News gets pretty hard to come by during the summer months in Ozona, but we managed to fill it up one more time. Everything seems to stop with the end of school. It must be a throw-back to the days when the whole family packed up and headed for the ranch to spend the summer the minute the final bell rang.

In spite of the slow-down in activity, time seems to be passing with speed. Summer arrived last Sunday and this is the last paper in June.

The Fourth of July will be here before we know it and in spite of the fact that we've had a full two weeks of high wind and hot weather, we have many such weeks ahead. Let's hope they are not as dry as the past two weeks have been, also, we could do without the hot wind. A little breeze is fine, but this is ridiculous.

Things seem to be going great on the "home gardening" scene here in Ozona. I've never heard of so many back yard gardens. Much like the victory gardens back during WW II, the high price of produce has made them a necessity.

By the way, the plant at the M. E. Nicholas home which Ozona Roping Draws Shamrock was shown in last week's paper and unidentified, was a carrot. I thought it was a case of "all going to top, "but Nick sent word that the underground growth was just as healthy. I'm going to check on that.

Crockett County Care Center To Open For Residents July 1

Head On Crash Damage Heavy

Quick thinking on the part of a Nebraska motorist averted a headon collision a mile west of Ozona late last Tuesday night. Even at that, there was heavy damage to the two vehicles involved and a trailer home was demolished. One man was transferred to the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Kerrville.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Webster of Crawford, Neb. were traveling west, pulling a mobile home in their late model Ford pickup on Hwy. 290 leaving Ozona. Carl E. Connally of Carlisle, Iowa, driving a 1974 Ford pickup and traveling east attempted to pass a van in a no-passing zone on the curve a mile out and veered directly in front of the Webster vehicle. Webster pulled the pickup toward the barrow ditch, but the Connally vehicle hit the Webster pickup on the right side and crashed headon into the mobile home. Conally was in good condition in the Kerrville hospital late last week. The Websters were not injured.

sultant and will spend four hours per week at the facility here. This is a Medicare requirement. Mrs. Mike Jeffreys has been employed as activity director. She moved here recently with her husband, who is Music and Youth Director, has a degree in social work from Hardin-Simmons University.

There are nineteen persons waiting to take up residency in the center. The center was designed to care for 36 grounds has been finished and already the grassy areas are flourishing. A fence will be built around the area in the back, and outside construction with the Activity Director.

The auxiliary, a group of volunteers for assisting at the center, has been formed and attendance at two meetings has indicated a great deal of interest in volunteer work. The Ozona Woman's Forum was responsible for organizing the auxiliary, and the club will continue to assist and oversee the organization for the next few months. After the center opens and activities get under way, areas where volunteers are needed will become more definite, and officers for the auxiliary will be elected. Following this, the auxiliary will operate on its own and work closely

L. L. Championship Decided In Finals

The second half Little League Championship will be decided tonight. Moore Oilers, first half champs, must win tonight to take the season championship without a playoff game, and Crockett Automotive must lose. This would throw the two teams into a tie for the second half and Moore Oil would be declared champions by virtue of their first half win. Crockett Automotive, 4-1 in the second half, will play Ozona National, and Moore Oil will go up against Ozona Oil. The first half champs, Moore Oil are 3-2 in the second half and they must win tonight for a tie. However, a win tonight by Crockett Automotive would put the second half championship in their hands and a play-off with the first half champs would be scheduled. Ozona Oil is 2-3 and Ozona

World Revolution No Myth

The U.S. defense budget for major new weapons and for research and development has survived the ax which its opponents in the Senate sought to bring down upon it. The $25 billion authorization bill for fiscal 1976, which includes the B-1 bomber program, has passed intact.

It may only be a reprieve. The solid majorities against ailable financing is not adeemasculating amendments are credited to an unwillingness by many Senate Members to make substantial cuts so soon after the fall of Cambodia and Vietnam, or because our high unemployment would be further aggravated by such reductions.

If this is why the advocates of reduced military spending were defeated, then it was for the wrong reason. We need a strong military establishment above all because the Soviet Union will otherwise capitalize on its growing military strength to further accelerate the shift of world power in its favor. And this, the Soviet leaders repeatedly emphasize, is the factor upon which the ongoing "world revolution" will finally culminate in total victory for the camp of socialism/communism.

A principal argument of the proponents of reduced defense spending is that the "hardline" view of Soviet objectives is out of date - made irrelevant by detente. Talk of "world revolution" by communists is, these days, only a weary lip service which they no longer believe in. In any case, the argument runs, the breakdown of the Soviet "monolith" of the 50's into dependent communist states makes them no longer dangerous. U.S. fears of communist takeovers are therefore "overreactions." Such a view, we would submit, is tragically, grotesquely wrong. When Soviet party journals discuss the "crisis of capitalism" and how best to exploit it from now on, this is no idle rhetoric but a shrewd analysis of a world situation which they confidently perceive as moving steadily in their favor. It is difficult for us to challenge their conclusion. We're glad the defense bill came through only slightly damaged. Whatever the reason, that is a plus. But we urge the Congress and the leaders of this country not to ignore for a moment the reality of the military and political trends in the world. The peril to our society has not lifted or diminished one iota. The danger is far greater now than at any previous time in

Americans Want a Hand-Up-Not a Hand-Out!

Perhaps you have seen the tabloid-size advertisement featured recently in some newspapers bearing the headline: "How to Save $120 to $2400 a Year by Participating in the U.S. Food Stamp Program." The paid advertisement goes on to announce that "a government ruling" last year extended food stamp coverage to "twenty million Americans."

"But," the message continues, "to date more than 15,000." of these newly eligible citizens have not claimed their benefits. Why?"

Reasons given are that most of these people are not aware of the law; others think that eligibility is based on gross income, and others are "too embarassed" to apply for the dole.

We believe that the real reason some "15,000,000 Americans" (if, indeed, that is an accurate figure) have not asked for food stamps is that they prefer to earn money for their food and other necessities, and not ask for a government hand-out. Americans have never been afraid to work, and work hard, for their homes and families. They are ready and willing to do so now. "A decentday's pay for a decent day's work" is not an old-fashioned slogan; it reflects the attitude of most Americans today.

In addition, Average Joe Citizen is not so dumb that he thinks the government is giving him something for nothing. Every dollar handed out by the bureaucracy costs many more dollars in government overhead and costs. You can bet that the philanthropic distributors of food stamps are not contributing their time and efforts for the cause they so nobly espouse; on the contrary, they expect to get paid and paid well for their generous distribution of taxpayer money.

The strangest thing about the advertisement is that the readers are solicited to send $3.50 for a booklet to tell about the food stamp program. In fact, the government itself will provide the information, through the Government Printing Office, for a few pennies. Of course, the real cost is probably much higher; but don't worry; you'll pay for the rest of the cost when the IRS comes around to collect your money next April, 1976.

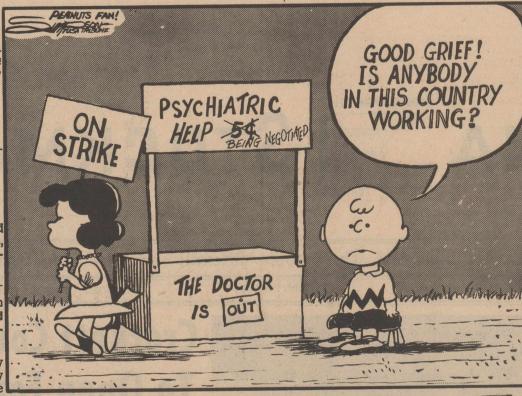

Let's Get Started!

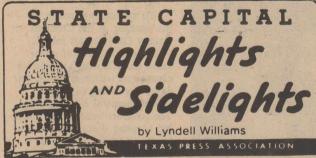

Natural gas is nearly a thing of the past. By the year 2000 oil will be in that situation. The USA has over half of the world's coal reserves, but over-dependence on coal will mean either excessive air pollution or high cost gassification on a large scale.

Ideal energy sources would be fusion and solar. But we don't have nuclear fusion yet; and solar energy is so attenuated by the earth's atmosphere that it is doubtful if we can generate enough electrical power from it to meet commercial needs. Fusion energy may be readily available early in the next century, with solar energy many years later. But how do we get from here to there? Nuclear fusion energy is our best option. As the fissionable isotope uranium 235 is less than one percent of natural uranium, we will have to use breeder reactors which will transmute nonfissionable plutonium 239, thus producing more fuel than the breeder consumes. But, construction of the USA breeder reactor on the Clinch River in Tennessee has not yet been funded by

" While the Bible is a serious book. it is not a solemn book which allows for humor. No, the Bible is not a "joke book", but humor is found in sixty of its sixty-six books.

There are 250 references in the Old Testament related to humor. Arrestingly, most are in the "books of wisdom. Solomon said, "-- There is a time for every event under heaven - A time to weep and a time to laugh. " (Ecclesiastes 3: 1, 4) Scholars suggest that there are many instances of humor in the gospels--19 in Matthew, 4 in Mark, and 21 in Luke. For an example, Jesus said that the Pharisees in their religious lives were straining out gnats and swallowing camels. Looking back on its acheivements, I think it proved to be a successful session. It was beyond a doubt the busiest ever. A record number (3,000) bills were introduced; and of those, 1,000 actually passed.

> As a freshman member, I was pleasantly surprised to find that I was able to be a more effective legislator than I had anticipated. This was due in part to being on the prestigious Calendar Committee, which has trememdous ower over the flow of legislation, and in part to Speaker Bill Calyton's enthusiastic inclusion of freshmen in the decisions of leadership of the House.

School finance was, of course, the number one responsibility of the Legislature; and I think it was dealt with as effectively as He who laughs last probably was possible. The final bill was a compromise--of a compromise--of a compromise; and, as a result, it had something in it for everyone. Water Rights Threat

by U.S. Senator for Texas

JOHN TOWER

WASHINGTON-Federal regulations are being drafted that could strangle the liberty and prosperity of millions of American farmers and ranchers with miles of bureaucratic red tape. I'm doing what I can to remedy this

Under proposed rules being prepared now by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the rancher who wants to enlarge his stock pond, the farmer who wants to deepen his irrigation ditch or plow a field, or the mountaineer who wants to protect his land against stream erosion could be required to get a federal permit first. The proposed regulations constitute "a harassment to farmers and ranchers trying to grow this nation's food supply," according to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. 'Millions of people, as they now operate . . , could be fined up to $25,000 a day and imprisoned for one year for violations" of the new rules, Butz warned.

The proposed regulations were drafted in response to a federal district court decision last March in a suit brought by environmental groups against the Corps of Engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The decision of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia expanded federal authority over "navigable waters" to include virtually every river, stream, brook, lake, wetland and irrigation project in the United States.

The district court decision is judicial usurpation of the worst sort. It would expand the jurisdiction of the Corps of Engineers far beyond anything possibly imagined by Congress. It would effectively strip the states of their authority to administer those resources which traditionally have been theirs to administer.

What is more frightening, the court decision would require the Corps of Engineers to assume control over the activities of a great portion of our nation's farmers, a further deterioration of the private property rights of individuals. At a time when private farmers are already reeling under economic pressures, the possible expansion of federal control would be an intolerable additional burden.

I have introduced one bill, and cosponsored another, that would negate the effect of the court decision. My bill would amend the federal Water Pollution Control Act to make it clear that federal authority over "the navigable waters of the United States" would be limited to those involving interstate commerce.

The bill I have cosponsored with Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas would go even further to protect the rights of individual property owners and the several states from federal encroachment.

I am hopeful that one or both of these measures will be passed before any Texas farmers suffer from that nefarious court ruling.

are treated favorably under the bill and even better than they would have fared under some of the other proposed plans. In general, the resulting legislation attempts to be equitable to-- and meet the needs of--students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Regulation of utilities ranks as a major accomplishment of the session. Although we West Texans are naturally reluctant to place restraints on free enterprise. I think the newly created Commission will be fair both to consumers and utility companies. It should assure consumers. especially those in unincorporated areas, of just and reasonable treatment by the utilities. I don't think it is a panacea or do I think it will necessarily mean lower rates, but I do believe that it is a much needed improvement over the current situation.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club Mrs. Bailey Post

Now that the summer winds prevail and very little rain has come our way, we are reminded daily there are numerous chores to be done regularly in the garden Be especially aware of water needs for shallow-rooted woody ornamentals as azaleas, camellias and hydrangeas, and such herbaceous plants as caladiums, dahlias, impatiens, ferns and most outdoor potted plants. Some of these may need water every day. Deep watering is the key to healthy summer growth; shallow watering causes shallow rooting which can cause injury to plants during periods of dry weather. To avoid run off, apply water only as rapidly as it can be absorbed by the soil. Also, a mulch around all ornamentals will conserve moisture and lengthen the time between Reliable "sedums" are growing more popular every year. These are tough, hardy, usually creeping perennials that have two everyday names stonecrop and live-forever. In general, sedums can flourish in poor, sandy soil in sumny locations, but they will grow very well in our area in shade or partial shade. They are excellent for slopes and banks, on rock and wall gardens, or in crevices among steps. A factor in their favor is the crawling nature of many kinds. They have shallow root systems that are not serious competitors to deeper rooted perennials. Example - sedum ellacombianum (yellow). The "stringy sedum" (S. sarmentosum) should never be planted among perennials as it is almost impossible to eradicate. The well-behaved sedum sieboldii excels for container growing and is also good planted among perennials. It forms rose-pink flowers in September. Sedum acre, "mossy stonecrop", forms spreading tight mats of tiny foliage, studded in early summer with bright yellow flowers. An oldfashioned perennial, the "showy stonecrop" (sedum spectobile) now comes in several attractive varieties -

'Autumn Joy" has large, flat, rose-pink flower clusters in late summer and fall and "Brilliant" is another dramatic hybrid. Most sedums perform well in containers and form neat low-maintenance edging along a border of roses and madonna lilies.

Not all sedums have yellow flowers. Several are rosy-pink, pink to white, rosy-crimson and the ground cover "Dragon's Blood" is a vibrant dark red.

All sedums prefer a light, well-drained soil and for best coloration at least partial sun. With their fleshy succulent leaves, sedums can withstand extensive drouths. They are not bothered by insects or even by slugs. The blue vitex trees are beautiful now, so if you need another colorful tree, and have plenty of space to plant it in and not too close to the house. you might want to try one. Nothing seems to bother them. There is one in the Village Park and a large one at the Hillery Phillips home.

CONTAINERS TO CAN IN If you are planning to can fruits and vegetables this summer, you will want to use the best containers possible. Standard canning jars will be what you want--those with the manufacturer's name in large letters on the side of the jar--Ball, Kerr, Know, Hazel-Atlas, etc. You may also find the word Mason, which means the jar has the regular size mouth

The standard canning jar has been tempered to withstand contrast in temperature. In other words, it does not break as easily as packers jars such as mayonnaise or peanut butter type jars do. Too, the home canning lid and band were made to fit standard canning jars -- not the other types.

If the canning jar has a nich or rough place at the mouth, discard this jar because it will not seal. Check by running your finger around the jar mouth--this is the best way to discover a rough place. Don't overlook the seam in Most home canners prefer using the flat metal-type lids which have a red or grey sealing compound. Check the lid to be sure the sealing compound is smooth or even.

Mayonnaise-type jar lids should not be used in canning. These do not allow the jar to exhaust. As the food is "cooking" in the canner, steam is generated. If this is not allowed to escape, pressure is built up in the jar and can cause it to break or the lid to buckle. Mayonnaisetype lids can be used for jelly only.

Standard jar bands (rings) should not be rusty or bent. If they are, they will not give a good seal.

Lids used on vacuum packed foods such as pickles can't be used in canning. These require special equipment to get the lid on the jar so that it gives an airtight Happiness is a picnic morning. Happiness is a day spent with the family. Happiness is walking and talking and sharing the fun and beauty of God's world with those you love.

A picnic is always a happy idea. Somehow, just getting away from the daily routine does wonders. The sound of a cool waterfall, the rustle of a bird on the wing, the warmth of a friendly sun: all of it makes you "come alive" with a new kind of freshness.

There is another place where we all may renew our strength for the times we live in. The atmosphere, fellowship, and inspirational teachings of your church will do much to keep you walking happy. Spend next Sunday morning in church.

800000000000000000 Did you ever stop to think that, of all the things you buy, you will probably keep your furniture for the longest

People keep an automobile perhaps two, three, four or five years; their clothes last about the same time; but furniture stays around longer than all those things-- and can even outlive the time spent in a particular house, because when you move you can take your furniture with you from one house or apartment to another.

So, furniture can be an investment not only for today's living, but for tomorrow's as well--for example, the sofa you buy for your living room today could well be used in a family room or den tomorrow; today's dining room table might be tomorrow's desk; a chair used in one room today can move with you when you move.

Whether you're a youngmarried who expects to go to a larger home someday, or whether you're in a house now and expect to move to to a smaller place when you get older, you can gear your furniture's usefulness for the future as well as the present.

Whatever your situation might be, we'll be happy to sit down with you and discuss your plans, and help you select furniture that will serve you well today, and tomorrow, too. Stop in and talk it over with us.

A major portion of the publication is keyed to manage. ment of established lawns. Specific information is presented on fertilization, watering and mowing. A review of lawn problems is featured in the final pages of the publication. Information is presented on thatch accumulation, shade problems, weeds, insects and diseases.

With hot summer weather approaching, homeowners generally experience a variety of lawn problems, notes the agent. The new "Home Lawns" publication can be a valuable guide in identifying these problems and in taking corrective measures. A copy may be obtained at the county Extension office.
