We've been beseiged this week by complaints. Some are our fault and many are not. Most are nit-picking. In over a decade writing for a weekly newspaper, I've found that it's real hard to please any of the people any of the

In a small community such as ours, a number of people do a number of really good things, and we try to cover all these good things to the best of our ability. Since "yours truly" functions as the only reporter, it's just a little hard to cover everything that goes on in a very thorough manner. The causes or organizations that receive the best or the most coverage are those who have a reporter who is on the ball and interested in that particular group. Of course, we retain the right to decide which "news" is of the most importance to the majority of people in the community. And that's where the hitch comes in. Everybody thinks their news is the most important news.

Then there are those who come in and ask to put their ga, a sale ad on the front page "so everybody will see ling that took place two weeks ago and they need help getting it together. After noon Tuesday it's all we can do to help ourselves around here and sometimes we don't get it together before it's time to take off for the printers the next morning. Then, there are those little last minute news items which come in after the last minute and somehow they get lost in the shuffle. If you have to wait until Tuesday, it's a good idea to write it down and bring it by. Items telephoned in around the deadline are apt to get lost between the headliner and the waxer.

Spelling proper names is another area where we run (CONTINUED ON LAST PAGE)

Bishops Buy Trade-Rite Grocery Store

Mr. and Mrs. Tite Bishop have purchased the Trade-Rite Grocery on Hwy. 290 west from Tommy Loudamy. The Bishops took over operation and management of the store last week.

Mrs. Bishop said the store will have the same staff as in the meat market. Only the hours will differ. The and close at 11 p.m. with the exception of Sundays when the store will be closed.

DEDICATION OF THE OZONA - BARNHART TRAP CO. Historical Marker took place Sunday at the roadside park seven miles north of Ozona on SH 163. Shown unveiling the marker are Marshall Montgomery, marker chairman; Mrs. R. A. Harrell, chairman of the Crockett County Historical Survey Committee; County Judge Troy Williams, who dedicated the marker; and Vic Pierce, for many years head of the O. B. Trap Co. Much of the history of the corridor from Ozona to Barnhart was told during the dedication. The trap company facilitated getting livestock from Crockett County to the rail center at Barnhart.

Garden Club Has Nature Trail Project

The Ozona Garden Club is sponsoring the Possum Hollow Nature Trail area as its bicentennial project.

Vocational Ag. teacher Jim Leech and his class have laid out the trail, which travels from the bottom of the hill at Rugged Road, winds around and ends at the top of the hill near the Ed Collett home. Mrs. Grace Williams made the trail available, and when completed it will be for the enjoyment of the community.

C. H. Sinclair is listing trees, shrubs, flowers, grasses, etc. A Midland geologist, Warren Wilks, has named the rocks and rock formations.

The trail, when completed will be strictly to walk through The club has asked that bicycles, motor-bikes and horses be kept out. It will be a sanctuary for squirrels, birds, butterflies and small wildlife, and the object is to keep the wilderness area in a state of wild beauty, yet give the public access to it at the same time.

The trail is on private property and will not be finished until next spring. Walking observations will be allowed at that time.

History Book Generates Big Response

The book committee of the Historical Society has reported a tremendous lastminute response in stories for the Crockett County History

As of this week, the committee estimates approximately 500 stories have come in for the printing. Also, many old pictures have been entrusted to the committee for printing in the book.

The project, which got off to a slow start, has generated so much response, the book may have to be printed in two volumes.

Ceremonies Sunday Afternoon Dedicate Historical Markers

at the roadside park north of town Sunday afternoon for the dedication of the O. B. Trap Co. Historical Marker, Following the dedication of the Trap Marker, the group travelled to the junction of High-way 137 and 29, where another ceremony was held for the dedication of a marker for the first producing oil well in Crockett County. Mrs. R. A. Harrell introduced Historical Marker Chairman Marshall Montgomery, who after giving a brief history of the Ozona-Barnhart Trap Co., turned the podium over to Vic Pierce, for many years manager of the trap company. He told of the forming of the company by Ozona and Crockett County ranchmen. Purpose of the trap company was to get Crockett County cattle and sheep to the rail center in Barnhart by the fastest and easiest route without encroaching on land-owners along the way.

Crockett County Judge Troy Williams, who owns the biggest part of the Ozona Barnhart Trap Company land at the present time, took over for the dedication ceremony. He told of the heavy use of the corridor in the early '30's and mentioned that many ranchers had to come to Ozona and buy a share in the company before having use of its facilities. He also spoke of the necessity for the company in those days due to the fact that Crockett County was completely land-locked and trucking had yet to come into

The marker, made of cast aluminum with Swedish steel

Around 20 persons gathered effect, measuring 27 by 42 inches, was appropriately veiled with a modern day feed sack, which was unveiled by cutting away with scissors. The reading on the marker is as follows:

OZONA-BARNHART TRAP CO.

By the 1920s many ranchers in Crockett County had fenced their land, preventing their neighbors from driving sheep and cattle to the railroad shipping point in Barnhart (23 mi. N of here). A solution to the problem was offered by the Ozona-Barnhart Trap Co., which was organized in Ozona in 1924. By buying or leasing land for trails, traps (small pastures), pens, and water wells, the company established a corridor through which ranchers could drive their livestock to the railroad without crossing their neighbor's fences or destroying his grass supply. The main trail extended about 34 miles, from south of Ozona to Barnhart, with branch lines throughout the county. The McNutt traps (2 mi. NW), with 1340 acres of pasture, were the hub of the trail. Sale of stock to area ranchmen financed the enterprise, and operating expenses were handled by a charge per head of livestock for services used. The O.-B. Trap Co. saved the ranching industry at a time when it was the only important business in Crockett County.

The need for the trail dwindled with the rise of truck transportation in the 1930s, but drives were still held until the 1950s. The O.-B. Trap Co. now leases its land for grazing or gas production.

Following the O. B. Trap Co. ceremony, the group motored north to midway lane, turning left on Hwy. 29 and on to the junction of Hwy. 137 where the marker for the first producing oil well in the county was waiting it's unveiling. Much the same ceremony took place, this time honoring the early oil pioneers of the county. Virgil I. Powell of San Angelo, a descendent of the Powell who owned the land where the well was drilled, gave a humorous and interesting resume of the times during which the well was being drilled. Mr. Powell was accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Powell, and a sister, Mrs. Ball. Also present were his daughter. Mrs. Joe Bean and son, Dan, of Ozona.

The marker was unveiled and the inscription reads as CROCKETT COUNTY'S FIRST PRODUCING OIL WELL

In 1923 World Oil Co. owned by Chester R. Bunker, Ft. Worth publisher and printer, began drilling on the L. P. Powell ranch. Work progressed slowly, depending on the availability of money, under the direction of superintendent Mickey Green and the tool pusher known only as "Dangerous Dan". The wildcat operation proved successful in the spring of 1925, when the first well (10 mi. NW) came in at a depth of 2647 feet and began producing 25 barrels of oil a day. The strike opened up the World Pool, more commonly known as the Powell Field, which is still yielding oil. Eventually (CONTINUED ON LAST PAGE)

LOOSE DOGS MAKE A SHAMBLES OF trash cans Saturday night in the 900 block of Ave. D. This was the scene which greeted homeowners Sunday morning in that vicinity. Trash cans were overturned, plastic trash bags ripped, and garbage strown all over the area. This is one of the reasons more and more Ozonans are beginning to be concerned about the stray dog population.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE STUDENTS work on Possum Hollow Nature Trail. Nineteen students of Jim Leech's Voc. Ag. classes are putting in a great deal of time clearing the trail and doing other work on the nature trail, which is being sponsored by the Garden Club as a Bicentennial project. The trail begins at the bottom of the hill on Fairview Drive and winds around up the hill and through the canyon. It will be open to the public next spring.

U.S. Spending: Drugs v. Defense

There was a time in the not-too-distant past when the great majority of Members of Congress, despite their other differences, voted as one to keep the country adequately protected through a strong defense. Today, however; some demagogues in Congress and elsewhere have a knee-jerk reaction to talk of high-flying federal budgets: "Blame everything on the Pentagon, and don't bother us with the facts."

But here is a fact: the cost of America's social programs far outstrips the cost of its defense programs - despite the truth that, in the words of Clare Boothe Luce, a foreign policy backed up by adequate strength is the "No. 1 Welfare Program of the

Some programs, such as Social Security, are necessary in one form or another. However, there are literally hundreds of others that are a total waste of taxpayer dollars. One outrageous example of these was unearthed recently by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), who charged that the government is squandering $1 million annually on such programs.

Proxmire's ire was aimed specifically at five research projects financed by the National Institute of Drug Abuse. In one of the studies, 60 ad 11t males at Southern Illinois University were shown erotic movies while smoking pot to see how the drug affected their sexual responses. Cost to the taxpayers: $121,000.

Other studies by the Institute included: one for $363,000 to find if marijuana smoking enables a person to be hypnotized easier; one for $80,000 to see if the drug, coupled with alcohol, affects a person's ability to recognize smiles and scowls; one for $275,000 to study the use of qat, a stimulant derived by chewing leaves of a bush in North Yemen; and $174,000 to study socio-cultural aspects of marijuana use by the Zulu tribe of South

Where did the Institute get its money to sponsor such projects? From us taxpayers, of course, courtesy of Congress. We don't doubt that some Members of Congress were as outraged by discovery of these useless and costly experiments as we were. But our question is this: why don't they take a small fraction of the time devoted to dissecting the defense budget - on which our lives literally depend - and use it to find and eliminate such obviously wasteful programs as the ones outlined above?

Mid-East War Postponed

An Israeli-Egyptian interim agreement in the Sinai desert is now a reality. Israel will give up the Abu Rudeis oil fields and withdraw its forces 12 to 25 miles, which includes the Mitla and Gidi mountain passes. The U.S. will become physically involved by stationing some of its own personnel in the passes to activate early warning facilities. In addition, we have evidently made commitments to Israel involving large scale economic and military assistance. For her part, Egypt agrees to annual renewals of the U.N. Buffer forces in the Sinai for at least three years, to free passage of Israeli cargos through the Suez Canal, and to a mutual pledge with Israel not to resort to force to resolve disputes.

Secretary Kissinger is entitled to his fair share of credit for what has been achieved, but it is no breakthrough to peace. Experience recommends cautious statements. The best we can say, at this point, is that the agreement postpones a new Mideast

None of the factors that make the Middle East a powder keg has been altered. There is no Israeli commitment to ultimate withdrawal from all captured territories, as demanded by the Arabs. There is no prospective solution to the Palestinian problem, and not even a hint of any change in the status of Jerusalem. These festering sores remain. And the pledges of U.S. support that Israel has now extracted are bound to cause even more future resentment in the Arab world if Israel now elects to stand pat indefinitely on the present boundaries, which seems extremely likely. Given the general Arab temper, Egyptian President Sadat may well be assassinated or overthrown if his moderate policy brings benefits for no one but Egypt. The Soviet Union is not about to fold its own tent and leave the field to Henry Kissinger. Moscow's theme can already be seen in a document of the Egyptian Communist Party. This makes it clear that Sadat's "retreat" in the face of Israel and his "compromise with imperialism and Zionism" must be opposed.

Egypt, we assume, signed the accord because it wins back the oil fields and more territory without fighting, which she is not yet prepared to risk. Israel signed it because to do otherwise would poison her relations with the U.S. and jeopardize her indispensible sources of arms. The Israelis are among the world's most skillful bargainers and appear to have exacted a very high price from the U.S. for the little that has been surrendered. The settlement, we might say, was bought and paid for in Washington.

We do not argue that the U.S. would be better off without the agreement. It is preferable to immediate war, though the current relative Arab inferiority would have made this rather unlikely in any event. What we do say is that there should be no illusions and a minimum of cheering. The basic, long range threat to peace and stability remains.

Naval Threat Growing

The new edition of the authoritative yearbook on the world's navies, Jane's Fighting Ships, has little comfort for those Americans who worry that their navy is becoming second best. Jane's says that over the past ten years the Soviets have outspent the U.S. in naval shipbuilding by 50% and currently are spending one-third more than we are.

THE FAIREST OF ALL

AUSTIN — Two hundred and fifty Texas liberals met here recently to talk 1976 presidential political strategy and threatened to challenge the new presidential primary bill.

The group, led by Democratic National Committeewoman Billie Carr, said winner-take-all provisions of the primary law — designed to help presidential aspirations of U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen - may tend to deprive minorities of delegate

Ms. Carr indicated the primary act would be challenged under the Federal Voting Rights Act, designed to protect minorities.

Liberals, determined to make things tough for Bentsen and Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the 1976 primary, remained undecided what course of action to follow.

They will meet again October 25 and November 22. Ms. Carr urges filing of uncommitted delegate slates for national nominating convention seats from all 31 senatorial districts. Others prefer lining up behind one of the serious liberal presidential contenders, and still others want to file delegates for a "favorite person" like former U. S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough or

Ms. Carr. Meanwhile, the liberals heard sales talks from representatives of six potential presidential candidates.

Trial Postponed

Impeachment trial of District Judge O. P. Carrillo by the Senate has been postponed until October 6 -perhaps later.

The trial had been scheduled to resume Sept. 29, but Carrillo's trial in Corpus Christi on income tax charges lasted longer than expected.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he consulted with attorneys for all parties and the Senate's legal counsel and concluded that the "wisest course of action" is to put off the impeachment hearing for at least another week.

Courts Speak

Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed conviction of three for the murder of a Houston service station attendant because their statements to police incriminated each other.

The same Court affirmed the life sentence of a Lewisville former airline pilot for killing an aged woman cousin from whom he was due to inherit $400,000 worth of land.

Galvestonian Shearn Moody Jr. lost an appeal to the State Supreme Court to get back money from a trust fund he signed over to an insurance firm.

Vote Unmonitored

The U.S. Justice Department won't monitor the November 4 Texas constitutional revision election under terms of an agreement between state and federal officials.

The Federal Voting Rights Act extension makes all Texas elections, election law changes and redistricting matters bearing on voting rights subject to federal supervision.

Texas has sought unsuccessfully to delay implementation of the law, but the November vote will escape supervision.

In exchange for the exemption, the state will distribute more than 100,000 Spanish-language copies of the proposed new Texas constitution at supermarkets, courthouses, libraries, churches and meeting places of Spanish-speaking organizations.

Spanish copies of the revision document were to be widely distributed in Spanish-speaking areas anyway, under original state plans.

The state apparently will press its appeal of a federal district court decision that Census Bureau officials didn't have to hold a hearing on validity of their determinations that Texas falls under the Voting Rights Act by virtue of low participation in the 1972 presidential election.

U.S. Representative 21st District

Sometimes the actions taken by Members of Congress are designed more for "home consumption" and for how they hope actions will look to their constituents, rather than for genuine formation of national policy. The passage of a major energy bill (H. R. 7014) by the House of Representatives which it has been working on since July is an example of this attitude. Although I have been working on this bill in committee I am frankly deeply disappointed with the final result, and those who voted for many of its objectionable provisions and for final passage did so knowing that the bill cannot become law and is certain to be vetoed. They wanted, however, to be able to tell the people back home that the Congress had passed a major energy bill and then try to blame the President for vetoing it. It is the same attitude of confrontation politics that many Members elected to Congress said they would try to avoid once they took office. But this attitude exists both in Congress and in the Administration in both Republican and Democrat parties and wherever it occurs, it does not, in my judgment, contribute to good national policy. The part of the bill to which I take strong objection is the oil pricing provision. The Congress voted to pay producers five different prices ranging from $5.25 to $12.50 for the same product. That kind of irrational approach seems to me indefensible and is certain to be vetoed. Nothing in the bill was done to decrease our heavy dependence on foreign imports which now constitute about 40% of the oil we use. Were the bill to become law, it would make our nation weaker rather than stronger. The bill gives the Federal Energy Administration power to require cities, states, and businesses to convert from the use of natural gas to oil or coal as a boiler fuel to produce electricity. Ninety-five percent of the electricity in Texas is produced from natural gas. That means that one unelected individual has power virtually to control and potentially shut down the operations of our state, since there is no way to change quickly from one fuel to another. The cost of conversion would cause Texas alone to spend $18½ billion just to change equipment. We would then need to improve railways to deliver our coal and make other expensive alterations. There is authority in the bill for the General Accounting Office to audit the books, not only of oil companies, but of individual service station owners and I can't imagine why considering the invasions of privacy already practiced, anyone would wish to enlarge federal encroachments in this and on the Floor since February, way and to give such impetus to bureaucracy and paperwork.

The bill requires all cars produced in this country by 1985 to average 28 miles per gallon in country and city driving. Such a provision is clearly unrealistic. On the floor of the House, some of the proponents of that provision argued that cars producing 28 miles per gallon already exist. I, in turn, pointed out that they themselves did not choose to buy them and drive them and I couldn't see why they would require the American people to buy cars which they themselves were unwilling

The list could go on, but the pattern is clear. Sometimes Members of Congress, like any other group, get tired and, in their fatigue, are willing to support almost any sort of policy just so they can report to others that they have "done something." In this case, the balance of power which our Constitution wisely set up will have to be exercised by the Executive Branch when the bill is vetoed. After that, perhaps there will be a possibility of compromise by the majority of the Congress and the Executive that will lead to an intelligent policy for the nation. I hope so, and will continue to retain my optimism because of the long tradition of good government in American and because of my confidence in the basic good sense of the American people.

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

After the most welcome $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch rain last week our landscape should have a fresh green appearance soon. And after two cool snaps in the last two weeks, we should know that fall and winter are fast approaching. Start getting house plants ready to take indoors. Repot over grown container plants to allow them time to become reestablished. Groom potted plants by pruning out over-grown, damaged or dead foliage.

Take advantage of the still warm soil conditions to get some cool-season annuals established for winter and early spring color. The more growth you get before the soil becomes cold, the earlier the plants will bloom. Some of these annuals are the African daisy, calendula, poppies, pansy, petunia, snapdragon, sweet alyssum and sweet peas.

As leaves on caladiums begin to dry, dig up clumps tubers and store them in a warm, dry, well-ventilated place for two weeks. After drying, clean the tubers and dust with a combination of Captan and Sevin for protection against insects and diseases. Pack the tubers in dry peat or vermiculite and store in a dry place at about 60 degrees. For instant color now, chrysanthemums are now available in containers for use where needed. They can be planted outdoors after the flowers have faded.

Select spring-flowering bulbs for planting before the end of the year. The club will have some for the sale in November. Remember that a mass planting of one variety or color of bloom will produce a more attractive display than a mixture of colors crocus, tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, narcissus - tulips and hyacinths need conditioning. For best results, store them in your refrigerator for about 8 weeks, then remove and plant at once.

October planting days -Above ground crops - 4, 5, 6, 7, 11, 12, 15, 16, 17 Root crops - 21, 22, 25, 26,

The entrance, or foyer, of your home, whether it's large or small, wide or narrow, is where you welcome your guests -- and for that matter, yourself. It's the one room everybody sees -- it's the one room everybody has to pass through,

The impression it makes can be lasting. Is it hospitable? Is it useful? Is it pretty?

So many foyers show only the console and mirror arrangement that you would think there is no other way to decorate this very important part of your home,

A good looking nest of tables is one practical and helpful way to substitute for the usual console table--or, you might want to try an elegant slim table that gives you more room and more beauty in your entrance way. Those are just two of the many possible ideas.

If a foyer is large enough, it may be used as part of your living area with a small pair of chairs and when you entertain a large group, it will provide much needed additional seating.

Once the furniture has been chosen, you can concentrate your energies on finding accent pieces. We are here to help you in the selection of your foyer furnishings--and help you be sure you have a good entrance at your house.

Tips For Gardeners Now Is Ideal Time For Repotting Of Houseplants izing the soil mixture to kill

Late summer and early fall is an ideal time to repot house plants, points out a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Repotting prepares house plants for the winter season and improves their overall performance, " says Everett

Use of a good soil mix gets the repotting process off to a good start. Such a mix may be made by mixing two parts each of garden loam and peat moss and one part of sand. Well rotted manure or shredded leaf mold may be substituted for the peat moss.

"Garden soil alone is seldom suitable for potting plants because it is usually too low in organic matter, " notes the Texas A&M University System specialist. "A good soil mixture provides the three things most needed by potted plants-support, good soil aeration, and ability to hold adequate moisture and nutrients. '

Compost can be used as a top dressing for lawns, as a mulch around growing plants, or flowers and vegetables. When properly prepared, it is free from weeds or odor and is very rich in plant nutrients.

The compost pile can be supported with wire fence, lumber or other easily ventilated material. When starting the compost pile, begin with an initial application of 1 or 2 inches of soil, followed by a layer of leaves, grass clippings or other waste materials 2 to 6 inches thick. This should be followed by 1 or 2 inches of manure. If manure is not available, the addition of 1 to 2 cupfuls of commercial fertilizer per square yard of surface area scattered over the plant material is satisfactory. This layering process is repeated.

OCTOBER Record crops of apples and rice and a heavy harvest of pears ensure plentiful supplies of these foods in October. This information is in the latest issue of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Supplies of beef are expected to be plentiful in October, with a record large output for the month. This is a change from September when beef supplies were only adequate -- that is, only enough to meet needs. Among other commodities estimated to be plentiful during October are cranberries, frozen vegetables, many canned noncitrus fruits, dried prunes, raisins, dry peas, dry beans, and corn and wheat for food

Foods listed as being in adequate supply include poultry and eggs, milk, and other dairy products, fresh grapes, and most canned vegetables.

For the sixth straight month, pork supplies will be light...less than adequate. and not enough for normal needs. Pork production is expected to be nearly a fourth less than in October

Our town philosopher calls our church "God's branch office." He means no sacrilege because he is a very religious man.

He puts into words the feelings that unite all Christians. Rituals may differ . . . doctrines may not always agree . . . denominational labels may seem to keep us apart. Still we share the wondrous knowledge that One Lord is the Savior of us all.

There is no time when this bond of faith is expressed more vividly than on Worldwide Communion Sunday. In our little church about sixty of us will gather. Around the world there will be millions. Together we'll join in an experience that began on the eve of Christ's crucifixion.

Miss Crowder And Mr. Pagan Are Wed In Evening Ceremony

became the bride of Mr. James Calvin Pagan Saturday. Sept. 20, in an evening ceremony at the Church of Christ. Bill Morrison, minister, officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Crowder and Mr. and Mrs. Bill

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organza with Peau d'ange lace marking the empire bodice, jewel neckline and lantern sleeves. The A-line skirt and detachable train was enhanced with Venese lace motiffs. Petals of the lace held the English illusion chapel length veil which was edged with the lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses, miniature white carnations and lilly of the valley centered with a large white orchid.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Jan Wellman of Midland. Bridesmaids were Miss Cody Johnson of Lubbock and Miss Brenda Kay Stewart of Abi-Iene. The attendants wore gowns of yellow polyester, featuring a v-neckline and cape sleeves and empire waist. They wore head pieces of leaves of yellow tulle sprinkled with seed pearls and rhinestones, hanging to shoulder length. They carried nosegays of miniature yellow roses and carnations.

Food allergies can have several warning signals--and causes, Mrs. Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist, and milk, Mrs. Sweeten sug-

Reactions such as headache, nausea, swelling, itching or burning indicate a possible food allergy, she noted.

"These 'sensitivities' may occur because the food substance (called an allergen) contains some protein. But some researchers believe that starches, fats and other chemi- 3/4 cup soy flour cals may produce the reaction. "

Mrs. Sweeten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M Uni- F. (moderate). versity System.

One cause of a food sensitivity may be eating too much of that particular item. This is why it's unwise to follow fad diets calling for an excess of any one food, Mrs. Sweeten reminded.

"And frequently people who 'just don't like' certain foods really may be allergic to them. Nature's protective effort may be misinterpreted as just a whim or fancy--such as the preschooler who refuses to drink his milk.

"Or a teenager may be fully aware that when he eats chocolate he has a reaction such as a stomach ache, headache or bad skin condition.

"Any food giving mild symptoms should be placed on the suspect list, " the specialist

If family members seem sensitive to certain foods, the family physician or a specialist in allergic disease, can identify the exact allergies and prescribe the proper treatment, she noted.

Because nutritional needs of misture. an allergic person are the same as anyone else's, physicians usually recommend a diet based on the Four Food Groups -- but individually modified to the person's allergies.

"Remember to read prepared food labels carefully to see that the offending substance isn't contained. Foods

Crockett County Ranch Cleans Off Mesquite Enemy

(Submitted by Clitis H. Sinclair allow the seedlings to become well established. Moore said,

In January 1973 Henry G. Moore, Eldorado, Texas, developed a Great Plains Conservation Program Contract on his Buckhorn Ranch in the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District. The ranch is located 6 miles east of Midway Lane and south of Highway #29 along Buckhorn Draw in Crockett County.

Moore said, "Mesquite brush is the biggest enemy the rancher has. Clean up brush and with good management practices you can carry 25% or more livestock."

Moore has been a District Cooperator with Crockett S.W.C.D. since April 1962. Jpon inventorying his brush problems, he decided in 1973 to develop a GPCP Contract and schedule practices to combat the mesquite. The plan was developed by Moore with assistance from the Soil Conservation Service and the Crockett S. W. C. D. The plan and GPCP Contract scheduled the following conservation practices: Brush Management by tree dozing mesquite and associated species on 2374 acres; Range Seeding on this area by seeding disturbed areas to KR bluestem, kleingrass, sideoats grama and green sprangletop. Deferred Grazing was planned on seeded areas by removing all livestock during the growing season for two years following seeding. Proper Grazing Use and a Planned Grazing System were applied after grass establishment, using a two-pasture, one herd system. Under this system, a pasture is grazed 4 months and rested 4 months in rotation. Wildlife Upland Habitat Management is also scheduled in the plan. Moore is leaving all Liveoak, Hackberry, and other desirable brush for deer, turkey and quail for wildlife cover and food.

In 1973 Moore grubbed grass mixture. The pasture was rested during the 1973 and 1974 growing seasons to

GREAT GAS TANKS

You may not have to pay as much for your fuel in the future as you otherwise would have, thanks to some new, economical, technological ideas. Giant tankers and floating terminals for lique-

to help keep the cost of fuel down with the aid of special measuring instruments first developed for the Apollo space program.

The first such terminal will be moored in the Java Sea in the middle of a rich off-shore gas field. Petroleum gas, such as propane, will be fed to the terminal by underwater lines, converted into a liquid by refrigeration up to -50° F. and stored in special tanks.

Liquefaction greatly reduces the volume of the fuel, making transportation more economical and because the terminal's moored at sea, it's easier for the big tankers to load. Since they can carry so much more, transportation costs are less. The off-shore terminal will also make it possible to reclaim millions of dollars worth of precious fuel supplies formerly burned off as a waste product in underwater drilling operations.

To monitor this vital cargo, the people who build these gigantic terminals are using a total cargo instrumentation and control system developed by Simmonds Precision Products Inc. These measuring instruments provide accurate accounts, display and print-outs, of how much fuel is stored and how much is transferred from terminal to tanker, measuring the weight, temperature, number of gal-lons and density of the gas.

This enormous, ocean-going "gas station," it seems, could help put more energy into the American economy;

In 1975 Moore grubbed and seeded another 378 acres and is resting the pasture so that the grass can become established. In 1976 the balance of this pasture, 874 acres, will be grubbed and seeded, except for all Liveoak, Hackberry, and other desirable brush left for wildlife cover and food. Moore believes that the farmer's or rancher's objective is the same as the objectives of the GPCP. The Program provides a means of minimizing the hazards of farming and ranching brought on by erractic climate.

In certain ways it differs from other programs directed at conserving soil and water. It requires the farmer or rancher to develop a complete long-range plan for making the needed changes in his land use or in his cropping system needed to conserve soil and water resources. The farmer or rancher enters into an agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out the plan according to a schedule acceptable to the producer, but within a 10year time limit. All cost sharing for the entire job, ranging from 50 to 80 percent of the cost, is earmarked when the agreement is signed. Cost sharing is paid as the producer completes each step of his plan. Technical assistance by the Soil Conservation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture in planning and installing the conservation measures is at an accelerated rate.

Mrs. Montgomery, a local artist, lectured on art trends of the early America painters and re-acquainted members with the various artists of the past and their works. She then displayed some of her own works and described the different techniques used.

Other members present were Mmes. Bill Black. Bill Carson, Bob Childress, Dwight Childress, Buster Deaton, Bruce Hill, H. O. Hoover, Bruce Mayfield, Frank McMullan, Van Miller, Joe S. Pierce IV, Jack Probst, Nat Read, Billy Reagor, Charles Spieker, Jeffrey Sutton, Randy Upham, Gary Vannoy, Wesley West, and Tommy Wilson.

STAR-SPANGLED HISTORY

"SYMBOL OF FREEDOM"

The American flag, with its triumphant heraldry of stars and stripes symbolizing unity and growth, appears repeatedly throughout the works of Joseph Boggs Beale, the nineteenth century illustrator. The eagle represents the power and strength that has made our country the great nation it is today. Writers and artists of Beale's day saw the American past as an exciting and splendid adventure of individuals fighting courageously for freedom. These values, and the individuals who fought for them, are present in the images featured in the "Star-Spangled History" series. From the collection of American National Insurance Company, Galveston, Texas.

One track mind.

In the 1860's, Americans wanted to put their young country on the right track.

After several years, much hard work, and lots of money from government securities bought by Americans, the golden spike was driven at Promontory Point, Utah. On May 10, 1869, the east coast linked with the west.

an improved textile situation for cotton during 1975-76, Marlene Odle, a clothing specialist, reports.

While Texas produces about one-third of the nation's cotton, it only processes about one-fifth of the national total. Now a relatively new development--open-end spinning-makes Texas cotton more useful for clothing.

"This system can use shortstaple, low micronaire cotton to spin high-quality yarns and do it three to five times faster than the conventional ring spinning method.

ANSWERline: Scientists are learning more about possible industrial cancer hazards while some are already known. The recent discovery of unusual forms of cancer among chemical plant employees who were exposed to vinyl chloride has called additional public attention to this subject. into trouble. Unless we know better, we almost always spell them the way they are turned in to us, and that seems to be almost always wrong.

Nearly every week we run into this one "Why didn't you run my story or ad or whatever. Usually we grab a paper while balancing the phone under our chin and find the item in question in that paper nearly everytime. When we inform our caller where and what page, we usually get "Oh, guess I overlooked it." This doesn't always happen. Sometimes it really isn't there and when this happens, we never find it as a general rule. I can remember finding a personal we lost some weeks later when I was cleaning out a closet. It was firmly attached by wax to the sole of a shoe wore the day we put the paper out.

Then there are those who say "Why didn't you do a story about so and so. " We aren't mind readers and if nobody tells us about "so and so" and we don't hear it at the drug store, we really don't know about "so and so."

Other than that, we don't really have many problems around here, except when a piece of machinery breaks, and that's nearly every week.

(2) Laissez-faire attitude " towards giving of values, which rationale is that since no one value system is right for everyone, kids should be allowed to make up their own minds and "do their own thing." A fallacy here is that even though young people do not need adults running their lives for them, they do want and need help.

(3) Modeling rationale is for parents to present themselves as attractive models and the kids will see and want to adopt and emulate their values. They do live what they teach, which is good, but children these days are exposed to many different models - parents, teachers, friends, politicians, movie stars, counter-culture leaders, etc. and it is hard to sort out the pros and cons of these living models and establish values of their own.

(4) Values Clarification approach helps young people build their own value system. Because of increasing areas of confusion and conflict and a projection of even more decisions to be made in the future, it is felt this latter

The up-coming two day workshop on values clarification will be conducted on two Saturdays and will be a fun, learning experience, full of techniques and strategies to improve parent/child communication.

Because of the distance involved, it is necessary to have a committment of interested parents. Do you want to participate in this experience? Teachers, church youth leaders are invited and welcome. Write or call Norlene Kenison, 609 River Drive, San Angelo. TEXAS 76901, 915-653-5826

Foxworth's 75th Year Drawing To A Close

Observance of the 75th rear at Foxworth-Galbraith is drawing to a close. Tommy Harris, manager here in Ozona, comments "it is sort of like an important personal birthday because you hate to see it pass".

The lumber yard established in Stratford, Texas, in 1901 was the forerunner of today's Foxworth-Galbraith Building Materials Centers now serving a 4-state area. The recently published company brochure points out that lumber deliveries in those days were either in ox-drawn or mule-drawn wagons. Today's employees of Foxworth-Galbraith call themselves "people-helpers" and that seems to be a large part of their success story. Harris notes "the customer demand during the first oil boom created the initial surge of expansion for the company, and we have stayed to serve those and other communities with building materials". "We opened a yard in Arizona as early as 1919", says Harris. Currently there are over 50 Foxworth-Galbraith Building Materials Centers from East Texas to California and their 75th anniversary celebration will soon be concluded. Special merchandise features continue at present, and copies of the company pictorial brochure "The 75th Year" are still available at the local store. "Anniversaries pass quickly" says Harris, "so we'll just start working on the next 75
