NUECES COUNTY TO CO-OPERATE IN TICK ERADICATION

Farmers and Cattlemen Decide to Dip Stock; 300 Attend Meeting.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Jan. 14.—Stock raisers, farmers and business men of Corpus Christi and Nueces county have decided to co-operate with State and federal live stock authorities to lift the fever tick quarantine in this county.

Live stock raisers from all parts of this and surrounding counties attended the meeting which was called by County Judge H. R. Sutherland of this county. About 300 men were present. The decision reached means that the farmers of this county will dip their cattle, a procedure that met with such violent opposition in other sections of the State.

J. E. Boog-Scott, chairman of the live stock sanitary commission of Texas, was present, and urged the stock men of this territory to co-operate with the State and federal authorities so that this section of zone three would be "cleaned up" speedily. The quarantine in this county goes into effect April 1, and will, of course, be maintained against the county until it receives a clean bill of health as far as ticks are concerned. Mr. Boog-Scott said he hoped a situation, similar to that of East Texas, would not prevail here. He told of dipping vats in various sections being blown up by malcontents, but added that one farmer was so pleased with the results he obtained that he waded through the dipping vat himself.

AMERICAN LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS

A meeting of the Thomas R. Brailsford Post No. 134 of the American Legion was held in the club rooms of the legion Monday night. The meeting was called for the purpose of reorganization as well as for the election of officers for the year 1922, also for the consideration of any other business deemed necessary for the good of the legion post.

In the call for the meeting it was announced that the following officers were to be filled: A post commander, a vice post commander, a post adjutant, a post finance officer, a post chaplain, a post historian, a sergeant at arms and a bugler, and also the appointment of an entertainment committee and an executive committee.

Twenty-two members of the post were present, which was considered a good attendance, and elections and appointments were made as follows:

Norman Allbright, post finance officer.

N. H. Phillips, post chaplain.
John Spence, post historian.
Grady Monk, sergeant at arms.

Entertainment committee—Loch Cook, chairman; Burke Lockey and Mayes L. Berry.

Executive committee—Dr. W. A. Beatty, chairman; R. F. McCrummin and Earl Bryan.

The regular meeting night was set for the third Tuesday in each month and the annual dues placed at $5.

The Thomas R. Brailsford Post of the American Legion, No. 134, wants it known that the post keeps open house at all times for all ex-service men as well as for visiting brothers of the legion.

The dues of members present were promptly met.

LEON COUNTY MAN KILLED DURING RAID

Deputy Slightly Wounded in Battle in East Texas.

Madisonville, Tex., Jan. 15.—Bill Freeman of Madison County was killed last night. Sheriff S. Cobb and Deputies Ed Nance and R. B. Bain of Leon County engaged in a pistol fight with a band of men in the southern part of Leon County, near the Madison line. Deputy Sheriff Nance was hit in the hand by a buckshot, but none of the officers were seriously wounded.

The officers surprised several men who were loading two barrels on a wagon in the woods. The officers ordered the men to throw up their hands, but they broke and ran, one of the men firing a shotgun at the officers as he ran. Freeman was killed instantly. Four men escaped, according to Sheriff Cobb.

Freeman was a resident of the Mount Tabor community, Madison County.

The two barrels of corn mash and a still, which was later confiscated, have been turned over to federal Prohibition Officer Floyd. The raid, according to Sheriff Cobb, was the culmination of several nights' surveillance of the woods to locate a still which it was thought had been producing a large amount of moonshine whisky, in the county.

SOME NEWS OF THE CROCKETT OIL FIELD

The operators of the Porter well on the Austin farm are still having water trouble. Bailing, which has been continuous for some time, was still in progress Wednesday night. The operators are yet hopeful of finally controlling the water and also hopeful of bringing in a paying oil well. The second derrick of the Porter Oil Company, which is also on the Austin land, is completed and ready for the drilling rig which is to arrive soon. Regardless of whether oil is found in the first well, the second will be put down.

The Driskill well of the Latex Oil and Gas Company is now in gumbo and the driller expects to find gas in a few days. The operators report that rapid progress is being made in this well.

The well a mile and a half north of Grapeland is again in operation, new people having taken hold of it. Drilling in this well has been discontinued for some time.

The Courier asked a well-known geologist for one of the oil companies operating at Crockett for a statement as to the oil and gas possibilities in Houston county and the following opinion was submitted by him for publication:

Some well known geologists have, for several months, been giving close attention to the geological formations in Houston county.

The question as to whether there was oil and gas in this county was determined some time ago, and in consequence the necessary geological surveys to locate the structure have been in progress without any publicity.

They are here, north, east, south and west, and it will only be a short time, in the opinion of some geologists and mining engineers, when the general public will become cognizant of the fact that rich oil and gas prospects have been located.

All the signs, denoting the possibility of obtaining oil and gas in commercial quantity, so well known to the oil field experts, are to be seen in many parts of this county. The drill has started here on its exploration and is busy in three different sections of the county, and this underground work, together with the logs of a few wells drilled a long time ago for oil and water, shows the formation to be of a similar character to that of Mexia, Humble and other parts of the salt dome fields. Areal conditions are much the same and it would not surprise many well known experts to see this county prove to be an oil and gas producer that will be on a par with some of the big oil fields in Texas.

Why has this knowledge been so carefully concealed? is asked, and the reason is very simple. It has not been deliberately concealed, but due to circumstances that were the result of natural causes. Six wells were put down several years ago and each of them gave good evidence of oil and gas, but before getting to the big oil sands, they failed on account of insufficient funds. They were in each case drilled by local investors who lacked the knowledge of the oil drilling business necessary to have, and also largely owing to this lack they failed to realize that it required more money to drill for oil and gas in this county than they had provided. Several years passed and then outside interests sent geologists into this county who were not long in determining that the possibility of obtaining oil and gas here was strongly in evidence.

There is oil here, oil of a high grade, and this fact has been recently made plain. The drill is now about to illuminate this statement, and several drilling contracts have been placed which should make legible the fact that the opinions of many geologists, regarding this question, are right.

LIMESTONE COUNTY ATTORNEY ARRESTED

Many Are Taken To Waco, Charged With Liquor Violation.

Waco, Tex., Jan. 14.—County Attorney Lon Eubanks and Deputy Sheriff Jim Steele of Limestone County and four others, including one woman, charged with violation of the federal prohibition laws, were brought from Mexia this afternoon and arraigned before United States Commissioner A. P. McCormick. County Attorney Eubanks is charged with conspiracy to violate national prohibition laws and was released under $1,000 cash bond.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Steele, charged with obstructing internal revenue officers in their duty, was given his freedom under bond of $2,000. Garrett Carter, charged with having intoxicating liquor in his possession, was released under a $500 bond. The others charged with a similar offense are Mrs. Minnie Hawkins, Claude Riley and E. S. Stafford.

Ten complaints charging various violations of the federal liquor laws were filed this evening before Commissioner McCormick against that many men who were taken in Mexia raids last week by the Texas rangers. M. G. Gonzallus, federal prohibition agent, left the city tonight for Mexia. He will return tomorrow with twenty-five federal prisoners now being held by the national guardsmen in that city.

The trial of County Attorney Eubanks has been set for Friday, Jan. 20. The case against Deputy Sheriff Steele will be heard the following day.

For County Commissioner.

The Courier presents this week the name of J. O. Kelley as a candidate for county commissioner in precinct No. 4, known as the Kennard or Ratcliff precinct. For the benefit of those who do not know Mr. Kelley the Courier will state that he lives in the Belott community, where he has spent the most if not all of his life. Everybody in the Belott country know him, and they know him to be a man of his word; of loyalty to the best interests of his community and of a strict adherence to the soundest principles of economy and wisdom that may be applied in the management of all affairs, whether public or private.

Mr. Kelley is a man of family and a farmer. He promises as faithful service as a county official as he has rendered as a private citizen, should he receive the nomination and election. He has never affiliated with any but the democratic party and has always been faithful in his party's councils. He is making the race squarely on his merits and qualifications for the office, and he solicits the votes of all good men and women strictly on that ground.

Some Eggs.

Mr. J. L. Brown, a farmer living near Crockett, was exhibiting in town Saturday three hen eggs that weighed 14 ounces, the largest one of which weighed 7 ounces, or more than half a pound. The average egg weighs less than 2 ounces. These eggs were from a Rhode Island Red. The largest one measured 9 inches around the long way and eight inches around the other way. They were left in the store of G. H. Parker, where the largest one was broken and found to contain toward the center a smaller, but well developed, egg.

Residence Destroyed.

The residence of E. T. Ozier on Grace street was destroyed by fire Saturday morning. It is thought the fire originated in or near the roof, as the roof was in flames before the fire was discovered. The local fire company responded promptly, but the house burned rapidly and was too far gone to be saved. Being in the residential section, the flames were confined to the one house. Some of the household goods were saved by being carried out. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The Courier has not heard whether Mr. Ozier will rebuild.

House Catches Fire.

The residence of W. H. Denny on east Public avenue caught fire in the roof Saturday at noon, but was extinguished with small loss, although the flames were considerable when discovered. The fire was near an attic entrance from which it could be reached with buckets of water before the arrival of the fire company. With the arrival of the fire company the flames were entirely subdued, although it had looked for awhile like the fire would be serious.

What the Former A. & M. President Writes in the Rusk County News.

HENRY WATTERSON.

Henry Watterson, the last of the grand old school, writes and lives no longer. For half a century, or quite so, his name and the Courier-Journal were synonymous. During the dark days of Reconstruction and carpet-bag rule in the South his pen was the most powerful weapon that was wielded against the "Radicals" of the North. At the same time his pen was the first in the South to portray the greatness of Abe Lincoln, which fact aided him in his passionate desire to banish the wicked hatred, which the war had engendered, with all the earnestness of a Christian. He never tried to justify the Civil War. Though reared in the South and was a soldier in the Confederacy, he was a strong "Union man." He was an ardent admirer of Thomas J. Rusk, and told the writer many years ago that had the great Texan lived, the Democrats, North and South, would have united in his support and elected him instead of Lincoln.

In later years Watterson was out of harmony with the Democratic party on the money question, and died in the belief that prohibition and woman suffrage were wrong. But whatever path he took he illumined it with his almost incomparable genius and those who traveled different routes, if they were true men and women, respected him for his honesty and admired him for his brilliancy.

We are now and then regaled by the falsehood that this, that or the other great man is no longer great because the times have changed, as though greatness varies with the whims of men. The truth is, there seems to be no place right now for greatness in journalism. No other profession has undergone so great a transformation during the last two or three decades as journalism. It has lost its former manner of thinking and acting and is guided by floating convictions instead of moral principles. It no longer sets duty in the midst of our resolutions as the sole and undisturbed foundation of life. We no longer look on life as an august temple, but as a machine for profits. We have our rich men, manufacturers, bankers, even statesmen so called, who preach the gospel of gold. We overwork ourselves to heap up fortunes. "Our hell," as Paine said, "is no longer the dread of being found guilty before the just judge, but the dread of making a bad bargain." Instead of an aristocracy of learning we have substituted "greedy shopkeepers who reduce life to a calculation of cost and sale prices."

It has been said by a careful historian that "once in a half century, or perhaps a century, or two centuries, some thinker appears. At other times the stage is unoccupied, or ordinary men come forward, and offer the public that which the public likes—sensualists, or idealists, according to the tendency of the day, with sufficient instruction and skill to play leading parts, and enough capacity to re-set old airs, well drilled in the works of their predecessors, but destitute of real invention—simple executant musicians who stand in the place of composers."

Behold the gentlemen now on the stage! Sensualists many, idealists a few, gold counters by the thousands, money worshippers as thick as the sands of the seas, almost, and vanity gone to seed.

Great papers have become mere machines. "What makes the angel makes the beast, and perfect heroism, like all excesses, ends in stuper." Hundreds of great (?) American dailies, and not a dozen readers of them all can stand flat-footed and name the editor. If great evils are necessary in order to raise great men, there has been a terrible abortion in the editorial line.

Watterson would have been a great man in any age. If he were now a young man, and commencing an editorial career as he did over a half century ago, his readers would be numbered by the millions. If Hume and Bacon and Carlyle and Macaulay brought honor to England so have the names of Watterson, Dana and Greely and McCollough brought honor to America. If at present the stage is blank and commercialism dominates those who preach the doctrines of organized greed and shape the policy of nations, the future will some day or other bring forth other giants, who, like Watterson in his day, made "hell ring and the devil sing psalms."

TWENTY MILLIONS FOR RUSSIA.

The Congress of the United States voted a gift out of the Treasury of $20,000,000 to feed the Russians. No one doubts that millions of Russians need feeding. They also need clothing, and Senator Wadsworth of New York, in the debate that preceded the gift, allowed that they need education. The great body of the American people would like to know what the Congress needs. The purposes for which we can tax the American people are well known. They are: To support the government, pay its debts, to provide for its defense, and to promote the general welfare of our people. While Mr. Cleveland was president Congress voted a few thousand dollars with which to buy cotton seed for the stricken drouth sufferers of Texas to restore and replant the wasted fields of the land. Mr. Cleveland no doubt sympathized deeply with the impoverished cotton planters, but he vetoed the bill because it was unconstitutional and as the President of the United States he had taken a solemn oath to uphold that chart. But the Constitution and the oath which Congressmen take to uphold no longer bind the national law-makers. One Senator said: "I can not quibble about matters of this kind (the Constitution) when children are dying for bread. I would not let the Constitution or anything else stand between me and giving to starving children something that would sus-tain life." Very few members sought to justify their votes by the constitution.

A few Senators had the nerve to stand by the organic law of the nation and opposed the bill. One Southern Senator, Dial of South Carolina, said: "We ought to realize that we are not here to donate the people's money. We are here to run the government according to law and according to the Constitution, and I hope we will get back to that principle. I deeply sympathize with every one who is suffering. I do not know whether the statements which we get are exaggerated or not, but there ought to be some way to have this administered in a business-like way. Let every individual contribute according to his means to every worthy cause. We all do that."

If a sentiment like this is to be the rule in appropriating the money gathered by taxation, then the person of even small foresight can see the end of this Republic.

Twenty million dollars by a vote of Congress are taken out of the Treasury in violation of the Constitution. "Why quibble about the Constitution?" One hundred million dollars would not relieve the want, suffering and destitution in America. There are multiplied thousands of good American citizens helping to pay the taxes to run this government who this very hour are denying themselves of everything in the world except the direst necessities. There are millions of men, women and children in America begging for work that they might earn a living, if the daily papers and government statisticians are to be relied upon.

MAKE THEM TAKE A STAND.

This year of our Lord, 1922, the woods will be alive with candidates for office. From the smallest to the biggest office in the State must be supplied by an election. The candidate who stands for office should be compelled to stand for economy, and made to speak out so clearly and emphatically that his position will be known of all voters. For many years now our candidates for legislative place have done little but weep over the rights of women and the prohibition of man, and in the name of those delightful questions many a sorry man has gone into power and spent the people's money with a lavishness never known before. Intoxicated with the idea that the cause of all crimes, all poverty, all evil had been abolished by their very votes and influence these quacks and mountebanks have ridden the voters to a fare-you-well. But let the dead past rest in the tomb, and slay the first man who pleads for office on dead issues. Never in this world was statesmanship, pure and undefiled, quite so much in demand as right now.

WHAT ARE WE TO DO WITH OUR FARMS.

Our farm lands are taxed far out of proportion to the value of crops produced on them. The taxes in most instances amount to the full value of rents, which is equivalent to confiscation. These facts emphasize the importance of using every acre of land in the most profitable way. Uncultivated land should be used for pastures, and land that is cultivated must be made to produce more money than ever before. This can be done, as every intelligent farmer knows, by more intensive cultivation, a more economical plan of fertilization and the elimination of waste. Our public roads upon which we are spending vast sums of money will prove an injury instead of a blessing unless we haul over them a larger tonnage of farm products more valuable than before. We must make our roads a source of revenue as well as a luxury. It is predicted with good reason that with our good roads will open up a perpetual market for poultry and cream; that in the near future poultry stations and cream stations will be established throughout the country, provided the farmers will furnish these products in quantities that will justify the trouble and expense of maintaining them. It is evident that a transformation in agriculture must take place, or our farms will cease to pay taxes and support those who till them. We need not look for a less tax rate soon, and the only hope in sight is a plan or method by which we can increase the value of our crops. The value per acre of our East Texas land from a standpoint of production over and above the required tax toll is so trifling that those who must take it for debt consider that they have driven a hard bargain. Our farm lands should above all other property represent a safe and sane investment in them, and conditions are far from good when the basis of all our wealth will not guarantee a reasonable dividend upon their assessed value for taxation.

HAS SHE A RIGHT TO POWDER HER FACE

Has a girl a right to powder her face?

That question has divided a little Arkansas town, embroiled the Arkansas courts in the argument and attracted more attention to Knobel—the scene of the action—than the town's 400 citizens ever hoped to receive in all their lives.

Knobel's school authorities decided that no students were to use cosmetics on their faces. Three girls appeared powdered one day and were told to leave the building. One had the temerity to rebel against what seemed to be an arbitrary ruling of narrow-minded men and decided to fight the case. She sued the school board for permission to attend classes, her face powdered or not, as she saw fit. The trial will come up in March.

The Knobel story has been circulated widely over the United States and support for the girl in her stand is pouring in to Northeastern Arkansas by word of mouth, in letters, and in telegrams. A poll of the town shows most of the sentiment there, even, to be in her favor.

The town—"just up from Hoxie on the St. Louis-Little Rock branch of the Missouri Pacific"—lay warm and dusty in the afternoon of a fall day this year when N. E. Hicks, principal of the Knobel school, and, incidentally, pastor of the Disciples of Christ church in the community, rose to make an announcement. He cleared his throat and the room came to attention.

"All the girls in this room who have on artificial complexion come to the front and sit on the recitation bench," Mr. Hicks announced nervously.

Books closed with a bang. Boys sat upright in their chairs, an expectant grin on each of their faces. Girls looked from one to another, then two of them walked slowly to the front of the room. They sat on the designated recitation benches and awaited the next development.

It came from another girl in the room, a girl who had not come forward with them, but

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. . . I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too.

had risen to her feet coolly and was addressing the principal.

"I guess you mean me, too, don't you, Mr. Hicks?" she asked.

"I do, Miss Pugsley," he answered.

She joined the two at the front of the room, and it was the teacher's turn to say something.

"I want to read to you a rule passed by the members of the school board of district 11," he began. "The members are J. R. McCoy, J. F. Sellmeyer and B. A. Scott and they run this school. The rule that they passed says that 'the wearing of transparent hosiery, low waists, short skirts or any other clothing tending toward immodesty, or the wearing of face paint or cosmetics is prohibited.'

"You girls—," Mr. Hicks again cleared his throat, and his nervousness increased, "are wearing cosmetics. You'll either have to leave school or go out and wash the powder and paint from your faces."

The two girls who had answered his summons first looked at the girl who had been last to join them. She was Pearl Pugsley, one of the most popular students in school, and she had "spunk."

"I'm not wearing powder and paint in the sense that you mean it," she told Mr. Hicks. "I haven't anything on my face but ordinary talcum powder."

"That makes no difference," the principal said. "A rule is a rule."

The three girls left the room. Miss Pugsley went home and told the story to her father and mother, well-to-do citizens who held an established position in the town.

"You haven't enough powder on your face to hurt anything," they told her. "Go back to school and tell us what he says."

She and the other girls tried to return to their classes but had no success. Mr. Hicks was at the door waiting for them.

"If you don't comply with our rule, we've got no use for you here," he said, in effect. "You'll have to leave the school grounds."

Miss Pugsley went into the room, packed up her books and left the building.

When she reached home and told her family the latest chapter to the story, they were very angry. Mr. Pugsley tried to reason with Mr. Hicks, but had little success. He then immediately filed legal proceedings asking for a temporary restraining order so that his daughter might return to school while the case was being settled. No action resulted. His final move was to ask for a writ of mandamus that his daughter might attend her classes. That is the case that is yet to be tried.

What does M. Hicks say about his side of the case?

"I didn't make the rule," he explains. "I was handed it, and told to enforce it 'to the letter.' That is what I have tried to do."

"Why was such a rule made, anyway? New York, Chicago, San Francisco haven't any such regulation, and they're bigger places than Knobel with many more girls to deal with."

"The rule was made to avert trouble. I have been teaching in schools here seven years, and it has been my experience that clothing and complexions of the type that were ruled against disturb the morals of the school."

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

When you want a thing in a hurry you rush to a local store and get it. But do you realize that the existence of our stores depends upon continued business.

If every person in this community were to use the stores only for emergencies there would soon be no more places to satisfy those urgent needs.

You should do your part towards keeping local business alive and in a constant state of betterment by doing all your trading at home. It will be profitable to you as well as to the entire community.

TRADE AT HOME SUPPORT THE TOWN THAT SUPPORTS YOU heard that a newspaper man from out of town had arrived to "write Knobel up," they held a meeting for his benefit, and reaffirmed the anti-face powder stand they had taken.

"Now that the rule is made, we'll stick by it," was the decision of the three, but when their individual opinions were solicited it developed that they had backed up their original decision more in a "That's-our-story-and-we're-going-to-stick-to-it" frame of mind than through any actual feeling that the wearing of face powder was a crime.

"Just a little powder doesn't hurt," Mr. Sellmeyer observed equably. "I use it myself when I shave."

"I am strongly opposed to face powder or any other form of 'artificial complexion,'" avowed Mr. Scott, evidently the stand-patter of the three.

"If we lose, the discipline of not only our school but of many schools in the United States will be demoralized," temporized Mr. McCoy, chairman of the board. "There will be no discipline. Students and their families will sue on every ruling they don't like."

The board finds its main support in the community sentiment coming quite naturally from Mr. Hicks' companion teachers in the school. Whether the teachers take this move from a "stand by the ship" attitude or because they really believe face powder is a vital danger to the peace and good conduct of the citizens of Northeastern Arkansas is left to each person's particular judgment. They have received support from the teachers in some of the nearby small towns and rural schools, as is evidenced by this resolution passed by them all at a recent meeting:

"The educational association of the Western district of Clay county, Arkansas, aware of the unfortunate case of Pearl Pugsley vs. the Knobel School Board, pending in the circuit court of the Western district of Clay county, heartily indorses the stand taken by the directors and teachers of the Knobel school and expresses its confidence in their integrity and ability."

Who supports Miss Pugsley in her side of the affair? Oh, everyone, from a large percentage of Knobel's citizenry to men and women and school girls all over the country who have written her urging her to "stick to it," to several men who have written her proposals of marriage, to a California motion picture concern which has made her an offer of $1000 a week to enter its employ, with expenses paid for her mother and a maid.

"I'm going to push this suit clear up to the supreme court of Arkansas if I have to," the girl says. "My father died soon after he filed the original proceedings, but he told me and my mother that he wished to do it. We're going to, too."

There is just one additional fact that persons investigating the Knobel face powder war always want to know. That is: How much powder does Miss Pugsley use, and is she a pretty girl?

Miss Pugsley is very pretty. She is about 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs in the neighborhood of 120 pounds, and has a smile that instantly wins friends. She does not powder conspicuously, in fact, wears less of it than nine out of ten girls one will pass on a Kansas City street.

"And, at that, the day I was sent home from school I wasn't even wearing face powder—it was talcum powder," she adds. "Talcum powder, mind you. Why, they put that on babies!" —Kansas City Star.

Well Stocked Cellar is Asset For Would-be Bride.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Men want looks and women are after the coin. It was ever thus and always will be thus.

An investigating reporter journeyed to the University of Chicago and quizzed the class in evolution and eugenics on this question: "What are the qualities you desire most in a wife or husband?"

First of all both men and women preferred good health as the object of their choice.

Then the men wanted good dispositions, beauty, education, maternity, house keeping, character, dress, ancestry and financial standing, in the order named.

Of the 3 co-eds who replied, character received second place, with disposition, financial standing, education, paternity, appearance, dress and ancestry following.

One student said his potential wife must have money, be a widow, be good looking, a blonde and last, but not least, must have an extraordinarily well stocked cellar.

Cotton Statistics.

There were 12,691 bales of cotton ginned in Houston county from the crop of 1921 prior to January 1, 1922, as compared with 22,417 bales ginned to January 1, 1921, according to statistics furnished the national government by E. B. Hale, cotton census enumerator.

Store Broken Into.

Night Watchman W. A. Hooper arrested two young negro boys this week on a charge of having broken through a rear window of the store of the Beasley Drug Company. One of the boys told the officer where the stolen articles could be found and these were located at the designated place of hiding. A small amount of missing money was not recovered. The boys were taken to jail.

Sold Out and Quit.

What was left of the Johnson & McLean stock of goods was sold Saturday to Mr. J. S. Cook of Belott, and Mr. Cook moved the goods this week to his Belott stores, which are run by himself and son. Although Messrs. Johnson & McLean have been reducing their stock all the fall, there was still much valuable merchandise left. George McLean of the firm has bought the store fixtures in Crockett, but the firm has retired from business and the store is now vacant except for the fixtures. The Courier's understanding is that this building will likely remain vacant until next fall on account of some improvements that are contemplated for it in the summer.

ANNOUNCEMENT

¶ We wish to announce to our friends and the general public that we have bought the drug store formerly operated by the Crockett Drug Company in the Pickwick Hotel corner and will continue the business at the same location. We are now busily engaged in remodeling the interior of the store, junking old stock and restocking with new, clean merchandise, and when this work is completed we will have one of the best equipped and most modern drug stores to be found in this section.

¶ We have secured the services of Mr. Dan Julian, a graduate pharmacist and experienced druggist, and at one time connected with this store, who will be in active charge of the business. Mr. Julian will arrive about the 15th to take charge, and will be glad to meet his old friends and renew acquaintanceship.

¶ We respectfully solicit a share of your drug business, guaranteeing you the very best quality of goods, prompt and courteous service and fair prices. Come in to see us often and make our store your meeting place.

Planting Cotton Seed

Don't take chances on a crop by using poor seed. You can't afford to miss a crop this year. We have a car-load of Watson's Acala, a long staple cotton, matures 10 days earlier than Mebane and beats the boll weevil. Investigate this seed, and you will plant no other.

Also have a car load of Lone Star, a fine seed, which we sold last year and growers were delighted. Both seed are grown specially for seed purposes, with government supervision, and are true to name. It will be economy to buy this sort of seed rather than plant other gratis.

Our supply is not large, as have sold heavily already, so it will pay you to see us early, and arrange for some of this fine seed.

Special—We are prepared to give next fall terms on good paper, and prices are reasonable.

RAILWAY TRAVEL GROWING SAFER.

Thirty years ago, Mr. Average American, you took eight annual railway journeys, and now you take twelve. Then you rode 24 miles each trip, and now you go 38 miles. Notwithstanding you ride half as many more times now, half again farther each trip and doubtless spend half as much more time in railway travel, yet the danger to your life is less than half as great as it used to be. If you have ridden once in the last 33 years, your chances of being killed were one in 91,000,000. Or, if you have taken one trip each year during that period, you came as near losing your life as one is near to 2,760,000. One ride taken last year imposed a hazard on your life of only one in 5,673,000, and on your twelve customary journeys, you were as far from jeopardy as 473,000 is greater than 1. Altogether, the railways of the United States carried in 1920 about 1,300,000, 000 passengers, with one killed for each group of 5,673,000 carried, while in a total of 472,000,000 people carried in 1889, the death rate was one in 1,523,000. The danger to life of railway travelers in 1920 was therefore less than one-third of what it was in 1889, most of the reduction accruing since 1907. To be sure there have been very bad years and exceptionally good years, but the general trend throughout the whole period has been decidedly towards the increasing safety of the traveling public.

The foregoing figures are the result of statistics compiled and issued by the Interstate Commerce commission, and furnished the Courier by the safety section of the American Railway association.

For County Commissioner.

The Courier presents this week the name of C. T. Stevenson as a candidate for county commissioner in precinct No. 3, which is known as the Lovelady precinct. Mr. Stevenson is a well known farmer of his section and has been living near Lovelady for nine years, having come from Falls county that many years ago. He is a man of family, a leader in community affairs, a hard worker in everything he undertakes and a valuable asset to any community. He has never affiliated with any but the democratic party and is still a democrat. He believes in better roads, better schools and better churches, but at the same time believes in the strictest economy in the management of the county's financial affairs. In other words he believes in the taxpayers getting their money's worth in whatever their money is paid out for. He believes in the bridge being worth the price paid. Mr. Stevenson has the mental and moral capacity to make a good county commissioner, and he solicits the votes of all good men and women in the coming July primary.

For Tax Collector.

The Courier presents this week the name of John L. Dean as a candidate for the office of tax collector of Houston county. Mr. Dean should be no stranger to many of Houston county's taxpayers and voters. He has had an experience of eighteen months as deputy tax collector, which was before the term of the present collector. Besides he has lived his life mostly on the farm near Crockett and is known to many of our people as one of Houston county's most conservative but successful farmers. He is a practical man in all his undertakings and a worthy citizen in any community. He is now engaged in farming at the old home place east of Crockett. He comes of an old line of democratic southern stock and his party affiliations are unquestioned. His ability and capacity are sufficient and his experience but adds to his natural and intellectual equipment. He believes with all other good citizens in an honest, economical and efficient administration of county affairs, applying the same sound rules as would be applied in one's own private affairs, and, thus believing, he solicits the support of all good citizens.

AN OPEN LETTER ARE YOU INTERESTED

Lovelady, Texas, Jan. 19, 1922.
To the Friends of Education
Around Lovelady:

As a citizen, father and teacher I have desired to say a few things about school matters before the tax year ends January 31. There is no doubt that we are facing a great crisis in school affairs. The hard financial situation and the fact that school taxes are collected by the School Board have wrought great hurt to school finances by enabling taxpayers to refuse payment when they dared not refuse to pay county taxes. This situation seems to justify the following considerations:

(1) Lovelady pays much higher road tax than she does school tax. The rate of road tax is $1.05 on the hundred, while the school tax is only 50 cents on the hundred. Which is a better investment, 50 cents in the education of boys and girls, which cannot be taken away, or $1.05 in dirt which is carried away by wind and water and must be replaced every few years?

(2) In all well regulated communities education of the youth takes first place. The amount spent by state and local governments on education is more than twice as much as the amount spent on roads and parks. This is a fair indication of the way enlightened communities regard education. Measured by this standard Lovelady is very far behind as it is.

(3) If taxes fall behind very much the school this year must be shortened to at least 8 months. This means losing classification as a second-class school. What is worse, a great deficit would certainly operate to shorten the term more, or decrease the faculty very much, next year. Either would bring the school very low among High Schools.

(4) If the Board is forced to turn back the assessing and collecting of taxes to the county, our local funds will be cut half in two. This would be a greater blow than that spoken of just now.

(5) A great many taxpayers spend more on gas, cold drinks, tobacco and gewgaws than their taxes amount to. Besides, free text books make education very cheap to many.

(6) What will be the result, if the above things happen? Lovelady will get the reputation of being "bum" on schools; people seeking good schools will give her a wide berth; even her own best families will get away as fast as possible to educate their children. The people who live here will be hurt far more than the cost of taxes. Realizing personally what these things mean and hoping for better things, I am yours cordially,

T. N. Mainer.

THE BUSINESS MAN AND THE NEWSPAPER.

The newspaper of today is the most powerful medium of advertising on earth. In the old days the merchant may have thought he was a benefactor and that he was contributing his bit as a public-spirited citizen when he carried a two-inch ad in the village paper every week in the year and generally without change of copy. Possibly he was.

But that is changed now. A new order has arrived. People read advertisements. Many find their greatest interest in looking over the advertising pages to get news that will save money, and take it from John D. Rockefeller the way to save your dollars is first to save your pennies.

Advertisements today are right up to the minute, they are as fresh as the news of the latest foot-ball score. Live merchants cater to live people and they know they must not only be up to the minute, but they must be some distance ahead. They must anticipate the wants of their customers.

And they do. Turn to the advertisements in this paper right now. Just read what our advertisers are saying to you: Notice their invitations for you to do business with them. They have faith in advertising, because they are sure you read advertisements, as well as other parts of the paper.

Business men—that is the successful ones—know advertising pays big returns. Unsuccessful men have no faith in advertising, or else they are neglecting the most important thing in the business world. Advertising is the tonic that puts dividends in the bank. Everybody reads advertisements today. Map out your campaign of publicity and carry it to a finish.

Missouri Senator Falls Victim of New Swindle.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Senator Spencer of Missouri learned something new about swindling Saturday at a cost of $65. He received a long distance telephone message ostensibly from Frank O. Watts, president of the First National bank of St. Louis, stating that his son Lawson M. Watts had been robbed on a train bound for Washington and asking the senator to supply him with funds.

The senator went to the railway station and caused a notice to be displayed on the train bulletin board instructing Lawson M. Watts on arrival to come to the senate office building. An hour later a young man appeared and introduced himself as Lawson M. Watts. The young man thought $50 would be sufficient as he was on his way home. Senator Spencer pressed an additional $15 upon him with success. After the young man had departed the senator telephoned the bank president.

"Must be some mistake," said Mr. Watts, senior. "I did not telephone you and my son is sitting by my side."

TWO BAD HABITS.

There is an evil that eats in- come faster than a debt drawing heavy interest; it is carelessness. Its twin brother is thoughtless- ness. When a worker does not care about the cost of replacing the damage he does, he does not put things in their proper place. He does not put them in proper condition to be put away. He just naturally leaves gates open so stock can get out, leaves tools where they will be lost or broken, does his work in a slipshod manner that costs the owner money. Some excuse every blun- der with "I didn't think." It is a worker's business to think. That is what brains are for. They are careless or they would make an effort to think— careless or lovesick! They who do not think about their work are almost as bad as they who think but do not work, says Suc- cessful Farming. These are habits no boy or girl can afford to cultivate, for they will operate later in life when they own the things that are damaged or de- stroyed by thoughtlessness or carelessness.

Only "Teetotalers" Fit To Hold Office, Says Governor.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 11.—De- nouncing hypocrits and "law evaders," Governor Westmore- land Davis, in his farewell mes- sage to the general assembly which began its biennial session here Wednesday, proposed a constitutional amendment to bar from public office all persons who are "politically dry" and "personally wet." The amend- ment would require each aspirant for public office to swear that he had not violated the prohibi- tion laws since enactment of the eighteenth amendment and that he would not break those laws in the future.

Governor Davis also recom- mended that the entire adminis- trative division of the State gov- ernment be centralized in the of- fice of the governor, giving the executive full power to appoint or remove from office all depart- ment heads and other such of- ficials.

VARNISH TAKEN AS COMMUNION WINE POISONS 10 ELDERS

New Man Picked Wrong Receptacle in Store Room, It is Said.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 8.—Ten elders of the Seventh Reformed church here were seriously poisoned and two may die as the result of drinking oak stain varnish for sacramental wine at the service Sunday.

The men staggered from the pulpit, where they took the communion draught, and returned to the front of the pulpit, where one after another they dropped to the floor, while the congregation was thrown into an uproar.

Women rushed toward the church vestry to escape the mad scene which ensued, and men rushed to the aid of the fallen church officers.

The poisoned elders are:

D. J. Vaderwert, John Riewold, S. Folkerstama, Henry Terkurst, John Bosth, R. Drufyñ, J. Holtensteger, C. Heemstro, R. Dofeo, and H. Hoggsvers.

It is said that a new elder of the church went to the store-room just before the morning service and picked up a jug of the stain containing a large quantity of turpentine and other paint by mistake. The sacramental wine for communion is kept on a shelf just above the varnish, which had been used recently in repairing the pulpit and woodwork of the church.

The pastor had just completed his morning sermon and communion was served when John Riewold, the first elder to collapse, fell at the foot of the pulpit.

Immediately the congregation was in an uproar and as men rushed forward to pick up the fallen elder the other nine succumbed to the effects of the poison and women began to stampede from the church.

Dr. E. J. Vrickard was called and had two taken to the hospital, the rest removed to their homes. Elder Folkerstama and Elder Riewold are not expected to live and the other eight are said to be seriously ill.

Rev. Mr. Dandummel, pastor of the church, said that he would make an investigation to determine just what elder was responsible for the mistake.

JIM HOGG MEMORIAL HIGHWAY PRESENTED

As briefly mentioned in the last issue, there was a meeting of representative business men at the office of the Trinity National Bank last week, presided over by G. M. Waller, the Tribune editor acting secretary. Hon. Curtis Hancock, former chairman of the State Highway commission, now chairman of the state highway committee of the Automobile Club of Texas, accompanied by Hardy Sammons, business manager, were present and addressed the gathering with reference to the routing of the Jim Hogg Highway from Clarksville to Galveston, via Trinity. This highway has been recently logged for the entire distance by these gentlemen, who report that there are not above 30 miles of bad road on it, and that this small amount will shortly be put in good condition. The highway begins at Clarksville, and passes through Winnsboro, Quitman, Mineola, Tyler, Jacksonville, Alto, Crockett, Trinity, Huntsville and Houston. Strip maps will be prepared and placed in the hands of auto tourists, in all parts of the United States, and markers will be erected all along the route. The maps will contain an accurate log of the route with topographical and other information of value to the traveler.

This will mean that a large percent of the tourist travel coming thru North Texas from the direction of Texarkana and Shreveport will be routed on their way to Galveston over a highway that passes thru Trinity.

Messrs. Hancock and Sammons produced statistics showing what effect such routing had on any community fortunate in being located on one of these marked highways. It meant that several hundred tourist cars would pass thru, and that each community derived an average revenue of $1 per car for every car passing thru. This would be "fresh" money from "outside" our immediate resources, and "cash" money at that; money that would be spent here by the tourist, and would not only affect the channels of trade in the immediate limits of the town, but would reach out into the surrounding country by way of increasing the local market possibilities for farm produce. We would be in this way enabled to "cash in" on a new resource, the "tourist industry," and the marked highway would become one of our most valued assets. On a certain developed thru highway there is an average of 800 cars per day passing thru. The average of $1 per car brings in to each of the towns $291,200 per annum. This does not include the further advantages derived by the towns which afford camp site accommodations. Neither does it take into consideration the fact that out of the stream of tourists passing thru will be those who are interested in settling and investing along the route, and who may themselves form further assets to the prosperity of the highway community.—Trinity Tribune.

Alien on Landing is Taught to Treat Wife Right.

New York, Jan. 8.—Moses Melomod will learn in America for the first time of sex equality. He arrived at Brooklyn from Dantzig Sunday in the first cabin of the liner Estonia. In the steerage on the ship was his wife.

On the dock waiting for them were their two sons with Americanized names, Samuel Miller and Alfred Aden.

All except the mother, who was not consulted, agreed that it was all right for Melomod to travel first-class and his wife, steerage, as he was a "learned man." They also agreed he should be permitted to land while his wife went to Ellis Island to remain until Monday as required by the immigration laws.

But immigration Inspector Cowan thought differently. After delivering a lecture to Miller and his father on the treatment of women, especially mothers in America, he took Melomod's landing card away from him and sent him to Ellis Island to remain with his wife until she was permitted to land.

MORE ADVERTISING IS BUSINESS HOPE

Statistician States Now is Time To Prepare For Prosperity.

By Roger W. Babson.

On a recent trip which took me into practically every large industrial center in the United States, I talked to business men, large and small, about their business, and we discussed both the present situation and future plans.

It is very apparent that the executives of America have been busy since January, 1920, even if the businesses themselves have not.

In fact, American business men have probably done more real thinking since the depression set in than they did in the whole period of prosperity which preceded it. Almost every man I talked with has a plan for a new building, a new product, or the development of a new sales field. The project is on paper, the details have been worked out, and he is just waiting for conditions to get settled. All of these plans mean potential business for next year or the year after—actual orders will be placed just as soon as prices and markets reach stable levels.

This situation apparent as we reach the bottom of the present area of depression in 1922 offers the first real chance of a coming period of improvement. Future business is now on the production counter. You can buy it cheaper now than you will be able to buy it at any time during the next four or five years.

It takes no little courage to go counter to the popular current and spend money for advertising when immediate returns are smaller than usual, but I am convinced that the man who has that foresight and courage will gain an advantage—a running start—that will carry him through the coming periods of improvement and prosperity.

The year 1922 is the year to use the reserve set aside during the fat years. Cut production costs as much as possible, but don't skimp your selling appropriation during 1922. Defer expansion of plant until next year, but this year increase your advertising.

Take the aggressive course. There will be considerable business this summer, more the coming fall and winter, more still next year. But the man who goes after it now is the man who will get it.

What must the average American citizen who cries out against the cost of this last war, as stupid a piece of human folly as men were ever guilty of, think of the following from the Army and Navy Journal: "In view of the pacifist and anti-military forces that are at work in the United States, it is of the greatest importance that the people should be made to realize the absolute need for an adequate army; and that the people have the facts set before them to offset pacifist propaganda."
