Poison Poison lyy BOTANICAL

Their Sting Sets the Skin on Fire and Fills the Veins with a Violent, Lingering Poison

These plants seem to partake of the nature and character of the serpent; in winter time being comparatively harmless, but when warmed into life by spring and summer heat they become extremely venomous and spiteful, emitting a milky juice that burns and blisters like a fiery acid, producing quick inflammation and painful swelling. Some persons are so susceptible to these vegetable poisons that coming in their vicinity will produce almost as much discomfort and pain as handling them; their thin and sensitive skins seem to absorb from the surrounding atmosphere the acrid juices emanating from these plants. There is seldom a picnic or family gathering in the woods but that some member of the party comes in contact with Poison Ivy, Oak or some other hurtful plant or weed, and through the open pores the poison is carried to the overheated blood. Poison Ivy is found clinging to tree trunks,

BLOOD SATURATED WITH POISON OAK. Mr. John Friel, of Bear Station, Del., writes: "I was poisoned with poison oak which went through my blood, and my condition became so serious that the doctors all said I could not get well. I remained in a precarious condition, confined to the house, for six months, when I saw S. S. S. advertised and began its use, soon realizing that it was doing me good. I continued the medicine and was cured entirely. I think it the best blood medicine made."

fences or rocks, sometimes reaching great heights; the leaves are nearly square in shape, smooth and shiny and three on each stem; the flowers are of a greenish white color, and the berries pale green or white. The Oak is a small shrub, seldom more than three feet high, its size depending upon the nature of the soil, location, etc.; the leaves are long and pointed with sawlike edges and a downy appearance underneath. While the two plants are entirely unlike RETURNED EVERY SPRING FOR 18 YEARS.

in appearance, the poisonous effects are very similar. After the swelling subsides the skin remains for a long Mrs. A. N. Bennett, of Toccoa, Ga., whose case is similar to thousands of others who come in contact with these plants, says: "When eight years old my little brother and I were poisoned by handling poison oak, and it broke out on us every spring for eighteen years. Some one recommended S. S. S., which cured us completely, and we have seen no signs of the cruptions for several seasons. time in a rough and inflamed condition, dotted here and there with bad looking ulcers and little festering sores. It is truly remarkable with what regularity and certainty the disease returns, and always on schedule time, appearing the same month, day and hour, almost, that it did the year before. Don't be deceived should all the signs of the poison vanish soon after the first attack—the acrid juices have been taken through the open skin pores into the blood, and the most persistent and faithful use of external remedies can never dislodge them, and next season, and for years to come, you may expect to endure the same bodily tortures; the blood in the meantime becoming so saturated and charged with the poison that each succeeding attack leaves the body weaker and recovery more uncertain and slow, and thus the once simple malady ends disastrously.

For every poisonous plant, tree, shrub or flower, nature has wisely provided an antidote or cure. The roots and herbs of which S. S. S. is composed quickly, surely and permanently overcome and drive out of the blood and system the effects of Poison Ivy, Poison Oak, Virginia Creeper, Thunder Weed, Sumac and vegetable poisons of every variety. S. S. S. will be found an invaluable and perfect antidote for poisons of this class. There is never any return of the aggravating symptoms after a course of S. S. S., as it destroys every vestige of the poison.

Don't abandon hope because of repeated failures. State your case to our doctors; we feel sure they can help you. Medical advice will cost you nothing and is strictly confidential. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga

Every woman loves to think of the time when a soft little body, all her own, will nestle in her bosom, fully satisfying the yearning which lies in the heart of every good woman. But yet there is a black cloud havering about the pretty picture in her mind which fills her with terror. The dread of childbirth takes away much of the joy of motherhood. And yet it need not be so. For sometime there has been upon the market, well-known has been upon the market, well-known and recommended by physicians, a liniment called which makes childbirth as simple and easy as nature intended it. It is a strengthening, penetrating liniment, which the skin readily absorbs. It gives the muscles elasticity and vigor, prevents sore breasts, morning sickness and the loss of the girlish figure. REVENCE IS SWEET.

What Happened When Patience Had Ceased to be a Virtue.

There is an unusually quiet citizen up near the crown of Piety hill who is just now thinking a great deal of himself. One of his neighbors has three pet dogs. When separated they are well behaved and considerate to strangers, but when together they seem to regard it as an imperative duty to try to eat any agent or other strange caller at the house. After they had bitten three little children belonging to the quiet citizen, torn his wife's best gown, and snapped at him while he crossed the lot, he decided that duty as a husband and father called for action on his part. One evening he reached the house with a bulldog, bred in the purple, and much to be admired because he was so excruciatingly ugly. In a few days he followed his master wherever he went. Thus assured, the man made a call on his neighbor with the three pets. The French bull wanted to play, and cut great antics in trying to entice the trio into the game. They just snarled, showed their teeth and darted at him when the opening seemed favorable. Finally he was bitten on the end of his stub tail by the Scotch terrier, and he made a rush that his master checked in time. "Let him go," urged the host. "He's not dangerous, and the dogs can take care of themselves. I'll be responsible." The quiet man demurred until the pets were charging right into his lap after their prey, when he let go as if to protect himself. The imported cyclone had the air full of dogs for about three minutes. There was a continuous crash of bric-a-brac, all the light furniture was dancing, the host was kicking about wildly, and the quiet man was making an admirable bluff at trying to restrain his property. When the entertainment was over the sitting room looked like a junk shop. The neighbors had some little argument about whether the bull pup should be killed on the spot, and when the quiet man left he went out backward, cautioning his neighbor in a low tone of voice not to do anything rash. The neighbor has given away two of his pets, and advertised for one of these fighting white bulldogs with pink eyes. -Detroit Free Press.

JOHN MUIR AT HIS WORK. Man's Discoveries on the

Mulr Glacier. "For twenty-five years John Muir has made out of doors his realm. For more than half this time he lived and ered alone over the high Sierras. through the Yosemite valley, and among the glaciers of California and Alaska, studying, sketching, climbing. At night he sometimes rested luxuriously, wrapped in a half-blanket beside a camp-fire; sometimes, when fuel was wanting, and the way too arduous to admit of carrying his piece of blanket, he hollowed for himself a snug nest in the snow. He is no longer a young man, but when last I saw him he was making plans to go again to the North, to explore the four new glaciers discovered last summer by the Harriman expedition. 'What do you come here for?' two Alaskan Indians once asked him, when they had accompanied him as far, through perilous ways, as he could hire or coax them to go. 'To get knowledge, was his reply. The Indians grunted; they had no words to express their opinion of this extraordinary lunatic. They turned back and left him to venture alone across the great glacler, which now bears his name. So trifling a matter as their desertion could not deter him from his purpose. He built a cabin at the edges of the glacier, and there setttled to work, and to live, for two long years. He made daily trips over that icy region of deep gorges, rugged descents and vast moraines, taking notes and making sketches, until he had obtained the knowledge, and the understanding of the knowledge, that he was after. Muir Glacier is the largest glacier discharging into the wonderful Glacier Bay on the Alaskan coast. Being the most accessible one in that region, tourists are allowed to go ashore to climb upon its sheer, icy cliffs, and watch the many icebergs that go tumbling down from it. This is a thrilling experience to the globe-trotter, but to dwell there beside the glacier, to study the phenomena, encounter perils. alone and unaided, is an experience that few besides John Muir would court."-Adaline Knapp in Ainslee's.

On Different Ground.

The term "help," meaning household or outside assistants engaged for short periods, occurs in the Massachusetts records of 1645, where help and servants are treated as separate, the latter being inferior. A "servant" in those days was not sui juris; "help" stood on different ground, and the distinction is still felt, however faintly. "Help" meant a free person, "servant" did not.

BEST LIGHT WEATHER YACHT OF MODERN TIMES.

Outsailed All Her Compititors With Ease. Finished the Course Twenty-eight Minutes Ahead of Columbia and One Hour Ahead of Others.

Newport, R. I., July 9.-If the victory of the Constitution over the Columbia and the Independence in the first of the three cornered races on Saturday was significant and definite, her winning today may well be characterized as overwhelming and the defeat of the Independence as positive and almost hopeless. The approach of evening again found the committee boat anchored far out in Narragansett bay, along with the cat boat which marked the other end of the finish line, tediously waiting for the Boston companies authorized to do business in | boat to cross, while her rivals were well up the harbor on the way to their moorings.

> The new Herreshoff boat had beaten the Columbia by nearly half an hour over the thirty-mile course, while the record of the Independence was over a full hour. She came near traveling around the triangle while the Crowninshied creation was covering two legs of it.

> Today's race establishes the new Bristol sloop as a record-breaker in light air. Of all the conquests in the history of the renowned races for the America's cup that of today is the most remarkable. Constitution has proved herself the best light weather craft of this generation.

The first leg of the triangular course of thirty nautical miles was a deadbeat to the windward of ten miles, the course being southwest. The Constitution overcame every obstacle that offered in the way of flukes and doldrums and sailed with tact and skill and won by 10 minutes, 37 seconds over Columbia. That great yacht Mrs. Thos. P. Williams was killed never before had such a humiliating experience.

On the neg leg, a reach of ten miles with only a gentle zephyr blowing on the starboard beam, with a fine reaching jib topsail for whatever airs might come her way, she rounded the leeward maark eight minutes and forty second ahead of Columbia And then, scurrying faster than the wind, which never during the racing exshe made the crowning record of her history, sailing over the ten knots in 49 minutes and 46 seconds. Then came the cheering and notes of acclaim from whistles and sirens in honor of the greatest boat that ever sailed a fast light-weather race. The Constitution beat Columbia 28 minutes and 8 seconds, corrected time.

About four minutes and thirty seconds before Constitution finished Independece was dimly discerned rounding the lee mark nine miles astern of the winner.

After Machinists. New Orleans, La., July 9.-A man from San Francisco, giving his name as John Keefe, who is here recruiting expert machinists, has been accorded a hot time by the local union of machinists. Mr. Keefe put up at Hotel Grunewald, and inserted in Sunday morning papers advertisements asking for machinists. The union got onto him and inserted ads all through the papers warning machinists against San Francisco, declaring that a strike was on. They are watching Keefe's every movement, and in an interiew, the leaders say that no New Orleans men will be allowed to leave here to take the places of strikers. Mr. Keefe will not say which one of the San Francisco concerns he represents. He wants fifty men, and offers good wages, but demands that the men shall put up the price of their transportation, as a sign of good faith. That has prevented many from enlisting. He has some, anyway. The union promises an interesting time when they go to depart.

Plan to Settle Strike.

New York, July 9.-The World says: A plan has been agreed upon which will settle the great steel strike within the next five days. The program now is to hold that meeting and make that announcement on Wednesday or Tuesday of this week in New York or Pitsburg.

The main points at issue have been settled and there will be no great steel strike such as was contemplated a week ago. It may be stated that this early settlement is the direct results of J. P. Morgan's efforts.

The young woman, who lives in Houston, Texas, did not do this, but she did consent to correspond with him, giving him hope that the future might be bright for both of them. Sayers Wants Factories. San Antonio, Texas, July 5,-At a meeting of the irrigation committee of the Business Mens' club yesterday Governor Sayers was present and by invitation addressed those present on industrial matters generally, Among other things he said: "Let us help ourselves and not depend on outside capital to build factories in Texas. The money is in Texas and it should be used in buliding factories. I would rather see one factory in Texas built by Texas capital than see ten built by outside capital."

He indorsed the policy of irrigation and, speaking further, said the discovery of oil in Texas solved the fuel question, but that the transportation of the oil was another problem.

Cleland's height, but more slender in she did not. build, with the erect bearing of a soldier. His hair, of a light brown, was cropped short; his face, though regular enough in features, was not a pleasant one. The cold, hard blue eyes, straight, narrow mouth and sharp chin, gave it an expression which made many people declare "It was better to give Paul Reyburn a wide berth."

He shook hands with his hostess, and an unpleasant expression drew his brows together as he glanced at tion of knowing you have driven me Cleland, then acknowledged the other's salutation with a curt bow.

"Let me give you a cup of tea, Major," said the lady of the house presently. She poured it out and Rayburn watched her, a passionate expression in his cold eyes, as they devoured her face. "Any more news from Atbara?" she asked, as she handed him the dainty little cup, skilfully evading the touch of his fingers.

"Just what we expected. The dervishes are gathering fast and furiously. I expect we may receive marching orders any day," said Rayburn. "Let them come. I don't care, for my part, how soon."

In a few minutes Cleland rose to take his leave. Mrs. Breynton and Rayburn were alone.

"Is that fellow your shadow?" the latter asked, suddenly turning to his hostess, who had parted from Cleland at the room door. "He is with you everywhere now. I wonder what he thinks be is?"

"A gentleman," answered Mrs. Breynton, quietly, though a little gleam camo into her soft eyes. "I am afraid you have forgotten you are one, Major Rayburn. I am not accustomed to that tone from those who lay claim to the title."

"I beg your pardon," said Rayburn, half sullenly, half passionately. He placed his cup on a little table near, and, coming to Mrs. Breynton's side, suddenly knelt at her feet, and put his lips to the lace which hung over her delicate waist. "You have made me mad-mad! I love you with a passion that will not let me rest night or day! Every moment I am away from you I feel as if there were a chain of iron about my feet dragging me back. It makes me furious when I see another man near you, touching your hand, and you smiling upon him, as you smile on Cleland!"

"Major Rayburn, I have told you before that I have no love to give you, that we can never, by any possibility, be more to each other than friends. Why do you persistently introduce the subject and persecute me with your entreaties? You must know that it pains me, and that it cannot do yourself any good. Let me repeat once more what I have already told you. I do not and never can love you; it is impossible now and forever."

"Then there is someone who makes it impossible?" exclaimed Rayburn. with sudden flerceness. He caught her wrist in a strong grasp, and his cold eyes, now burning with a flerce light, tried to read the depths of hers. "You love some one else! You cannot deny it!" he exclaimed, hoarsely.

"Why should I acknowledge or deny it to you, Major Rayburn?" said Adrienne, with cold displeasure. "You have absolutely no claim on me that you should demand my confidence. If you cannot be content with what I have to give you, then the only other possible footing for us is that of complete strangers."

"Yes, you can throw me over like that, calmly telling me we can be complete strangers to each other, while you know that my very life is in your hands!" exclaimed Rayburn, hoarsely. "You were friendly enough with me once-you can't deny that! It is that"-he checked himself as he was just about to utter a fierce oath-"that fellow who has just left to whom I am indebted for this. But, by Heaven! I will show him he cannot cross my path with impunity! He does not know the kind of man he has to reckon with!"

Major Rayburn, you go beyond all hounds!" exclaimed Adrienne, She rose from her seat, her face deathly nale, and put her hand on the bellpull. "After this I do not see how we can be anything but strangers to each fear. Adrienne made no answer, merely bowing slightly as she made a gesture with her hand to Mahomed, indicating that he was to go.

But when the door had closed on the figures of the two men she remained standing where she was, her hand resting on the little inlaid table before her, an expression of strange fear and apprehension creeping alowly over her beautiful face.

"He cannot harm him-he cannot! she murmured, as if trying to convince herself of the truth of the words. Then a sudden quiver ran through her, and she covered her face with her hands. "I cannot hide the truth from myself now-I love him!"

CHAPTER VI.

A march in the desert. A march over that waste of pathless, yellow sand, under a burning, torrid sun, with a sky above of quivering, paipiburning, sand-blistered feet, bloodto a wet pulp with perspiration, limbs that almost refused to drag their weary weight over the way.

It was Paul Cleland's first experience of the desert. Most of the long line of | and desolation of the desert. human beings, creeping like a black snake across the white waste, had been there before, some of them for many years, during preceding campaigns, but Cleland had no experience of the Soudan, and he suffered in proportion, as all newcomers do,

Still, he was tough and strong, and had all a Scotchman's dogged endurance; he would never own himself beaten where others did not.

They were marching from Berber to Atbara, and had as yet heard nothing of the enemy.

Cleland had already found his services required. One or two of the new recruits among the British had been attacked by such diseases as only the desert knows. These he had treated, to his own immense satisfaction, successfully. It was good to know that he was a necessary factor to the wellbeing of the army,

Coming out of a blinding sandstorm one day they halted at a ruined vilage, destroyed by the Mahdi's cruel decree, and remained there overnight. Cleland found a ruised but, in which he established himself, with his two native "boys" to keep guard. He was dead tired, and, making himself as comfortable as he could, he rolled himself in his rug and was soon fast asleep, though the far-off screams of jackels prowling in the outskirts of the camp, sometimes mingled with the hoarse laugh of the hyena, might have kept him awake under other circumstances. Suddenly, however, he was awakened, and that effectually. Something was moving in the hut.

He started up in bed and looked around. The moon--a desert moon, white and clear almost as daylightwas shining into the tent. By its light he could see his two "boys" asleep on the sun-baked turf that formed the floor in a far corner of the hut. He saw something else, though-a smooth, round, dark head and two glaring eyes, looking like balls of fire, fixed on his face. He could not tell what the animal was at that distance. It might be a jackel, a panther, or-most terrible of all-a hyena, watching its opportunity for a spring. But, whatever it was, Cleland had no doubt about one thing burn without cause. Here was the -his only safety lay in perfect self-possession at this awful moment, He was usually cool and self-possessed enough; but there are not many men who can wake up at the dead of night, to find a bloodthirsty beast of prey within a few feet of them, and experience no sensation of steamer Nero, which has lately been and that his forehead was wet with perspiration, not altogether brought She had pulled the hell before she there by the heat and closeness of the

He cautiously put out his arm, still keeping his eyes fixed on the creature's. Then, without once turning his glance aside, he tried to creep stealth-Mahomed." And the native servant, ily across towards the camp-stool. The creature uttered a low, threatening sound, something between a bark and a howl.

But Cleland was now desperate. He felt that, whatever happened, he must get at the rifle. He made a sudden dart forward. As he did so he heard another low, threatening growl. The next instant he had his rifle in his

It was a short-range one, fortunately. He lifted it and fired. The animal-he could see now it was a hyena, whose movements are slower and less agile than those of the feline tribe of carnivorous animals rushed at him, and he saw its gleaming teeth. Crack. crack! went the rifle. A bullet passed aggregate value of over $20,000,000 as right through the beast's skull, and, compared with $6,200,000 in 1896. with a horrid sound-half laugh, half over, dead.

The native boys, awakened by the crack of the rifle, started to their feet, howling, and made a rush for the door, made of thick brushwood thickly tied together, which had only been kept secure by the kit, which had been rolled close to it from the inside.

"Here boys! come back!" cried Cleland loudly. But seeing that the "boys" were already through the doorway, he rushed to it and followed.

Outside, the moonlight flooded the tating, passionate, blazing heat; with scene; the great stretch of brownishyellow sand looked white beneath it: shot, sand-filled eyes, clothes soaked the tents of the officers and the roughly-constructed zaresa of the soldiers stretched between Cleland's hut and the river, distant about a hundred yards from them. All was the silence

> But as Cleland looked out a tall, dark figure strode hastily from its position in a pool of moonlight right behind Cleland's hut. Cleland stood still in his amazement at seeing another of the camp out at that hour besides himself.

His first impulse was to follow the figure, and tell of the terrible experience through which he had just passed. His second was to pause and think, a vague feeling of uneasiness coming over him. He felt sure he had recognized the figure as that of Major Rayburn. For some reason he knew Rayburn disliked him. He had noticed it several times-whenever he came in contact with him. Once or twice he had caught Rayburn looking at him in a way that puzzled himself.

Cleland could not guess the reason. He had never dreamt Adrienne Breyton regarded him in any other than a friendly way, and, even had he done so, he had no idea of Rayburn's feelings towards Adrience.

On second thoughts he gave up the idea of following Rayburn: He got hold of his boys, told them all danger was passed, and returned to his hut, the boys carrying the body of the hyena to the door, but not outside it, for fear of attracting other wild animals.

Cleland had just thrown himself down on his roughly-improvised couch the other for the murder of Henry

"Are you awake, doctor? I want you at once," said a hurried voicethe voice of Philip Rayburn.

"I am awake. Open, Adbullah, quickly!" cried Cleland.

The boy did so, with the leisureliness of a true Arab, and Rayburn rushed in, looking ghastly white in the moonlight.

"For God's sake, doctor, come quickly!" he said, as Cleland sprang up. 'There's a man bleeding to death about a mile away from here! Are you ready? Come with me. Bring bandages and your instruments, and I'll tell you about the affair as we go."

In a moment Cleland had gathered his things together. It struck him as he did so that he had suspected Rayman's reason probably for being out at that hour.

Cortez to Be Tried.

Gonzales, Texas, July 8 .- Gregorio Cortez, the noted Mexican murderer, who for the past three we ks has attracted more attention than any other man in the State, is now in the Gonzales county jail with wo indictments against him found by the grand jury during the past week. One is for the murder of Sheriff R. M. Glover, again when a loud knock came at the Schnabel. The first case will be set today for trial about the last of the rionth and a special venire will be drawn. As soon as the indictments were presented Judge Kennon issued a Lench warrant for Cortez and, armel with this and a capias, Sheriff F. M. Hly went to San Antonio on Pr.day and with Shoriff Hunter and Deputy Choate of Karnes county, left San Antonio Saturday morning for Gonzales via the Aransas Pass railroad. It was not known by any one but the officers that Cortez would be here Saturday evening, consequently there was no crowd at the depot or jail when the officers arrived. As soon as it was known that the murderer was here crowds began to gather around the jail, a" eager to see the much talked of Mexican.

A Nation Law attend. Fort Scott, Kan., July 8 .- A jury of the most prominent business men of Fort Scott was just four minutes in finding one of the State's new liquor laws, passed as a result of Mrs. Nalion's crusade, unconstitutional. It was the inquisition law, which authorizes county attorneys to summons and examine witnesses touching their knowledge of the violation of the law. Dan F. Waco, Texas, July 8 .- Sam Smith, a young man about 20 years old, was shot by Fayette Stewart, about 3 o'clock yesterday morning and instantly killed. The shooting occurred at the corner of Tenth and Webster streets, near the residence of J. A. James. Stewart and his wife were sleeping on a pallet in a room in Mr. James' house, when Mrs, Stewart felt some one touch here clothing. She aroused and screamed, and the man ran away. She woke her husband and officers were at once telephoned for. She got sufficient sight of the intruder to tell what kind of clothing he wore. This was given to Sheriff Baker, who arrived as soon as possible. The officer went to work looking for the man and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, with a lamp, were in the yard looking for tracks to see which way the man went. They discovered a pair of shoes and hat in the corner of the yard fence, and just on the other side was a man. Mr. Stewart says that he commanded him twice to tell his name, but when he did not do so he fired twice and and one went through his heart. The man proved to be Sam Smith, who was a cousin to Mrs. Stewart. Smith lived art and his wife live in the country. and had come to the city for a visit where the shooting took place. A Young Man Killed.

Females Are Barred.

Paris, Texas, July 8 .- An interesting habeas corpus was heard in chambers here before Judge Denton Saturday evening. Willie Kennedy, a young negro woman, whose home is that she was under 16 years of age in the reformatory, as the law prohibits the sending of a person to the penitentiary under 16. The girl's attorney sued out the writ of habeas corpus to secure her liberty on the ground that there was no authority to sentence a female convict to the reformatory. After a thorough investigation of the issue raised, Judge Denton ordered the prisoner discharged, holding that the law providing a place for the punishment of youthful criminals with the view of their reformation applies only to males and makes no provision for females.

Deadlock in Cuba.

Havana, July 8 .- The Cuban constitutional convention has not yet arrived at an understanding regarding the electoral law. The conservatives are quite hopeless with respect to the rescinding of the universal suffrage clause and they are now eudeavoring to secure a plural vote for property holders and for professional and business men. In this they are strongly opposed by the radicals. An objection has recently been raised against drawing up the electoral law until the United States government has approved the constitution, the argument being that it would be useless to draft laws based upon the constitution if Washington is going to make changes in this instrument.

Murdered His Wife.

New York, July 8 .- Edward Luthy, 43 years of age, a bookmaker who lived here with his wife, Abbie L. Luthy, and four of her children by a former busband, killed his wife by shooting her in the head yesterday evening after she had taken refuge on a fire escape. Then he shot himself. Dozens of pedestrians on Park avenue. opposite the house where the Luthys lived, saw the woman killed and saw her body fall from one landing of the fire escape to the one below. Jealousy and a quarrel growing out of a delayed dinner is supposed to have been the cause of the shooting. Luthy is in a hospital and though his wound is serious it may not prove fatal. He says his wife tried to shoot him first, sly a display of much courage and ingenuity Edward Mullvehill, a bag-Peruna is an invaluable gagemaster, saved the life of Mme. Schumann-Heink in New York the other day and at the same time prevented her from falling into the hands of the police who wished to detain her as a witness to a runaway. When the danger was over and she was safe on board the steamer on which she sailed for Germany the famous prima donna rewarded the bero by throwing her arms around his neck and giving him a kiss. The question is at once raised whether the ordinary hero would consider himself properly and sufficiently rewarded for saving the life of an elderly song bird by a single kiss from her ruby lips. If the value of a prima donna's kisses is to be computed on the same financial scale as her high notes the most unmercenary of heroes might be excused if he preferred to take the equivalent of the kiss in cash. Such an equivalent in the case of so famous and highly paid a singer as Mme, Schumana-Heink might well amount to a sum sufficient to allow the humble baggagemaster to retire from business and live thereafter on the interest of his money. At any rate it is to be hoped that Manager Grau will not prove ungrateful. He should at least send to Mr. Mullvehill a check for a sum equal to what Mme. Schumann-Heink would earn in a single evening.

Injustice to a Child.

The ignorance or stupidity of the constable and police justice who brought a 13-year-old girl from Matteson, Ill., to put her in the county jail in Chicago, almost passes belief. The child is too young to go to jail for any erime, a fact which both these country officials have should known. Moreover, her offense appears to have been nothing more than the taking of someeggs from a hen's nest grass along the railroad near her bome. A neighbor caused the child's arrest, played a degree of ignorance that is highly discreditable. The mittimus by which he meant to send the child to the county jail charges the prisoner with "larceni and insoliting a lade." The spelling is merely a surface indication of the deeper ignorance of the duties of the position he holds. This child appears to need a little parental care and attention rather than imprisonment. She was promptly released and sent home by Judge Tuley of Chicago without trial.

An American Countess.

Though the Countess of Strafford has been little heard of since the sudden death of her husband a year or so ago, she is still as popular and as much sought after as ever, and is expected to re-enter society as soon as the peried of mourning for Queen Victoria is over. The Countess, as is well known, is an American woman, whose first husband was the late millionaire Colgate of New York. She married the Earl of Strafford in New York in 1898, and had there been a male heir resulting from the union the countess would now be entitled to occupy Wortham Castle and the house in St. James square, London, both of which were put in order with her money. The Earl was killed by a railway train, and,

Manchester's Municipal Trams. In 1895, one year after Glasgow had begun the successful operation of its tramways, the City of Manchester began to debate the wisdom of similar action. The matter was carefully considered for two years, and it was finally decided to municipalize the tramway service of the city and install the overhead electric system in place of horse traction at the expiration of the operating company's lease of the tracks in 1901. The company endesvored to withstand this project before parliament, but its effort was unsuccessful, and a few days ago the first reconstructed lines, comprising about eighteen miles of single track, were opened by the city with appropriate ceremonies. Electrification of the other lines is proceeding.

Mr. J. G. Webb, living at Alabama Crossing on the Trinity river, was in Crockett last week and called at the Courier office. He said that Crockett has heretofore been drawing a big trade from Leon county. . His business being that of the ferryman at Alabama Crossing, he was in a position to know exactly the amount of business drawn from that county to Crockett. He is afraid that Crockett will now lose some of their Eat what you can and can what trade on account of the bad condition of the road on the other side of the crossing. He says there are about 2500 yards of road leading to the ferry from the other side of the river that will become impassable in wet weather if not fixed beforehand. The road has recently been fenced on both sides and the means of getting through by going around bog holes as heretofore thus cut off. Wagons will now have to confine themselves to the road, which, if not put in proper shape, is sure to become impassable during the winter. His idea is to crossway it. As Crockett trade is nothing to Leon county, that county will do nothing more than give the road the regular working. It, however, will furnish the number of on the matter for some time, but hands who are liable to road duty it is only recently that they have for the number of days required by law and with some aid from this side the road can be made good. Mr. Webb thinks the business men of Crockett should help and believes it will result to their benefit. He says he will give $150 in money and put in two wagons and teams with drivers for five days. It is his opinion that if this piece of road is permitted to become impassable the cotton which Crockett has been drawing from Dr. Tenney's arrival in the city Leon county will go to Huntsville, that his visit was of more signifi- for there will be no river to cross
