TV sparks late night house fire

A television set is being blamed for a late night fire that damaged a Clarendon woman's home last Thursday, December 29.

Brenda McConnell said she and her two granddaughters had been to the high school basketball tournament in Canadian when they came home to her residence at 602 E. Barcus and could smell something burning.

"We opened the door, and the smoke just boiled out on us," Mc Connell said. "We got to it right in time though. We called the fire department, and they were there in about five minutes."

Powell said the call came in at 11:49 p.m., and the Clarendon Volunextinguished in about ten minutes. Clarendon firefighters rescued four dogs from the home while battling moderate heat and smoke damage. the fire.

New property tax exemption now available

AUSTIN - Texas continues to do its part to keep helping military veterans and their families. A full homestead property tax exemption that began in 2009 to help totally disabled military veterans will extend to their surviving spouses after January

"This new provision will help families who have been a part of the tremendous sacrifice that veterans have given our country," said Texas Comptroller Susan Combs.

"Texas voters overwhelmingly passed a constitutional amendment that will allow surviving spouses of totally disabled veterans to continue to claim a full homestead exemption and not pay property taxes on their home."

The Donley County Appraisal District reported that as of Tuesday no one had applied for the exemption locally, but a representative did say that district had some inquiries about the exemption late last year.

In 2009, veterans began receiving an exemption for the total appraised value of their residential homesteads if they have received 100 percent disability rating or are considered unemployable by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. Based on information provided by appraisal districts, about 35,300 veterans currently receive that exemption.

The homestead exemption for surviving spouses of veterans who received the exemption begins January 1. Senate Bill 516 allows the total homestead exemption if a surviving spouse does not remarry after a disabled veteran passes away and the property remains the homestead of the surviving spouse.

Surviving spouses would have to apply for the tax exemption through their county appraisal district.

The application form containing property tax exemptions has been updated for residents and appraisal districts to use. It can be found at http://www.window.state.tx.us/taxinfo/taxforms/50-114.pdf.

The paperwork is also available at the Donley County Appraisal District office located at 307 S. Sully Street in Clarendon.

More information can be obtained by calling the appraisal district at 806-874-2744.

Merchants support town year-round

The Clarendon Merchants Association this week presented a ceremonial check for $2,500 to the Donley County Senior Citizens, the funds from a promotion on December 16.

The senior citizens centers in Clarendon and Hedley are in dire need of donations right now. Even though the centers are constantly facing funding challenges, in recent months the federal government has added more burdens with new food preparation guidelines and a requirement that every home delivered meal includes milk - whether the recipient wants milk or not. The Donley County Senior Citizens Center commentary says the new food preparation rules mean it needs about

editor's by roger estlack

$5,000 worth of new equipment, and the milk requirement will cost it about $1,000 per month.

So several Clarendon merchants stepped up in the holiday spirit, put a promotion together within a few days, and quickly raised quite a bit of money. For the photo this week, the merchants had an oversized ceremonial check, but what the center actually received was an envelope full of checks from each of the participating businesses. And that envelope is the real story.

Each of those nine businesses give numerous checks to different organizations throughout the year. And just because a local merchant wasn't involved in this particular promotion, don't think that they don't support the senior citizens or other worthwhile groups in our community. The livestock show, the FFA, the Boy and Girl Scouts, the museum, the child welfare board, and local churches are just some of the beneficiaries of our local businesses. If we collectively added together how much our local merchants give back to our community every year, the total would surely be in the tens of thousands of dollars and probably more.

If you shop at home, that's your money at work for your community. You support them, and the local merchants support everything from our kids' baseball programs to our seniors' Meals On Wheels program. And then they also pay the taxes to support our schools, our city, our county, our ambulance service, and our college. You might get a great deal from a merchant somewhere else, but that big city merchant or online store probably won't pony up when Clarendon High School yearbook asks for an advertisement.

Hundreds of checks supporting dozens of causes, activities, fundraisers, and organizations - that's what shopping at home means. More money spent at our local merchatns means the city will have more money to fix your street, the church will have more money to reach those in need, and the scouts will be able to send more kids to camp.

Shopping at home helps our local merchants, but it also improves the quality of life of our community. Let's all keep that in mind as we make our purchases in 2012.

Meanwhile...

Clarendon lost one of its finest citizens last week. Dr. Charles E. Deyhle, Sr., was a dedicated member of the community and a lifelong supporter of many worthy causes.

If there was ever someone who did not like Dr. Deyhle, I never met them. He was one of those rare people who was considered as a friend by everyone. And, as was mentioned at his funeral, he was known for encouraging people to always do their best.

I have known Dr. Deyhle all my life. I can't remember what he called me prior to 1995; but since I acquired the newspaper, he always greeted me and called me "Friendly Editor." He often praised our efforts at the paper, noting that while he didn't always agree with every position I took, he agreed with most of them. And more than once he would recall these words of wisdom - "Don't sit on the fence. You'll get shot from both sides."

And true enough we didn't always see eye to eye on everything. A couple of years ago, I was discussing an issue of college business with him, and it was clear that the Friendly Editor and the Sage Board Member had different feelings on the matter. But we never raised our voices. He listened to and understood my point of view, I understood his, and we both laughed before our discussion ended.

He always had a way of bringing humor and wisdom to any situation. I was covering a Clarendon Board of Aldermen meeting in 2000 where our city leaders were trying to jack up the rent on hangers at the airport. Dr. Deyhle - along with the late Dr. Richard Gilkey and others - attended the meeting and successfully reminded the city about the importance of the airport. Dr. Deyhle said: "An airport is a necessary part of a viable community. A city without an airport is like a house without a toilet.'

A firm handshake, a kind word, a hand on your shoulder, and a bit of humor - those were the hallmarks of seeing Chuck Deyhle wherever you met him. You couldn't help not only like the man but also respect him. He has left shoes that simply cannot be filled, but perhaps we can all try to learn something from his life. Our community and his memory would be well served if we all tried to be a little more like Chuck Deyhle.

Counting the blessings from 2011

By Dr. Gary Scott Smith

Have you heard any good news lately? Bad news abounds. It's been another tough year. Economic woes continue. Greece and Italy are on the verge of bankruptcy. Unemployment is still high in the United States (around 8.6 percent), and the stock market has taken a beating. With approximately $108 billion in insured catastrophic losses, 2011 is the second costliest year in history for the worldwide insurance industry. Hundreds of thousands have joined the Occupy Movement in cities around the world to call attention to economic ills. Their activities, combined with those of the Tea Party movement and the massive demonstrations in Arab nations, prompted "Time" magazine to name the protestor as its "Person of the Year."

Other problems also plague our world. More people, an estimated 27 million worldwide, are enslaved today than at any time in history. In March, a massive earthquake and tsunami killed almost 16,000 people in Japan. More than 150 tornadoes, leaving 550 people dead, ripped through the United States this year, most notably in Joplin, Missouri and Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Scandals rocked Penn State and Syracuse universities. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention reported this month that one in five American women say that she has been sexually assaulted at some time. Such headlines top newspapers, television news programs, and Internet news sites every day.

Unfortunately, good news is harder to find. Search the Internet, however, and you will find sites such as CNN "Heroes;" "Happy News;" "Real News," which includes "Compelling Stories, Always Positive;" the "Good News Network" which features "News to Enthuse;" "Only Positive News;" "Daily Inspire News," which presents

"the brighter side of news;" and "Positive News." Such sites feature stories of ordinary people who saved the lives of others, good Samaritans who returned money and jewelry they found; individuals who paid other people's water or heating bills, and people who are working to create a healthy, more fulfilling world.

Consider other good news. Stories of individual determination and resilience are plentiful. A British centenarian of Indian ancestry, Fauja Singh, finished the Toronto Marathon in October. Hedda Bolgar, a 102-year-old therapist based in Los Angeles, still counsels clients four days a week and trains other psychologists.

Despite the global economic slump, some economic progress is occurring. A recent United Nations study reports that poverty in Latin America has decreased by 38 percent in the past 20 years. During this same period, microloans have helped create thousands of new businesses, and jobs and have lifted millions out of poverty in the world's developing nations. These loans, which are repaid on time in more than 90 percent of cases, enable money to recirculate throughout poor communities.

Several entrepreneurs are partnering with survivors of the devastating January 2010 earthquake in Haiti to move beyond simply providing food and shelter, as important as this goal remains. They are establishing a culinary school, a music conservatory, and a center to provide loans to socially-conscious businesses. Muhammad Yunus, who led the way in creating microloans for the poor, is helping to fund a vocational and computer-training school in Port-au-Prince.

In the United States, hundreds of community-based organizations and thousands of churches sponsor programs to assist the indigent. For example, since it will donate $11.5 million to several coalitions fighting to end contemporary slavery. This is thought to be the largest-ever corporate grant devoted to advocating for and rescuing exploited against their will. International Justice Mission will partner with Polaris Project, Slavery Footprint, and several smaller organizations to increase awareness in the United States, improve resources for anti-slavery enforcement agencies overseas, rescue victims, and help nations devise and pass anti-slavery legislation.

Such actions, often motivated by religious convictions, are heart-warming and inspiring. The Christmas season, however, reminds us of eyen greater good news. Christianity asserts that God loved people so much that He sent His Son Jesus to be born as a human baby, to teach and show us how to live, and to die on the cross to atone for our sins. Christians believe that accepting Jesus as our Savior and Lord enables individuals to experience the "abundant life" He promised on earth, empowers us to serve others, and ensures us of spending eternity with Him and our loved ones in Heaven.

A remarkable Texas football season

There is a great tradition and folklore surrounding Texas and the game of football. The sport has spurred movies, books, and tales told throughout generations. This year's college football campaign provided recognition for a remarkable young man, a homegrown Texan who provides inspiration to us all: Robert Griffin III, the quarterback for the Baylor University Bears.

Earlier this month, Mr. Griffin - or RG3. as he is known to Baylor fans -- was named the 2011 Heisman Trophy winner. This was Baylor's first-ever Heisman winner. In large part because of RG3's unparalleled accomplishments on the football field, Baylor finished this football season ranked Number 15 nationally with a 9-3 record, including impressive victories over nationally ranked TCU, Oklahoma, and Texas.

While Baylor and Big 12 fans have witnessed Griffin's football prowess, many more American sports fans will have the opportunity to watch him lead the ranked Bears in the Valero Alamo Bowl on December 29, 2011.

But it is not only his football talent that makes Robert such a remarkable young man; he is the model studentathlete.

An honor-roll student at Baylor, he graduated with a degree in Political Science in only three years—with a 3.67 GPA! While he was leading the Bears on the gridiron this year, he was also studying for his Master's Degree in Communications. And he has indicated that he would like to attend law school, as well.

Robert's career at Baylor balances academics and athletics, and should serve as a role model for other aspiring young athletes. The capitol discipline to comment succeed was instilled in ing, rushing, and total offense. He has thrown for an incredible 10,070 yards and 77 touchdowns, while rushing for 2,220 yards and 32 touchdowns. During his extraordinary 2011 Heisman season, Robert passed for almost 4,000 yards and 36 touchdowns, while rushing for 655 yards and seven touchdowns. It's no surprise that he also earned the 2011 Davey O'Brien Award, presented annually to the best NCAA quarterback.

On Saturday, December 10, 2011, Robert Griffin III was overwhelmingly recognized as the best college football player of the year. His Heisman acceptance speech in New York was as gracious as it was eloquent.

Congratulations to Robert Griffin III for an incredible season that enters the history books; to his family, who provided the foundation for his abilities and accomplishments; to his teammates; and to the entire Baylor Nation.

Drugs in the News

Cholesterol Lowering Drugs: Unexpected Benefit Discovered

According to a preliminary study reported recently in the Journal of Infectious Disease, persons who were admitted to the hospital were 40- 41% less likely to die if they had already been taking one of the cholesterol-lowering drugs that we refer to as a statin. The study involved 3,000 selected individuals who were hospitalized during 2007 and 2008. Those conducting the study indicate that one limitation to their finding is that they did not determine whether or not those persons evaluated were already healthier than those not taking a statin drug. According to one news release, this is the first published attempt to evaluate the effect of this class of cholesterollowering drugs on mortality. One study author indicated that persons who receive vaccines such as that for influenza, and antiviral drugs along with statins may have an even better outcome. More research in this area is certain to be conducted.

The statins are among the most widely prescribed of all medicines. They include atorvastatin (Lipitor), simvastatin (Zocor), lovastatin (Mevacor), pravastatin (Pravachol) and rosuvastatin (Crestor).

Weight Loss Competition

A New Year is here and on top of the New Year resolution list for many, again, is weight loss, and we want to help! Last year our weight loss competition at the clinic ended with 474 lbs. of weight loss for 43 people, and we think we can exceed this in 2012.

Thus it begins, January 12, for the first weigh-in of the year. Weigh-ins will then occur at the clinic every Thursday morning from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. for 10 weeks. To participate, you will pay a one time fee of $10, and you keep the rest of the money if you stay on track and don't gain any weight. For those who do gain, they will pay $1 per pound. At the end of the 10 weeks the money collected will be divided among the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place winners for body weight percentage lost in a 50/30/20% fashion.

Encouragement will be offered and handouts will be created at participants' requests. Make it the best year and the best you yet by joining us on January 12, 2012, for our local weight loss competition!

Clarendon Church of Christ FORGET THE PAST

I've been told that Christianity is an easier life to live if we can do one thing. Forget the past! Why is that? I have a couple of reasons I would like to share with you and some scriptures that might help.

(Philippians 3:12-14) "Not that I have already attained, or am already perfected; but I press on, that I may lay hold of that for which Christ Jesus has also laid hold of me. Brethren, I do not count myself to have apprehended; but one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forward to those things which are ahead, I press toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus." If you remember in Philippians 3, Paul shares his background. He warns them against people who would force them into compliance with some practices of the Old Law, especially circumcision. Paul reminds them if ties to the Jewish faith would make it better for them, he should be in great standing. Verses 5-6 he tells them he was circumcised, of the tribe of Benjamin (first king came from this tribe), Hebrew of Hebrews, and a Pharisee. In verse 7, he explains that he gave that up for Christ and in verse 8 counts the old Jewish practices as rubbish.

Now back to our text and the two reasons we forget the past. One reason we give up our past is because we may continue to glory in some accomplishments and it would deter us from our new lives with Christ. Just like sports teams, old trophies don't move us forward. Paul couldn't get by with his accomplishments in his former religion. We can't either.

Another reason we must forget the past is we can't continue to dwell on past failures. Paul, in 1Timothy 1:15 still called himself the "chief of sinners." He, at times, relived his past and dwelt on his persecutions of Christians and how that hurt Jesus. We, if we aren't careful, can dwell on our past sins and mistakes. They are in our past and should remain there, after we've been forgiven of them.

Paul, in our text, tells us that he had to forget those things behind him and reach forward to the future. He pressed towards the goal for a prize that couldn't be taken away from him, as long as he remained faithful.

There is the key! We must look forward and upward. We move forward as we focus on Heavenly things. We forget past accomplishments and failures. Neither help us now except to learn from them as we can't go and

I pray that 2012 is better than the last year for you. I pray that you will focus on the now and future and leave the past in the past. Life is easier this way.
