PRESIDENT FLAYS CONGRESS POLICY

Politics Actuated Body, Not Public Service, He Says.

Washington, June 5.—President Wilson in a telegram Saturday to officials of the railroad brotherhoods criticized congress for failing to take action with regard to the high cost of living, the conclusion of peace and important domestic legislation.

The telegram was in reply to a message asking the president to prevent the adjournment of congress today. The executive said that in the light of the record of the present congress "I have no reason whatever to hope that its continuance in session would result in constructive measures for the relief of economic conditions to which you call attention."

"It must be evident to all," the president said, "that the dominating motive which has actuated this congress is political expediency rather than the lofty purpose to serve the public welfare."

The president declared that he had accepted some of the legislation enacted by this congress because he "despaired of anything better."

The text of the president's telegram follows:

Wilson Message.

"I received your telegram of June 3. You call my attention to matters that I presented to the present congress in a special message delivered at a joint session of the two houses on August 8, 1919. In nine months this congress has, however, taken no important remedial action with respect to the problem of the cost of living on the lines indicated in that address or on any other line. Not only has the present congress failed to deal directly with the cost of living, but it has failed even to give serious consideration to the urgent appeal of repeated by me and by the secretaries of the treasury, to revise the tax laws which in their present form are indirectly responsible in part for the high cost of living.

"The protracted delay in dealing with the problem of the railroads, the problem of the government-owned merchant marine and other similar urgent matters has resulted in unnecessary burdens upon the public treasury, and ultimately in legislation so unsatisfactory that I could accept it, if at all, only because I despaired of anything better. The present congress has not only prevented the conclusion of peace in Europe, but has failed to present any constructive plan for dealing with the deplorable conditions there, the continuance of which can only reflect upon us.

Has No Hope.

"In the light of the record of the present congress, I have no reason whatever to hope that its continuance in session would result in constructive measures for the relief of the economic conditions to which you call attention. It must be evident to all that the dominating motive which has actuated this congress is political expediency rather than lofty purpose to serve the public welfare."

The letter to the president from the brotherhood chiefs said:

"As the responsible heads of railroad organizations representing more than 2,000,000 workers, we protest most earnestly and most emphatically against the proposed adjournment of congress next Saturday, in accordance with the plan reported in the public press. We call attention to the fact that despite the revelations as to the profiteering scandal congress has done nothing to check the evil or to punish the evil doers; that the cost of living continues to advance without a single remedial measure having been passed and that there has not been even serious consideration of constructive legislation dealing with the serious problem of industrial unrest.

"In the circumstances it appears to us incredible that the responsible leaders of the government at Washington can assent to this seeming agreement to continuation of a do-nothing policy which means that the grave economic problems of the people are to be made the plaything of politics and politicians for the next five months. It invites political chaos and business disaster. Congress should remain in session."

For Representative.

W. G. (Will) Creath announces this week as a candidate for the office of representative from Houston county in the Texas legislature. It is only at the urgent solicitation of friends that Mr. Creath has consented to make this race. Early in the year he was solicited to enter the race, but the pressing needs of his farm were so urgent that he could not at that time give much consideration to making a campaign. Going as a delegate to the General Presbytery which was held in North Carolina, he returned to find the county in the midst of a campaign for the short term election. Friends again besieged him to make the race. Having a crop on his hands, he could not consider the short-term election, but promised his friends that when that election was over he would enter the race for the coming regular term. His hat is now in the ring and his candidacy is subject to the democratic primary to be held on Saturday, July 24. Mr. Creath has lived in the eastern part of Houston county for many years and is well-known to the most of our people. He was born and reared in Mississippi and finished school at French Camp College, French Camp, Miss. Soon after finishing in school he came to Houston county, where he has continued to reside until this good time, devoting his life to farming and voting the democratic ticket whenever the opportunity was presented. Besides always being a democrat, Mr. Creath is a Christian gentleman and a man of mature judgment and ability. He asks the Courier to say that he will appreciate the votes of all good men and women who see their way clear to support him in the coming democratic primary.

$1000 Bond.

Claud Lundy, the Trinity river planter who shot and killed one of his negro farm hands on Monday of last week, immediately made $1000 bond to appear before the next grand jury. County Attorney Adams and Sheriff Spence went to the scene of the killing and made an investigation. The man killed was James Alexander, a young negro. Mr. Lundy claims self-defense, the negro having an open knife in his hand when shot and killed with a revolver.

PROHIBITION LAW UPHeld BY COURT

Enforcement Act Declared Constitutional in Court Decision.

Washington, June 7.—The prohibition amendment and the enforcement act were held constitutional by the supreme court Monday in an unanimous decision.

While attorneys for the interests attacking the two measures were granted permission to file motions for rehearings, the decision was regarded generally as striking a death blow to hopes of the wets.

The court's opinion, rendered by Justice Vandevanter, was sweeping. It held the amendment not only came within the amending powers conferred by the federal constitution, but was lawfully proposed and was the law of the land. While recognizing that congress has limitations in respect to the enforcement of laws regarding beverages, the court held those limits were not transcended in the enactment of the enforcement act restricting alcoholic content of intoxicants to half of 1 per cent.

While New York, New Jersey and Wisconsin acts permitting manufacture and sale of beverages of more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcoholic content were not directly involved, the decision was interpreted as invalidating them. The court said the first section of the amendment of its own force "invalidates any legislative act, whether by congress, by a State legislature or by a territorial assembly which authorizes or sanctions what the section prohibits."

Concurrent Power.

Concurrent power granted by the amendment to federal and State governments to enforce prohibition, the court further held, "does not enable congress or the several States to defeat or thwart prohibition, but only to enforce it by appropriate means."

The decisions of the court were set forth in 11 conclusions covering seven separate proceedings. These proceedings included original suits brought by the State of Rhode Island, directly attacking the constitutionality of the amendment.

While agreeing to the validity of the amendment and enforcement act, Justices McKenna and Clarke dissented from the majority interpretation of the concurrent power of federal and State governments to enforce prohibition. Chief Justice White held that the court should set forth the reasoning for its decision. He did this in a supplemental opinion.

Referring to the provisions in the federal amendment prohibiting the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors and that relating to concurrent power, Chief Justice White in a concurrent opinion said:

"It is contended that the result of these provisions is to require concurrent action of congress and the States in enforcing the prohibition of the first section and hence in the absence of such concurrent action by congress and the States no enforcing legislation can exist and therefore until this takes place the prohibition of the first section is a dead letter. But in view of the manifest purpose of the first section to apply and make efficacious the prohibition and of the second, to deal interpretatively, since it would result simply in declaring that the provisions of the second section, avowedly enacted to provide means for carrying out the first, must be so interpreted as to practically nullify the first.

"It is said, conceding that the concurrent power given to congress and to the States does not as a pre-requisite exact the concurrent action of both, it nevertheless contemplates the possibility of action by congress and by the States and makes each action effective, but as under the constitution the authority of congress in enforcing the constitution is paramount, when State legislation and congressional action conflict the State legislation yields to the action of congress as controlling. But as the power of both congress and the States in this instance is given by the constitution in one and the same provision, I again find myself unable to accept the constitutional mandate as to the concurrence of the two powers and proceeds immediately by way of interpretation to destroy it by making one paramount over the other."

Revival Services.

The opening service of the revival will be a song service Friday at 8 p. m., led by the singer, Mr. H. E. Litchfield. Mr. Litchfield has a baritone voice with very high range. His voice is strong, which enables him to lead a very large chorus, and yet it is sweet and sympathetic. In fact, he was trained for grand opera, but forsook it to sing for the Master. You will find him affable and cheerful, and he will render some special songs Friday evening. Come to this service.

Sunday morning at 11 will be the next service, Rev. G. A. Klein, evangelist, preaching at that hour, and from then on regularly every day till the close of the meeting. All the churches and everybody has an invitation to join in for a great victory from God. Let us make all necessary sacrifice for the needed revival.

GALVESTON UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Total Strength of Forces Ordered to Island Slightly Over One Thousand.

Austin, Texas, June 7.—All of the troops ordered to Galveston following the issuance of the proclamation by Governor Hobby placing that city under martial law, which became effective at noon today, are expected to reach their destination by tomorrow morning. At least five hundred were due to be in Galveston tonight. The troops are ordered from Houston, Schulenburg, Nacogdoches, Center, Navasota, San Antonio, Hallettsville, Karnes City, Devine, Harlingen, Brenham, Waco, Austin, Groesbeck, Taylor, and a machine gun company from Dallas. One of the two units from Austin is a machine gun company, and there is a machine gun company from Hallettsville. The total strength of the troops en route is slightly over one thousand and enlisted men. The Houston troops include a provisional machine gun company.

The Texas National Guard at present has about seven thousand men. The units not called out today will be kept in readiness to move in the event their services are needed.

A supply train carrying tentage, blankets and other camp supplies left Austin tonight in charge of Major J. T. Stockton. The Austin troops and machine gun company moved at 12:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Governor Hobby in his proclamation directed that Brigadier General J. F. Wolters assume supreme command of the situation in the territory affected, which includes the city of Galveston, the port of Galveston, all water fronts and bays, including the causeway and Virginia Point, on the mainland off Galveston Island; Pelican Island and such portions of Bolivar Peninsula as are situated in Galveston County, and all water front and bays adjacent thereto.

Governor Hobby announced his decision to proclaim martial law at Galveston after information from Adjutant General W. D. Cope that the use of the State's military forces was necessary to handle the situation and to provide free and uninterrupted movement of freight. The proclamation was issued within one-half hour after receipt of the report from General Cope, and troops soon after were on the move. In the proclamation Governor Hobby declared that "there is now imminent danger of insurrection, tumult, riot and breach of the peace, and serious danger to the inhabitants and property of citizens in the territory described."

In a statement given out an hour after the martial law proclamation had gone into effect Governor Hobby said:

"The supreme sovereignty of the state will be maintained at any cost. If commerce is not resumed now, and if freight is not moved without interruption, the responsibility will rest with the carriers. It will not be the fault of the state."

WOOD KNEW OF MONEY DRIVE

General Was Present During Financial Discussions, Committee is Assured.

Washington, June 3.—Senate committee investigation of pre-convention presidential campaign activities had approached a new phase if not a virtual conclusion tonight, further developments being in doubt pending action in the senate on a proposal by Senator Pomerene to change radically the scope and purpose of the inquiry and carry it beyond the November election.

Action on the resolution, which would bring congressional as well as presidential campaigns within the committee's jurisdiction, was delayed by request of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican leader. It will come up tomorrow and the committee, pending any alteration of its charter powers, began winding up the hearing of witnesses already summoned.

The day's sessions were interrupted by senate votes or adjournment which drew members to the floor. Three witnesses threw additional light on the financing of Major General Leonard Wood's campaign, while the third brought additional information as to activities for Senator Harding and Governor Lowden in Missouri.

C. H. Duell of New York, formerly connected with the Wood financial arrangements, testified that General Wood was present at a discussion at the home of Ambrose E. Mondell in New York last fall where ways and means of financing his campaign were talked over.

A formal meeting attended by Duell, Mondell and Robert Cassatt of Philadelphia had been called, the witness said, and at this meeting Mondell proposed that a certain number of men be asked to "underwrite" the Wood campaign expenses to the extent of $500,000. Cassatt finally declined to enter into the arrangement, Duell said, and his recollection was that General Wood came in later, after the meeting. Discussion of the financial side of the campaign had continued, he added, but he could not recall anything General Wood might have said in that connection.

Questions by Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, drew from the witness a statement that in view of the general nature of the conversation General Wood could not have failed to know its purport and the amounts discussed as necessary to raise.

When W. L. Cole, republican state chairman in Missouri and delegate at large from that state, appearing at his own request, took the stand, the scene shifted to that state. He presented a brief explanation of previous testimony which showed that he had received funds from both the Harding and Lowden interests for work in Missouri. He entered a flat denial that he had known that a check for $500 given him by E. L. Morse, manager of the Lowden campaign outside of St. Louis, was from Lowden funds or that it was given him with any understanding it was to be used in the Illinois governor's behalf. He had regarded the money as a personal contribution from Morse, he said, to aid in the republican fight to fill a vacancy in the third Missouri congressional district which Horse had insisted that Cole conduct.

Col. E. H. R. Green Interrogated by Expense Committee.

Washington, June 5.—After hearing Colonel E. H. R. Green of Texas, son of the late Mrs. Hetty Green, the senate committee investigating pre-convention political financing adjourned its session today until July 9.

Colonel Green was called to tell what he knew about the selection of delegates from Texas to the republican national convention. He said he had contributed money to the "mixed" faction of black and white republicans in Texas, but denied he was working for General Wood or any other presidential candidate.

Colonel Green told the committee he had gotten interested in "a fight between what we called the regular republicans and the lily white group.

"I am a regular," he said, "and was elected as a delegate to the national convention." Chairman Kenyon asked whom the delegation he represented would support.

"They are a little bit for everybody," Colonel Green answered.

Declaring that three sets of Texas delegates were in Chicago, the witness said that "if they had more time they would have split some more.

"The pressure for office is great," he continued, "and we've got more candidates for office than republican voters."

POPULATION OF N. Y. CITY IS 5,621,151

Washington, June 5.—New York city had 5,621,151 people on January 2, an increase of 854,268, or 17.9 over 1910, the census bureau announced Saturday night. The rate of growth was smaller than ever before in the city's history except the decade ending in 1870, while the increase numerically was smaller than in either of the two decades preceding 1910.

The latest estimate of the population of the city and county of London, made in 1917, was 4,026,901, a decrease from the official census of 1911, which showed a population of 4,521,685. Comparison of the population of New York city with that of London is declared by census bureau officials to be difficult because of the areas covered by the designators of the cities.

The small increase in the growth of New York city during the past decade is attributed by census officials to the almost complete stoppage during the war of the influx of immigrants.

Boston's population is 747,923, an increase of 77,338, or 11.5 per cent over 1910.

The increase in Boston's population was not so large as that of St. Louis, whose total population is 773,000, an increase of 111,791, or 19.4 per cent over 1910.

St. Louis therefore retains its rank as fourth most populous city and Boston will hold sixth rank, unless Cleveland, sixth city in 1910, whose population has not been announced, shows an increase exceeding 186,000 to bring its total past Boston's.

THE PLANTOM BONUS BILL.

The house has played its little game of politics and passed the bonus bill for former soldiers, but reports indicate the senate is less inclined to consider the proposal favorably.

Furthermore, the president has let it be known that he is opposed to a bonus bill that would place an unjust financial burden upon the people and constitute a "smirch on patriotism." So the prospects are that the bonus matter will get no further for a long time, and the people will be spared additional taxation for this purpose, at least for the present.

When one of the witnesses before the committee said several weeks ago that the house would pass the bill because the members dared not reject it, members of the committee became peeved at the "reflection," put upon congressmen, but as a matter of fact, every one familiar with the brand of politics played in congress expected a bill to be passed.

It is extremely doubtful, however, if the political congressmen have accurately gauged sentiment on this matter, even among the former soldiers. Evidences are multiplying that the rank and file of the former service men are not demanding a bonus, and it is perfectly apparent that the country as a whole is against any proposition at this time that calls for increased taxation.

Those who have been urging the bonus before committees are for the most part officials of soldier organizations, but it is by no means certain that they represent the views of the soldiers in this matter. The great majority of the former soldiers are sensible, hardworking citizens, who have no desire to further complicate the financial and economic situation in the country, for the sake of a small individual gain.

As the difficulties the country faces have become clearer to them, sentiment against the bonus has undoubtedly increased.

But the members of the house should feel relieved now that they have paid an imaginary political debt. They have "squared" themselves, as they see it, with the soldier vote, and that, of course, is the most important business of a representative. Appealing to the soldier vote has long been a high art in American politics. As for the bill itself, it will sleep a long sleep. If it should be resurrected and should reach the president, it will be vetoed.

So the present outlook is that the soldier bonus proposition has been indefinitely delayed, and the longer it pends, the less chance it has of being enacted.—Houston Post.

Cope's Presence Gives Impetus to Shipping Activity.

Galveston, Texas, June 5.—The presence of General W. D. Cope of the Texas National Guard in Galveston has resulted in some activity in the coastwise shipping here. Thirty-five men were at work yesterday loading out merchandise from the Mallory docks to freight cars. These men appeared on the water front early yesterday morning looking for work and told F. T. Rennie, general agent of the Mallory Line, that they wanted to work and had come in the belief that the governor was going to protect them. They were sent to the Wharf Company, who placed them at work loading out merchandise that has been in the warehouse on the wharf since last March, most of it being part of the cargo of the Alamo that was the last vessel to be discharged here by that company. The Wharf Company was informed by the switchmen employed in the Wharf Company yards that they would move the loaded cars.

General Cope has blanket authority in the form of a telegram from Governor Hobby and is to use his own judgment as to what number if any troops shall be called out.

"It looks like you and a company of infantry should be able to control the situation," was suggested to the general.

"Whatever is needed will be here," replied the officer.

The loading of merchandise out of the Mallory wharves into cars that was started yesterday will be completed in two more days if the same or a larger force shall be kept at work. Much of the merchandise that came in on the Alamo about the middle of March just as the strike here was declared has heretofore been removed by the owners who themselves loaded it on trucks and carried it to railroads for shipment.

There is cotton and copper and miscellaneous commodities on the Mallory wharves sufficient to load three ships outward from this port. Much of this has been on the wharves three months.

MacGregor Delegates are Seated by Republicans.

Chicago, Ill., June 5.—The MacGregor delegates at large and from all the districts in Texas were seated for the temporary convention roll by the republican national committee which spent the afternoon listening to the differences arising out of the bolt of the Green-McCarthy-Beck faction at the San Antonio convention May 25. Gooseneck Bill McDonald, negro, of Fort Worth, one of the Green delegates at large, and who in a speech before the committee denounced the procedure followed in Texas, declared tonight the fight would be renewed before the credentials committee of the convention.

"If the republican campaign managers want to stand for the work of thirty-one committeemen against the will of the people expressed in 36,000 votes," said McDonald, "then I am through with the republican party in Texas."

McDonald announced that he was for prohibition, woman suffrage and good government, and would join the forces of any party advocating them. He has been attending national republican conventions for twenty-eight years, and today met his second defeat as contestant for a seat. Taking the action of the national committee on yesterday to be favorable to the candidacy of Governor Lowden some of the negro delegates from Texas this morning began to speak kindly for the Illinois governor, and one ventured that among the Green forces there were fourteen Lowden votes if they were given an opportunity to express themselves.

Late this afternoon, following the seating of all of the MacGregor forces, some of the Texas negroes were hunting for tickets to look in on the convention as spectators.

"WE CAN CURE ALL OUR TROUBLES"

In This Country If We Go About It Right"—Locating the Trouble.

Colonel Bailey of the Houston Post recently made this statement in one of his characteristic short paragraphs which in so many instances contain the germ of a most interesting and instructive preachment. Applied to the interests of community building, it is most comprehensive in its scope and can be readily used fundamentally.

Our work is devoted to the betterment of the agricultural interests of the greatest agricultural state in the union. Not only on account of its being the largest in area, but of its present achievements and its unlimited possibilities, and when we find a section of Texas that is ninety or ninety-five per cent agriculture, which is true of a very large proportion of our state, that is not steadily gaining in prosperous development, there is something radically wrong with the methods employed, for nature has originally designed that it should be so and has furnished the needed elements in the greatest abundance, and where the results are not satisfactory there is only one reason for it and that is we have not assembled these elements in the right proportions to bring the harvests that were intended we should enjoy.

The United States geological survey of Houston county shows and fully describes seventeen distinctly different varieties of soil, endowed by nature to produce abundantly as great a variety of staple products as any section of the South, and much greater than any of the most prosperous sections of the North. From this well established fact it is clearly evident that the original idea was not that we should confine our efforts to growing any one single crop. For had this been the case our soil would all have been of practically one character instead of there being so many kinds and each one especially adapted for certain products. The Creator's manifest intention was to equip this section in such a manner that the greatest degree of prosperity should be ours if we conduct our farming operations along lines that are adapted to secure the best results. And as conclusive proof that these deductions are founded on the right theory, a canvas of the territory

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days... I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go... I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle... I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78 will show in a most convincing manner that the farmer who is getting along as he should is not confining his operations to the one-crop system, but is regularly growing a variety of products and that he is giving special attention to live stock, regularly milking a number of good cows and steadily adding to the size of his dairy herd. This system religiously followed up will make any farmer prosperous and he and his family will be content to remain on the farm.

To enable the farmer to engage in this form of managing his business, the merchant of his trading town must provide a ready cash market for these diversified crops. It is just as much the business of the merchant to do this as it is for the farmer to grow the crops, and when this is clearly understood and the two are co-operating sincerely from a partnership standpoint then and not till then will that community be traveling the road that leads to lasting prosperity. The basis of this plan is helping the farmer to make the best use of what he already has, realizing that he possesses in great abundance the elements which if rightly employed will make him prosperous and contented, but he must have the help of his town brother, the merchant, to make his capital available.

For the merchant to become an effective partner for the farmer, he must create an organization through which he can perform his part of the work, as all

At a mass meeting of the undersigned qualified voters of Weldon voting precinct adopted the following resolutions:

That whereas the Democratic party of this State and Nation have abandoned the true and fundamental principles of Jeffersonian Democracy and are advocating principles in direct opposition to the true and tried principles of Democracy or a representative form of government, being a centralization of power in our Federal Government and the abolishment of state's rights as was granted under the compact or federation of States.

And being loyal to the true principles of Jeffersonian Democracy and believing in the preservation of a Republican form of Government, we hereby subscribe to the party principles as adopted by the Democracy of Texas in their assembly at Ft. of the merchants must participate. A Chamber of Commerce or Commercial Club, properly housed and equipped and managed by a well paid secretary who has been trained to the duties of the position, is the avenue through which the farmer and merchant can be brought together, and statistics will bear witness to the fact that whenever this combination is honestly entered into and persistently carried forward genuine prosperity of the permanent variety invariably follows. On the other hand history does not chronicle noteworthy successes in our agricultural sections where such an organization is not directing its civic activities.

In consideration of the promise of the municipal authorities of Galveston that they will give absolute protection to men engaged in unloading ships and moving freight, Adjutant General Cope has suspended the order for bringing in state troops. The wisdom of the adjutant general in doing that will be determined largely by the degree of efficiency with which the municipal authorities of Galveston perform their undertaking. The state authorities have no wish to intervene in the affairs of Galveston. The people of the state have no wish to have them do so. All that they wish—and this they have a right to demand—that any men who are willing to do the work of moving freight shall be allowed to do so unhindered and unmenaced. If the authorities of Galveston shall give them the kind and degree of protection to which they are entitled, the people of Texas will be content with the agreement that has been made. But if the authorities of Galveston should default on their undertaking, or if they should allow it to appear that men going to Galveston to do that work will not be adequately protected, then the people of Texas will demand that the original plans be executed. The life of the present agreement is in the hands of the authorities and people of Galveston. It remains for them to determine whether state troops shall or shall not be brought in to protect men who wish to work in their right to do so. It is desirable that the full import of this fact should be grasped by the people and authorities of Galveston. —Galveston News.

Of the $4,000,000,000 appropriated by congress, more than $800,000,000 is for the support of the army and navy. How much has been appropriated for pensions is not set for the analysis printed yesterday. But if that unknown amount and the further amount appropriated to pay the interest and provide for the sinking fund on the public debt be added to the $800,000,000 to be spent for maintaining the army and navy, we should have a total probably much above half the aggregate of the appropriations; which means, in other words, that the greatest item in the cost of government is made up of the expenses of wars that have been fought and of preparing for wars that may yet be fought. Militarism, in the sense of war as a means of settling international controversies, is the greatest burden that we bear. And so it is virtually of all other peoples. It is the greatest of all taxes on human effort. It is the incubus under which society labors, the ball and chain that it must drag in every step of progress it makes. Possibly the league of nations is not an ideal instrument for preventing war, but one who reflects on the cost of war will find in this statement of the appropriation made by congress some reason for being tolerant in his criticism of what may be its defects. It is conceived of the noblest and wisest impulse that has moved statesmen in a century at least, and that fact ought to command a sympathetic consideration of the scheme that has come of that impulse. —Galveston News.

EDITORIALS BY DR. R. T. MILNER

WHAT THE FORMER A. & M. PRESIDENT WRITES IN THE RUSK COUNTY NEWS.

AN OPEN LETTER TO HON. CHAMP CLARK.

My Dear Sir:—I notice in the Congressional Record, under "Contingent Expenses" for the printing of various and sundry things, the following:

Mr. Clark of Missouri. "Is there no way in the world to stop the departments from running their printing presses?"

Mr. Good. "I do not know. There ought to be. Here is one publication entitled, 'Preface to a Report of the United States Food Administration, by Herbert Hoover, April, 1920.' Here are three copies of it received by one newspaper on one day, all printed on a very expensive calendared paper. Here are other reports, from all the departments, coming to this one newspaper every week. They say they do not read them, do not open them; that they throw them in the wastebasket; yet these government clerks, 100,000 of them, are here in Washington, and it must be necessary to keep a great many of them just sending out this useless stuff."

Mr. Clark of Missouri. "I know that half the country papers protest against receiving these things at all."

Not only half the country papers protest against receiving these things, but all of them. If the average Congressman only knew of the printed matter that has accumulated in the country printing offices in the United States since the beginning of the war, which has been utterly wasted, swept into the garbage heap to be hauled out and burned, he would be appalled. It would be safe to say that tons of this stuff are destroyed almost daily by the country press. It reaches these offices by all the known methods of distributing mail, most of it nicely wrapped and inclosed in excellent, large envelopes, bearing the necessary frank.

In the name of common decency, economy and the general welfare of the Nation this wholesale extravagance should be stopped. The impression is made upon the country editor, who of all men ought at all times feel that he is justified in defending his government, that Congress is either asleep, or wholly indifferent as to the manner in which the people's money is worse than wasted, because it entails extra labor in the printing office to destroy it.

If such wanton extravagance is practiced by the government with reference to paper, when it is costing the editor four or five times what it did before the war, he naturally arrives at the conclusion that the Congress, the greatest law-making body in the world, is neglecting every other branch of business in the same way and is appropriating money like a lot of drunken sailors.

Destroy the confidence of the great army of country editors in their country's business integrity, and you have lost what should be the strongest and most potent force in the great scheme of representative government. Each week the editorial page of the country paper should be able to carry to its readers burning sentiments of patriotism, prompted by the highest standard of righteous economy, statesmanship and devotion to the best interests of all the people, upon the part of the Congress of our common country.

Why cannot the Congress begin a campaign to cut out all useless expenditures of money, and make it so strong that no force at Washington can resist it? Certainly there are enough patriots in the two parties to override and crush beneath their weight any influence that might interpose. The people of all parties, the plain people, who constitute the blood, bone and sinew of this Republic, are praying that the burden of civil life, with its hard tasks and responsibilities, should be made easier.

The great mass of the people, whom Andrew Jackson declared desired nothing but equal laws and equal justice, when they hear of the extravagance and profligacy permitted at the Capital, naturally become sore and resentful, and the task of holding their patriotism at a hundred per cent becomes more and more difficult.

I wish there was some way by which the silent anxiety and hope long deferred of the people far from Washington who bear the bulk of the burdens of taxation and produce the Nation's food and clothing, could burn in the ears of their representatives and be to them a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night.

In this connection allow me to say that the people of the South, ex-service patriots and all, believe the soldier bonus legislation is a base, vulgar bid for the votes of the soldiers. It is with pardonable pride that I am able to say that the patriotism of the men of the South, like the virtue of our women, bears no dollar marks upon it. We may be charged as traitors because we fought to maintain rights guaranteed by the Constitution, but we have never descended so low in the scale of patriotism, since taking the oath of allegiance, as to demand a bonus to defend the government and thus make the oath binding by a kind of bribe. A very respectable race of patriots to descend from "traitors," don't you think?

As to the coarse remarks of the gentleman from Illinois with reference to the South, we regard them as emanating from a soul so steeped in ignorance and prejudice as to brand their author with pity and contempt.

If we are not to be charged with disloyalty to anybody, or if we can express our sentiments without giving any offense to the most sensitive gentlemen, we will announce that it is our opinion that Mr. Wilson is and has been for many months a candidate for another term, and that he will be nominated at San Francisco, on the seventh ballot. If this prophecy fails, due apology will be made. Mr. Wilson is a candidate on the League of Nations without any reservations. Mr. Wilson's physical condition will not interfere in the least with his political ambition. Watch and pray. The fig leaves began to develop long ago.

They are now sending out reports from Washington that a coldness has sprung up between Mr. Wilson and his son-in-law, Mr. McAdoo. Also that Col. House no longer visits the White House. There is a great deal of bad human nature yet in these low grounds of sorrow and politics.

There is a bill in Congress providing pensions for government employees after a certain age. It should not pass. The lasting qualities of this Republic will depend largely upon the absence of burdens upon the backs of those who create the wealth of the Nation.

If the world should wake up some of these mornings with not enough food to go 'round and not any more on the farms than will be sufficient to feed the farmers, no one need be very much surprised. The bread makers are dangerously in the minority.

"SHEAR SOUTH OF POWER" IS PLEA

Restrictions to Be Put on Number of Delegates Sent.

Chicago, June 5.—Representation of the Southern States in future republican national conventions would further be reduced under plans to be urged on the national committee.

Many of the northern committeemen feel convinced that the last reduction did not reach the mark at which the committee was aiming and they cite the crop of delegate contests brought to the national committee from the Southern States with accompanying "cooked up evidence, packed or secret conventions and stacks of affidavits which some delegates before the committee charged had been obtained at $5 a throw."

Fewer Delegates.

In practically every contest before the committee, speakers have declared that the republican party would meet little success in the Southern States unless it took steps to check the alleged practices. As the first step the committee by unanimous resolution warned that no local or district conventions for the next national convention must be held in places not accessible to all, regardless of color. The same committeemen who proposed that resolution have now, after further study of the subject, prepared to submit plans to slash the delegate representation of the Southern States to a minimum in harmony with the number of republican votes they bring out at the polls.

The plan is to give the States representation by a limited number of delegates at large and to put the required number of republican votes in the congressional districts at a mark which will reduce the district delegate representation. The South Carolina case centered the attention of committeemen on that feature as it presented an instance of a State casting 1500 republican votes, being represented in the national convention with 11 delegates. The understanding now is that the committeemen framing the plan will present it to the present committee before it goes out of existence and use the proceedings of the contest hearings to argue the reason for the change they demand.

Negro Vote Problem.
 Many committeemen from the Northern States particularly are disturbed over the problem of the negro vote, as it was represented at the contest hearings. Some contests were straight out black and white issues and in some of them the negroes in control of the party machinery. In some of the cases this argument was used by the appealing delegation in entreating the committee to recognize their delegates on the ground that "negro domination" as some speakers expressed it, would prevent the breaking of the solid South.
