THE STATE CAPITAL.

are visiting Texas for the first time. The new electric street car system is a perfect success and is making money. Arrangements are now being perfected for the location of a 40-ton rolling mill here which will employ about 400 men. Every-thing will probably be settled in a day or two. This enterprise will be followed at once by a bridge manufacturing concern and an agricultural implement works. Austin is determined it seems, to become a manufacturing center and her live business men are taking hold in earnest.

WHAT IS GOING ON AT AUSTIN AT THE PRESENT TIME.

The Fight Over the Commission Bill. Its Passage by the House. A Rolling Mill For Austin.

Austin, Tex., March 10, 1890.—The big fight over the commission bill is on. The war raged unceasingly all this week until the passage of the bill in the House. It opened out on Monday of this week. Of course there was an overwhelming majority in favor of a commission, but the kind of a commission it shall be is what caused the trouble. Hon. A. W. Terrell, of Travis, introduced a substitute bill in lieu of the Brown-Johnson bill and the house passed it, but it has been the recipient of a very gallant fire from the anti-commission members led by Judge Hamblen of Harris county and the members who are in favor of a conservative commission. Judge Terrell's bill provides for the appointment of the three railroad commissioners by the Governor, and there are a great many members who are violently opposed to such a policy and who favor a bill providing for the election of the commissioners by the people. They claim that it is a reflection upon the intelligence of the people to say that they are incompetent to elect men to serve in the capacity of railroad commissioners. They claim that the people seem to have sufficient intelligence to elect gov-ernors, and all other State officers and why not railroad commis-sioners also. They assert that it would be a species of paternalism to allow one man to absolutely control the railroad commission as the Gov-ernor would undoubtedly have the power to do, and to continue to appoint and dismiss men until he had secured the kind he wanted and could control. The appointive feature of the bill together with the fact that a secret caucus had "gagged" quite a number of legis-lators who are in favor of the elec-tion of commissioners was what caused the oratory to flow.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

A reunion of the blue and the gray at the World's Fair is pro-posed. The Glass trust has absorbed several of the goblet factories in Ohio. The benevolent Leonard Jerome of New York died near London, England. Commissioner Morgan has ad-vised against disarming the Indians in Dakota. The greatest rainfall this year is reported from Tennessee and Mis-sissippi. Unusually heavy snow-storms have cut off communication with Silverton and Durango, Col. W. J. Cowart, collector and sher-iff of Marion county, Miss., has ab-sorbed with the public fund. New York business men propose to raise $35,000 to erect an eque-strian statue of Gen. Sherman. Mrs. Sarah Belknap of Darden, Tenn., crept into the sleeping room of her two daughters and cut their throats and then cut her own. All three are dead.

UNWEPT, UNSUNG.

A DESPERADO TO FORTUNE AND TO FAME WELL KNOWN.

Jobbery Frowned Not on His Breadth of Girth, and Ignominy Claims Him For Her Own.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Read in his farewell address to-day as Speaker, had the swagger of a desperate outlaw making an address upon the scaffold. He was bold and defiant to the last, and deliv-ered a remarkable address. There was an appalling silence as his big, soggy form swayed to and fro in the folds of the carefully prepared remarks; and every word was lis-tened to with intense interest. He evidently felt keenly his failure to completely subvert the Govern-ment, and to make the Senate fol-low the course adopted by the House to pass infamous partisan legislation, and he shrewdly ap-pealed to the verdict of history for a vindication of the outrageous methods that have characterized the actions of the Congress just closed. In alluding to the efforts of the Republicans in behalf of "hu-man liberty," it was quite evident that Reed had his mind on the Force bill, which he tried so hard to have passed, and which ignominy-ously failed in the Senate, partly because of the poor opinion that many of the Republican Sena-tors have of Thomas Brackett Reed.

Most of the Republicans in the House applauded Reed's address. They had to do this, but it was a patent fact to any one who care-fully surveyed that side of the House that a large number of the Republi-cans absolutely refused to join in the Demonstrations. They have old scores with the tyrannical ex-speaker, and they were not in a humor to do honor to him. Of course, they voted for the resolu-tion to thank him for his "fair and impartial" rulings when most of them knew that he had been uni-formly unfair; and that Reed through-out the fifty-first Congress had been tyrannical and overbear-ing as well as Democrats. It was a peculiar proceeding for McKinley, the recognized leader of the major-ity, to offer the resolution. It has been the custom for a century in this country for some member of the minority to offer such a resolu-tion, but there was not a Democrat willing to extend this courtesy, and, on the yea and naye vote demanded by Mr. Mills, every Democrat re-corded himself as being of the opin-ion that Reed has not been fair and impartial in his rulings. Many of the Democrats have from the floor denounced him as a tyrant and would-be Czar, and in the years to come the record will show what a poor opinion the Democrats have of Reed.

Doing Educates.

Actual work in making things in the school-room is for the definite purpose of training the intellect. The work the pupil does must com-pel him to deliberate, reason and apply his knowledge. The civi-lization of the world to-day is due to the men who have made things, and are making things. There is no doubt at all that the growing appreciation of the beautiful, and the growing regard for culture is due to the union of thought and ac-tion; in other words, the co-educ-a-tion of mind and action. Practi-cal experience is most valuable, and it is important that it should come as early as possible in a school course of study. Experience is what? In our overcoming ob-stacles by encountering them, and conquering them. The boy who trains his mind so that he can do-velop two pieces of wood together perfectly, has gained a definite amount of intellectual power that could not be gained any where else. This work is not done that he may become a carpenter, but that he may become a man. As soon as the learner can do anything well let him then stop doing that and go at something else. In this way he will get an all-sided culture. But the objector says, "We cannot get hope, joy, peace and love through doing." We answer: These things are the direct fruits of such work. Joy comes from accomplished work, successful work gives joy; and we love all helpers to our joy. The love of God fills our hearts only when He does something for us that proves his love. An abstract God can never be loved; he must become concrete. All evidence goes to show that it is only through doing that the heart is to be made better, that the world is improved, and that the sum of the abstract qualities can be increased in intensity and pow-er. The workshop in education has come to be a means of grace, not for the trades, but for the world; and it is apparent that but a few years will elapse before a workshop will be a part of every school-room.—Teachers' Institute.

Human Ferararity.

"How long have young Swack-hammer and Miss Peckinpough been engaged?"
 "For about five years."
 "Fond of each other?"
 "Been sweethearts from child-hood."
 "In good circumstances?"
 "The only children of wealthy parents."
 "Health good?"
 "Both sound as a dollar."
 "Then why don't they marry?"
 "Why, the old folks have got it down in their wills that they're to marry; there's $20,000 in bank that they'll get whenever they do the plans are drawn for the house they're to live in, and the Swack-hammer and Peckinpough fam-ily. There hasn't been any oppor-tunity. That's all"—Gibbs, The Sun.

French & Chamberlain for drugs. Dr. John Gary of Groveton is visiting our city this week.

COURIER and Weekly Constitution for $2.25 per year.

There is a dancing school in progress in Crockett.

If your gun needs overhauling, take it to John Lunceford.

Haring keeps the freshest and purest line of drugs in the city.

If you want the Gequide Groves Chill Tonic, get it from Haring.

We notice Mr. Wm. Patton of Tadmore on our streets this week.

Miss Cora Martin of Grapeland, spent a few days in our city this week.

Mr. John Maxey of Lovelady was a pleasant caller at this office this week.

Haring does undoubtedly keep the finest and best perfumes in the city of Crockett.

There have been quite a crowd of people in town this week in attendance on court.

Miss Tida Pritchard who has been sick with a severe attack of la-grippe, is recovering.

A. A. Chapman of Dublin and Judge Lindsey of Comanche are in the city this week on legal business.

A little son of Mrs. Hurt's who lives near Crockett, was thrown from a mule last Saturday and had his leg broken.

Haring wants your trade, and as an inducement, offers the purest drugs at the lowest prices. Give him a call.

Misses Lillie and Hennie Leaverton, and Miss Cora Martin of Grapeland, and Miss Bulah Lacy were pleasant callers at the office this week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Leaverton and daughter Miss Lillie have returned from Grapeland where they have been spending a few days with friends.

Mr. Leighty of Franklin, Texas, who is to fill the vacancy made by the transfer of Mr. Holder our former railroad agent, has arrived with his family.

We notice among the visitors to town this week, Messrs. M. C. Dupuy and J. H. Ratcliff of Coltharp and Wm. Smith of Grapeland and H. W. Oneil of Pennington.

Vander Plummer who lives west of Grapeland, near Trinity river had his dwelling house burned on Monday morning. Every thing in the house of much value was saved.

Miss Cora Jones of Galveston, who has been visiting the family of Col. Nunn, returned home Saturday last. She leaves, a host of friends here who will not soon forget her.

Prof. H. A. Cotton will be at the Opera Hall Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock to organize his dancing class for ladies and misses, commencing next week; Tuesday for the first lesson.

Mr. A. Slowoski, who formerly lived and did business in Crockett, is visiting our town this week, on business. Slow as he is popularly called is as genial as ever and it affords his many friends here pleasure to meet him again.

Send in your communications to THE COURIER, most everybody likes to see something from his own community; and besides it is something like advertising, a letter from your section seen often in the county paper attracts attention to that section.

Mr. Rice Maxey was in the city this week on legal business. Rice looks well and reports that he is getting along well. He is as social and genial as ever, and seems pleased to meet his many friends here who always welcome his visits with pleasure.

The scare about the two cases of small pox at Porter's Springs has blown over. Our city council had our marshal to go down and make investigation, and he found that the party sick had been no where out of the county and that he had had no opportunity to contract the disease.

We are informed by one of our Grapeland friends that the amount has been raised by subscription to build their New Academy. This is very commendable in that community, and denotes their enterprise and good judgment, nothing gives stability to a town like good schools and churches.

IN MEMORIAM. There are events in our lives that call upon us to halt and deliberate and take retrospect; so in the annals of communities events transpire that are full of food for profitable reflection if we will but take the time to consider them for our own good and that of the community in which we live.

Such we regard the departure of the noble Mrs. Stuart whose sudden death is a bereavement not only to her immediate family, but also to every appreciative heart in the midst of the scenes of her busy, active and benevolent life.

Enough has already been said to attest the universal esteem in which she was held by the community. But much more might be said with immense profit to those who would emulate her noble example.

Her's was no ordinary character in any community. It should be treasured in the hearts and memories of all that had the good fortune to know her as the richest jewel of ennobling virtues. To depict her character would be to narrate the incidents of her daily life, not signalized by any grand and dazzling achievement, but marked by a steadfast perseverance in the performance of every social duty, impelled by a conscience and religious conviction that never wavered and always controlled and directed by a clear and discriminating mind, which in judgement and discretion, was singularly free from fault or error, her life was one of radiance and beauty, a moral perfection that could be but loved and adored by all who knew her.

Free from the faintest semblance of ostentation; self denying and unselfish to the very extreme; energetic to full measure, even beyond her physical powers; faithful to the last farthing in every obligation legal or moral; duty always readily embraced and cheerfully performed without stint; kind and charitable to all; and living up to every profession in her daily walk, she was the embodiment of all the christian virtues presenting for our contemplation and emulation a character so pure, so noble and true as to command the adoration of our every heart.

I dare say there is not a single family in this community in whose midst she has not appeared in hours of affliction and distress, as the ministering angel to relieve suffering, to soothe and comfort the afflicted and to point the way of a better life.

Mrs. Stuart was born on July 30, 1839 in Wytheville, Wynth county state of Virginia. Her maiden name was Nannie Hanson and she married John H. Stuart who survives her, on September A. D. 1857. Mrs. Stuart's parents were in comfortable circumstances and her husband possessed wealth, but the havoc of war left them penniless. They came to Texas and settled in the town of Crockett May 16, 1869. Since which time Mrs. Stuart has devoted herself to teaching music. In these and other duties she was actively engaged up to the last moments of her life having been stricken suddenly by exhaustion of vital powers. In her life and death is beautifully illustrated the adage; "It is not all of life to live or all of death to die."

We never knew any one who more firmly believed in this sentiment and solemn truth than our departed friend Mrs. Stuart. Will not the example she set and the influence of her life, especially with the generation that has grown up under her tutelage continue to glow and radiate in their hearts and be transmitted to succeeding generations to the end that those yet unborn will not fall of benefit from her noble mission in life.

"A perfect woman nobly planned To warn, comfort and command."

She died as she had lived, with full faith in a better life hereafter, and while sadness attends her departure we don't doubt "our loss is her gain, and that she is this day basking in the delights of a purer, freer and better life in the spirit land. "Requiescat in pacem."

A Noteworthy Exception. From the Kimball (G. D.) Graphic.

While the columns of the Graphic are open to any and all unobjectionable advertisements, yet it is quite impossible for us to speak knowingly of the merits of the various articles of merchandise advertised. Particularly is this true of patent medicines. But there are exceptions occasionally and a noteworthy exception is the celebrated Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

This now universally known medicine has been advertised in the Graphic for four or five years but not until recently had we any personal knowledge of its wonderful efficacy which has come about through the prevailing influenza and the stubborn cough that has so often attended it. In the writer's family this medicine has on several occasions this winter cured a cough that baffled any and all other remedies; and the number of families in Kimball and vicinity, in which this remedy has been used with like effects, attests to its value as a specific for coughs and colds of every nature.—Sold by French & Chamberlain.

FARMERS, LABORERS AND THE PEOPLE ALLIED BY ALLIANCE MEN.

A Short Dozen of Members of the Order, Some of Them Legislators, Issue the address.

Austin, Texas, March 4.—We, the undersigned members of the Farmer's Alliance of Texas, come before the people with facts that ought to be known.

The grand principles of the order are as enduring as time. Their very grandeur adds to the calamity caused by any violation of them. They are being and have been violated by the very men in whom we have most trusted.

Our purpose in this is to appeal to every alliance man to assist in purifying our noble order of these men who have disgraced us; robbed us; and who do not deserve any man's confidence and sympathy.

Let us labor for the education of the agricultural classes, in the science of economical government in a strictly non-partisan spirit. Equal rights to all and special privileges to none, should be our motto.

Therefore, we should stand for a government that is of the greatest good to the greatest number; a government of the people, for the people, and by the people.

These leaders did not stop at this. Prior to the late State alliance, their trusted and too willing and pernicious satellites bushwhacked Texas and secured the election of a sufficient number of delegates to the State alliance to pack that body in their interest; make it a tool of nefarious schemes and secure its quasi endorsement of the subversive plan; not only this but they waited until a large number of delegates (some 76) had gone home, keeping the willing tools on hand—when they fraudulently and by false pretence secured control of our organ—all that was left to the order. And to do this the chairman at the hour of midnight—when three of the members were in bed—from the promise that question should not come up, he allowed it to be brought up, and on a tie vote the acting chairman cast the deciding vote of the delegate from Young county, who had gone home three days before.

This shameful fraud was perpetrated for the purpose of making it defend their nefarious past and future, since the time named the Mercury has so defended them. Their leaders and their organ has time and again been challenged to answer grave charges of falsehood, fraud and trickery against farmers, as committed by the leaders and endorsed by the Mercury.

They have all avoided meeting any of these issues squarely and honestly, and hence, in the eyes of the world, must stand convicted. The action of these leaders steering legislative committee (which one of the executive says never was appointed except by the president), now at the capital, is enough to disgrace any order and condemn them in the eyes of all honest men in Texas.

Our purpose in this is to appeal to every alliance man to assist in purifying our noble order of these men who have disgraced us; robbed us; and who do not deserve any man's confidence and sympathy.

Let us labor for the education of the agricultural classes, in the science of economical government in a strictly non-partisan spirit. Equal rights to all and special privileges to none, should be our motto.

Therefore, we should stand for a government that is of the greatest good to the greatest number; a government of the people, for the people, and by the people.

Our paper, which was once the pride of every alliance man, not only in Texas but in the entire South, when it was edited by Texans and spoke the sentiments of Texas people, is now a failure. No longer can sentiments contrary to the management of that paper meet with recognition from its columns.

These leaders did not stop at this. Prior to the late State alliance, their trusted and too willing and pernicious satellites bushwhacked Texas and secured the election of a sufficient number of delegates to the State alliance to pack that body in their interest;

THE LIME-KILN CLUB.

Some time since, as Samuel Shin was cleaning up Paradise Hall in readiness for the usual weekly meeting, he flung a pan of ashes out of one of the windows fronting on McKinley Bill alley, and the same descended upon the head of Col. Inquirer Jones, who was about to enter the hall.

There has been bad blood between the pair in consequence, or, rather, the colonel has wasted a great deal of time in trying to catch Samuel in some lonely locality. Odds of ten to one have been given that he would succeed, but at the last meeting, to the surprise of everybody, he walked up to Brother Shin and extended his hand and waved the flag of peace.

This action was brought about by a telegram announcing the death of his mother in North Carolina. Two hours later he heard that she had been dead thirteen years when the telegram was sent, but he was not the man to go back on his word.

ABOUT LANGUAGE. "Gien'ten," said Brother Gardner as the meeting came to order. "I hev a few words of advice to offer which I hope will be cheerfully listened to an' impudently considered. I has observed a tendency on de part of many members of dis club to affect what may be termed de Shakspearean style of conversation. It comes from de white folks, of co'se—from dat class who has bin suddenly elevated by de profits of a sewer contract, an' should be set down on wid de most vigorous disqualification. It hain't in keepin' wid de financial an' social standin' of a man who has to blacken an' lay on whitewash at an average income of seven dollars a week. I want it stopped.

[Judge Cahoots, Whyfore Davis, Independence Jones and others began to look very serious.]

"For instance," continued the president, "chow many members of dis club know de meanin' of de term: To gnosticate towards de emblematical individuality?" an' yit, at de party given at my house de odder night, I heard it uttered no less dan fo'orten times. What's de use of a man airin' a dollar a day observin' dat he speaks to de descendent to de irresponsible end; deodor befo, spring? Heedon know wher it means dat cranberries an' wine up to fo'ly cents a quart or will drop down to six, an' his hearer goes home an' can't keep fur thinkin' about it. Sich conversation simply impudates a man's disinclination to absorb de proper desideratum.

[Ripples of excitement with suppressed cries of "Hear! Hear!"]

"If any of you," continued the president as he laid aside his coat, "has an ideah dat de yuse of stiel words as bombastic, delirium tremens, Cato, impugne, retaliator, Dantes, Boston, impugne, retaliator, Post-master-General elevates you in de corruptible an' imperious estimashun of Vanderbilt an' Gould you is precariously mistaken. When a member of dis club comes to me at' vantage to berry a tablespoonful of 40 cent green tea, kase de preacher an' gwine to be to his cabin fur supper, I want him to sot down on de aige of a cheer, look me in de eye, an' giv it to me in plain English. He needn't expect me to heap up de measure becase he uses rich words as abdicate, abscquatulate, Caesarian an' primeval inculcate. [More ripples, during which Col. Cahoots managed to kick Sir John Smythe on the shin, and thus say off an old grudge.]

"If I had a son 20 y'ars ole," said the president as he looked up and down the aisles, "an' he should cum home some day wid his white-wash brush on his shoulder an' in'form me dat de gratificashun of de incomparable syntax had with drawn its objekshuns to de planetary afliashun, do you know what I would do? I would riz up an' put my No. 13's agin him wid such auxiliary reprehensibility dat he would percolate de longitudinal cumulative fur six weeks to cum. Dar' bein' no fuder business befo' de club until its recent communication to de Legislature" an' answered, we will redumate homewards."—Detroit Free Press.
