

Nine cents for cotton in gold and under the gold standard. Who would ever have thought it?

If the legislature will pass a law to stop the prize fight we will wager double odds to times that the young governor stops it.

What will become of free silver and its advocates? Their arguments are all demolished by the great advance in cotton.

If the Crockett oil mill fails for want of seed the farmers of the county will fall prey to foreign corporations.

It is almost impossible to get along or through the streets of Crockett on account of the improvements. Is there another town in East Texas or elsewhere which can say the same thing?

Judge Burnett has three colored members on his grand jury. He avoided the race issue and coloring as much as he could by getting three as near white as it was possible to get them.

McLean and Wilson have opened up in their new building. This is one of the nicest finished houses in town, the shelving and counters are home manufacture being made by the skilled hand of Mr. Ed Taylor.

Houston county is in better shape than it has been in many years. There is more in it for man and beast to eat than ever before. The cotton crop, while short, realizes fully as much as last year's crop.

In his effort to suppress such brutal sport as prize-fighting Governor Culberson is entitled to the support of all the good citizens of the state. He stands for the state's virtue, manhood and good name in this controversy.

The farmers of Houston county are as much interested in sustaining the oil mill at Crockett as those who have put money in the enterprise. Looking at it in this light why should they take their seed to agents of foreign mills and give them the preference.

Nine cent cotton causes smiles to come to the face of even populists. In fact we know of none who are not benefited by it and who do not rejoice over it except the third-party agitator whose calling is ruined by the advance.

The Jacksonville Banner has been forced to an all home print on account of so "dog-gone" much advertisement, and it has to issue a supplement each week to supply the demand. Wouldn't the COURIER feel funny to be forced to such a thing. It will do it, though, if it is necessary.

The contest next year will be no easy one. Four cent cotton last year made the fight a hard one. Next years cotton will open at nine to eleven cents. A man who is getting eight to ten cents for his cotton is in no humor to be "monkeyed" with by one of these populist agitators.

Here is a chance for one of the steam laundry boys, Hip Sing Lee, of San Jose, Cal., a wealthy Chinese merchant of that city, offers a half interest in his extensive merchandise business and $5,000 in cash to any reputable young American who will marry his daughter Mai. Hip Sing's fortune is estimated at from $50,000 to 100,000.

A check drawn to the order of Gen. Geo. A. Custer, was found on the streets of Bismark, N. D., a few days ago. The check is still unpaid, and soiled and tattered though it be, constitutes a valid claim against the government for the amount represented on its face, which no doubt was intended as part payment of General Custer's salary. The amount of the check is $1,500 and was drawn on the day of the great massacre. The check was forwarded to Mrs. Custer last week, and where it has been these many days no one knows.

District Court opened Monday morning with James R. Burnett on the bench. Leading populists from all parts of the country gathered in for the purpose, we presume, of witnessing the inauguration of populism in all its glory and grandeur as exhibited on the bench and in the jury box. Nearly every prominent pop. except "Grand-Ma" LaRue, was here and "the old lady" we guess must have got her dates mixed or she would have been on hand too. Charley Waddell and Babe LaRue were here gazing on in wild-eyed wonderment and surprise self satisfaction at the turn things had taken and by their looks said: "Now say we haven't done something. Just look at us. The day of the coming of our political redemption is at hand at last!"

A Word for Cotton Planters and Farmers.

It is hoped that the lesson of the year will not be lost on the cotton planters and that they will consider carefully some timely suggestions of President Peters of the American cotton growers' protective association of Texas in his recent address. The association, as President Peters says, has effected great good to the producers of cotton. 1. In causing a reduction in the acreage planted in cotton. 2. In calling the attention of cotton growers to the fact that a small crop will bring more money than a large crop to the average grower of cotton. "Last year," continues the address, "a crop of 9,000,000 bales that averaged 4 1/2 cts., or $22.50 per bale, brought about $25,000,000 less than the present crop will at $37.50 per bale—present prices in the interior or farmer's market. Besides increasing our acreage in corn brought us to our present prosperous condition, where we are able to hold our cotton and sell same as it is needed and at a price satisfactory to ourselves." Many farmers are not ardent traders. They are apt to lose on what they sell as well as things they buy. It is far better for these to raise at home all they can and trade less. It is, in fact, the only way for them to succeed and become independent. In President Peters' address it is further notably observed and suggested: "At present our cribs are full and over, our lots are full of hogs and we will make enough bacon for home consumption, and next year let there be a reduction of at least 10 per cent in the cotton acreage and a corresponding increase in wheat, corn and other feed crops. Let us supply the packers of Fort Worth and Dallas with all the hogs they can use and have some to ship to Kansas and Missouri. With the present organization continued and strengthened and a uniform reduction in acreage in cotton made next year, there is no doubt that cotton will bring at least 10 cents and probably 12 cents a pound, and we will have as much corn and feed as at present and the material and financial benefits that will accrue to the south and Texas are too numerous to mention." That farmers will find it profitable to diversify their crops there can certainly be no question. There are other reasons for doing so. There is little to satisfy the heart of man in monotony of any sort. There is certainly a wholesome stimulus of mental occupation and industrial routine in the ordinary cotton plantation. Why not do something to make life brighter on the farm by varying the service, changing the scenery, creating some additional interest and entertainment? Why become a slave to cotton when other crops require less care, demand less risk and pay quite as well? It is to be hoped that the spirit of enterprise that is leading Texas farmers to diversify their crops will continue to grow stronger. Upon this much of the independence, peace and pleasure of rural life depends. There is no reason why the country house, the farm, should not be made the most desirable of all dwelling places. While some of the farmers may not have thought of it, it is nevertheless true that the best and perhaps the only way to make it such is to reduce the cotton field to a cotton patch and devote more time to cattle and stock, to dairy and poultry, and to the careful cultivation of the largest possible variety of convenient and available crops, including the whole range of marketable fruits and vegetables. Of course vigilance should be exercised toward adjusting the products of the farm, the garden and the orchard to immediate market demands so as to avoid the waste involved in absolute surplus. But while the circumspect and thrifty farmer is one who will diligently watch the markets and be alert to seize their opportunities, he is also one who will not haughtily repulse the offer of present opportunity to sell at a sure and substantial profit and yield to the temptations of imaginative cupidty to plunge into a game of speculation in futures. That way lies only dead sea crops of confusion and miscarriage, disaster and sorrow.—Galveston News.

As a rule, boys are not good judges of their own fitness for a given calling. Before the railroad whistle became a nuisance, nine out of every ten boys hoped some day to become stage drivers and handle the reins over four or six fat horses and wake the morning echoes with a huge bugle. Afterwards the position of locomotive engineer supplanted the stage box in the aspirations of the average small boy. Of the remaining one in ten, some want to be telephone linemen so they can climb the tall poles and look down upon the crawling multitude below; some want to be telegraph operators, circus riders or clowns, and at the mature age of fifteen some want to be teachers, some preachers, some doctors, some carpenters, and we have heard of some who deliberately chose the avocation of agriculture. Don't permit the boy to select his field of action too early, or without the salutary advice that age should be able to give.—Farm and Ranch.

are proceeding to do, bring about general stagnation in prices of all products, charge it all up to the treasury notes and greenbacks which are redeemed in gold, and then congress will be urged to issue gold bonds to the amount of $500,000,000 for the purpose of retiring all money except gold.—Ex.

The way to build up a county or county town is to stand by home enterprise. The way to stand by home enterprise is to support them as a matter of preference over those who do no business here, pay no taxes here and do nothing to build up home interests. We intend the above for the farmers of Houston county who have cotton seed to sell. Help the home mill. They pay you the same money.

E. corner of the public square and opposite the Pickwick Hotel will be completed and we will move our immense stock of hardware, groceries etc. therein. Where Caesar's Fortune Went. In the year 119 B. C. the Lex Maria was adopted in Rome, and under its provisions narrow bridges were constructed leading to the polling booths, the object being to prevent voters from being interfered with by the partisans of the candidates. Enormous sums were spent by candidates for office, and many excellent men, including Caesar and Mark Antony, were crippled financially owing to the extravagant sums they had to lay out in bribery and election expenses.

A Large Tomb.
Another mastodon, at least the well preserved skeleton of one, has been discovered at Altoon, Ill., by workmen engaged in digging a sewer. The remains were 40 feet below its original level of the ground, embedded in a clay bank. One of the teeth recovered weighed twenty-five pounds. Most of the bones of the head and neck have been taken out, and it is thought that the rest will be easily recovered.

A Happy Woman.
At last I am a well and happy woman again; thanks to McIlre's Wine of Cardui. I have suffered for four years from weakness of the most horrible kind. Twelve years ago I went to the San Antonio hospital, where they performed an operation, but it left me in a worse state than ever. I went to Dr. Klingler and Dr. D. V. Young, but they gave me little relief. After spending $125.00 I was not able to leave my bed and most of the time suffered pains to equal a thousand deaths. On the tenth of last October my friend Mrs. Stevens advised me to try McIlre's Wine of Cardui. The first bottle did me good and I got more, and to-day I am a new woman; am able to do all my cooking and housework. I am running a boarding house and doing all the work myself. I still use the Wine, and always keep it in the house—it saved my life.

We have a high appreciation of the value of rye for pasture in the late fall, early winter and spring. We have also found rye quite the most desirable grain with which to sow grass seed. The drought of this summer makes the question of fall and winter pasture one of great importance in many sections of the country. If the dry weather continues it will be difficult to get a satisfactory growth of any crop. Rye is, of all the grains usually grown, the most hardy. It withstands drought, it is much less liable to injury during the winter, is relatively less injured by trampling and grazing, starts growing early in the spring, may often be pastured several weeks in the spring and then allowed to grow up, making fairly good hay, if cut green, or giving a reasonable yield of grain. Or it may be plowed under in time for a corn crop. The other point in favor of rye is that it will be an or in the soil for a long time without much injury, growing readily when the conditions become favorable. The value of green feed in the late fall and early winter is very great. The strong argument in favor of the silage is that this more closely resembles the succulent food of summer than any other of the common ruminants of stock food. Many farmers will find no other so cheap and easy mode of securing green food as by sowing rye in early autumn. The corn has been cut for feeding or where early varieties are cut for ensilage or for silage, the ground may be sown with rye, which, of course, it should be in good condition. These plans, however, would usually prevent the sowing of rye as early as is desirable. Plowing stubble ground or using land that has produced a crop of early potatoes will be advisable in many cases. We believe it would be a help to our agriculture if the acreage of rye was considerably increased.—Farmers.

Shade for Chickens.
The run of a raspberry patch is an ideal shade and scratching ground for little chicks. But in some places there is not a tree or shrub at hand to be had. A simple and effective method is to use a material that will retain all its ammonia, and the insoluble portions are reduced and rendered more available as a plant food.—Rural Press.

Another Substitute for Wool.
Under the heading, "Vegetable Wool," the Wool and Cotton Reporter gives the following facts about the new substitute:
"It is the fiber of a shrub in Peru called Peruvian cotton. It has a rough feel and a woolly effect in goods. In cotton and wool mixes 20 per cent more Peruvian than cotton is used and the same effect achieved. It is used largely in hosiery, also in blankets and underwear."
"It is rapidly increasing. Its first use here was in 1885 or 1886, when fifty bales of 180 pounds each were used. In 1887 and 1883 9000 bales were used in this country. It is said to take the place of wool rather than cotton. It is worked into several grades, ranging in price from 9.34 to 12 cents per pound. Let us hear of it in the future."—Orange Judd Farmer.

Feed Regularly.
It is not a good plan to keep food for a stock of hens all the time. If this is done they will get fat and lazy, and do not take enough exercise to keep them in laying condition. The best plan to have a fixed time for feeding fowls, especially at night, and not feed them at irregular intervals. When they are fed at about the same time every evening they will soon learn when to come for it, and will be thrown into them at all sorts of times, they will come rushing around you as soon as you make your appearance. It is better to feed them at regular intervals, and many of them will stay close to the house all day, in expectation of being fed. If it is not possible to feed them at regular intervals, it is better to feed them at about the same time every evening. If it is not possible to feed them at regular intervals, it is better to feed them at about the same time every evening.

The Hessian Fly.
Owing to the prevalence and destructiveness of the Hessian fly this year, concerted efforts should be made to prevent a recurrence of its ravages upon the next wheat crop. In order to prevent a serious attack of the fly, the following measures should be adopted:
Thoroughly burn all fly-infested stubble in which the fly has been found to prevent a recurrence of its ravages upon the next wheat crop. Prepare very early a border, one or two rods wide, around each field of wheat, and sow the same to wheat in August. Turn this border under very late, using a jointer, following with roll and harrow and then sow the entire field.
By taking this course, many of the insects which escape the fire will be burned under, and a late sowing of the general crop will avoid serious attacks of any remaining "fly."—Farm News.

Keep One Breed.
The farmer who would indiscriminately cross his stock, breeding to first one breed and then another, would not be called wise, and this applies to poultry as well as to other stock. Select a breed and stick to it, for there is not so much in the breed as in the care. If the stock is mongrel to begin with, bred to pure-bred males all the time, and constant improvement will be made. If it is pure-bred, do not breed to some other breed, for whatever benefit may be derived from the first cross will be lost in the next, for the second generation will be mongrels and will lose the valuable points of their ancestors very often. Constant improvement along all lines should be the rule.—Farm News.

A Cheap Corn Cutter.
A cheap corn cutter, to be operated by one horse, is the homemade contrivance illustrated herewith. It costs next to nothing and does excellent work, cutting one row at a time. The drag was made from old lumber in the back yard, and the knife which cuts the ears is a twenty-six inches long was welded by a blacksmith for 25 cents out of two old plow shares, and 15 cents worth of bolts finished the job. No one with two or more acres of corn to cut can afford to use the hand knife.—J. A. Pettis, Crawford Co., Iowa.

Effects of Oil Meal on Butter.
Lined oil meal tends to produce a soft, oily butter and to impart its flavor. Cotton seed oil tends to produce a hard, crumbly butter, and is more objectionable than oil meal in the butter of flavor. However, limited quantities of either do not produce very material damage, but do tend to considerably increase the product, especially when the protein contents of the balance of the ration is low. The oil meal is an excellent stomachic as well, and serves to promote digestion. It has a mildly laxative effect, and therefore tends to overcome the binding effects of dry winter fodder. Cotton seed meal does not get this way.—George's Dairyman.

Using Poultry Manure.
Poultry manure is an excellent plant food. Fowl-keepers who have their fruit and vegetable gardens should aim to save every particle of it. It is one of the strongest and best fertilizers known. Its full value depends on how it is kept. As most droppings are produced at night, the greatest supply will be where the fowls roost.

TOLD BY A SOCIETY GIRL.
Something About Morphine, Sulphur, Molasses and Other Things.
From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.
Among the popular society leaders in East Orange, N. J., Emma L. Stoll, a charming young maiden, stands in the foremost rank. She is of a lovable disposition and the light of the social set in which she moves. For two years she has been a sick girl from internal troubles peculiar to women, and having recently recovered, has given our readers the following interesting account:
"Instead of improving under the care of physicians I became worse. For five weeks I was unable to get out of bed and about six o'clock each morning I suffered horribly. My lips were sore and coated with the marks of my teeth, for in my efforts to keep from screaming I sank my teeth deep into my lips. At such times I rolled and tossed until the bed shook like an aspen and it finally got so serious that the doctor—I won't tell you his name—gave me some morphine pills. The very thought of them now makes me shiver. These morphine pills simply put me to sleep for awhile and I became more conscious again my agony was renewed."
The pain in my stomach and back was more than I could stand. My blood, poor, said the doctor, "take sulphur and molasses." I took it for a week, but I was not a molasses cake. It was time wasted in taking it because I was not feeling in the least my suffering continued, but by a mighty effort after being in bed for a week I got up. Oh, how I suffered! From 119 pounds I had fallen to ninety; my cheeks were pale and sunken and my hair was falling out. I was in the extreme pain of my side. Then I read of "Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" and the ground across supports as shown in the picture. I got the pills and took them for a week. I felt better. I had proved before I had finished one box I felt as if I could go out and walk for miles. I stopped taking the pills.
