all. I am not sure but what the first two were as bereft of meaning as the third.

At times he would vary his loquacious reply by saying si, no? And that would leave me right back where I started. His answer was for the express purpose to recognize the fact that I was talking, and I already knew that.

He did accept the fact that I was excused for feeling out of sorts with some of the boys who were less intelligent. One time he went with me over to a mill several miles from the house to check a report of a two inch rain. We had received only a shower at the house and this old fellow assured us that the gauge had two inches of water. We noted along the way that the dust was barely settled, and got not better as we were of vital concern to Benito when he dared set a bucket under her.

She didn't kick like a normal cow, but she would kick forward as far as the law and her big belly would allow, and then take a wild back swing and a side swipe that would rout the most valiant soul. One evening one of the barnyard cats darted underneath her in anticipation of a sup of warm milk (five percent butterfat), and she let fly, knocking the bucket forward and upward; on the back swing she deposited Benito in the south-east corner of the shed in a bruised heap. The bucket required some straightening, and Benito required some medication. Again it was the will of God and an impatient cat. We all had to forgive and forget. Benito never expected overtime pay or time off to recover the various injuries.

Benito seemed happiest when he was feeding and tending the stock. When he went into the corral with a bucket of oats under his arm, the horses would crowd around, nickering and nudging him with their noses. He would rebuke them affectionately for acting like the horses they were. He seemed to love all animals and small children. When he was milking a gentle cow, he would allow our young son to squirt milk at the cats, so he could watch them rear up on their hind legs and attempt to capture the elusive stream of warm milk. When he had finished milking, he would pour a generous portion in a pan for the feline camp followers. He believed in sharing the gleanings.

Apparently he believed all of the troubles and sorrows of the world were caused by adult people. The real Benito never came to the surface except when he was dealing with some of God's irresponsible creatures. He loved the dogie lambs that ran in and out of his house each spring, making a mess as they went. They would follow him about the place like a bunch of puppies, bucking and running about him in circles, and butting each other in mock anger. Each lamb would try to push the others away in a jealous effort to claim the place of honor. Only God understood how much pleasure this loyal following afforded him.

I'll bet my leggins and spurs that Benito blamed me for that old cow being so mean about kicking. There might be some truth in that, but her unique way of kicking came only from the demon world.

★ Tax

allowable under the Tax Reform Act of 1986, which also took effect Jan. 1.

Increased personal exemptions and a higher standard deduction will allow a four-member family to make $11,360 this year before paying income tax under the new law. The figure was $7,990 in 1986. A single person may earn $4,440, up from $3,560 in 1986, before paying income taxes.

Some of the major changes brought about for 1987 by the new tax plan include:

- Personal exemption rises from $1,080 to $1,900 in 1987 and $2,000 by 1989.

- Standard deductions for those who do not itemize rise to $2,540 for singles and $3,760 for couples in 1987 and will go up to $3,000 for singles and $5,000 for couples in 1988.

- Only 65 percent of consumer interest incurred in 1987 will be deductible. None will be deductible in 1990. Mortgage interest on two homes generally remains deductible.

- Medical expenses exceeding 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income will be deductible. The former figure was 5 percent.

- Tax benefits from shifting income from parent to child are reduced. By April 15, 1988, every child five and older must have a Social Security number.

- Entertainment and business-related meals' deductions will be reduced to 80 percent.

- Depreciation periods for real estate are lengthened and those for most machinery and other personal property generally are shortened.

- The investment credit was repealed retroactive to Jan. 1, 1986.

- Workers not under a company plan may continue qualifying for a full IRA deduction. Those who are covered by company pensions and whose income exceeds $35,000 ($50,000 for a couple) are not eligible to deduct contributions to an IRA. Singles between $25,000 and $35,000 and couples between $40,000 and $50,000 may take a reduced deduction.

NEW HOURS FOR 1987

The Crockett County Public Library will be open longer to better serve our patrons in 1987. We will be open during the noon hour and stay open until 6 p.m. so those who work can use the library more.

The schedule will be: Monday through Friday open 9-6; Monday and Thursday nights, open until 9.

NEW OUTSIDE BOOK DROP

Our book drop has finally arrived and is being installed on the front porch of the library. This means you can return books any time, day or night without the library having to be open. We hope this will make it easier to return books when you're through with them. Just drop them in any time. The new book drop is bright orange, so you can't miss it on the front porch.

1986 INCOME TAX FORMS

We have received our first shipment of tax forms, and we should get everything in the next couple of weeks. Remember that librarians are not trained tax experts, so don't ask for tax advice. We can provide you with all the basic forms for your income tax return.

Come Check It Out!

JV Ladies downed by Alpine Lady Bucks

By Cople Davis

The Ozona J.V. Lady Lions took on the Alpine Lady Bucks in a non-district holiday contest Jan. 2 and were defeated by a mere two points, 21-19.

"Playing during the holiday break really hurt us," Coach Debbi Porter said. "Even though we lost, the girls gave a solid effort," she added.

Alpine took an early lead in the first period as the Lady Lions could only manage a solitary bucket. Although Alpine wasn't overpowering on offense, they did manage seven points, which was more than enough to gain the lead.

Ozona cut the seven point margin to three as they scored six points in the second period compared to Alpine's four. After the half, the Lady Lions continued to struggle, scoring only two third quarter points. In the meantime, Alpine scored just enough to maintain their lead.

In the fourth period, Alpine tried to stall and run out the clock. The Lady Lions then exploded for nine points, and with less than one minute left on the clock, gained control of the ball for the last shot. The shot missed and Alpine took the game 21-19.

The girls will re-enter district play against Forsan.

Farewell gathering for Fr. Richard

A farewell gathering for Rev. Richard Altenbaugh Jan. 4 saw many of his parishioners present to wish him well in his new parish at Rowena. Tears were hastily brushed aside as Fr. Richard hugged each individual in the parish hall at the end of the two hour gathering.

Robert Flores was master of ceremonies for the event. He spoke of the large heart of Fr. Richard who has been priest at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church for more than three years.

Raymond Borrego represented the Knights of Columbus in presenting Fr. Richard with a plaque. A plaque was also presented from the KayCee Ladies by Janell Tambunga.

Parishioners and friends who called during the 4 until 6 p.m. event were served from a horseshoe-shaped serving table laden with bowls of red punch, cookies and sandwiches. A large cluster of silver and blue balloons hung from the ceiling above the refreshment table.

Four guitarists accompanied choir members who entertained with a variety of songs during the gathering. The afternoon ended with Flores leading everyone in singing Friends while locking arms in a circle.

A New Year's resolution worth thinking about

The following comments from a 1937 edition of the Saint Genevieve Herald of Saint Genevieve, MO are as appropriate 50 years later as they were then. The article was brought to us by Maggie Zimmerman.

The name of the town and the year have been changed to bring the article home to Ozona.

1987 - Let's resolve to make this year worthwhile by contributing to the progress of our community in an unselfish and progressive manner.

Let's be ingenuous in our criticism but warm in our praise for those who, year in and year out, cheerfully pack those civic burdens that we are too lazy to tackle.

Let's get together in fighting the common cause of civic procrastination and take advantage of every opportunity that knocks on Ozona's door.

Let's not be jealous, spiteful and ever ready to condemn a worthwhile project before we look into the matter thoroughly and enumerate its advantages to the community as a whole.

Let's boost those that are deserving; give them a word of encouragement, and, when possible, a helping hand in the accomplishment of a task.

Let's not be individual in thought and deed but collective and charitable in public affairs by pitching the hammer in the rubbish heap and buying a horn.

Let's continue to push Ozona to the front at every opportunity and continue to believe in it as a town that's distinctive, friendly and (offers) a more congenial existence.

Rachel's Reviews

by Rachel O. Hall

Balance your intake of sodium

Elevated blood pressure and an increased risk of heart attack, stroke and kidney disease are reasons that more and more people are seeking to reduce their intake of sodium.

Americans generally consume more than the recommended amount of sodium, from 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams per day, in their diets.

An estimated four out of every 10 are trying to reduce sodium levels, and more would if they knew how. Avoiding the use of salt at the dinner table is not enough, because sodium occurs in a wide variety of forms and in a whole spectrum of foods.

Here are some guidelines for eating a low-sodium diet:

- Unprocessed grains are naturally low in sodium, while ready-to-eat cereals vary widely in sodium content. Labels on these cereals should be read thoroughly.

- Frozen, canned and fresh fruits and fruit juices are low in sodium. Fresh vegetables and frozen vegetables cooked without added salt are lower in sodium than canned vegetables, vegetable juices and frozen vegetables in a sauce.

- Natural cheeses vary widely in sodium content, while milk or yogurt are lower. Process cheese, cheese spreads and cheese foods are higher in sodium than natural cheeses. The sodium content of cottage cheese is lower than process cheese but higher than natural cheeses.

- Most fresh meats, fish and poultry are low in sodium. Canned fish and poultry are higher, and highest are the cured and processed meats such as sausage, luncheon meats and hot dogs, in which sodium is used as a preservative.

- Convenience foods tend to have a high sodium content. Among them are frozen dinners and entrees, canned soups, dehydrated soups, and sauce and salad dressing mixes. Other items high in sodium are soy sauce, catsup, mustard, tartar sauce, chili sauce, pickles and olives.

- Some seasonings contain high amounts of sodium, such as garlic salt and flavor enhancers. As a low-sodium alternative, you can make your own herb and spice mixtures, or buy one of the no-salt commercial products.

Also on the market are low and reduced-sodium products for use as replacements, but they may not be as appealing to the taste buds unless you season them with lemon juice, spices and herbs.

You don't have to eliminate certain foods in your diet to reduce your sodium intake. You can decrease sodium totals by balancing high and low-sodium foods, and/or by choosing more low-sodium foods more often.

Ham for dinner, for example, can be accompanied by fresh or plain frozen vegetables. A high-sodium, fast-food lunch can be balanced with low-sodium foods at the evening meal.

However you do it, reducing sodium levels to or below the recommended levels may also reduce risks to your health.

★ Immigration

committee of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association moving to finance an independent survey of the association membership to determine an average wage now being paid to ranch hands.

The tax and labor committee has agreed to make its own recommendation to the U. S. Department of Labor based on the survey rather than waiting until the Labor Department decides how much ranch hands are to be paid.

According to Bill Sims, association executive secretary, an hourly rate with overtime to be paid after 40 hours' work could never work for sheep and goat ranchers.

The TSGRA, aiming toward a contract agreement provision satisfying both the Labor Department and ranchers, is hoping for an 80 percent membership response to the survey which could influence a Labor Department decision.

A loophole in the previous immigration law allowed an employer to hire illegal aliens without penalty. It was the undocumented alien who was guilty of breaking the law if he held a job.

The revised law closes the loophole by making employers liable for fines ranging from $250 up to $10,000 as well as possible six-month jail terms.

Employer sanctions for the hiring of aliens are scheduled to go into effect June 1.

Presently a six-month "education period" is in effect during which no penalties are being assessed against employers. During the succeeding 12 months, only warnings will be given for first offenses. However, subsequent offenses will draw penalties.

Each illegal hire will subject an employer to a civil fine of $250 to $2,000. Second offenses carry a fine from $2,000 to $5,000 per alien. Later offenses may be fined from $3,000 to $10,000 per alien.

The courts are instructed in the new legislation to give consideration to the size of the business, the good faith of the employer, the seriousness of the violation and other factors.

A "pattern or practice of violations" may subject an employer to criminal penalties including jail terms.

Employers may feel they are in a "damned if you do and damned if you don't" situation as it is already illegal to discriminate on the basis of national origin. A new Justice Department office is being set up to investigate discrimination complaints based on citizenship.

An employer can now be ordered to hire a specific person with back pay as well as to pay a $1,000 civil fine if found guilty of citizenship discrimination.

The concern that employers may refuse to hire people who appear to be foreign or who speak with an accent has prompted hispanic groups to oppose portions of the new immigration law, saying it will cause further discrimination against minorities.

Linda Yanez, a Brownsville immigration attorney, says the new law will not keep people from seeking a better life in the U. S. The law will do little to hold back the thousands of Central Americans who are fleeing their own war-torn region, in her opinion.

"Laws, fences and guns will not make a difference," Yanez said.

Employers must now ask all job applicants, including friends and relatives, for documents to verify that they are either American citizens or aliens authorized to work in the U. S. Failure to ask for the necessary identification may cause an employer to be penalized by a fine of $100 to $1,000 each time.

"The employer must just rely on documentation, not appearances," said Coe, indicating that the documents must reasonably appear to be genuine. Employers do not have to verify the authenticity of documents.

A U. S. passport, certificate of citizenship of naturalization, unexpired foreign passport with work permit or a resident alien card with a photograph are all acceptable documents.

In addition to one of these, the job applicant has to show one document indicating identity such as a driver's license and a Social Security card or U. S. birth certificate. Additional verifications may be needed.

Employers are also charged, under the provisions of the new law, with the responsibility of maintaining some records showing that certain documents have been inspected and the pertinent information recorded.

Opposition from the Texas Farm Bureau and other groups for this mandatory record keeping and pressure for an exemption for small employers from the requirement was unsuccessful.

Suggestions of a uniform national ID card which everyone must display in order to get a job have caused an outcry by critics who say such a requirement may allow a "Big Brother" surveillance of private citizens' activities and transactions.

Nevertheless, the government is presently working on new Social Security cards which may be "counterfeit-proof". These cards may resemble a Visa or MasterCard credit card with laser-beamed, three-dimensional images and a magnetic strip which contains encoded computer data.

A new industry has sprung up along the U. S. - Mexico border offering services to undocumented workers. One of which is an offer to guide workers through amnesty proceedings for a fee while other services are for forgeries of the required employment documents. Just how good the government's new Social Security card will prove to be against the forgers remains to be seen.

Three Texas cities, Corpus Christi, Dallas and El Paso, have been selected to test a new phone verification program which offers protection to employers against sanctions for hiring illegal aliens. Only the 70,000 employers in the three cities will be able to use the pilot program.

Employers will receive confirmation over the phone as to the legitimacy of a job applicant's Social Security card and matches it to the person using it. Written verification will follow the phone call.

This system will be similar to that now used by credit card companies to check out valid cards. It will be in effect only six months, but an amendment to the new law may be offered creating a permanent, widespread telephone verification system if the pilot program is successful.

State Comptroller Bullock said that the federal government will make $220 million in federal impact payments over the next five years to help the state adjust for aliens' use of public services if they become citizens.

Texas Farm Bureau members apparently are not convinced, approving in their 53rd annual convention recently a statewide referendum barring illegal aliens from public assistance and free schooling in Texas.

The economic impact on Texas may take years to measure.
