The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm struggles with the economic problem this week, apparently.

Dear editor:
 Washington can't be expected to think of everything and I'm not blaming anybody but somebody has left out a vital part of Phase Four of the economic program.

Take chickens. It costs a farmer 35 cents worth of feed to produce a pound of broiler for which he, under the price freeze of Phase Three, could charge only 28 cents, you can see it wouldn't be long before the country was out of fried chicken.

Therefore Phase Four has corrected this, allowing the price of chickens to go up, which it did immediately. The farmer is now charging more, the wholesaler is passing the income tax. The same thing would apply to all other increases in all other lines of food, clothing, shelter, interest, soda water, etc.

But there's one other step necessary. I've just figured out. No use letting the committee leave to vote for nothing. Naturally, with everybody taking all these deductions, the Federal government is going to have its income cut short, and you know we can't allow the government to go in debt. So, it'll pass this shortage on to the people in increased taxes the next year.

That solves it. That completes the circle and all we have to do is keep the wheel turning from now on. But watch out for those hills.

Yours faithfully,

ed in envelopes, signed by the Jury Commissioners, and delivered to the Clerk of the Court in which they are selected. Both the Clerk and Jury Commissioners are sworn not to reveal the names of any person on the panel until it is ordered opened by the Judge, and the prospective jurors called in for service.

The Justice and County Courts use six-man juries, and the District Court twelve. The District Court also uses a twelve-man Grand Jury. The reader will understand of course that both men and women serve on juries—whether petit juries or grand juries—in all courts. It is the duty of petit juries to hear evidence and testimony, and make findings of fact. The Court, meaning the Judge, rules on questions of law. But grand juries are investigative bodies. Therefore members of the grand jury are sworn to secrecy, as are the witnesses that appear before it. With few exceptions, felony cases are tried upon a grand jury indictment. And grand juries may be called to investigate public matters of either criminal or civil nature.

Law is a rule of action, to establish and maintain order in public and private affairs. A violation of this rule in private affairs is cause for civil action. A violation of this rule in public affairs is cause for criminal action. Thus we have "Civil" and "Criminal" law. Civil violations, in one way or another, involve a breach of contract, or an infringement of ones civil rights. Criminal violations involve offenses against society, or are private actions with criminal design and effect.

Civil law is, in fact, built around contracts, and therefore pertains to individuals, partnerships, companies, corporations, and agreements (written, expressed, or implied). It pertains to wills, guardianships, bond—all types of transactions. Criminal law pertains to misdemeanors, and felonies, treason, arson, etc. Felonies include such things as murder, attempted murder, theft over fifty dollars, worthless checking over fifty dollars, forgery, burglary, car theft, rape, and similar offenses. Worthless checks under fifty dollars, driving while intoxicated, illegal sale, possession, or transportation of liquor, aggravated assault, wife and child desertion, and similar offenses are misdemeanors.

In our County, burglary, theft, forgery, and worthless checks are perhaps the most common felonies; and driving while intoxicated, worthless checks, (under fifty dollars) liquor violations, and assaults, the most common misdemeanors. Along with these we have attempts to flee from officers, murders, attempted murders, car thefts, wife and child desertions, and others. Traffic violations, (speeding, running stop signs, etc.) are not criminal violations, but they do affect insurance rates, and can ultimately cause the loss of one's driver's license.

In all criminal matters, and traffic violations, the person charged is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty by legal and competent evidence—beyond a reasonable doubt. And

A 1973 graduate of Springlake-Earth High School has been awarded the Applied Music Scholarship to West Texas State University in Canyon.

Eright Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David V. Johnson of Rt. 4, Box 84, was awarded the grant by a faculty committee because of outstanding performance capability demonstrated in the field of voice and percussion.

The Applied Music Scholarship covers the additional fees that are normally charged for private lessons on an instrument or in voice.

The scholarship is for the 1973-74 academic year.

the burden of proof is on the State. The person charged (Defendant) does not have to prove anything. The State must prove, by legal and competent evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant is guilty as charged. This means the State must prove every element of the charge.

Upon apprehension, the defendant must be given certain statutory warnings, brought immediately before the Judge, and confronted with the charge brought against him. The Judge should admonish the defendant of the papers filed in the case, and that (1) he has a right to examine them, (2) that the fact that he stands charged, or that the papers are filed, is not to be considered as evidence that he is guilty, but (3) he is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty, and the burden of proof rests on the State. (4) That he does not have to make a statement of any kind, but should he make a statement it can be used against him. (5) That he has a right to legal counsel if he so desires it, and that if he is unable to employ counsel the Court must appoint counsel for him. In felony cases the defendant must be represented by counsel. (6) That he has a right to a preliminary hearing. (7) That he may ask questions as to the nature of the accusation against him, and the possible consequences should he be convicted. (8) That he has a right to a trial by jury, and he may enter a plea of "not guilty" if he so desires, and that he has a right to make bond to obtain his freedom until time for his trial.

The trial is had in first part to determine the question of guilt or innocence; and in second part to fix the punishment, and determine whether or not probation is granted, when the defendant has been found guilty. If he is found not guilty, that is the end of it. He can not be tried again for the same offense.

As a general rule, the Justice Court has jurisdiction of traffic violations and, of misdemeanor criminal offenses for which the prescribed punishment is a fine not exceeding $200.00, with no jail sentence.

The County Court has jurisdiction of other misdemeanors and may assess fines and/or jail sentences. The District Court has jurisdiction of felony offenses, punishable by prison sentences. In some instances fines may be assessed, and/or the defendant remanded to County jail rather than prison.

The State is represented in Justice and County Court by the County Attorney. Presently serving in that capacity is Gordon H. "Corky" Green. The State is represented in the District Court by the District Attorney whose jurisdiction is co-extensive with the District Judge. Jack Young is the District Attorney, serving Bailey, Lamb and Parmer Counties.

Cases are begun in Justice Court with the filing of a simple complaint, and the issuance of a warrant of arrest. The trial is held upon the complaint, with all the foregoing statutory warnings being applicable.

In County Court, a complaint

There will be an open public work session for these and other projects on Monday, August 13, at 8 p.m. at the city hall.

is filed, and, based upon the complaint, the County Attorney brings a charge - commonly called an "information". These are filed with the County Clerk, the case is given a number and placed on the criminal docket. And the Clerk issues a warrant of arrest. The case is then tried upon the information.

Felony cases are filed in the Justice Court, with the defendant being brought before the Justice of the Peace where he has a right to make bond, and to a preliminary hearing if he desires it. All other statutory rights apply in these instances also. The case is then presented to the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury makes an investigation to determine whether or not the defendant should be tried on the charge. The Grand Jury does not try the defendant. The only determine, by secret investigation, if there is sufficient evidence to warrant a trial. If there is, they return what is known as an "indictment" or "true bill". Otherwise they either "pass" or "no-bill" it. A grand jury indictment is not considered as evidence that the defendant is guilty. It is only a determination of the grand jury that the defendant should be tried.

Upon return of an indictment the case is immediately transferred to District Court and the papers filed with the District Clerk. It is docketed and numbered. The defendant is then brought before the District Judge. There he is again given opportunity to make bond while awaiting trial in the District Court. The aforementioned rights apply here also.

In civil matters the Justice Court has jurisdiction where the amount in litigation is $200, or less.

There is some question as to the jurisdiction of the County Court. Until recently, it had jurisdiction where the amount in litigation was over $200.00, but not over $1,000.00. The legislature recently raised the County Court's jurisdiction to $5,000.00, but some authorities believe this will apply only to County Courts-At-Law. County Courts-At-Law are Courts created by the Legislature to try Criminal and Civil matters in large counties. Probate matters and other duties of the County Judge being left with the original County Court. Judges of County Courts-At-Law must be attorneys. But jurisdiction of the regular County Court is limited by the Constitution at $1,000. Therefore the question arises as to whether the Legislature, by legislative action, can change the jurisdiction as fixed by the Constitution. In the opinion of some authorities, they cannot. They can change the jurisdiction of the County Courts-At-Law but not the regular Constitutionally created County Courts. It appears then that the County Court in Bailey County has jurisdiction over the litigation of matters between $200, and $1,000, value. The County Court also has jurisdiction of Probate matters, (wills, guardianships, etc) mental illness, alcoholic and Juvenile delinquency cases. A new law, soon to go in effect, removes at least some of the jurisdiction of Juvenile cases to the District Court. But the details are not yet clear.

If the foregoing is correct the District Court has jurisdiction where the amount in litigation is more than $1,000. It has jurisdiction of Eminent Domain, divorce, annulment, child custody, and dependent and neglected child cases. It may in certain cases receive appeals from County Court. The District Court also, through legal process, exercises some supervision of County business matters.

Thus each Court, in their respective jurisdictions and functions, serves a highly important and vital role in public affairs, and does indeed affect the daily lives of all our people.

Again, Government should be of laws, rather than men. Laws are written for our good, for our protection, and Courts are the legally constituted authorities to see that laws are properly applied. Laws therefore should be obeyed, and the Courts should be respected. If we do not agree with a law we should try to change it, rather than disobey it.

Every person is entitled to his "day in court." No matter his cause, civil or criminal, he has a right to submit it to a jury of his peers—to the wise judgment of men and women, like himself - who have nothing to gain, and who desire nothing other than to render a fair and impartial verdict on whatever cause might be submitted to them. As long as this right exists, there is a good chance that justice will ultimately prevail. It is the best system man has yet devised. Let us therefore revere and preserve it.

In our next article we will discuss the internal operation of the individual offices.

The fear of competition explains much that happens in business, politics and life in general.

The conference, conducted by the Education Staff of the Texas Education Agency, was attended by four local home economics teachers. Pictured above, 1 to r., they are: Mrs. Ellen Gailman of the Lazbuddie School District; and Mrs. Dorine Harbin, Mrs. Martha McCormick and Mrs. Wanda Gramling, all teachers in Muleshoe High School.

Local Home Economics Teachers Attended Inservice Conference Held In Houston

HOUSTON-- Mrs. Dorine Harbin, Mrs. Wanda Gramling and Mrs. Martha McCormick, teachers of vocational home-making education in Muleshoe High School, and Mrs. Ellen Gailman of Lazbuddie High School have recently completed a week of inservice training exploring new techniques in meeting the following challenges: parenthood education, nutrition, consumerism, career education, family values and dignity of individuals. The conference, conducted by the Homemaking Education Staff of the Texas Education Agency, was held in Houston July 30 through August 3.

A workshop on "Competency-Based Instruction," the most dramatic tool on today's education scene designed to insure premium education, featured Dr. Robert Houston, Professor of Education at the University of Houston. Throughout the week, current and effective techniques for teaching consumer education were explored by Dr. Helen M. Thal, Assistant Director, Education Division, Institute of Life Insurance, New York, N.Y. Mrs. Helen Westlake of Elmhurst, Ill., well known author of books on child development and family relationships, conducted workshops on parenthood education.

Pre-employment Laboratory Programs and Coordinated Vocational-Academic Programs. Separate workshops were provided for teachers of adults and teachers of the handicapped.

The homemaking education program in Texas is ranked as one of the top programs in the nation. According to Mrs. Elizabeth F. Smith, Director of Homemaking Education, Texas Education Agency, the annual inservice training for teachers of homemaking education is of primary importance to the excellence of the program. Nationally known specialists are used as consultants, she added.

The keynote speaker, Dr. Gwendolyn A. Newkirk, Chairman of the Department of Education and Family Resources, College of Home Economics, University of Nebraska, set the pace with her discussion, "Premium Education - Hi-Test Dealership." Mrs. Mary Allen Jolley, Director of Public Af-airs of the American Home Economics Association, Washington, D.C., pinpointed the current significant "Challenges for Homemaking Education" at the Tuesday morning session.

Special workshops were held for teachers in job training programs for youth: Home Economics Cooperative Education,

A group of home economists from Japan traveled to Texas to attend the meeting and learn about the much heralded inservice training for Texas teachers and how such training may be implemented in Japan.

The highlight of the week was the Annual Awards Banquet of the Vocational Homemaking Teachers Association where awards for outstanding service to vocational education were presented to State Senator A.R. "Babe" Schwartz of Galveston; State Representative R.B. McAllister of Lubbock; and L.P. Sturgeon, Executive Secretary of the Texas State Teachers Association. Billy W. Spanagel, Director of Vocational Education, Northside Independent School District, San Antonio, was named by the association as the outstanding administrator in the state. Some eighty teachers of homemaking education were presented jeweled tenure pins for service to the profession.

M. Arthur Neiman, well known and articulate Vice President of Scholastic Magazines, New York, N.Y., ended the five-day meeting with a probing discussion of the new roles of men and women in today's family and the responsibility of the home economist to instruct both young men and women in consumer education, money handling, nutrition, family living and parenthood education.

According to Mrs. Vi Sullivan of Bay City, President of the Vocational Homemaking Teachers Association, more than 2300 teachers of vocational homemaking attended the conference.

Chinch Bugs Reported In South Plains Grain Sorghum Fields

LUBBOCK -- Producers with sorghum in the milk to soft dough stage should be on the lookout for false chinch bugs. This warning comes from Dr. Robert McIntyre, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Within the past few days, infestations in sorghum fields have been reported in Crosby, Lubbock, and Lynn counties, says McIntyre. Heavy infestations of these pests may cause severe damage to sorghum seeds which are in the milk stage of development.

The entomologist explains that the false chinch bug, which belongs to the family of insects, Lygaeidae, is small, not more than 1/6 or 1/5 inch in length, and black gray in color. Host plants are grain sorghum, potatoes, grapes, cruciferous plants, cotton and other cultivated and weed plants.

Says McIntyre, the chinch bugs have infested sorghum fields by migratory flights from wild grasses and other hosts. Sorghum which is in the milk to soft dough stage is very susceptible, he adds. Greatest damage is caused by the insects sucking the milk from seeds. Farmers can detect infestations by closely observing their plants, since insects tend to migrate and colonize in large numbers. They are often found only in spots in the field. The chinch bug overwinters as an adult in any available cover, McIntyre explains. Clumps of grasses are commonly selected as places of hibernation, and can be found in stubble, hedge rows and other rough areas. In the spring, adults emerge from hibernation and fly to fields of small grain. In the South Plains, he says, the first generation is produced on weeds and grasses and small grains. A second and partial third generation may be produced on sorghum and other grasses. Thus, the chinch bug has at least two generations per year in the South Plains. "Chinch bug infestations are not encountered every year in sorghum," says McIntyre. As a result, no research information is available which indicates the number of chinch bugs or the extent of plant damage that can be tolerated before yield losses are encountered. "Chinch bugs tend to migrate and colonize in large numbers," he explains, "and spot treatment of areas infested is usually justified in hot, dry weather." Weather has been found to be the most important control factor, the specialist points out. Heavy, beating rains destroy many of the insects, and wet cloudy weather fosters the outbreak of a fungus disease among these insects. McIntyre adds that with the kind of weather prevailing over the South Plains during the past week, the need for treatment could change over a very short period. If producers anticipate yield losses, several materials have given effective control of the pest, he advises. Malathion and parathion are suggested for false chinch bug control in Texas Agricultural Extension bulletin MP-339, Suggestions for Controlling Insects & Mites on Corn, Sorghums, and Small Grains. This bulletin can be obtained from the local county agricultural Extension agent.  The price of almost everything the consumer buys has gone up faster than the cost of food. While food costs have increased 47% since 1952, the average worker has enjoyed pay raises of more than 140%. During this same period, the cost of medical care has gone up 123% and housing now costs 64% more. *****

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor: What we, who are deeply involved in POW-MIA campaigns have been afraid would happen, since the cease-fire, is beginning to take place.

Our government seems to be taking the easy way out, by starting to change the status of our MIA's (Missing in Action) to PFD (Presumptive finding of death) beginning immediately and to be completed within one year. Without any new evidence—using only proof they had when all these men were declared MIA.

Why these changes should not occur until inspections of grave and crash sites is completed, is because Article 8(b) of the Peace Agreement clearly limits the obligations of the Communists to supply information on the missing in action. The only provision for the dead is an obligation to help determine location of a grave.

If the man our government presumes dead is not in fact dead, and therefore has no grave site, his accounting is no longer provided for in the peace treaty. Then, why is our government so anxious to change the status? WHY?

The families of these men have waited patiently for 4 1/2 months for the officials in the defense department to publicly condemn the Communists for refusing to account for 72 men of whom there is proof of capture.

Instead MIA families are being smeared in the news media, by Pentagon Officials,* as selfish, rumor mongering charlatans, profiteers, and raisers of "false hopes", because they are distributing bracelets and bumper stickers. If the Defense Department would use as strong a language against the Communists, as they have against the MIA families and concerned citizens, we would already have an accounting of our men.

Now, the government is waging a campaign to destroy the only weapon the families have -- PUBLIC OPINION. The same weapon that the returned POW's credited for bringing them home.

Our government sent these men to war, and it is their obligation to get a full account of all the men. Even if it does take two or three years! these families have the RIGHT TO KNOW what has happened to their loved ones! You, the American public, are the MIA families' only hope. Write letters of protest to stop this status change. Instead of PFD, why not presume them alive? Until we have definite proof from Hanio -- for ONLY HANIO KNOWS. Write the President, Congress and department of Defense -- NOW.

Sincerely Mrs. D.L. Alderman 105 Tulane Street, Clovis, New Mexico, 88101

Wheat Fertilization

LUBBOCK--This past season's bumper crop of wheat may have depleted plant nutrient levels to the point where proper fertilization for the 1973-74 season deserves special attention.

This advice comes from Jim Valentine, soil chemist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service here.

Greater yields of high quality forage and grain is a major concern of producers looking forward to the next crop, he says. To get those yields, producers will need an accurate inventory of their soil's nutrient levels in order to apply the right kinds and amounts of fertilizers.

Soil tests from the Extension Soil Testing Laboratory at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center near Lubbock provide a guide for making decisions on what, when and how much is needed, Valentine adds.

"Nitrogen is the element likely to be in shortest supply. The soil's nitrate nitrogen content which is determined by the test provides an excellent criteria for evaluating nitrogen need," he explains. "The rate of application should be based on nitrogen present in the soil, grazing practices, and on yield potential which is determined by water availability, and cultural practices."

Says the soil chemist, on hardlands all or part of the nitrogen can be applied before planting. On sandy soils where leaching may cause nitrogen loss, part of the nitrogen should be applied pre-plant with one or more applications made later in the season.

"Insufficient phosphorus may or may not be a limiting factor and here again, the soil test can serve well," he explains. "Phosphorus, second only to nitrogen in importance, is a major contributor to the vigorous early growth that supplies first-quality forage for the beef industry."

"Phosphate, where needed, should be applied in the seedbed before planting because it does not move into the soil with water," he advises.

Valentine points out that careful collection of soil samples and information about each operation is essential for a meaningful soil test report. Within a few days after the sample is received, a report is returned showing the actual soil test values with suggestions for using the fertilizer.

Information on sample collection and mailing is available from the county Extension agent's office.
