Another Negro Killing.

On last Thursday the negroes eastern part of the county had a big barbecue and general holiday rally. It was to celebrate the laying by of crops and make joyous the time intervening between laying by and harvesting. A great many negroes were in attendance and some of them did not get along well together-two of them in particular, Chas. Walker and Wiley Cavay. These two darkeys "fussed" and it was evident that there would be one coon less before night if their fussing continued. One of them, Wiley Cavay, left the barbecue grounds in the evening with blood in his eye and started home ostensibly. But the other negro, Chas. Walker, had a lurking suspicion that Wiley would wait for him on the road and give him some trouble. Prompted by this suspicion, he procured a shot gun and started home, following in the same road that Wiley had taken. He had reasoned wisely, for out on the road a piece he came upon Wiley. when, as he says, Wiley pulled a revolver and attempted to use it. when he, Walker, fired on him with the shot gun and killed him. Walker came immediately to Crockett and surrendered to Sheriff Hale, which was the first intimation the sheriff had of the killing. Walker was placed in jail.

A moment later the command "Halt!" was given; the moving mass of camels and men came to a dead stop. The colonel and his subaltern dismounted and ran up to the hut.

never swore because he had been a minister, but it was only one of the lieutenants who had been a minister, and he had decidedly fallen from grace. The right of swearing had been a question of continued discussion aboard ship. The executive officer swore because he was all bile. the navigating officer because he was jolly, and when the captain remonstrated with him he said: "What can 1 do? The whole shipload of men are swearing, captain, ensigns and seamen, and I've got to beat them all to show my position, haven't I?" However that was, excitement generally followed a public swearing by the captain, except on one day when the excitement preceded it. That day the sea was calm and nothing much was going on aboard ship save the constant watch of the blockaded Cuban port and the sea horizon. The air was clear, the sun was bright, and for some unusual atmospheric reason everything that appeared over the horizon was tremendously magnified. A puff of smoke was seen beyond the

CHAPTER IX.

"Yield, you Christian dog! Become a Moslem, or, by Allah, you die! Look out there and see the end of those who have refused to bow to Islam or yield to the power of the Khalifa!"

Paul Cleland staggered feebly to the door of the miserable hut, in whose black and flithy depths he had spent feet. the last few days, and looked out on the scene pointed out to him by his grim gaoler. It was one that might make the boldest shudder.

It was Metemmeh-the corpse of a town. The mud houses were mere shells-broken beams, tattered curtains fluttering in the breeze, shattered roofs, through which the rain poured. Facing Cleland and his guardian stood a strange construction of wood-two upright posts with a crossbar between. Below lay some brown palm-fibre rope, and mixed with it a decaying mass of human bones.

For what Cleland was looking upon was a gallows.

He was weak-almost too weak to walk. For three months of starvation, torture, suspense-three months passed in dark and loathsome huts, black as the mouth of a pit, close and foul as the black hole of Calcutta, with hardly any water to drink, and only the loathsome food offered himlowest ebb. Then he was conscious of a great noise outside-braying of donkeys, stamping of horses' feet, the shrill cries of Arabs, the sound of camels' heavy tread. ly for the appearance of the steamer. Up she came, puffing away, and in the clear light she looked like the Great Eastern. She flew no signal flags, she looked strange, and she bore down on the blockading cruisers as straight as a die. On she came, growing larger and larger, while the crew waited breathlessly for some word from the captain. The officers on the bridge stood watching her fixedly, muttering because they could not make her out. Finally the captain said: "Well, she doesn't answer our signals, and it's not our fault if she gets hurt." Then turning to the bugher he said: "Sound 'clear ship for action.'" This process was no mean job, but when a scrap was in sight it could be done quickly, and in five minutes all hands were ready to answer the call to quarters. Again there was anxious waiting. Then a queer change came over the appearance of the approaching craft. She had gotten well out of the horizon zone, and as she came near enough for the water to be seen foaming at her bow she grew peculiarly small. Officers and men began to look foolishly at each other, and still the stranger grew smaller. Negroes Deceived. Robinson Co., Tex., July 27 of colored citizens of Calvert and surrounding country are much exexercised over the proposed land sales by lottery by the United States Government in Oklahoma. A strange negro, claiming to have just returned from Oklahoma, has been mixing among the negroes of Calvert, trying to persuade them that this new country is a place in which a negro could make a fortune in a brief space of time. It is feared that some of the colored citizens of this county may be deceived by these improbable stories and will be induced to leave a country where they are doing well for a country with which they are entirely unacquainted.

Many negroes believe if they draw a prize they get the land for nothing. whereas they must pay $1.56 per acre and put up part of the amount in cash. However, they ranged from 92 to 100 in the corn belt. Conditions will remain practically the same in the drouth section during Saturday and Sunday and the weather will continue very hot, with the possibility of scattered thunder storms.

The corn crop of the West has been cut short by the continued drouth, and as corn and cotton seed meal and hulls constitute the bulk of feed for beef cattle, the shortage of one will raise the price of the other. So it is expected that cotton seed will bring a good price this fall, which will be an aid to the farmers of this section.

SYMPTOMS OF BAD BLOOD

There is a popular belief that every boil is worth many times its weight in gold, and the sufferer patiently, even cheerfully, endures the pain under the mistaken idea that these little tormentors are health promoters; that they thin the blood when too thick, and cleanse and cool it when too hot or too rich. On the contrary, boils and carbuncles are evidence of blood poverty, or a fearfully depraved condition of that fluid. There may be no external evidence of bad blood until the warm days of spring set in motion the sluggish circulation and the pent-up impurities, unable to escape through the natural outlets, gather near the surface of the skin, and a Carbuncle or a Boil is the result. When the blood is burdened with an undue amount of this impure matter, the Boils come in greater number, eat deeper into the surrounding flesh, and, being nearly always located on a bed of nerves, cause the most intense suffering. Robust and apparently healthy people are subject to Boils, and there is always some hidden agency at work within the blood and system that will eventually undermine the health, but those whose constitutions are broken down by previous sickness or other causes, are most often the unhappy victims of Boils and Carbuncles. Exposure to the deadly malaria destroys the red corpuscles and reduces the blood to such a weak and watery condition that it succumbs to the boil-producing poisons, and the pale and sallow

DANGEROUS CARBUNCLES. Mr. J. B. Spott, a resident of Hazel-hurst, Miss., writes: "S. S. S. cured a malignant carbuncle on my neck which the doctors had been unable to bring to a head. As soon as I began to use S. S. S. I was relieved of pain and the dreadful carbuncle got entirely well. My skin is clear, sound and smooth, and I am well today through using S. S. S. I am 65 years old."

sufferer is continually nursing one or more of these feverish and painful eruptions. A harmless Boil is sometimes the precursor of dreaded Cancer, and too often the best evidence of a deranged condition of the

BANEFUL BOILS.

Mr. R. M. Pratt, Cave, S. C., says: "For twenty years I was afflicted with boils and carbuncles, part of the time being unable to work or sleep. Several doctors treated me and I tried numer-ous blood remedies, but received no benefit. During the summer of 1888 I was persuaded to try S. S. S. A few bottles cured me entirely and I have had no return of these painful pests."

kidneys or chronic liver trouble, brought on by lack of nutritious blood; or it may develop into a running abscess or ugly eating sore, causing years of suffering, and often terminating fatally. To seek relief from the inflammation and pain produced by these terrifying eruptions through the application of local remedies is natural and right, but this method of treatment does not prevent others coming, or bring the slightest relief to the disease-burdened, deeply poisoned blood. Only a thorough regeneration and building up of the depreciated blood can bring about a lasting cure of Carbuncles and Boils and prevent their reappearance. S. S. S. restores to the old blood all its lost properties, re-invigorating and giving it the healthy red color that only pure, fresh blood can have, and through this new blood strength and vigor comes to the bodily organs; the skin resumes its functions, and impurities of whatever character are taken up and filtered out of the system in nature's way.

S. S. S. is made exclusively of roots and herbs selected for their wonderful purifying and tonic properties. It cures blood poison diseases of all kinds, whether acute or chronic. No matter how long the poison may have been in the blood,

S. S. S. removes every vestige of it, thus insuring a faultless circulation and healthy body.
