ON SHIPMENTS

WAS HEAVIEST THIS WEEK.

MOVEMENT HAS BEEN STEADY AND FORTY-FIVE CARLOADS WERE LOADED OUT.

Up To Last Night One Hundred and Thirty-Two Cars Had Been Shipped From Cotulla—All Buyers Contracts are Up.

The movement of onions has been steady this week and the largest amount that has been shipped within any one week went out. The record was forty-five cars against thirty-seven last week. Twelve cars went out Tuesday which was the largest number for one day since the season opened.

The shippers this week were: Seefeld & Sons, 21 cars; Association, 13; H. Caley, 8; W. P. Butler, 2; Frank Allen, 1; J. W. Allen, 2.

Up to last night 132 cars had been shipped from Cotulla. Seventeen of them were from Carrizo Springs.

After this week shipments will not be so heavy and in ten days longer the crop will be practically out. As near as can be estimated there are yet about 40 cars to go out.

Many of the growers have their stuff stored and are putting it on the market gradually. Cars have just begun harvesting.

Seefeld & Sons contracts were up on 12th and H. Caley's contracts are up tonight. All that had contracts with the former got in on the time limit except Wm. Shaw and H. Caley, who each had a car or two they couldn't get out on account of the rain. On the Caley contract everybody got in except A. A. Murphy. He had about three acres that he expected to take up yesterday and deliver today, but the rain stopped the deal.

The Association is getting out quite a lot of stuff now, and will do the biggest end of the business from now on. They had out twelve cars this week, all on orders, which shows that the markets are not blocked. The prices hover around one cent, net.

Everything is practically at a standstill today. There is only work going on in sheds where onions are stored and are being crated.

W. E. Rock & Sons and Frank Rock finished delivering their onions to H. Caley this morning. They delivered 11 1/2 cars, about 276000 pounds on the contract of one cent on delivery and a division of profits.

We erred last week in stating that J. M. Talbott sold to H. Caley. Mr. Talbott sold to Seefeld & Sons at $1.25, and was the first man to get his onions out. He finished delivering May 1st. Mr. Talbott now has feed crops coming up on the land he took his onions off of.

Three Cars of Potatoes.

H. Caley has bought up and shipped three carloads of potatoes the past two weeks. Potatoes are now going from East to South Texas and the price is down.

Cut His Foot.

Frank Held of Millett is here under the treatment of a doctor. He was cutting wood Wednesday morning and severed three toes from his left foot. The toes were hanging by shreds of flesh when brought in but were stuck back and he is now getting along nicely.

MILLET RECEIVED A GOOD

Great Benefit to Farmers and Corn Crop Assured.—Notes of Interest.

Millett, Texas, May 18.—The farmer that has not a smile on his face this morning ought to be bumped, a glorious one, fell last night, 1 7/8 inches, and although accompanied by quite a hard wind, no damage done that we have heard of. It came just in time to save the corn crop which was beginning to wilt and being in silk and tassel could not hold out many days longer.

Cotton about all chopped out and looking well, no report of Mr. Boll Weevil yet. The outlook for the watermelon crop good.

The work on the new Shull store and Ray residence progressing nicely. The residence of H. W. Earnest will also be completed this week.

H. W. Earnest returned from Lytle Monday where he went to visit his new granddaughter which was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. Garland last week.

W. P. Shields is all smiles at the arrival of another nice young lady at his house.

J. F. Ray, who recently invested in Millett property under flying visit to his father's this week.

Mr. Roberts of Devine, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Harr.

Henry, Lewis and Roy Yaez left Thursday for Hebbronville to visit their father and sister.

LATER: Another splendid rain fell here last night.

Recital.

Mrs. Nona Lee Lane, assisted by her vocal class will give a recital at the Court House Thursday night. No admission will be charged and everybody is cordially invited.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS PRECIPITATION AT COTULLA THREE INCHES SINCE THURSDAY NIGHT.

Came Just in Time For Corn Crop and The Range Was Needing It—Reports From Other Places.

Practically all of Southwest Texas is water-soaked. The rains coming as they did, at the proper time, means hundreds of thousands of dollars to this part of the State. The corn crop is assured, to say nothing of great benefit to other crops. While there is plenty of grass it needed rain and the soaking that fell Thursday and Friday nights will put the range in a condition that will please the stockmen.

The first rain came up just after dark Thursday night from the west, and for an hour came down pretty heavy. Then it slackened up and fell slowly the balance of the night. The precipitation here amounted to about two inches and the same at Millett. It was a little lighter at Artesia and the cloud appeared to break about Encinal as the fall there was only half an inch.

Last night it began raining shortly before 12 o'clock, and continued slowly until late this morning, a little more than an inch of water falling. All of last night's rain is in the ground and it is thoroughly soaked. Some fields cannot be gotten into for ten days if it does not rain any more.

Heavy rains are reported up the Nueces and a big rise is expected. The river began rising this morning.

Indications are that more rain will fall tonight.

If the rain continues it will have a bad effect on the onions that are still in the fields, which we estimate at about thirty cars. If the weather clears in a day or two the damage will be insignificant.

The rain was steady at Artesia and Artesia, Thursday night, but it made good last night. Between two and three inches fell over that section of the country last night. Creeks are all higher than they have been for months.

Irvin Ranch.

We had a telephone message from Eugene Irvin at 10:30 this morning. He said they had an inch rain there Thursday night and it began again about midnight last night and hadn't let up when he was talking. About 3 1/2 inches of water had fallen and everything was afloat.

House Ranch.

Lee Keithly telephoned us that the House Ranch had good rains Thursday and Friday nights, and it was still raining there this morning. He had heard from down the country as far as the Cameron, and the rain was good.

Reports From Surrounding Country.

W. H. Robbins: "I was at Morg Williams' ranch and they had a regular chip floater out there. There wasn't anything gentle about the way it came down. The wind was strong and the water came in sheets. The big Ratama ponds were filled up and it takes a jim dandy rain to do that."

"Oscar Barrow: "The rain in the San Roque country was very heavy and lots of stock water was put out."

Lee Henrichson: "Artesia had about one and a quarter inches. It fell rather slowly and all went into the ground."

Mr. Pate: "The gauge at the Cochins Ranch caught 1 1/2 inches of water, which will put things in mighty fine shape."

Roe Oliver: "The fall at the Woodward Ranch was at least two inches. We have 600 acres of cotton and fifty acres of corn that it struck just right."

Hempstead, Tex., May 17.—The outgrowth of trouble which occurred earlier in the day, but many believe to be really the math of the Pinkney shooting last fall resulted in a four-cornered pistol duel here at 6 o'clock last evening, and as a result two of the principals were wounded and one may eventually die.

Joseph Nooner, yardmaster for the Houston & Texas Central railroad, was shot through the stomach and his physicians do not believe that he can recover. Charles Nass had two of his fingers carried away by a bullet.

The fight occurred but a few minutes after the afternoon down train had left town, and but every few bystanders were in the vicinity of the depot when the shooting began. But for this fact many would undoubtedly have been injured.

Two of the opposing principals Nooner and Young, are distantly related, and both were likewise connected with the late Hon. John M. Pinkney's family.

J. R. FREEMAN DEAD.

Former Citizen of La Salle Dies at San Marcos.

Mrs. T. R. Keck of this city received the sad intelligence yesterday of the death of her father, J. R. Freeman, which occurred yesterday morning at San Marcos. The message stated he died suddenly, but beyond that no particulars were given.

Mr. Freeman was one of the early settlers of La Salle county and is well known here by the older people. He moved with his family to San Marcos several years ago.

Mrs. Keck and two sons, Frank and Ray, left on the first train for San Marcos to attend the funeral.

Southwest Texas continues to send good beefsteak and mild onions to the people of the North.

When it gets to the point that we just can't get along without rain, had you noticed that it generally comes?

One of the prettiest calendars you ever saw was received this week at the RECORD office. We are indebted to Mr. E. P. Turner, General Passenger Agent of the Texas & Pacific for it.

Just a short time now and the press boys will re and show the gang the time of their lives.

It may surprise some people to know that Uncle Sam has gone into cement manufacturing in Arizona, to protect himself from the cement combine and is turning out hundreds of barrels daily at cost far below the market price. And yet Congress refuses to revise the tariff, the tax on cement being 20 per cent, and even refuses to abate the tax to the suffering people of San Francisco.

Slanderous articles published in the New York and Chicago papers this week with reference to Senator Joe Bailey and the railroad rate bill has caused a great deal of excitement in Washington. Bailey branded the statements as malicious lies and accused the chief of the White House in strong language of being responsible for them.

The rain that fell over Southwest Texas Thursday night was worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. The time had come when rain was necessary or the corn crop was a failure. Without rain ten days longer would have seen it burnt and twisted beyond redemption, but it has been saved and the farmers can begin making arrangements for crib room. With a little more rain in a few days it will be a bumper.

The National City Bank of New York—Rockefeller—highly approves of the interposition of Secretary Shaw with the Treasury gold to facilitate the banking process of drawing gold from abroad. As that favored corporation according to its own statement, "secured a total of some twenty-four millions"; without having to pay interest during transit, it is no wonder that the Republican favoritism is approved.

To bad, too bad! The knockers thought they were going to have an inning, but just about the time they began to wink at each other and had worked almost up to the point of "I told you so," it had to rain and now they're all out of humor. Really things do look bad for the knockers. With fields of corn in roasting ears, cotton blossoming, acres and acres of growing cane and kaffir corn, and watermelon and cantaloupe vines running all over the fields, it's enough to discourage him.

There is a good opening in Cotulla. The growers have trouble in getting their produce to market, whereas if there was a market here, who would put in a stock, growers could buy them as needed, and it would not be near as expensive in the long run as now. At present a grower must buy a carload if he gets any, which is usually more than he needs. He has unnecessary money tied up, and often no place to store the crates when they arrive. There's money in it for the man who will open up a business of that kind here. Cotulla is centrally located in the onion belt and he could handle the business of all this section.

Local Option Election.

Acting on a petition presented by fifty-five qualified voters of Justice Precinct No. 1, the commissioners' Court, at their meeting this week, ordered a local election for said precinct on the date for the holding of June 2nd.

By fixing this early date the side will have time for much campaigning. Long campaigns have a tendency to produce bad things which often result in a loss of property. This will be the second election within the precinct since the middle eighties and the town went very wet and has not so until the present day.

Two precincts in the county, now dry, Millett and Artes have been dry for many years. Between San Antonio and Cotulla and Encinal, both in this county. Just how the order will result no man can say, but one thing is certain, the saloon in Cotulla is a bad one, and if they are not this time it will only be a matter of a year or two.

Advance in Shoes.

You wear shoes of course and are interested in them. The price of shoes has advanced considerably recently and the cause of the trouble started right here at home, the advance in raw materials. A year ago you got about 10 cents per pound for your raw materials and now you get about 18 cents, almost double. The shoe manufacturer is effected by this condition of the leather market, hence the advance in price. The following is a list of the percentage of increase in the cost of various shoe materials. The list is furnished by the Anti-Trust League.

ENCINAL

Conditions Flourishing in Lower Part of County.

It does not take a careful observer to note the improvement at Encinal. In every part of town new buildings can be seen and property is changing hands along and advancing in value.

Some property has been sold in value within one year. For instance, J. B. Moore sold his residence last week to Mr. Aykendall for $700. He paid $350 for it less than a year ago.

Several hundred cars of live stock have been shipped from Encinal this season, and many of them were among the best that went out of Southwest Texas.

There is quite a little doing in the country surrounding Encinal. During the past six months many thousand acres of State land has been sold and farms are being opened up on nearly every tract. The purchasers paid all the way from $2.75 to $6.50 for this land and stockmen are finding the road pretty hard to travel. Some of them are now paying 15 cents an acre for pastures.

The new railroad well has been completed. Plenty of good water was secured which is now being furnished locomotives daily.

The new depot is a convenient and up-to-date structure, and is quite an improvement over the old one. Agent Berry reports business good, both in and out—"wine and a comin'."

The corn around Encinal this year will be good. The corn now in good silk and tassel and the rain of Thursday night struck it just right. A good corn crop was raised in this section last year. Quite an acreage is planted in cotton this year. The land around Encinal yields this staple abundantly and a first class gin was put up there by Mr. Braden two years ago.

The people around Encinal are generally in a prosperous condition. For three successive years they have raised good crops and had lots of fat cattle to sell.

Finishing Up Church.

The steel ceiling has arrived for the finishing of the Methodist church and workmen are busy putting it on. The pattern is very pretty and the interior finish will be the most up to date of any building in Cotulla.

Thunder and Lightning.

During the rainstorm Thursday night there was a brilliant display of lightning, and the thunder was almost continuous. The heavy fall of rain in the beginning illuminated by the lightnings, made everything look almost white.

Gouger Sells More Wagons and Buggies than Any Other House in Southwest Texas.

DO YOU KNOW THE REASON WHY?

Because he keeps a good selection of vehicles in stock and you can see with your own eyes what you are buying. Because the vehicles he sells have a reputation and are guaranteed, and if they are not as represented all you have to do is bring it back and get your money. Because he is satisfied with less profit than most dealers want and sells cheaper. Just convince yourself that these are facts before you buy.

The Best Harness.

The best hand made harness doesn't go at the lowest prices. It goes at the highest price. When a harness man talks about selling "the best harness at the lowest price," you can depend upon it that he is grossly ignorant or untruthful. We carry all desirable grades of goods, and charge according to the grade. All of our prices are comparatively low. We will also make your harness to order.

Here's Where you Get it Done!

We have a first class Saddler and Harness Maker in our House---the only shop between San Antonio and Laredo. We put up any kind of a set of harness and do all kinds of harness and saddle repairing. Tell us your wants.

DON'T WASTE MONEY.

Hundreds of dollars are wasted every day in buying things to eat. Sometimes the waste comes from paying too much—sometimes from paying too little. Sounds paradoxical, but it's true. You can waste money by paying too little—by buying things so cheap that you have to throw them away on account of impurities, adulterations, undesirability. You can waste still more by paying too much. Any grocer who charges more than we do is simply getting money that ought to remain in your pocket. Try and match our prices anywhere else. No waste at all if you buy here.

REGULAR MEETING OF COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

Petition Asking For Local Option Election Ordered—Petition Asking for Road From Millett to Dimmit County Line—Reports of All Commissioners Approved and Ordered.

The Commissioners' of LaSalle county met in regular session Monday morning. Those present were, Judge C. C. Thomas, Commissioners' B. Wildenthal, S. J. Jordan and W. H. Jacobs, Clerk G. H. Knaggs and Sheriff W. T. Hill.

The first business taken up was a petition presented by fifty-five tax-payers and qualified voters asking that a local option election be ordered for Justice Precinct No. 1. The Court ordered the election and fixed the date for holding the same Saturday, June 2nd. T. R. Keck, G. W. Henrichson and W. T. Deopker were appointed election officers.

What Cigarette Papers Contain.

Cigarette smokers who claim that the purest of rice paper is used for cigarettes will be interested in the following from a school-teacher who says in the Clarion "Monitor."

"On last Tuesday one of my boys came to school with two packages of cigarette papers. We put them into a pint bottle, and nearly filled it with water. By Thursday it was a thick solution so thick that the liquid would hardly run out of the bottle. The boys caught a mouse and gave him about a third of a teaspoonful. He never lived to leave the boy's hands. The boys were convinced that it was poisonous, but the girls declared that the boys squeezed the mouse so hard that it died. Soon Friday the boys came to the school with three sparrows and two mice. We took them one at a time, and gave them a third of a teaspoonful. The birds flew around the room for a short time then fell helplessly on the floor and died in ten minutes. The mice ran around the room for a while as though nothing had gone wrong, then fell over in a fit, from which they never recovered. This should be a lesson to the boys who smoke cigarettes."

The Dog Days.

There is no general agreement among the almanac makers as to the time of beginning and ending of the dog-day period. Some say it extends from July 3 to August 11, and others from July 24 to August 24. The dog days marked the highest temperature of summer when the term had its origin, in the old Roman period, eighteen or twenty centuries ago. At that time Sirius, the Dog Star, rose with the sun, about the time of the hottest part of the summer season. This, however, does not now occur until about August 10, at which time the highest temperature usually is passed.

Piano Wood.

All kinds of wood have been used for the cases and parts of pianos, but none have been found to answer the purpose better than mahogany. It is almost as hard as iron, it is sonorous, it never splits or cracks with uneven temperature if properly treated; it never warps, and in every respect it is as well suited to the purpose of the piano-maker as though it had been devised especially for his use. So perfect is it in every way that even the so-called rosewood pianos are not infrequently made of mahogany with a rosewood veneer. The only conceivable objection to mahogany is the color, which is too light to suit present taste. Very little mahogany is seen in its natural color. Almost all is stained much darker than the original wood, and the burls or knotty places, when the staining is applied, become almost black. The varnish tends to make it darker, for sometime, on a fine piano, no less than nine coats are applied, and so thick is the varnish that a scratch, if not too deep, may be rubbed off and completely effaced.

Pearls.

Pearls are carbonate of lime, the same substance of which the shell of the oyster is composed, and are identical with the "mother of pearl," which forms the interior of the pearl oyster shell. A high temperature will reduce any pearl to common lime, and in the heat of an ordinary fire a pearl will completely lose its identity and become a pinch of white powder. All precious stones are injured by a high temperature the diamond, being almost pure carbon, is completely consumed at a temperature somewhat greater than white heat. Rubies, sapphires and emeralds lose their color on exposure to heat, while the semi-precious stones, such as the amethyst, topaz, and garnet, are completely ruined by a comparatively low heat.

The Potato Family.

When the first human aboriginals of this country, of a long line of cliff dwellers, mound builders, were driven from the fertile plains of the west by the ever-swarming hordes who poured over from the way of the Bering strait, eventually found their way to the Southern continent, there, growing in great luxuriance, the potato family. Like the corn and tobacco families, the turkey family, the potato American; and also like the corn and turkey families, given to it by the first settlers is misleading, as no such as an "Irish" potato.

When Christopher Columbus returned to Spain from his voyage of discovery to the new world, he presented to his sovereigns an offering of sweet potatoes which he called "pattatta," the nearest he could come to the pronunciation of the name.

When Sir Walter Raleigh came over, he took back to his native Ireland, seed of the potato; but the potato he took back was not the sweet potato, but one white in color, or oblong in shape, and not to the taste. The white potato grew well in its new home land, and soon came to be the article of diet of the Irish people.

In 1718, a large colony of Ireland people, mostly of Scotch descent, came over to this country "to worship God as the sciences might dictate," and settled in a part of what is now Massachusetts. They brought with them some seed potatoes, and the following spring planted them.

homes' and flee south toward New York. In the autumn of that same year some Huguenots occupied their former homes, and having heard of Irish plant called the potato, they assumed that what they found there was that vegetable. But the plants were withered, and all they could find were some little balls on the top of the dead plant. They tried by every imaginable manner of cooking to eat these balls, but found they were good for nothing. That winter they all but starved. In the Spring however they began plowing the fields of the former inhabitants, and lo! there was thrown out of the ground an abundance of fine potatoes, on which they lived until new crops were matured. Being quite sure, these potatoes were brought to this country by the Irish colony, and never having heard of them elsewhere, the Huguenots, called them "Irish potatoes," a name which has stayed with them to this day.

Potatoes have never been improved much since Columbus and Sir Walter Raleigh found them growing with the Indians of the West Indies; they were quite as large then as now, and the only appreciable difference is that we of a later time have developed certain varieties, by growing them for long periods of one time under certain fixed conditions and in certain soils. In this way we have developed early and late varieties, round and oblong shapes red and white and yellow kinds, the difference in color being brought about by the amount of iron in the soil in which they are grown.

Potatoes are mostly starch, with small quantities of ash or mineral matter, and still smaller quantities of albumen or proteids. They are distinctly a fattening food for either man or beast.—Word and Work.

Railroads.

Our Constitution provides that no railroads in Texas shall be owned or controlled by a parallel or competing line, and further that there shall be no consolidation of the property or franchises of railroad corporations, or having under their control, parallel or competing lines. There is a tendency among railroad corporations all over the United States to consolidate their properties, and our constitutional inhibition against such consolidations should be steadfastly and faithfully adhered to in legislation, and vigorously enforced by those charged with the execution of our laws. There has been much legislation in the past in behalf of various railroad interests which approaches certainly to the very verge of the constitutional inhibition. I am apprised of the fact that such legislation in many instances has been demanded by the citizens resident in the locality to be affected, because the result would greatly redound to the betterment of the service of such roads. I am, however, professed to discuss the past, but looking to the future no one should gainsay that railroad consolidation in Texas should be carefully guarded and held within strict constitutional limits.

Freight and Passenger Rates.

In 1890 the people of this state adopted an amendment to our Constitution authorizing the legislature to provide and establish all regulations and agencies with such powers as may be deemed adequate and advisable to regulate railroad freight and passenger traffic, correct abuses and prevent discriminations, etc. Under this constitutional authority, at the following session of the legislature, our present railroad commission law was passed, and the railroad commission was given full jurisdiction and authority in the matter of regulating freight and passenger traffic, correcting abuses, preventing unjust discriminations, etc. The honor of looking to the future and providing for the protection, care and comfort, and a generous policy in keeping with our reverence for the cause which they represent should be carried out in the maintenance and support of the Commission. It is the duty of the legislature to see that the provisions already inaugurated, in bestowing these benefits upon the old Confederates they should not be made to feel that they are dealt with as objects of charity, but rather that they are the objects of our reverence and tender regard, upon whom we delight to bestow such evidences of our tender sentiment.

Like ample and generous provisions should be made for the care and maintenance of the wives and widows of our old Confederate veterans. After all, they fought the hardest fights for the supremacy of the Southern cause, and I would recommend to the legislature that the existing provisions be made, by constitutional amendment, if necessary, for their support in common with that of the Confederate soldier.

Appointment of Relatives to Office. Mr. Thomas Jefferson, in writing to a kinsman, stated: "I have laid it down as a rule of conduct never to give an appointment to a relation. Had I felt any hesitation in giving this rule, examples were wanting to admonish us what to do and what to avoid." Again in a letter to another relative on the subject of appointing him to office, Mr. Jefferson stated: "The public will never be made to believe that an appointment of a relative is made on the ground of merit alone influenced by family views; nor can they ever see, with approbation, offices, the disposal of which is entirely in the hands of a public officer, divided out as family property. Mr. Adams degraded himself infinitely by his conduct on this subject, as Gen. Washington had done himself the greatest honor. With two such examples to proceed by I should be doubly inclined to err. It is true that this places the relation of the president in a worse situation than if he were a stranger, but the public good, which cannot be effected if his confidence be lost, requires this sacrifice."

A public office is a public trust and not a family snap. From Jefferson down, the Democracy has contemned it, and it should not obtain in the administration of the state affairs of Texas. While I am fond of my relatives and believe them worthy of public position, I say without hesitation that if I were governor of this state, I would not appoint a relative to office, nor do I believe that one of them would desire that I should disregard the ethics of Democracy by so doing. It should be prohibited by law, as was demanded by the last Democratic platform.

Corporate Lobby.

The various provisions of the Constitution fixing the relations of the governor to the legislature and the people constitute him essentially the representative and special advocate of the whole-people with the law-making power, and as such representative and advocate of the whole people, were I governor I would meet all who come as the agents of special interests and seek special favors and immunities at the expense of the common good. The constitutional right of petition should be fully recognized, but it should not be prostituted to the corrupt practices of the professional lobbyist. If I were governor I would suppress the corporate lobby at the Texas capitol without regard to the persons engaged in that business, even though my special friend or brother might be among them, or would make their business so odious that no self-respecting legislator could afford to keep company with a corporate lobbyist.

Life Insurance Companies.

Texas has been an inviting field for life insurance companies; the growing wealth and increasing population has made her territory especially attractive to them, and year after year they have taken out of the state millions of dollars paid as premiums upon life insurance policies. This constant drain upon the resources of the state demands attention at the hands of our state government. I am not opposed to life insurance; on the contrary I should be glad to know that every citizen of Texas having others dependent upon him had provided against the contingency of his death by life insurance in a reasonable sum in a solvent company. The recent developments made of the shocking and gross misuse, not to say theft, of trust funds by the popular, large insurance companies of the East should be sufficient warning to the people of Texas not to put too much faith in the reliability and permanent solvency of such institutions. It also suggests that we should guard the organization and operation of such companies under our own laws and in our own state, and see to it that they are safe repositories of trust funds confided to their keeping and judicious management. Life insurance companies operating under the laws of other states or of foreign countries and doing business in this state should be under the effective supervision of our insurance department, and they should be required at stated and frequent periods to make full and thorough showings of their condition, and full publicity thereof should be given to the citizens of Texas, and no company should be permitted to do business in this state that is not found upon investigation and thorough information to be reliably solvent. We should further require that all such companies doing business in this state should invest at least seventy-five per cent of their legal reserve upon Texas securities in Texas securities or property, and proof of this fact should be required to be annually made to our insurance department.

Confederate Veterans.

In my heart there is a warm and tender sentiment going out to every old Confederate Veteran who lives on Texas soil. If it were reasonably within my power, I would provide for every one upon that honored roll a place of honor, ease and comfort, and throw the fullest measure of brightness and joy into their remaining years. I believe that the state of Texas, in common with other Southern states owes to them the solemn duty of looking to the future and providing for their protection, care and comfort; and a generous policy in keeping with our reverence for the cause which they represent should be carried out in the maintenance and support of the Confederate Home and the system of pensions already inaugurated. In bestowing these benefits upon the old Confederates they should not be made to feel that they are dealt with as objects of charity, but rather that they are the objects of our reverence and tender regard, upon whom we delight to bestow such evidences of our tender sentiment.

Like ample and generous provisions should be made for the care and maintenance of the wives and widows of our old Confederate veterans. After all, they fought the hardest fights for the supremacy of the Southern cause, and I would recommend to the legislature that the existing provisions be made, by constitutional amendment, if necessary, for their support in common with that of the Confederate soldier.

Appointment of Relatives to Office.

Mr. Thomas Jefferson, in writing to a kinsman, stated: "I have laid it down as a rule of conduct never to give an appointment to a relation. Had I felt any hesitation in giving this rule, examples were wanting to admonish us what to do and what to avoid." Again in a letter to another relative on the subject of appointing him to office, Mr. Jefferson stated: "The public will never be made to believe that an appointment of a relative is made on the ground of merit alone influenced by family views; nor can they ever see, with approbation, offices, the disposal of which is entirely in the hands of a public officer, divided out as family property. Mr. Adams degraded himself infinitely by his conduct on this subject, as Gen. Washington had done himself the greatest honor. With two such examples to proceed by I should be doubly inclined to err. A public office is a public trust and not a family snap. From Jefferson down, the Democracy has contemned it, and it should not obtain in the administration of the state affairs of Texas. While I am fond of my relatives and believe them worthy of public position, I say without hesitation that if I were governor of this state, I would not appoint a relative to office, nor do I believe that one of them would desire that I should disregard the ethics of Democracy by so doing. It should be prohibited by law, as was demanded by the last Democratic platform.

Blanket Primary.

On this subject, on November the sixth of last year, in a brief public address in response to a coquet at the legislative banquet held in Dallas, I expressed my views as follows: "I would urge upon the legislature the enactment of such change in the Territorial election law, the general provisions and spirit of which I heartily endorse, as would provide for the nomination of all candidates, from governor to constable, by direct vote, a blanket primary, of the qualified voters belonging to the party within the district from which one officer is to be chosen." Since that time no condition has arisen, nor argument been presented, which has changed my mind upon the subject of the blanket primary. In Texas the nomination of candidates for state offices by the Democratic party is practically equivalent to their election, as it is the great dominating party, practically without opposition in the state. A vote in the primary is therefore in practical effect a vote for the election of the candidate to office. Under such conditions every vote cast in the primary should carry with it the same force and effect that attaches to a vote cast at a general election. In other words, every candidate should receive the full benefit of a vote cast for him in the primary election.

Prohibition.

It has been gravely asserted that there is no issue of prohibition involved in this campaign and no occasion for a discussion of the subject by candidates for governor, and that this issue is urged forward by corporate interests to distract attention from their own abuses and threaten of domination of the state. This statement is made in the face of the fact that early after my announcement for governor my position was sought publicly to be elected based upon the question of state prohibition and upon certain proposed changes in the local option law. Not desiring to conceal from the people of Texas my honest views upon any question which might be a moment to my mind, I unhesitatingly and explicitly gave to the public fully my views upon the question of prohibiting the liquor traffic, both in the form of state prohibition and local option. Since that time I have persistently urged in a series of public papers, and among people opposed to prohibition in any form whatever, that I am the prohibition candidate for governor. At the same time it has been urged upon me to favor state prohibition, as distinguished from prohibition in the form of local option, that I am a dangerous candidate to their interest because I prefer and stand for the local option form of prohibition. This carried to such an extent that certain leaders of the political party advocated that their party should go bodily into the Democratic party and oppose my nomination for governor, on account of my adherence to local option and refusal to espouse the cause of state prohibition. As far as my candidacy is concerned, therefore, it must be manifest to every intelligent man that this question is an issue and its public discussion not only appropriate and proper, but necessary, that the choice will be to make their choice between candidates shall know their honest convictions upon the subject. I do not believe that it would be fair to the people simply to tell them how I voted in the past on this question. I think that their concern is to know the present convictions and purposes of the candidates with reference to the question. How a man voted in the past is not a matter of which he would give very little idea as to the manner in which he would deal with the question if he were governor of Texas. It is my purpose that all the people of this state shall know, as far as possible, the views of the Democracy of Texas, fixed in the constitution of the state under its principles, made operative by statutes enacted from time to time by Democratic legislatures and approved by Democratic governors. The system of prohibition has been demonstrated to be successful in this and other states, and whenever the majority of the people of a county, or minor division of a county, or of the state, adopt local option, there is no reason why prohibition may not be effectively maintained. The same organ of the brewery and distillery interests, in an address delivered personally to me, called attention to the views upon the Willacy bill, accompanied by the statement that he would be urged upon the next day to accept of the liquor traffic, and that he would be urged to do so through the press of this state. I here reaffirm the statement, which was opposed to enacting the local option law by the passage of an act, favoring local option, and that if I were governor and the people should pass such a measure, it would be to the benefit of the liquor interests of this state. The liquor legislation on this subject at the next legislature, friendly to their interest, therefore, necessarily a friendly to the interest of effecting prohibition under the local option laws, all who have read the newspapers and observed the course such interests are expected to be taking in relation to this question, should know that the liquor interests of this state are content to rest quietly under effective local option laws, they had better be more active in their efforts to tend to every part of the state, drilled to military obedience, and undisturbed means in the way of money is at its command, and its tremendous power and influence will be extended to this campaign, and the thought of ballots will be given to a single name for governor, and that name will not be M. M. Brooks. This organization, this expenditure of time, money and money, and maintenance of profound interest, means that they have something of grave interest at stake. Their choice of a candidate does not and will not rest upon the positions taken by such candidate upon general questions of public interest, but upon the single issue of how he stands upon the question of the prohibition of the liquor traffic. Their fight will not be in the open, it will not have brass bands and banners, for that character of a fight would arouse the moral, law-abiding element of people to action and its defeat would be certain. Their methods will be quiet and under cover; secret instructions will pass along the line and on the day of the primary election they will be a solid phalanx casting their votes with the unerring certainty of a single ballot. The compactness of their forces gives them a power in effecting combinations with other selfish interests, and you may expect to see their strength supplemented by combination with other elements that are usually found at elections in antagonism to the great body of patriotic, honest citizens. It is not infrequently happens that such elements are victorious in elections, not because they outnumber the body of the people, but because they concentrate their strength in the primary, while the rest of the people are divided up between candidates, many of them without knowledge of the actual situation voting for the very candidate which is the choice of the centralized forces. This will be the case in this election unless the good people of this state become aroused to the actual situation. Last year the National Brewers association held a meeting, and it was stated in the newspapers that a large sum of money was raised for the purpose of fighting the prohibition of the liquor traffic in the states, and that the National Breweries association was not at all, this is only the brewer's part of the matter.
