Sheriff investigates report of vandalism

Vandalism to a Clarendon residence on Carhart Street continues to be investigated by the Donley County Sheriff's Office this week after it was first discovered last Monday, October 1.

Sheriff Butch Blackburn said the residents of the home called his office about 7:30 that morning to report a derogatory and threatening message was on their porch. The sheriff said the message appeared to have been hand painted.

Blackburn said his office has not received any other reports of similar vandalism, which is being investigated as a hate crime due to the sexual orientation of the victims.

"There have been no other reports of anything along these lines in several years," Blackburn said.

The sheriff also said that his office is investigating harassing and threatening phone calls made to the Clarendon Church of Christ and The Clarendon Enterprise after an Amarillo television report linked the vandalism to an ad that appeared in the newspaper on September 20.

"There is nothing whatsoever to indicate the vandalism was connected to the ad," Blackburn said.

Anyone with information about the vandalism is asked to call the Donley County Sheriff's Office.

Bronco fans to have bonfire this week

Clarendon Bronco fans are reminded that a bonfire will be held this Thursday, October 11, at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenbelt Peanut Plant. The Broncos will also have a Pep Rally this Friday at 3:15 in the Bronco Gym.

The Broncos will take on West Texas High School this Friday at 7:00 p.m. in Bronco Stadium.

Phase One Mulkey work to begin this week

Renovations to the exterior of the Mulkey Theatre will begin this week after the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation approved a $128,000 contract last Thursday, October 4.

The CEDC Board reviewed a base bid with five alternative suggestions presented by Pioneer General Contractors before settling on the major scope of work and incorporating three of the alternate scopes.

"I am thrilled to see the official start of Phase One," said Clarendon's Director of Tourism & Economic Development Chandra Eggemeyer. "With the completion of the exterior renovation in a few weeks, the Mulkey Theatre will once again light up Kearney Street."

The Phase One project will remove stucco from the soffit of the marquee, reinforce wood framing, and then raise the entire marquee to allow proper drainage. Tile on the front of the theatre will be repaired or replaced, and a new double insulated storefront window will be installed in the former Mulkey barbershop, which has been renovated for use as a Visitor's Center and office for the Director of Tourism and Economic Development.

Badly weathered doors on the theatre will be replaced with wooden doors designed and stained to match the originals. The Visitor's Center, however, will be given a new metal and glass storefront door to allow for more light and a more inviting appearance.

Corrugated panels on the theatre façade will be cleaned and painted, and stucco on the façade will be resurfaced.

Phase One will also restore neon lighting on the underside of the marquee and add new neon in port-hole windows on the façade, along the outline of the corrugated inset, and along the top of the building. Architect Mason Rogers also said up lighting may be added to the marquee to light the front of the building.

A new electrical service will also be installed in the theatre to support Phase One renovations and will have sufficient capacity to support Phase Two renovations, which call for restoring the building as a movie theatre and for use as a conference and visitor's center.

"This worthwhile effort will kick start the beginning of a larger downtown revitalization effort for Clarendon," Eggemeyer said. "Projects such as these encourage a sense of community as citizens and visitors alike start to gather in the downtown area again, just as they did years ago."

"The Mulkey is a treasure, and I look forward to the day when the completely renovated property is unveiled for everyone to enjoy again."

Phase One renovations are being paid for by funds that have been set aside over several years by the CEDC, which is funded by a half-cent sales tax inside the city.

The CEDC continues to accept private donations as it looks to Phase Two, which is expected to cost about $900,000, and grant opportunities are being actively pursued to fund those renovations.

"The public's support is greatly appreciated as we continue to raise funds for our matching portion required of grant programs," Eggemeyer said.

To follow the renovations online, visit www.facebook.com/mulkeytheatre.

Light it up

AEP / Southwestern Electric Power Company representatives Tony Barley (left) and Steve Teichelman (right) presented a $2,000 check to Clarendon Director of Tourism & Economic Development Chandra Eggemeyer to assist with continuing efforts to "Bring Back the Mulkey Theatre." AEP/SWEPCO previously gave $1,000 to the project last year, and the Clarendon Economic Development Board appreciates the electric company's generous support of the project. Phase One - Exterior Renovations on the theatre begin this week.

USDA announces 2011 assistance sign-up

Donley County USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) Acting Executive Director Renee Shields today announced that producers can enroll in the Supplemental Revenue Assistance Payments (SURE) program for 2011 crop year losses beginning Oct. 22, 2012. Under the 2008 Farm Bill, SURE authorizes assistance to farmers and ranchers who suffered crop losses caused by natural disasters occurring through Sept. 30, 2011.

"Eligible producers who experienced a 2011 crop loss can contact the Donley County FSA office to learn more about the SURE program," said Shields. "All eligible farmers and ranchers must sign up for 2011 SURE benefits before the June 7, 2013 deadline," she said.

To qualify for a SURE payment, the producer's operation must be located in a county that was declared a disaster for 2011 and have at least a 10 percent production loss that affects one crop of economic significance. Producers with agricultural operations located outside a disaster county are eligible for SURE benefits if they had a production loss greater or equal to 50 percent of the normal production on the farm.

In Texas, 213 counties received a primary Secretarial Disaster Designation and 41 counties received a contiguous Secretarial Disaster Designation during 2011. This means that all 254 counties in Texas can apply for SURE benefits as long as all other eligibility requirements are met.

To meet program eligibility requirements, producers must have obtained a policy or plan of insurance for all insurable crops through the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and obtained Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) coverage on non-insurable crops, if available, from FSA. Eligible farmers and ranchers who meet the definition of a socially disadvantaged, limited resource or beginning farmer or rancher do not have to meet this requirement. Forage crops intended for grazing are not eligible for SURE benefits.

For more information on program eligibility requirements contact the Donley County FSA office at 806-874-3561 or visit the website at <http://www.fsa.usda.gov/sure>.

First peanuts

Greenbelt Peanut Company reported received the first batch of Donley County peanuts for the 2012 season last Friday. Chancy Cruse was the producer who brought in the first truck load of Virginia peanuts. Regina Herndon said the crop this year is looking pretty good but said prices depend on when a producer contracted their peanuts.

WARNING: The following column is an editorial (i.e. an opinion, a point of view) and may contain ideas with which some readers may freely disagree. It could be harmful to liberals, socialists, and other small mammals. Read at your own risk.

Standing up for all our freedoms

Newspapers play a vital role in communities across America, and to raise awareness about the service our industry plays. October 8-12 is dedicated as National Newspaper Week. It is a time when papers across this great nation will remind their readers about what newspapers do and about the rights that we enjoy and help to protect.

For any free society, two things are vitally important – free speech and a free press. While those are two separate freedoms, they go hand in hand, and one really can't exist without the other. If there is no freedom of speech (or expression), then it really doesn't matter if you can publish freely. And likewise, if there is no way to disseminate ideas (i.e. via the press), then free speech is pretty much limited to what you can say while standing on a soapbox on the sidewalk.

Newspapers understand the value of the freedom they enjoy, and by and large newspaper men and women use that freedom to not only make a living but also to keep an eye on government and generally make sure that We the People are as informed as we possibly can be.

There are other members of "the media," namely radio and television stations, which also enjoy many of the rights and responsibilities of "the press," but there is a major difference. Those outlets are regulated to some degree by the federal government. Since they use the public airwaves, they are compelled to follow the guidelines of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), which can sometimes act as a bit of a leash on their freedom.

Newspapers by comparison have pretty much unrestricted freedom to publish as they see fit. Ultimately, the decision to run or not run an article, a photo, or an ad, in our case, comes down to one person – your humble editor. In broad strokes, many community newspapers – whether they realize it or not – follow the rule set down by the longtime editor of the Perryton Herald, Harold Hudson. That rule is simply this: "If I want it run when I want to run it and edited as I see fit, it's news. If you want to run it the way you want to and when you want to, then it's an ad and you pay for it."

The Clarendon Enterprise does its level best to keep its eye on local governments and report the news to you as accurately and fairly as possible. Sometimes we fall short, but it's not for lack of trying. We try very hard to keep bias out of our news reporting (although we admittedly show some favoritism to the Broncos, the Owls, and the Bulldogs). When this newspaper has an opinion, it's expressed right here with my name on it and on the page labeled "Opinion." Other opinions expressed by Fred Gray or other guest columnists are those of the authors and may – or may not – be shared by this newspaper.

We welcome Letters to the Editor as a mean to further public debate, but again those thoughts are those of the authors, and they must conform to a few guidelines that we set down regarding length and identification and may be subject to editing for style, grammar, and length. Sometimes we choose not to run a letter for various reasons. That's my prerogative since I own the paper.

If people especially want a forum for their thoughts and we don't feel it fits our criteria for a letter, we sometimes allow them to buy an ad to express their view. Again, their viewpoint is their own; they have a right to it; and if someone doesn't like it, they can send us a letter.

I think I can count on one hand the number of times that we have just outright refused to print something for someone. Usually, we try to err on the side of letting people express their opinions.

Not everyone agrees with this philosophy. To some people, viewpoints that are not politically correct should be squashed and banished. They never want anyone to be offended, and to those ends they attempt to intimidate or stifle anyone who disagrees with them.

It's easy to defend free speech and free expression when you agree with someone. It's easy to say someone has the right to put crosses and "the end is near" signs up and down our highway. But how ready would people be to support Islamic verses posted along the same highway. Would our community support statues of Buddha around our town?

Defending free speech means you have to stand up for rights of even those who express views you hate. The pornographer and the flag burner have as much right to free speech as the preacher and the poet, and defending the rights of all those people is not always an easy thing. If we are not all free, then none of us is free.

As newspapers, we have a duty to protect the rights of free speech and a free press. It is not always easy or popular, but it is essential if Liberty is to endure. And if you don't like it, you are welcome to pen a well thought out letter, sign your name and address to it, and mail it to us: But don't hide in the darkness behind the anonymity of the Internet or the telephone. Stand up in public for what you believe. We do.

'Think Pink' during month of October

October is "National Breast Cancer Awareness Month." According to its web site, "It is a collaboration of national public service organizations, professional medical associations, and government agencies working together to promote breast cancer awareness, share information on the disease, and provide greater access to services."

According to NBCAM, since its creation more than 25 years ago, "it has been at the forefront of promoting awareness of breast cancer issues and has evolved along with the national dialogue on breast cancer. NBCAM is dedicated to educating and empowering women to take charge of their own breast health."

We need to do all we can to help support this crucial national campaign. Many years ago, breast cancer took my former sister-in-law at a very young age. Cindy was in her early twenties when she was diagnosed with breast cancer. Her cancer was very aggressive, ravaged her mind and body, and caused her to endure a very painful death.

Cindy left two small children and a devastated husband. Her mother was also a victim of breast cancer. Cindy's mother, Jeannine, underwent a successful radical mastectomy, along with aggressive treatment, and was able to survive well into her eighties. I don't know why Cindy's treatments didn't work, and it breaks my heart because she was one of the sweetest and most loving persons I've ever known.

Breast cancer takes far too many of our mothers, wives, daughters, and sisters. The women of our lives are the driving force behind the progress that civilization has made throughout the ages. We ought to do all we can to help them fight this terrible scourge. In spite of all they've done to advance and improve civilization over the millennia, we've not treated them very well.

I find it absurd that women, who are easily the most important factor in the successful propagation of the human species, are the ones who have suffered the most, based solely upon their gender. For the most part, all societies, religions, and ethnic groups have tried mightily to keep women down, and have only reluctantly given them voice.

Yet, when women have had the opportunity to lead, they have done remarkably well. Indira Gandhi of India, Golda Meir of Israel, and "Iron Margaret" Thatcher of Great Britain, have all been excellent leaders.

Even so, the Catholic Church continues to prevent women from serving in the priesthood. To me, this is more a cultural bias than a biblical bias. Ditto with some protestant churches, who continue to prevent women from holding high office. Islam continues to mistreat women. The Mormon Church still does not allow women to hold the priesthood, or other high offices in the church.

In America, it took women 144 years of continuous effort to win the right to vote. This is outrageous because I think women are as smart as or smarter than men. Today, more than 65% of college students are women, and over 70% of high school students who make the honor roll are female.

The point I'm trying to make is that we need to do all we can to encourage our mothers, daughters, sisters, and wives to get the proper medical tests done early in order live long and healthy lives. Early detection and treatment may have saved Cindy's life.

We, as a society, and as men, have not always treated the women in our lives fairly and respectfully. We can make up for some of that past disregard by encouraging them to do all they can to enhance their health and welfare. Our women are much too precious to needlessly lose to ill health and early death from breast cancer – from all cancer.

It is primarily women who make this world a much nicer place to live. Even so, throughout history, women's thoughts and opinions have been mostly ignored, disregarded, and ridiculed.

Over the centuries they have been war booty, pawns, abused, and trafficked in for illicit and horrific purposes. Yet, through personal persuasion – mostly through their spouses or significant others – they have managed to keep civilization moving forward, sometimes making slow progress, but progress just the same.

They are resilient, persistent, and have served as beacons of wisdom and stability in tumultuous, insane times – most of the tumult and insanity being caused by men, of course.

Women give life, nurture life, and comfort the grieving when life ends. They add love to a hateful world.

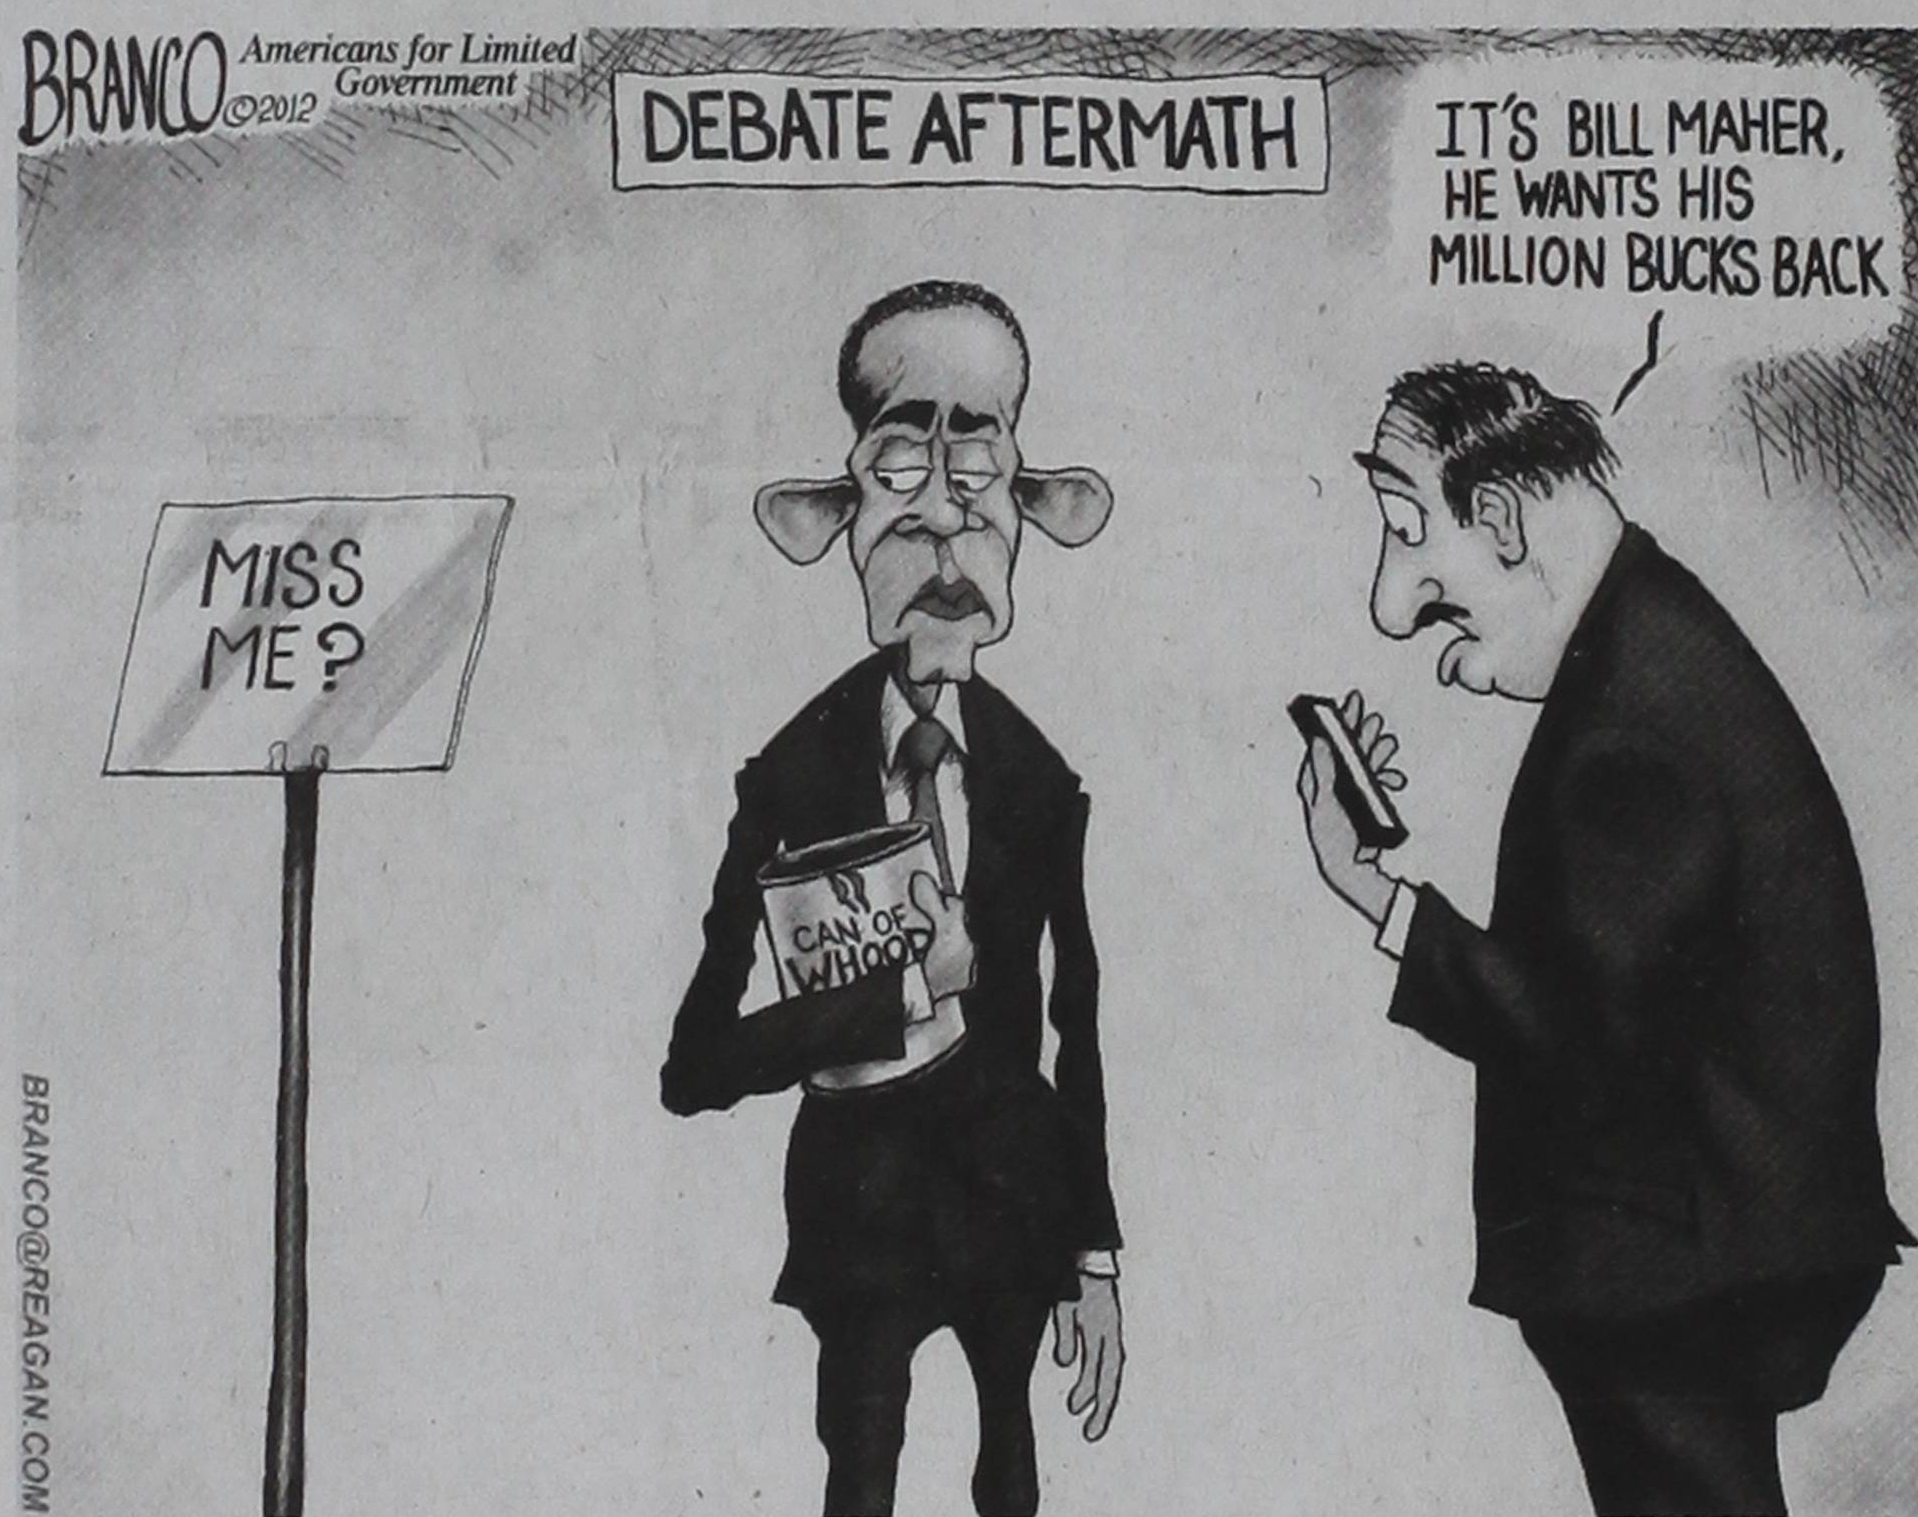

I love women, and shudder to think where we would be without their steady influence on society and civilization. They are sources of wonder, gentleness, and goodness to life, and are a shining example of a magnificent love. They are precious and priceless.

I just wish I could stay married to 'em.

So, let's think pink this month. Actually, let's all think pink all year long, and pledge to take better care of our women now and forevermore.

We should hold Fed accountable

By Dr. Craig Columbus

Many hard questions have been raised in response to the Federal Reserve's decision to embark on open-ended bond buying or quantitative easing ("QE"). Can we afford it? Will it create jobs? Will the decision undermine the Fed's long-term credibility? Few have asked, though, is the Fed's latest move ethical?

Short-term economic gratification is rarely a hard sell. Stock prices have soared in response to repeated Fed intervention. Money printing has also enabled Washington to avoid making hard choices. As a result, there has been little effort on the part of either political party to hold the Fed accountable.

The Fed's bloated balance sheet has swelled to nearly $3 trillion dollars in just four years, growing by 184 percent since the Lehman bankruptcy, according to The Wall Street Journal. That expansion represents roughly 20 percent of the current U.S. GDP.

Now Mr. Bernanke is back with a pledge of unlimited purchases of residential mortgage backed securities. With the press of a button, unelected Federal Reserve officials can credit banks with more funds and thereby expand the money supply. The move subsidizes large banks (who can "write up" their mortgage backed portfolios) and government-sponsored enterprise (GSEs) like Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

The Keynesian-dominated Fed sincerely believes that more QE will lower mortgage rates, further drive up asset prices, make cash appear increasingly unattractive, cause higher-end consumers to feel richer and thus spend more or purchase real estate—ultimately leading to additional demand and more hiring. If home prices rise even marginally, banks will have fewer impaired assets and can ramp up lending.

Others contend QE damages confidence by implying that the American economy is on life support and tells home buyers and business owners that there is no need to act today when rates will remain low for as far as the eye can see. Furthermore, a majority of homeowners have already refinanced their houses following previous Fed actions. Reasonable people can differ about the best approach for fighting deflationary forces.

It is the Fed's current messaging of unlimited QE, however, that raises ethical concerns. Since the onset of the financial crisis, authorities have behaved as if they do not believe the American people can handle the truth about the state of the financial system and its institutions. By promoting a softer, painless narrative, little public support has developed for deficit reduction and entitlement reform.

But if unlimited QE is worth doing, it is worth defending openly and honestly. The Fed should start by leveling with the American people about the risks of QE to things they consume, particularly in light of stagnant wages. Let's hope this time Mr. Bernanke will "own" $4 a gallon gasoline. If it comes to pass, he should forcefully make his case for why the benefits to the economy outweigh the pain.

Although oil prices have fallen in recent days, crude typically slides in the months following the summer driving season, and the impact of Fed policy on the real economy is slow-acting. If high gas prices ultimately derail the recovery, Mr. Bernanke should also make it clear that the U.S. budget deficit will require much more immediate action when tax receipts fall.

In addition, an honest defense of QE should describe the techniques being employed to manage Washington's massive debts. They include a tactic known as financial repression, which forces interest rates to levels below the rate of price inflation. By eroding the value of government debt held by bondholders and savers, politicians can dodge having to convince the public to accept unpopular austerity measures. It does mean, though, that the American people must accept "too big to fail" financial institutions in lieu of hard choices. To maintain unfettered access to the debt markets, the government must backstop primary dealers at all costs.

Some will undoubtedly say that it is naive to expect the Fed to acknowledge limitations or risks to its unconventional policies. But the financial crisis taught us that unconstrained borrowing and behavior create both costs and unintended consequences. Restoring trust to the financial system requires all participants, including the economic guardians, to engage in full disclosure. Financial markets, politicians, and the American people have all become increasingly dependent on Fed stimulus. However, while dependency is opportunistically captured, trust must be perpetually earned. In this regard, trust, like Mr. Bernanke's QE, is open-ended.

CC preparing for upcoming NIRA Rodeo

It's almost time to rodeo!! We are gearing up for the CC Stampede NIRA Rodeo coming to town in just two weeks - October 25-27. Tickets are on sale now at The Clarendon Enterprise and Cornell's Country Store for $5 in advance or will be available at the gate each night for $8. Performances will begin each night at 7 p.m. The short round, when the top 10 in each event compete, will be at 7 p.m. on Saturday night. We are expecting more than 400 contestants from 16 colleges and universities to be on campus competing in events including bull riding, barrel racing, bareback riding, and more. For more information, call the college at 806-874-3571.

Our teams have been busy at games and meets both on the road and at home.

The Livestock Judging Team was at the State Fair of Texas this past weekend in Dallas and the sophomore team brought home a 3rd place finish out of 8 teams. The freshman team placed 6th out of 11 teams and Abbi Boggess from Deer Lodge, Mont., tied for high individual in freshman sheep out of 94 total contestants.

Levi Brozek is sitting in third place in the Southwest NIRA standings in Bull Riding. He placed 2nd at Portales two weeks ago, and the team is headed to Vernon College to compete this weekend.

We congratulate our Lady Bulldog Volleyball team, who hosted Midland College last Wednesday, for winning the matchup in a hard fought 5 sets. It was an incredible win for the Lady Bulldogs who, for the first time in the history of the program, beat Midland. Midland was undefeated in conference play coming into the match and started out with a two-game lead, but CC rallied to win three straight sets and take the conference match 22-25, 21-25, 25-23, 25-22, 15-8 on Lady Bulldog home turf.

The Lady Bulldogs will take on Frank Phillips on Wednesday, October 10, at 7 p.m. in Bulldog Gym. We are having a contest for the Loudest Fan during the matchup, so come out, wear green, and make some noise for the Lady Bulldogs.

The volleyball team is also hosting a fundraiser for their match on October 24! All proceeds will go to the Side-Out Foundation, a non-profit organization which helps breast cancer research. Any donations will be greatly appreciated! Also, if you know of any businesses that would like to donate items for a giveaway please let Coach Holli Reyna know at 806-874-4835. Go to the following link to donate: http://www.side-out.org/application/ous/fundraising_page/45872

The Bulldog basketball team will host the Clarendon College Jam-boree this Saturday, at 10:00 a.m. in the Dawg House. The team is also getting ready for an alumni game to be held on Saturday, October 20.

Bulldog baseball will host Garden City CC on Sunday at noon at Bulldog Field. On Friday, October 19, Vernon College will be here for a game at noon followed by Frank Phillips College here on Saturday, October 20, for a game also at noon.

In addition to athletics, we have several opportunities for continuing education and academic coursework coming up.

Our concealed handgun course was a success this summer, so we are offering it again this month. The class will meet on Saturday, October 20 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Courson RFO Center in Clarendon. Cost of the course is $75 for new applicants and $50 for renewals. Contact Christy Brooks at 806-665-8801 for more information.

A Certified Nurse Aid (CNA) course will start October 20 at the Clarendon College Pampa Center. For more information on that course please contact Christy Brooks at 806-665-8801.

The Fall Mid-Term Session will start Monday, October 15. Courses in history and physical education are being offered. Send an e-mail to registration@clarendoncollege.edu to find out how to get started today or give us a call at 806-874-3571.

Our Fall Mini Session is also up and students are starting to register. These courses start Monday, December 17, and run through Wednesday, January 9. Courses in biology, government, history, mathematics, physical education and speech are being offered. Again, if you are interested send an e-mail to registration@clarendoncollege.edu to get started or call us at 806-874-3571 and we'd be happy to help you register.

Your Income Tax Payment Didn't Fail: It's a Scam

Pay your taxes online this year? Scammers are hoping to grab the attention of the many Americans who filed electronically. Watch your inbox for this latest round of phishing scams that poses as a IRS email.

How the Scam Works: You receive an email saying your federal tax bank transfer failed. It appears to come from the Internal Revenue Service, but look closely at the "From" line, and you will see another email address. The email gives a fake account number and urges you to check out the attached file, supposedly a Word Document explaining the details of the failed transfer. But of course, the file is really a virus.

Your income tax transfer didn't fail. It's just a scam.

The scammers behind this con are even craftier than usually. Some consumers have reported receiving a follow up email with the subject line "SECOND NOTICE: Your IRS federal tax bank transfer is cancelled." I Think I've Found a Scam. What Should I Do? As always, don't click any attachments or links. If you did download the file, be sure to run a virus scan on your computer.

If you receive the above message or any suspicious email posing as the IRS, forward the message to phishing@irs.gov. For More Information: Check out the IRS website for examples of common phishing scams using the IRS name and tips for dealing with them. To find scams in your area, check BBB's scam directory.

'End-of-life' decisions subject of Oct. 16 seminar

PANHANDLE - No one likes to think about the end of their life, but everyone should, according to Andy Crocker of Amarillo, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service specialist in health and wellness for older adults.

Crocker will be the guest speaker at an hour-long seminar, Final Days: Final Decisions, to begin at 7 p.m. at the War Memorial Building, 500 Main, Panhandle, according to Jeanene Montgomery, AgriLife Extension family and consumer sciences agent for Carson County.

"The State of Texas makes it very easy for citizens to plan for decisions they may have to make at the end of their life, even if they are unable to make those decisions for themselves," Crocker said.

Crocker will discuss the various forms that allow a family member or trusted friend to act on a person's behalf, exercising their wishes if they are unable to do so.

He said some examples would be:

- Advanced Directive to Physician, Family and Surrogates (informally known as a living will): allows you to designate your wishes if you have a chronic or terminal illness.
- Out-of-Hospital Do Not Resuscitate: a traditional do-not-resuscitate order only works when you're a patient in a hospital and is an order your doctor writes. For those wishing to die at home, the out-of-hospital version is a good option.

- Medical Power of Attorney: designates someone as your health agent to act on your behalf and in accordance with your wishes.
- Designation of Guardian in Advance of Need: allows you to specify who you do and don't want the court to consider for your guardian if the need arises.
- Organ Donation: people of any age can donate organs as long as they are healthy. From skin to bones to lungs and eyes ... they're all needed.

Preregistration is required by Oct. 12.

For more information or to pre-register, contact Kelly Mitchell at the AgriLife Extension office for Carson County at 806-537-3882.

Newt Scott, Jr., son of Newt and Linda Scott of Hedley, won his first triathlon in the 30-35 age group in Kerrville on September 30.

Feathers Fly – Eagles beat Owls

By Fred Gray

Last Friday night the Plainview Christian Eagles traveled to Hedley and beat the Hedley Owls in a battle of the birds, 40 – 38. The game, played in a brisk north wind, offered everything that is good about six-man football. The only thing lacking was a Hedley victory.

The Owls jumped out to a 24 to 0 lead with 5:56 left in the first half, then allowed Plainview to score two late 2nd half touchdowns to get back into the game. At half-time Hedley led 24-16.

In the second half, Plainview scored another two touchdowns to take a 28 to 24 lead with 4:50 left in the 3rd quarter. After allowing the Eagles to score 28 unanswered points, the Owls closed out the scoring in the 3rd quarter with a touchdown, for a 30 – 28 lead at the end of three quarters.

In the final quarter, the Eagles scored two touchdowns to Hedley's one, and won the game in a squeaker, 40 to 38. In the final minutes of the game, Hedley drove the ball to the Eagles 19 yard line, but an incomplete pass on fourth down turned the ball over to Plainview, who kneeled down to run out the clock.

The game was played by two evenly matched teams, both of whom exhibited good sportsmanship in a hard-fought, hard-hitting game.

Colton Kingston rushed for 185 yards on 22 carries, and added 69 passing yards, with three completions on seven attempts. Kingston scored two rushing touchdowns, one passing touchdown, and a receiving touchdown.

Brandon Evans rushed for 30 yards on six carries, and added nine receiving yards with one catch.

Bryan Evans ran for seven yards and caught three passes for 26 receiving yards. Bryan added a passing touchdown.

Klaiton Moore, the freshman phenom, rushed for 63 yards and a touchdown on seven carries, and added 15 receiving yards.

Center Austin Adams caught two long passes for 60 yards and a touchdown, and carried the ball once for 14 yards.

Seth Ruthardt added a catch for nine yards.

Defensively, Kingston had 15 tackles and one assist, Brandon Evans had six tackles and two assists, Austin Adams had three tackles and an assist, and Tanner Chambless added three tackles and two assists. Bryan Adams, Klaiton Moore, and Seth Ruthardt each added a tackle, and Moore added two assists. Colton Kingston also caused and recovered a fumble, and Seth Ruthardt blocked an extra point.

In kicking, Diego Vidal Souza kicked three extra points on three attempts adding six points, and Andy Munoz Aizaga was one for two, for two points.

This Friday, October 12, the Hedley Owls plays host to Kress. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

Benefits of Statins Outweigh Diabetes Risk

A recent study published in The Lancet medical journal reported that heart benefits of statins outweigh any increased chances for developing diabetes. Statins which include Lipitor, Crestor and Zocor, are widely used to lower blood cholesterol levels. While those medications were reasonably effective in preventing cardiovascular disease (CVD), concerns have been raised that individuals taking statins may have an increased risk of developing diabetes. This study included 17,802 healthy individuals. They took either 20mg daily of Crestor (rosuvastatin) or placebo (fake drug) for five years.

The results of this study showed that in individuals with no preexisting diabetes risk factors, statins decreased the risk of a major CVD outcome by over 50%. Also, those individuals showed no significant increase in diabetes rates when taking the statins. On the other hand, those taking a statin who had one risk factor for diabetes saw a 28% increase in their risk of developing diabetes. This study confirms that there is significant net benefit of statin therapy, even when accounting for their diabetes risk.

Arvello to present Bible history at H-wick Baptist

The First Baptist Church of Howardwick will welcome Alan Arvello of Canyon this weekend.

Arvello has developed a Bible history collection in honor of the 400th anniversary of the King James Bible. This collection has a complete representation of the preservation of God's word from the Dead Sea scrolls to the King James Bible and beyond.

Because it consists primarily of protected pages, observers are allowed to hold and examine the collection, instead of just looking through a glass case. Arvello will be presenting his collection at First Baptist Church of Howardwick on Sunday, October 14, at 6:00 p.m. Everyone is invited. Admission is free. A love offering will be taken.
