Amarillo boy dies at Lake Greenbelt

An Amarillo teen drowns at Greenbelt Lake Sunday afternoon, April 22, becoming the 25th person to drown at the lake.

Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn said 15-year-old Samairon San Inthavongsy was reported as possibly drowned at 6:01 p.m., and his body was recovered at 6:56 p.m. by the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department Dive Team. Justice of the Peace Connie Havens pronounced the boy dead at 7:01 p.m. and ordered an autopsy.

Blackburn said Inthavongsy died north of Sandy Beach near an area known as The Bluffs. He said the boy had gone to the lake with his family and that it was known by them that he could not swim.

"He was playing in the water, got in too deep, went under, and never came up," the sheriff said.

Local man charged with molesting boy

A Donley County man is in jail this week on charges of Aggravated Sexual Assault of a Child.

Sheriff Butch Blackburn said Larry Mario Jaramillo, age 37, was arrested last Wednesday, April 18, following an investigation that began two days earlier when a report was received by authorities.

Jaramillo is accused of molesting a 13-year-old boy, the sheriff said. His only prior criminal history is some misdemeanor charges.

Jaramillo was arraigned on the felony charge but Justice of the Peace Connie Havens, and bond was set at $50,000.

May 3 recognized as Day of Prayer

This year's National Day of Prayer is Thursday, May 3. Signs will be erected on the courthouse lawn early Thursday morning and will remain all day as a reminder to pray for our nation, state, county, and city.

Please stop by and pray anytime throughout the day, or wherever is convenient to participate in this nationally recognized corporate prayer day.

Lubbock teen dles near Alanreed

A Lubbock boy lost his life in a fatal two-vehicle accident near Alanreed last Friday.

Texas DPS Trooper Daniel Hawthorne said 15-year-old Donald Waldenmayer was westbound on Interstate 40 on a 1995 Honda motorcycle when he attempted to pass a 2012 Peterbilt tractor trailer rig driven by Tonie Gail Norris, age 53, of Cave City, Ark. The truck drifted into Waldenmayer's lane, forcing him into the center median, and both vehicles came to rest in the center median.

Waldenmayer was pronounced dead at the scene.

City's groundwater topic of public meeting

Almost 50 citizens attended a public meeting to discuss selling groundwater from the City of Clarendon to Greenbelt Water Authority last Tuesday night, April 17, at the Bairfield Activity Center.

City Administrator Lambert Little welcomed those in attendance and introduced Clarendon's representative on the Greenbelt board, Gary Campbell, who gave a brief history of Greenbelt and discussed the problems facing the lake as well as a possible solution.

Campbell told the crowd that Greenbelt Lake has only about six or seven months of water remaining if rain doesn't replenish the reservoir or the area experiences another summer like last year's.

"We've got to do something, and we've got to do it quickly," Campbell said.

Campbell outlined some options for the water authority — water from a gravel pit below the dam, acquiring water rights from the Ogallala Aquifer miles from the reservoir, or buying other water rights. But another option, Campbell said, would be cheaper and easier — re-opening Clarendon's municipal wells and buying water from the city.

"There is water here in abundance if Clarendon will allow Greenbelt access to it for a price," Campbell said, noting that by grandfathering the permits for those wells and using an existing easement for a pipeline back to the filter plant, Greenbelt could be pumping the city's groundwater in a matter of four or five months.

If Clarendon chooses not to sell its water to Greenbelt, the water authority will likely just buy rights from nearby farmers, and pump the same underground pool of water anyway.

"We're giving Clarendon first right of refusal to sell its water," he said.

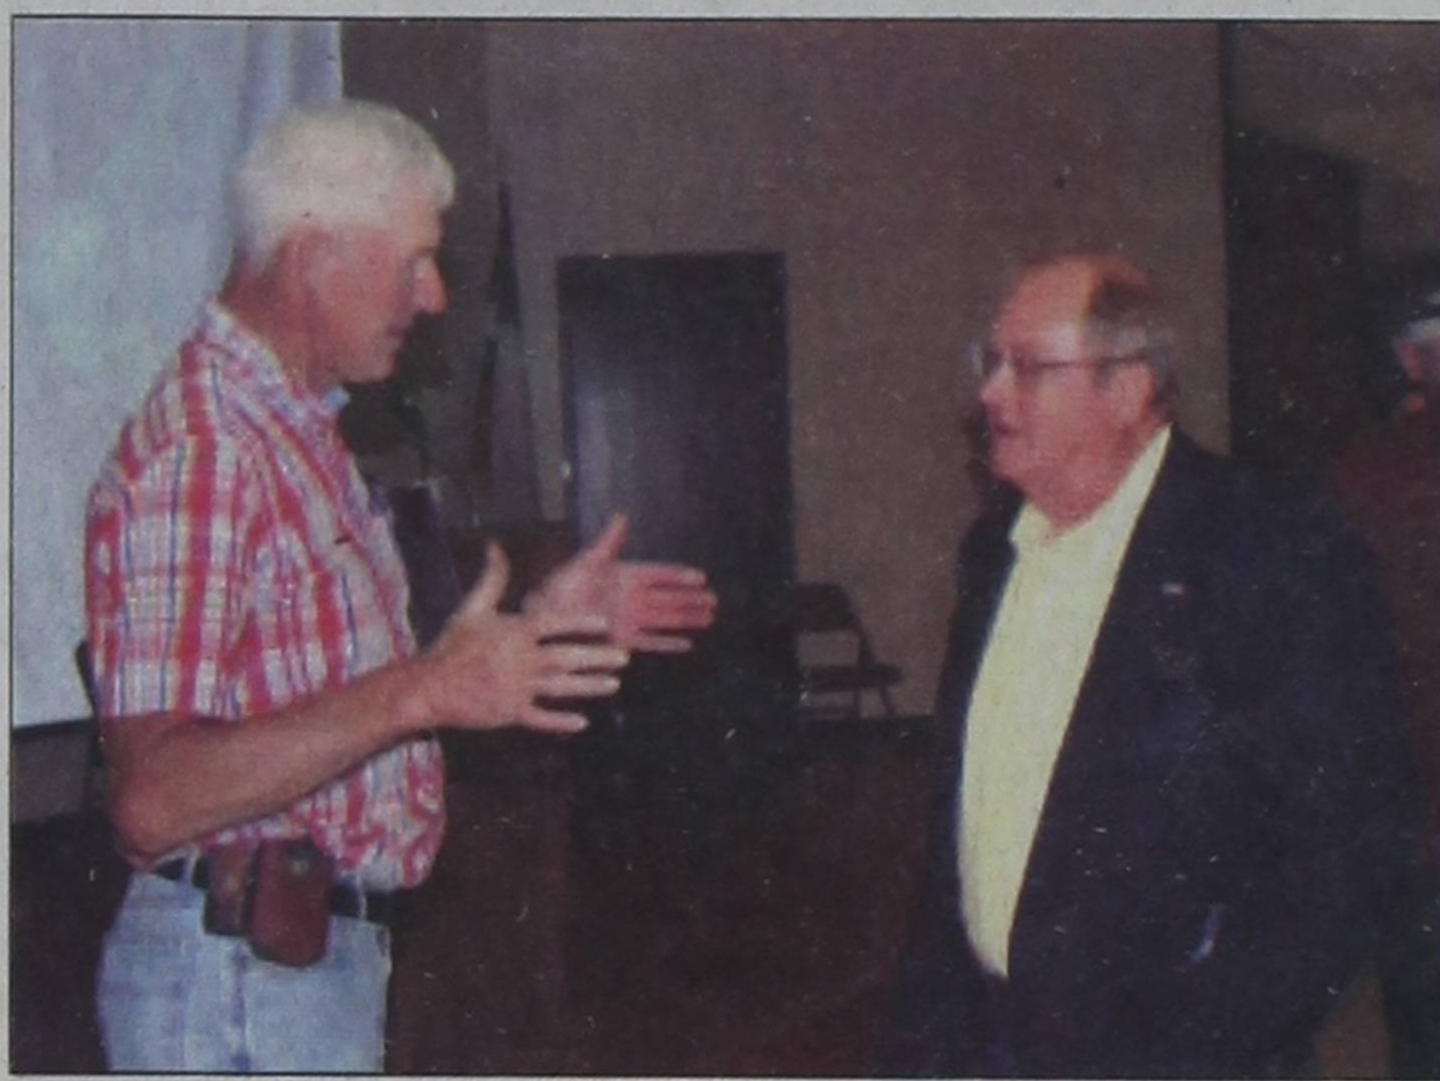

Greenbelt General Manager Bobbie Kidd said the authority has been studying alternative water sources since 2007, and he said alternative solutions are more expensive and would require funding through the state water development board, which doesn't have money currently. The Clarendon option, he said, would be good supplemental water when mixed with surface water from the lake.

Kidd also said other Greenbelt member cities do not have as good or as plentiful a water source as Clarendon does.

In responding to questions from the public, Kidd said the Clarendon Aldermen would set the price for selling water to Greenbelt, and Campbell said using the city's water is only a supplemental solution and that the water authority would continue to explore other longterm groundwater solutions.

Asked about sending the water out of Clarendon or across the state, Greenbelt representatives said the water could only go as far as their

Concert series to be held in City Park

The Clarendon Concert Series and second annual Battle of the Bands will be held in City Park this weekend, and organizers are expecting a big crowd for the three-day event.

Trevor Leeper of Digi-Pro Events says the first Battle of the Bands drew between 200 and 300 people to City Park last year, and he expects a much bigger crowd this time.

Activities will begin Thursday, April 26, with a citywide talent show at 6 p.m. Leeper said ten people are signed up for the talent show, but others can enter just by showing up at 5 p.m. The talent show winner will get a cash prize of $100.

Five bands are lined up for the second Battle of the Bands on Friday, April 27, and will be featuring country, blues, and classic rock music with groups from Amarillo, Clovis, Lubbock, and other area communities. Each band will get to perform for 25 minutes, and fans will judge who wins.

"Last year was our guinea pig," Leeper said, "and we were impressed by the number of people who attended. We've had amazing support this year from businesses and everybody in town."

The Battle of the Bands will begin at 5 p.m., and the winner will get a $500 cash prize.

Saturday's concert series will feature "A Road Less Traveled," a Lubbock band which was named the 2008 Contemporary Christian Music's Number One Independent Artist. Opening for the group will be "No Sugar Added" from Borger, who finished second in last year's Battle, followed by "Product" featuring Clarendon native Jeff Hearn.

Gates open at 1 p.m. on Saturday, and there will be booths and activities each day of the events in the Park.

FSA allocates 400k acres for Wildlife Enhancement

COLLEGE STATION — USDA Texas Farm Service Agency (FSA) Acting Executive Director, James B. Douglass this week announced that FSA has allocated an additional 400,000 acres nationwide to the State Acres for Wildlife Enhancement (SAFE) program that improves habitat for high-priority wildlife species.

"SAFE is a voluntary conservation initiative that provides an opportunity for grassroots conservation partners to develop related projects to address high priority wildlife needs through habitat restoration," said Douglass.

SAFE project area proposals are being accepted for the purpose of improving habitats for the designated wildlife species in new areas as well as possibly expanding current SAFE project areas by requesting additional acreage. SAFE project sponsors must submit all project proposals as soon as possible as the State Technical Committee is scheduled to complete the proposal review process on May 23, 2012.

The Texas FSA State Committee will complete the final review and submit recommended proposals to the National FSA Office for final evaluation no later than June 1, 2012.

Various conservation practices currently offered under the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) are fine-tuned through the SAFE proposal to improve, connect or create higher-quality wildlife habitats by promoting healthier ecosystems in the project areas identified as essential to the effective management of high priority wildlife species.

Douglass added, "Once a project proposal is approved and acreage allocated, the SAFE program is implemented through a continuous CRP signup allowing USDA to accept producer acreage offers year-round."

As with other Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) initiatives, the land and producer must meet certain eligibility requirements. Once approval of the SAFE project is announced, interested landowners can submit offers to voluntarily enroll qualifying acres in a SAFE project/CRP contract for a term of 10 to 15 years. In exchange, SAFE/CRP program participants receive annual rental payments, project incentives and cost-share assistance to establish habitat-enhancing natural covers on eligible land.

According to Douglass, Texas currently has 76,376 acres across the state enrolled in existing SAFE program project areas benefiting targeted wildlife species including the Lesser Prairie Chicken, the Ocelot and the Mottled Duck as well as other wildlife species that are present in the enhanced habitat.

Completed SAFE project proposals can be submitted to the Texas State FSA office via email to Gaye. DeLeon@tx.usda.gov or Micky. Woodard@tx.usda.gov.

For additional SAFE project area details or other questions, please contact your local FSA Office or visit the website at: <http://www.fsa.usda.gov>; click on "Conservation Programs."

Obama looks to Roosevelt in 2012 vote

By Dr. Joseph Postell

The 2012 presidential election is shaping up to be one of the most significant elections in American history. The outcome of major political issues such as Obamacare, carbon regulations, and our looming fiscal calamity hang in the balance.

In a larger sense, however, this year's election sits in the shadow of a presidential election that occurred a century ago: The 1912 presidential election featured many of the same elements—and arguments—we are likely to see in the months leading to November.

In fact, President Obama has already framed the upcoming contest in the same terms as those of the 1912 election. When he traveled to Osawatimie, Kansas to give a major economic address, he intended to stake his claim as the heir to Theodore Roosevelt's "New Nationalism," the platform which would help define the 1912 election as a major turning point that put America on the path towards progressive-liberalism. It was during the 1912 election that Roosevelt led the creation of the Progressive Party, after he was rejected by his (former) Republican Party. That election, more than any other, offers important insights into the contemporary party struggle and the importance of the upcoming election.

Roosevelt gave his "New Nationalism" speech at Osawatimie in 1910 as the first signal that he was running for president in 1910, and that he would be willing to confront his own party for the sake of leading a progressive revolution. When the leaders of the Republican Party, such as Henry Cabot Lodge and Elihu Root, supported incumbent William Howard Taft over Roosevelt, the creation of the Progressive (or "Bull Moose") Party was inevitable.

During the election, Roosevelt primarily argued for radical constitutional reforms, designed to permanently transform our republic into a direct democracy. He not only advocated direct primaries and the direct election of senators, but also supported the recall of the president and popular elections to overturn judicial decisions. (Obama's recent comment that the Court will not take "an unprecedented, extraordinary step of overturning a law that was passed by a strong majority of a democratically-elected congress" is just another example of Obama's significant intellectual debt to Roosevelt.)

As Sidney Milkis has eloquently explained in his recent book "Theodore Roosevelt, the Progressive Party, and the Transformation of American Democracy," Roosevelt's proposals—most of which were enacted shortly after the election—inaugurated "a new form of politics" in America. This new form of politics replaced party-centered elections (in which candidates stood for principles espoused by party leaders) with candidate-centered elections (in which the cult of personality prevented the discussion of real issues).

Roosevelt himself exemplified the power, and the danger, of this new approach to political campaigns. The 1912 Progressive Party convention was more of a spiritual gathering than a political meeting. Roosevelt delivered his "Confession of Faith" to the convention on the second day of its meeting, and ended by claiming that the party needed to "stand at Armageddon" and "battle for the Lord." The audience responded by singing spiritual hymns, including one hymn in which they replaced the name of Jesus with Roosevelt! The religiosity of Roosevelt's 1912 campaign helps explain the peculiar kind of fervor so many of Obama's supporters expressed in 2008 (and likely will express in 2012).

In spite of its quasi-spiritual devotion to Roosevelt, the Progressive Party was hardly bereft of actual policy recommendations. The party's platform in 1912 is nearly a carbon copy of the progressive-liberal play-book over the past 100 years.

In addition to Roosevelt's plan for direct democracy, the platform called for "a more easy and expeditious method of amending the federal Constitution," federal occupational safety standards, the minimum wage, "strong national regulation of inter-state corporations," "the policy of conservation" (including public control of all national resources), the ratification of the 16th Amendment giving the federal government the power to levy an income tax, and "a single national health service." In short, most of what progressive-liberalism has sought to achieve over the past 100 years was laid out by Roosevelt and his allies in the Progressive Party in 1912.

As Obama deliberately positions himself as the intellectual heir to Theodore Roosevelt, Americans would be wise to examine the transformative election whose centennial anniversary occurs this year. Despite all of the promises of "change" we heard four years ago, the truth is that very little about contemporary progressivism is novel. Barack Obama's appeal today was foreshadowed a century ago by Roosevelt. In a profound sense, we are living in the world passed down to us by those 1912 progressives.

A Mormon president with one First Lady

Now that Mitt Romney is the presumptive Republican candidate for President of the United States of America, perhaps it's time to clear up a little misinformation about Mormons, a peculiar people indeed. Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — the preferred name of the Church, affectionately refer to themselves as a peculiar people.

Folks in Salt Lake City, as well as the mission field (everywhere outside of Utah) are either really excited or really bummed about Mitt's successful primary campaign. Mormons, hereafter referred to as Latter-day Saints, or LDS, consider his candidacy to be an answer to prayers, for a righteous leader of this righteous land. Non-Mormons, on the other hand will probably look somewhat askance upon the possibility of having a Latter-day Saint president.

Surprisingly for many, Mitt is not the first Mormon to run for President of the United States of America. Joseph Smith, Jr., the founder of this uniquely American religion, ran as an independent in 1844. His candidacy actually began to take form in 1839, when President Martin Van Buren turned down the Prophet's entreaties for protection from the mobs in Missouri, who were ravaging the Saints. Van Buren told Smith that if he helped the Mormons, he would lose the Missouri vote in his campaign for re-election.

As one would expect, Joseph Smith, Jr.'s candidacy did not go well. Perhaps the fact that he had won the sweet, young daughters, and more than a few wives, of the locals dampened their enthusiasm for a president who had multiple wives, some of whom who were married to two or more men. His penchant for taking multiple wives, some of whom who were very young, may have also led to his murder, putting a rather abrupt end to his candidacy.

Of course, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints repudiated, under extreme duress, the doctrine of multiple marriages back in the 1890s. Since then, the Church has become a bastion of conservative cultural values. Unfortunately, the Church's acceptance by the rest of America has not been complete. Uneasiness, if not outright mistrust, with the claims of the LDS Church continues to prevent acceptance by the mainline Christian denominations.

This is unfortunate because the LDS people may be the most industrious, intelligent, and virtuous group of people in the country. Due to their past unpleasant encounters with mobs and other anti-Mormon activities, Mormons have had to become a very independent group of people.

Very few Mormons are recipients of public welfare and assistance programs. The LDS Church has perhaps the best private welfare system in the world. The Church not only provides for its own members who are temporarily down on their luck, it provides enormous amount of emergency aid to victims of calamities worldwide. The Church's welfare system is so effective that many governments, including the United States, use it as a model their public welfare systems.

While vast theological differences divide the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the rest of Christendom, there are many cultural similarities between Latter-day Saints and social conservatives. These similarities include attitudes towards gay marriage, illegal immigration, tax policy, economic policies, and the need for a strong military.

While Mitt may not be as conservative as he claims to be, he is a successful, pragmatic executive, who appears to have a much better grasp of economic theory than President Obama. Romney reflects his church's strong social conservative values, integrity, and deep patriotism. The tea party folks who don't know him will probably come to embrace him. Actually, a strong root of the tea party movement originated with the social conservatives of Utah.

So, non-Mormons need not worry about Mitt's Mormon roots. The LDS people may be the most conservative political group in the land.

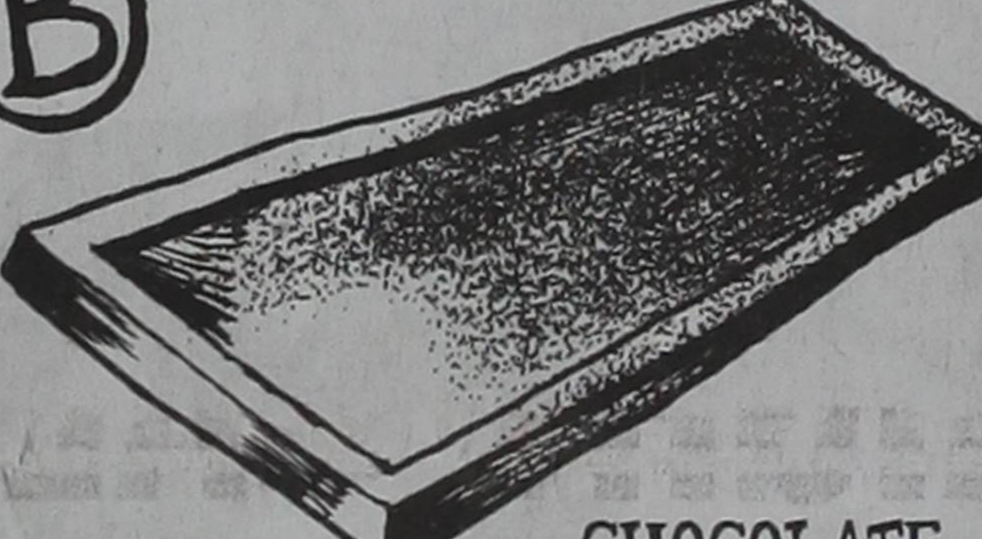

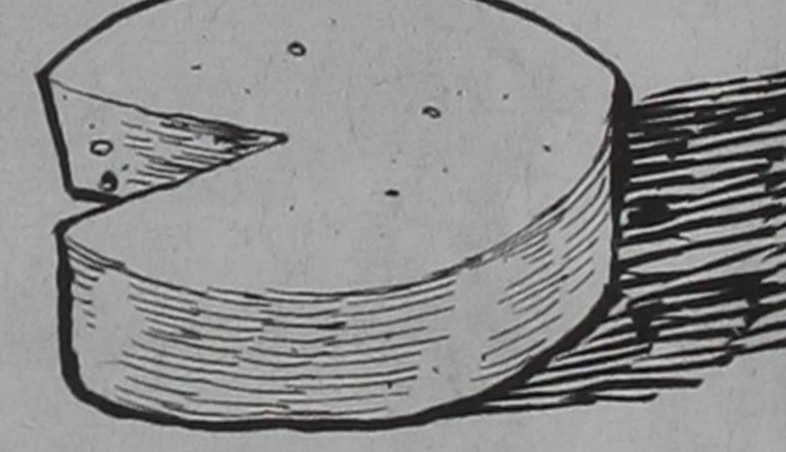

Of course, I was a Mormon for 18 years, and may be a less than completely objective in my deep admiration for the LDS people. Moreover, if he happens to win the presidency, we'll have only one first lady.

Support selling water to Greenbelt

I want to say to those of you who are worried about the water being pumped out from under our town, "Don't be." The reserves and the recharge rate are so vast that "running out" of water will not be an issue for decades to come.

Price will become more the issue as time marches forward. And right now, Clarendon has an extremely favorable opportunity to help not only its people but also all the other Greenbelt members and cities to maintain an affordable water rate and help curtail the water stage restrictions that are still in place from last summer.

Anyone who is not on board with this project, I urge you to get on board, step up, and say, "What can I do to help?"

As a person who has made water my business for 32 years, I say, and let's all say, "Let's Roll!" Let's get this project going as soon as possible.

Speak up for Ten Commandments

As citizens of Donley County, we have an important issue to discuss with everyone that lives here in this county and in this great country. We believe it is time to stand with our founding fathers and very boldly proclaim that we are proud of our Judeo-Christian heritage. These are the beliefs that have shaped and directed our country's justice system and morals. It is with respect for these principles that we are proposing an historical monument on our courthouse lawn that portrays these fundamental truths. This is a part of our country's history that everyone seems to have forgotten.

Why do we even have to debate whether the Ten Commandments should be displayed at our courthouse? They are displayed at our US Supreme Court, at our State Capitol building, and at least eight other courthouse lawns in the Texas Panhandle as well (and growing). It is time we remind folks that our foundation was based on Christian principles as a Christian nation and God only knows the sequela of forgetting this.

But to inform you, this monument is not a Ten Commandments monument. We are not worshipping the Ten Commandments. It is an historical monument as to remind us of our roots. This is not a washing machine sized rock; it is a statement by the people of this county to stand firm on what is right! This monument will have a display of the Ten Commandments and quotations from our founding fathers of this country as well as some information of our county seat's heritage as "Saints' Roost." Yes, it could be placed on the church-house lawn, and should already be, but this is a county historical monument. This monument will be funded by private donations.

It's time to stand. We feel the same as Commissioner Wheatly as he has been quoted as saying, "tired of the trail that the country is on." Please call your commissioner with your support. They are waiting for the people's response. Mark White, 874-2632; Andy Wheatly, 856-5930; Dan Sawyer, 874-2768; and Donnie Hall, 874-3803.

Show support for our school's youth

I am the School Nurse at Clarendon ISD. I would like to make a plea to every parent, grandparent, aunt, uncle, youth leader, and anybody else who has a deep concern for the futures of our children to attend the nationally acclaimed presentation entitled "Achieve Success" brought to us by Aim For Success, Inc., of Dallas.

This will be the fourth time we have brought Aim For Success into the school. Each time they have presented excellent programs. "Achieve Success" is the only program we have not had until now. It is so very important for our children to know that the choices they make at this point in their lives can affect their futures as well as the futures of you as family members.

I have been very disheartened and discouraged when I have expected our auditorium to be packed with loved ones of our 240 students eager to know how and what they can do to help ensure our children have the very best chance of following their dreams and achieving success in all they do and have looked at only a handful of parents (15 at the last parent program).

I want to challenge you to come to this very powerful program on May 1 at 5:30 p.m. We as adults have a huge responsibility to our children! Our young people are confronted with choices each day that could either ensure that they are able to reach their goals and dreams or take those goals and dreams away from them. I'm pleading with each of you... please take a stand.

Clarendon ISD Board cancel May election

The Clarendon ISD Board of Trustees met in regular session April 19 with a full agenda.

After the meeting was called to order and the consent agenda was approved, the board members proceeded to the elementary building to view an Instructional Technology Demonstration with Amy Kidd, Jamie Jeffers, Leslie White, Jayne Starnes, and various elementary students.

Among other items of business, the trustees reviewed a certification by Mary White that the candidates for school board election are unopposed was presented by Mr. Hysinger, and the board canceled its May election and declared Wayne Hardin, Wes Hatley, and Richard Gribble as elected.

The board accepted bids on delinquent tax property in Howardwick and Clarendon as presented.

Trustees voted in favor of a resolution to suspend the district's policies on the End of Course Testing 15% provision for the 2011-2012 school year.

A motion was approved to increase the school breakfast and lunch prices for the 2012-2013 school years by 10 cents as required by the Texas Department of Agriculture and Federal Free and Reduced Lunch Guidelines.

The board accepted the proposal by Texas Kids First for the 2012-2013 Student Accident Insurance and Zurich American Insurance Company for Catastrophic Coverage.

A report was given to the board by Superintendent Monty Hysinger on the possible facility repair and improvement projects for this summer.

The board acknowledged the resignation of Heather Downer.

The board approved a motion to approve Amendment No. 1 to that certain $1,111,032.91 amended and restated lease with an option to purchase relating to the Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District 2008 school projects between the Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District as lessee ("lessee") and the Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District Public Facility Corporation as lessor ("lessor") and that resolution authorizing the issuance of $1,111,032.91 Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District Public Facility Corporation lease revenue refunding bond series 2010 ("bond resolution") to amend bond r-1 by lowering the interest rate and all documents relating thereto.

to focus on conservation – such as rainwater harvesting. The city using the water for its own consumption was discussed, but officials said the city is bound to Greenbelt through 2026 and doesn't have the resources to develop its own wells and treatment facilities and hire the people needed to run such a system.

Mayor Larry Hicks said the city should sell Greenbelt its groundwater in order to help neighboring cities and also to bring the city some needed revenue, which would be put back into the infrastructure for its water system.

Addressing concerns about selling water downstate, groundwater board member Jason Green said he sells his own groundwater downstate every day... in the form of hay, and he urged people to stick together so people all down the line can have good water.

Early balloting starts Monday on city bonds

Early voting in the City of Clarendon begins Monday, April 30, on the question of issuing $700,000 in bonds for street improvements. Balloting will continue through May 8 at the Donley County Courthouse Annex. THE ENTERPRISE will print a map of the proposed streets next week. Election day is May 12

Beware of fake of popular apps and roof repair fraud

Before downloading the popular Android apps "Angry Birds Space" and "Instagram," make sure you have the right version. These games are the latest victims of malware.

What do the scams look like? Scammers added fake editions of "Angry Birds Space" and "Instagram" to unofficial Android app stores. When downloaded to your smartphone, these Trojan apps work by installing malicious codes that will infect the device. It's not easy to spot the infected versions because they look and play just like the real "Angry Birds Space" and "Instagram." Tips to avoid the Scam:

- Before downloading Android applications, make sure to read the user reviews.
- Download the real "Angry Birds Space" and "Instagram" through Google Play, the official Google Android app store.
- Avoid Contractor Disaster

Hail season is upon us. We have been lucky for the last few years. Hail storms will come again and we need to be prepared for the problems that also come with roofing contractors. The following advice will help us:

Get more than one bid. It's a good idea to get two or three bids, and compare materials, service, and guarantee, not just price.

Know the company you're dealing with. Ask for – and check out – customer references. Check out any business with the BBB at <http://txpanhandle.bbb.org>. A BBB Business Review on a business lists basic information as well as the BBB rating, which ranges from A+ to F.

The BBB rating is based on 16 elements, including whether there have been customer complaints and if so, whether complaints are resolved. In addition, businesses that meet BBB accreditation standards are shown as BBB Accredited Business.

Be alert for unreliable contractors who may pour in after the storm. Some contractors who follow storms may charge high prices for shoddy work, or leave jobs unfinished.

Look for these red flags: Be cautious of contractors who solicit business door to door with vague information; have no local physical address or phone; or use scare tactics ("That chimney's about to fall") or high pressure ("This price is good today only").

Read and understand the contract and guarantee. The contract should include a written description of the work to be done, and the price of labor and materials. If the company makes any verbal promises (such as "We'll take away the cut tree limbs"), make sure they are in writing. The guarantee should describe what's covered by the guarantee, for how long, and what the company will do to honor the guarantee.

bob's whittlin'
by bob watson

Ensure the company is insured. Ask for proof of liability and worker's compensation insurance. To protect yourself even further, ask to be listed on the policy as an additional insured.

An owner of a locally accredited roofing company says that he routinely does this for his customers. Companies that balk at such a request don't need your business.

Avoid companies who say you won't have to pay your deductible. Doing so, constitutes insurance fraud. Not only is it illegal, but we often see that companies who engage in this practice are also the ones that get the most complaints and are most likely to suddenly go out of business — meaning that your warranty could become worthless.

Put down as little money as possible. The less you can put down, the better. We've seen some repair contractors take upfront deposits and disappear.

It's ideal to pay in stages, but do so until some work has been completed to your satisfaction.

Don't sign a completion agreement until all the work is done to your satisfaction. Don't fall for high pressure or promises to return and take care of final details. It may be difficult to get the company to return once the job is paid for and signed off.

Try BBB's "Request a Quote" service. Ask for bids on the service you need from BBB Accredited Businesses. Start at www.bbbsouthtexas.org. In the section "BBB For Consumers", click on "Request a Quote from BBB Accredited Businesses."

Clarendon High school to hold 'Aim for Success' abstinence program

Aim for Success, Inc., will be presenting their nationally acclaimed "Achieve Success" program to the students and parents of Clarendon Public Schools next week.

The parents' program will be held Tuesday, May 1, in the Clarendon High School Auditorium at 5:30 p.m., and the students' program will be Wednesday, May 2, for grades 6-12.

The Aim for Success motivational programs have educated more than two million teens, parents, and educators across America during the past 18 years on topics such as sex, drugs, and alcohol.

"Achieve Success" briefly outlines the problems of teen pregnancies and STDs, and then it addresses the issues of how to successfully live the abstinent lifestyle.

This includes controlling sexual excitement, defining true love, understanding emotional scars, and dealing with peer pressure, the media, and pornography. Students will learn that avoiding sexual activity until marriage provides freedom from pregnancies and STDs, which gives them the freedom to fulfill their dreams and goals.

The parent program is a preview of the student presentation where parents will learn creative ways to easily talk with their children about sex, and encourage them to avoid sexual activity until marriage.

"This is a must see event for anyone concerned about the problems associated with teen sexual activity," said Marilyn Morris, President of Aim for Success.

Community guests are welcome to attend.

Reporting Child Abuse

Apart from the anger, dread, and anxiety the reporter of abuse/neglect experiences, there is usually a lot of confusion about what to do or where to report the suspected abuse/neglect. There are a number of steps one can take that may make this unsavory experience a little less daunting.

TAKING THE FIRST STEP
Deciding whether or not to report suspected child abuse can be a difficult and confusing process, yet it is the important first step toward protecting a child who might be in danger. Professionals who work with children are required by law to report suspected neglect and abuse.

CALL 1-800-252-5400 TO REPORT SUSPECTED ABUSE/NEGLECT.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER I MAKE THE DECISION TO REPORT SUSPECTED CHILD ABUSE?
Several events take place after the initial complaint is filed. First of all, depending on where you live, you might report suspected abuse and/or neglect to your local child protective agency. The person responding to the call may ask you several questions about what you are reporting. This is done to ensure that enough information is available for the investigative team to be able to make decisions concerning whether or not abuse/neglect has occurred. You might be asked to give names of the family and child, your reasons for suspecting abuse, the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of other witnesses, your relationship to the alleged victim, any other previous suspicious injury to the child, or for your name address and telephone number.

WHO INVESTIGATES COMPLAINTS OF CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT?
The state or county agency that provides protective services has the legal authority granted by law or charter which gives them an obligation to provide services when needed. This also grants them the right to explore, study and evaluate the facts. Child welfare workers then base their decision on whether or not to remove a child from the family on two issues: 1. What is the immediate danger or risk to the child? 2. What is the motivation, capacity and intent of the alleged perpetrator?

WHAT HAPPENS TO THE CHILD AND FAMILY?
With the enactment of Public Law 96-272, it is legally mandated that child welfare workers make all "reasonable efforts" to reunite the family whenever possible. If, after a thorough investigation, it is determined that the child is in need of substitute care, then the child is placed in temporary foster care until the immediate danger has passed and services can be provided for the child and family. Sometimes criminal child abuse charges have to be filed depending on the nature and severity of the abuse/neglect.

WILL I BE ABLE TO FIND OUT WHAT HAPPENS TO THE CHILD?
Persons who have reported suspected child maltreatment should be allowed to know whether or not their suspicions were founded and what steps the investigation agency took to protect the child. However, there is a great deal of confusion over whether or not information from the child welfare cases should be shared. Legally, there is no impediment to providing general feedback to the child abuse/neglect reporter. The most difficult confidentially issue is to resolve concerns of the reporting individual's right to know versus the family's right to privacy. The child welfare agency may give feedback that indicates that the reporter was right in making a referral and the agency will be working with the family.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I REPORT AND THE CASE IS UNSUBSTANTIATED?
All states have laws that protect the reporter of suspected abuse or neglect from legal liability as long as the report was made in "good faith" and not maliciously. If you are unsure of what the legal and societal definitions of abuse and neglect are in your community, contact your local child protective service office for information.

This information is provided to you by the Donley County Child Welfare Board. Visit www.preventchildabusetexas.org for more information.

Clarendon Church of Christ
"Sometimes Church Folks Are Like Shoes"

Some church members are like slippers. One minute they are there, and the next they have "slipped" out to go to some other event. Maybe there is a big game on t.v. or a local event.

Some are sneakers. They are very close to the slippers, but a little more skillful in their exits. They sneak out the side door during a prayer or in between classes. Sometimes they partake in the communion and "sneak" out when they think no one is looking.

Then you have the "heels." They are the "high and mighty" group. They believe they are just a little bit better than the rest of the other members. Their noses are so far in the air that they would drown if a good rain came.

Of course you have the "flip-flops." They change their mind on any issue. Anytime there is controversy, they will want to be on the side of the majority, no matter who is right or wrong. I have a friend who calls these folks "Klingons." They "cling on" to whichever side seems strongest or more popular.

Last, but the best of course are the members you would describe as "work boots." They are faithful, maybe not fancy. They make mistakes but are quick to fix them. When a need presents itself, the "boots" are ready to go and fulfill the need. No project is beneath them and they never say no when asked for help.

God's people need to strive to be the "work boots" as this is the example that Christ set. He took on the toughest task and stayed with it to the very end. Most of the time, He was not popular. He made many angry. Yet He loved harder, worked harder, and cared more than any other person.

The question is: What kind of worker are you? May we all strive to be the work boots of Christianity. The Lord doesn't need the others.

Drugs in the News

Osteoporosis Drugs and Endometrial Cancer

A study conducted by the Henry Ford Health System in association with the National Cancer Institute (NCI) recently reported that medications used to treat osteoporosis (low bone density) may have the added benefit of protecting against endometrial cancer. Women in the study taking bisphosphonate medications such as Fosamax, Boniva, and Actonel had half the rate of endometrial cancer than those who were not taking them. Additionally, those who got cancer while on these medications, tended to get less aggressive cancer. The bisphosphonate type drugs are the most common medications prescribed for osteoporosis. More studies are needed to evaluate the extent of protection offered by this class of medications on endometrial cancer.

Endometrial cancer is the most commonly diagnosed gynecologic cancer, a type of uterine cancer that affects almost 50,000 women each year in the United States. It is typically diagnosed in women in their 60's, but it can occur before the age of 40. There are currently no medications available for the prevention of this type of cancer.

CHS students receive student achievement award from the ACT

Four Clarendon High School students have received the "Texas Student Achievement Award" from the Texas ACT Council for their performance on the PLAN (the Pre-ACT) Assessment.

These students are on target to meet or exceed ACT's College Readiness Benchmarks by graduation. ACT's College Readiness Benchmarks are empirically-based and identify the level of achievement necessary in English, mathematics, reading and science to have a successful college freshman experience.

The students receiving this recognition from the Texas ACT Council are: Austin Lowry, Sarah Luttrell, Dillon Nickell, and Darbe Woodard.

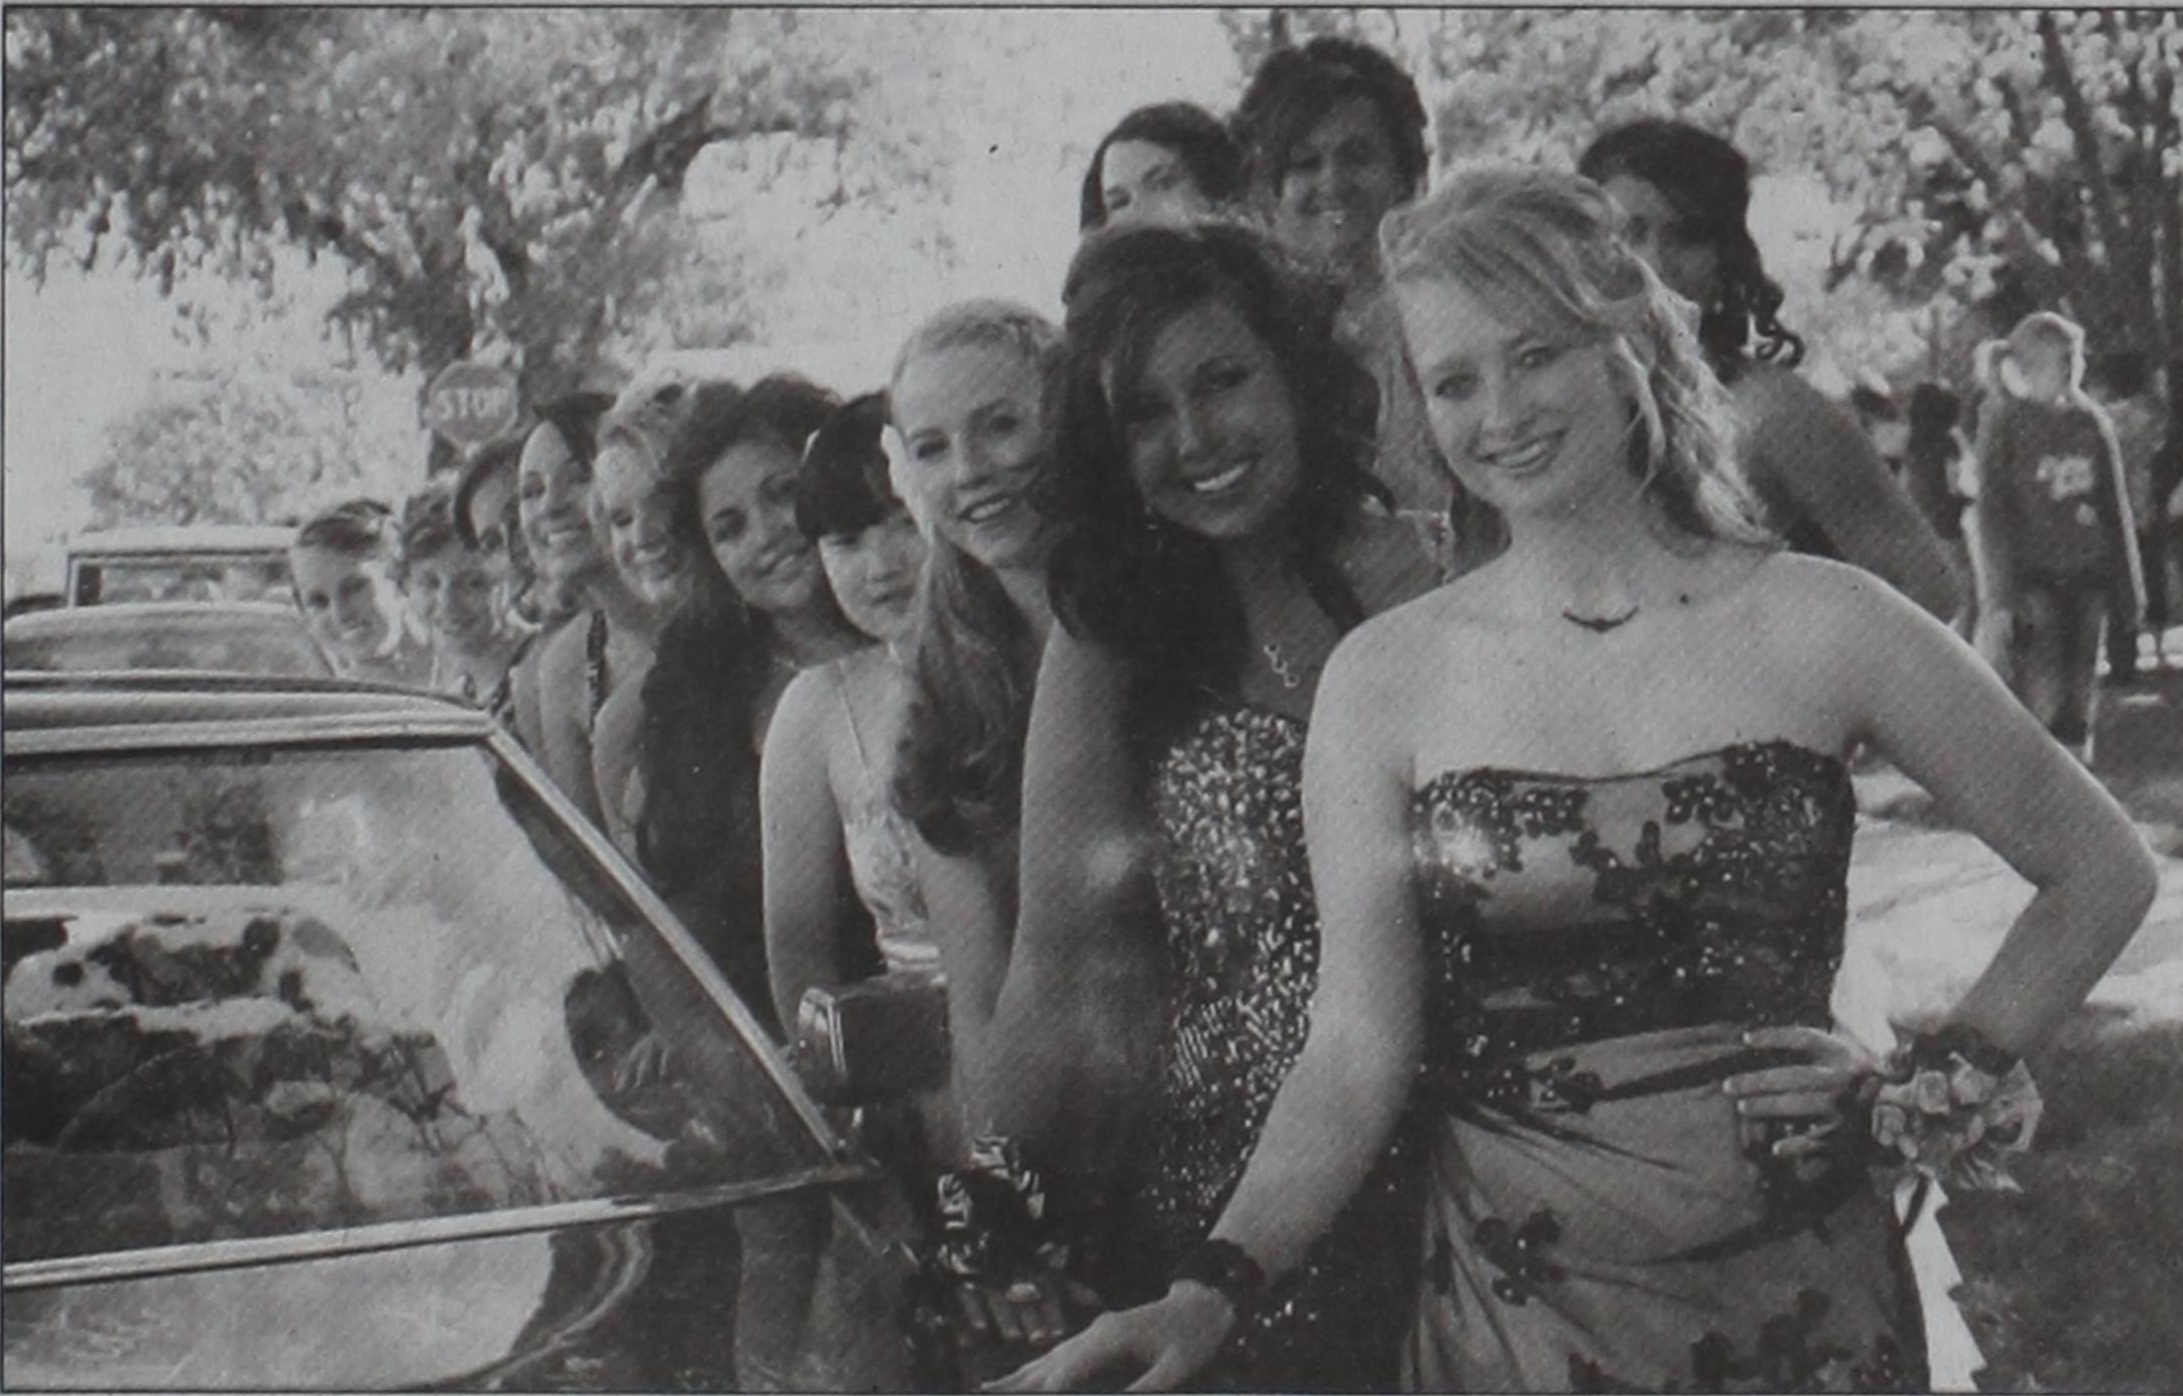

The Texas ACT Council is made up of secondary and postsecondary educators who advise ACT, Inc. on the utilization of ACT programs and services in Texas schools and colleges. ACT, Inc. is the not-for-profit organization that provides assessment, research, information and program management services in the broad areas of education and workforce development and the publish of the ACT Assessment. The ACT assessment is the college admissions test that is accepted by all colleges nationwide.

According to Karen Pennell, ACT Assistant Vice President and Southwest Regional Manager, "The Texas ACT Council recognizes those students who are making significant strides to prepare themselves for college by taking rigorous courses and meeting the student PLAN (Pre-ACT) College Readiness Benchmarks. We also want to recognize that student PLAN (pre-ACT) achievement is the result of a strong commitment by Clarendon High School teachers, staff, administrators and parents to increase college readiness for all students."

Congratulations!

The Clarendon Junior High Colt Band competed at the UIL Concert & Sightreading Contest at Canyon High School on April 18. The Band received a Superior rating on their stage performance and an Excellent rating on the sightreading portion. The band was one rating away from a Sweepstakes Award. This is the closest they have come to this award since 2003

Clarendon Students Build Balsa Towers

Trajen Johnson won the "Strong Tower" contest recently at Clarendon High School by building a balsa wood tower that held nearly 3000 times its own weight before collapsing. Johnson's tower weighed just over half an ounce but held up 109.5 pounds of weight. Anna Cenicerros and Maritta Brady came in second in the contest by building a tower that held over 2700 times its own weight with Cody Wood and Jentry Shadle placing third. Their tower held over 2300 times its weight. Each six weeks in Physics students have a project that allows them to work hands on and have some fun in competition. This year's towers were some of the best ever built by students. Congratulations to the winners.

Broncos get big win at home

By Sandy Anderberg

Coach Brad Elam thought the shut out over Quannah was one of the biggest baseball wins ever accomplished in Clarendon with a 3-0 final.

The Broncos took control of the game defensively with Adam Topper on the mound and capitalized on Indian errors to score the runs needed. The win put the Broncos even at 4-4 in the District race and 7-8 overall.

"We were the underdogs going into the game but felt we could beat them," Elam said. "(We) thought they would take us lightly."

The Indians did take the Broncos lightly as they could not convert at the plate.

"Adam did a fantastic job of shutting them down the entire game," Elam said. "He threw strikes which is what we needed."

Elam also praised the defense for making great plays and getting stops.

"Our defense had their best game of the year making play after play," Elam said. "Trevor Cobb and Caleb Mitchell anchored the infield while Gage Nelson made a good play in center. Chance McAnear threw out a runner attempting to advance to second."

Despite not hitting the ball well, the Broncos managed to get the ball where it needed to go. "We were able to put the ball in play and they made some errors," Elam said. "Dusty Rice, Jerami Johnson, and Cole Ward scored the three runs."

The Broncos also got by Vernion Northside at 6-3 to up their record. It was not one of the Broncos' best wins, but according to Elam it was enough.

"We escaped with a win," Elam said. "It was a trap game for us coming off a big win, and we were able to do just enough to get by. Mitchell and McAnear pitched and did a good job of throwing strikes."

Defensively, the Broncos committed some errors in the field that hurt them and allowed Northside a couple of runs.

"Offensively, we didn't hit the ball well," Elam said. "McAnear had a great day at the plate going three for four and scoring two runs and Mitchell had two doubles. Cody Wood reached base three times."

The Broncos will play Memphis at home Friday, April 27, at 4:30 p.m. and continue to prepare for post-season play.

CC baseball splits two with NMJC

By Fred Gray

The Bulldogs split four games with New Mexico Junior College, in Hobbs, on April 20 and 21.

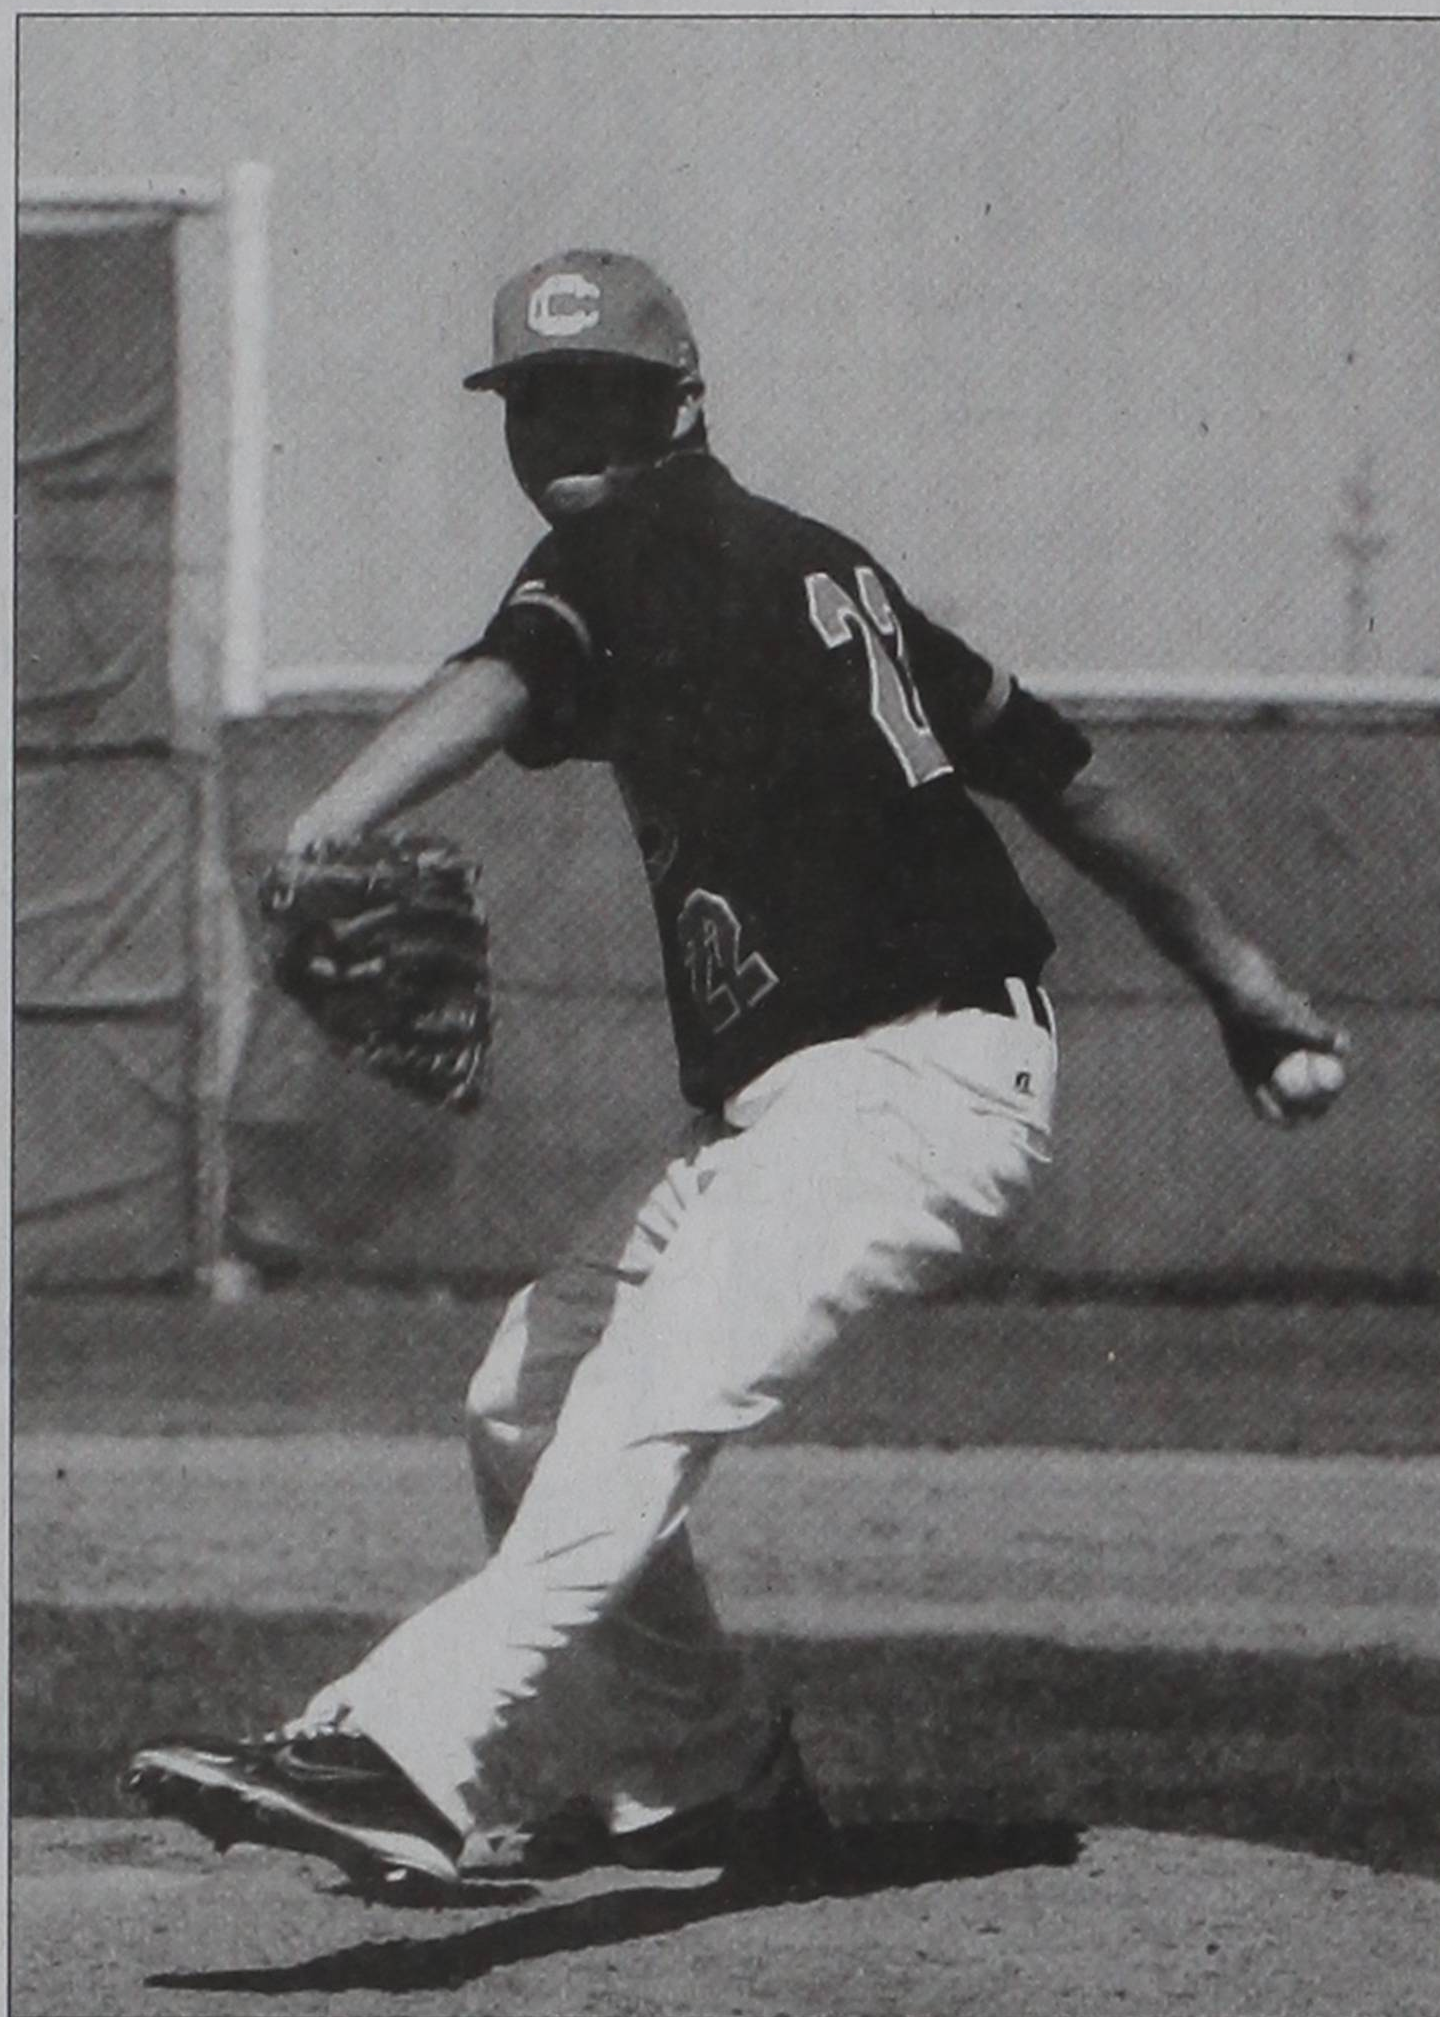

After dropping the first game to NMJC 3-0, the Bulldogs - behind the stellar pitching of Jacob Gosselin-Deschesnes, the Canadian fireballer, roared back to win the second game 6-0. Gosselin took the mound pitched a sparkling complete game shutout.

Once again, after losing the third game of the stand, the Bulldogs showed their grit by scoring three runs in the top of the ninth inning and won in last game of the series 12-10, behind their powerful bats.

The Bulldogs rank third in the nation in team batting, sporting a healthy .358 batting average.

CC closes out their regular season next weekend with four games against Odessa College, next Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5. Game time on both days is noon. Odessa College has a good team, and the games should provide good baseball and great entertainment.

Come out for some excellent baseball and support Clarendon College and our collegiate student athletes.

Lady Broncos hit snag, remain focused

By Sandy Anderberg
The Lady Broncos could not outlast West Texas High and took a one-run loss at 9-10 on the road last week. Trevela Dronzek was on the mound and Audrey Shelton was behind the plate. They played McLean following that game and earned a 15-3 win. They are currently 13-3 overall and 7-2 in District play.

opponent to gain the upper hand. "We had chances to win both games," Jack said. "But we didn't play consistent and committed too many errors."

Despite the loss, the 13-3 Lady Broncos are in the hunt for a district championship.

"We are making adjustments and still battling," Jack said. "We have some good stuff going on and we have a chance to win District outright."

The ladies will have played their last regular season game by press time and will know how their post-season schedule will set up by the end of the week.

The ladies found themselves behind 6-0 in the fifth inning in both games and had to play catch up. They were able to take a 9-7 lead over WT in the seventh, but made a couple of mistakes according to head coach Gary Jack and allowed their
