THE REVIVAL IS ATTRACTING CITY WIDE ATTENTION

The third and last week of the revival at the Methodist church is attracting city wide attention. Evangelist and Mrs. Flowers have proved that they know what they are about when it comes to conducting a revival. The men's meeting at the picture show building has been one of the most interesting of the entire campaign. Mr. Flowers has been dealing with the problems of men in a great fashion. He never fails to deal in a sledge hammer blow, and men who have been out of the church for a long time are thinking, and many of them are coming forward in the meetings. Mrs. Flowers in the mornings has been speaking to the married women. Great crowds are in attendance. Mrs. Flowers knows women and she is speaking to the women from the mother and wife viewpoint on many things that interest women.

Thursday night is high school night. There will be reserved seats for the high school. The evangelist announced never anywhere he had ever had high school night had the high school failed to respond. Thursday night promises to be one of the most interesting programs of the revival.

Sunday is Easter. Mrs. Flowers will speak on "home." The evangelists are planning a special flower service for the eleven o'clock hour. The special flower service will be in keeping with the Easter spirit. Sunday at 3 o'clock Rev. Maness will receive into the church the folk converted during the meeting.

For Sheriff.

Mr. W. A. (Will) Hooper announces this week as a candidate for the office of sheriff of Houston county. Mr. Hooper is no stranger to the people of this county. He was brought up in the southwestern part of the county, where he is perhaps better known than in any other section and where his friends are legion. He announced two years ago as a candidate for the office of sheriff and had fair prospects of winning the race, but on account of certain political complications his friends thought he should then withdraw and again enter the race this year when conditions and pledges would not be the same as they were then—when a changed political situation affecting the candidates for the sheriff's office would exist. So at the solicitation and on the advice of his friends he withdrew then and is again in the race now, and is in the race to win. His candidacy is subject to the action of the democratic primaries to be held in July and August. Mr. Hooper is not without experience as a peace officer. He served under Sheriff R. J. Spence for four years as deputy sheriff and jailer. Previous to that time he held minor positions of official trust and since that time he has served as special officer in some of the oil fields of Texas. He is now acting as deputy city marshal in Crockett, working at night. When asked by the Courier if he had a platform, he said that he would stand for the enforcement of all laws with the strictest impartiality, without regard to the popularity or unpopularity of the law and without regard to the popularity or unpopularity of the offender. In other words all laws and all offenders would look alike to him. That is a good platform, and on that platform he asks the support of all good democrats, men and women, in the coming primary elections.

Patrick Henry McConnell.

Patrick Henry McConnell, who has been ill for some time at the home of his mother, Mrs. W. V. McConnell, in this city, died Sunday night. Pat, as he was known to his friends, was 22 years old and had been a member of the Methodist church for a number of years. He was a member of the student army training corps when overtaken by ill health, and the local post of the American Legion assisted in the burial ceremonies, paying the final tribute to a departed comrade. Funeral services were held at the family residence Monday afternoon and interment followed in Glenwood cemetery. The religious ceremony was in charge of Rev. E. A. Maness, the Methodist pastor, who had the assistance of Rev. Mr. Tenney of the Presbyterian church and Rev. Mr. Allhands of the Christian church, and also of the Baptist pastor, Rev. A. S. Lee, who is the post commander. Many hearts are made sad by the untimely passing away of this young man who had only a year ago reached his majority. The floral tributes at the grave attested the love and admiration in which he was held.

Primary Election July 22.

When the county democratic executive committee met in Crockett Monday it developed that the primary election is to be held on July 22 instead of July 29, as erroneously believed by most every one. The impression prevailing generally was that the election would be held on the last Saturday in July. When the Terrell election law was looked up on the question Monday, it was found that the primary election would be held on the fourth Saturday in July instead of on the last Saturday. The fourth Saturday falls on July 22. Previous to this the Courier had talked with many people about the date of the primary election, many of them candidates, and all were under the impression, erroneously of course, that primary election day was the last Saturday in July. Readers of the Courier will please take notice of the error and correction, and be governed accordingly. Primary election day is the fourth Saturday in July and not the last Saturday, as believed by many.

JUST A WORD WITH OUR SUBSCRIBERS

On account of bad weather and bad roads, the Courier has only half the number of subscription renewals it had last week, but each one is appreciated as much as if there were more of them.

Among those calling to renew or subscribe or sending in their renewals and subscriptions since last issue are the following:

Mrs. J. J. Porter, Lovelady Rt. 1.
J. W. Furr, Percilla.
Mrs. F. P. Chandler, Houston.
W. G. Creath, Crockett Rt. 8.
Dan Hart, Lovelady.

W. B. Huntsman, Lovelady Rt. 2.
H. L. Graham, Crockett Rt. 1.
J. F. Reynolds, Malakoff.

Executive Committee Meets.

The Houston county democratic executive committee was in session in Crockett Monday afternoon. The Courier has not seen an official report, but among the things acted on by the committee was the fixing of a double primary, the first primary to be held on July 22, the fourth Saturday, and the second primary to be held on August 12, the second Saturday. A resolution was passed that will prohibit any name from appearing on the party ticket in either primary which affiliated with any other party two years ago. It is said that this resolution will bar not less than two candidates now in the race as democrats from participating in the party primaries. The next meeting of the executive committee will be to arrange and provide for the primary elections and expenses. Eighteen of the twenty-nine members of the committee were present at Monday's meeting.

SOME NEWS OF THE CROCKETT OIL FIELD

The Courier told last week of the trouble that was being had in getting some lost tools out of the Porter well on the Austin farm. All of those tools have never yet been gotten out. The bailer was gotten out in pieces, as stated, and on Thursday the drillers were digging around the packer in an effort to get a hold on it. The packer was gotten hold of, but in the effort to pull it out the drill stem was badly twisted and damaged and the packer left in the hole. This brings us up to last Sunday. Since that time the drillers have been working on the drill stem in an effort to get it straightened and ready for use again. Special tools had to be ordered and waited for, and progress is necessarily slow. Mr. George L. Porter, the operator, says that he expects to have the drill stem straightened out by the end of the week and that work will then begin on drilling or "milling" out the lost packer, which was set to cut the water off from above the strainer. When the packer is "milled" out the strainer will be pulled and reset, the casing reset and bailing again started. When that is done the well will be back right where it was four weeks ago when the bailer was lost. Indications for an oil well grow encouraging as time rolls on.

The Driskill well is standing still at 1500 feet, the Grapeland well at 750 feet and the Porter Springs well at 480 feet. Drilling was started in the Weldon well last week, but we do not know what progress has been made.

Mr. Charles Long.

Mr. Charles Long, one of Houston county's best known and most esteemed citizens, passed away Sunday night at the age of 79 years. Mr. Long had spent his life in Houston county, had held positions of public trust and had lived the life of an exemplary citizen. He was a member of the Presbyterian church from early in life until death, and the funeral services were conducted by his life-long pastor, Rev. S. F. Tenney. Mr. Long leaves a daughter, Mrs. Louis Bond of Silsbee, who was here to attend the funeral, and a son, Dave Long, at whose residence he died. As a citizen his life was without a blemish, and as a public official he was courageous and true. The remains were laid to rest in Glenwood cemetery Tuesday afternoon, attended by many sorrowing friends and relatives. It is of interest to know that Mr. Long died in the house where he was born and that he was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church forty-eight years.

What the Former A. & M. President Writes in the Rusk County News.

REPUBLICAN ETHICS.

Strange things happen up at Washington. Blanton was censured and almost expelled from the House for copying in his speech the language of the foreman in the Federal printing office. It was the most disgraceful language that was ever printed and does seem that a Congressman would have more judgment than to insert it in his address. But the reference to it now is to acquaint the public with the fact that the man who used that vile language still holds his job. He has never been censured or even molested. The other day a Congressman named Mondell, a very ardent Republican, got up on the floor and severely denounced Blanton about the obscene case, and in that discussion it was brought out that the real author of the most indecent language of the century is still on his job, enjoying the distinction of manufacturing in a Federal position, in sight of the president of the United States and entire official family of the government, residing in the Capital, language that no decent person in the world should read. What kind of a treatise on morals and ethics would Mondell and his Republican colleagues give us? Certainly the fellow that manufactures poison and dishes it around where others may spread it is not a desirable man to keep on a salary in a position at the Nation's capital.

Senator France of Maryland is right about the foreign debt. the settlement of the debt, one of which remedies is too strong and the other is no remedy at all. The strong one is outright cancellation, which is impossible because it would ruin any party proposing it, and the other remedy is finding the principal and the deferment of interest payments which is almost as unpopular as the first. Of course the debt will never be paid in money, and the only property that Europe can turn over to us is Africa. Give us Africa and we will fill the dark continent with enough Yankees, Southerners, Negroes and missionaries to revolutionize, reorganize, civilize and Christianize that benighted land in less than a half century. Africa is only a few days' travel from New York, Boston, New Orleans and Galveston. In fact we can go to Africa and back in less time than it used to take to make the trip from Galveston to Boston.

We are told almost daily by the press that there is no church-and-state question in this country and yet those same papers are loaded down with matter that is bound to cause the close observer to stop and wonder just what sort of a question it is. However, this country is so big and its political and religious ideas so diversified that it will be a long time before any sect can dominate the whole nation. Wherever the church has sought to control the affairs of a nation it has crumbled. Look at poor, old Spain! Just a few centuries ago it was the richest and largest empire on earth. Her colonies have all left her, and today she abounds in ignorance, superstition, degradation. Really the benighted thing has descended into the worst paganism, Bible burners and heathen idolators. God Almighty has long since placed the ban on any religion that goes out after temporal power.

Big Cotton Crops.

This county will not raise big cotton crops until it gets back to using high grade fertilizers, such as we produced before the war. Believing this, we are manufacturing in a small way some of our old high grade brands as follows:

- Crockett Cotton Standard.
- Crockett Compound.
- Crockett Phosphate-Meal Mixture.
- Crockett 16 per cent Acid Phosphate.

Since rains have delayed planting, it is doubly important to use a fertilizer made to force quick maturity, and we have it. We also have excellent maize heads for sale. Houston County Oil Mill & Mfg. Company. 2t.

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT FRANCE

An Article Written by Uncle Henry For Collier's Weekly.

"Well, what do you think about the French now?" jeered the Cub Reporter as he dropped into a chair beside his guide, philosopher, and friend. "Too poor to pay their honest debts, but all the world when it comes to keeping up a big army and playing hob with the peace of Europe. A fine lot of hysterical ingrates! If we ever get a cent of the three billions they owe us, I'll eat my hat."

A slow flush burned its way into Uncle Henry's graying cheeks, and for a full minute he stared at the young newspaper man with eyes that held no trace of their usual smile. And when he did speak, his voice had the same chill quality.

"Out in Missouri," he said, "in the county where I grew up, there was one town that didn't have a thing in it but Germans. Naturally enough, the Franco-Prussian War excited 'em to the boilin' point. As disaster followed disaster for the French, they got more excited an' happier, an' when Paris finally surrendered, it was unanimously resolved to pull off a big picnic in celebration of their country's victory. The town delivered about five hundred votes in a solid lump, so there wasn't much difficulty in gettin' some American speakers to come an' tell 'em that Germans were the greatest people on the face of God's green earth. They certainly whooped it up.

"Along about midnight, when the kerosene was runnin' low an' the beer high, somebody hit on the bright idea of askin' Jim Whittaker to make a speech.

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. . . I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too. At all druggists. E 85

Back in those days every well-regulated rural community had its drunkard, an' Old Whit held down the job in this Missouri village I'm speakin' of. A college graduate, an' a man of standin' in his youth, not even years of drunkenness had been able to drown the spirit entirely, an' in the ashes there were still a few sparks that sometimes could be fanned into flame. Anyway, the Germans always found hfm entertainin', for even if he failed to make a real speech, his misery an' degradation were invariably good for a laugh.

Whit Justifies His Existence

"Dragged up on the platform, Old Whit stared stupidly down at the crowd through a tangle of dirty gray hair, only savin' himself from a fall by hangin' hard to the table. German flags hung from every tree in the grove, an' the light of the torches was given back by big-bowled meerschaum pipes. Somewhere in the distance a bunch of young fellows were still cheerin' Bismarck an' Von Moltke, with now an' then a Dutch version of 'To hell with France.' As the old man looked an' listened, it seemed to me that a brighter blue commenced to burn in his faded eyes, an' it was with something of ancient dignity that he straightened up an' threw back his grizzled mane.

"Startin' slowly, he began to talk about America. As he told it, the men an' women who first came to these shores, bravin' the terrors of dark waters an' an unknown land, were not so much victims of persecution as they were masters of their own fate. They left the Old World resolvin' to found a new order under which every soul might stand erect, with right to aspire, to rise, to be free. An' those that followed 'em were driven by the same tremendous impulses, riskin' wretchedness an' death that they might know the glory of freedom.

There followed the conquest of field an' forest. Danger gave way to safety an' bitter hardships to comparative prosperity—when the stupid, brutal hand of Hanoverian tyranny reached out again across the sea, snatchin' at those liberties that men had grown to love. Now Whit's cracked voice took on strength, an' as it rose in courage an' challenge, you could hear the shot at Concord an' see Paul Revereracin' through the black midnight. Battle by battle he followed the fortunes of the Americans through campaign after campaign, right down to that awful time when their bloody feet stained the snow at Valley Forge an' Washington looked up through bare branches toward a God that seemed to have turned away forever. I tell you I felt the cold, the darkness, an' despair. I saw Washington, turned old an' gray, beatin' with his bare hands at the iron band that the British an' the Hessians were drawin' close about him!

"Droppin' almost to his knees, Old Whit let his last whisper die away. I don't suppose he was silent over a minute, but I got the feelin' of time an' age an' torment. An' then he sprang to his feet with a great shout that had in it the joy of trumpets. The earth trembled to the rush of chariots, an' from the sea came a beat of giant wings. Over the frozen fields marched Lafayette an' Rochambeau, an' where sky an' water joined there shone the white sails of De Grasse. It was the French!

"The crowd had long since stopped cheerin' an' were sittin' mighty silent. They knew they were gettin' it. But as Old Whit ended his peroration in a voice that had the flash an' swish of a sword blade, all of 'em made a leap. When I picked him up some fifteen minutes later, about one hundred yards away, the only thing left on him was a collar button that had got buried in his neck.

"Anyway," he said, as I let him have my coat, 'I justified my existence.'

"All that's ancient history," the Cub Reporter declared airily, although his youthful cocksureness was plainly shaken. "Mighty interesting, but old stuff. It's the twentieth century we're livin' in an' we've got to look at twentieth-century facts. What with her crazy pride, her militarism and her imperialism, France is standing in the way of world reconstruction, and you know it. Why doesn't she cut down her army? And quit hangin' on to her submarines? And why—"

"Shush!" exclaimed the old politician, with an impatient wave of his hand. "If you're as interested in world peace an' world reconstruction as you let on, then let me give you a tip. Hate is a mighty poor buildin' material. We've had these propaganda drives against Germany, Russia, an' England, an' now we've got one against France, an' every darn one of 'em has dragged us back still farther into the quicksand we're tryin' to get out of. An', as far as your French dope is concerned, it's poorly picked an' worse cooked. I've got much better stuff of my own.

"You hear a lot about the enthusiasms of youth," continued Uncle Henry after a pause during which his old eyes stared into spaces that were as yet beyond the reporter's imagination. "But they're nothin' to the enthusiasms of age. They come often an' easy to the young, an' pass without even leavin' a scar. But when an enthusiasm breaks down the cynicisms an' distrusts of the old, it takes possession of the whole bein', an' gathers to itself all that life has left of faith an' hope. That," he said gently, "was the way with me an' the League of Nations.

"I was in France all the time of the Peace Conference, an' watched the drama play itself out. You couldn't have asked anything more beautiful than those first days, when the whole world saw saw as a child, face to face, an' everybody but the politicians was resolved on peace an' brotherhood an' justice. You could look straight down into the heart of France, an' it was a clean heart. An' then the Republican Senate majority commenced to pour poison into Paris. Wilson was painted as a despised an' repudiated president. His Fourteen Points, the basis of Germany's surrender, had ceased to have any shadow of right to be accepted as expressive of the will of the American people. His job, if he had any, was to act as a rubber stamp, for of the terrible sacrifice which enabled the Allies to win the victory, America had contributed just about 2 per cent! No attention must be paid to idealistic buncombe. No mercy must be shown to the accursed Hun.

"Day after day you could watch the poison work an' see the French beginnin' to change. An' at last, under the leadership of the Poincores an' the Lauzannes, France put aside honor an' gave herself over to histeria

"Son, Purina is going to make us get more cans."

"Yes, Dad, it's a great system of feeding. Cow Chow sure does get us more milk. And besides it starts our dairy calves out right before they are born, by giving the cows the minerals and proteins they need to grow well-boned, thrifty calves."

"Then Purina Calf Chow takes the young calf gradually off of whole milk and saves us a lot of milk right there."

There are "Sons" and "Dads" right around this town who are using more milk can space because they now feed Purina Chows. Call us up—let us tell you all about it.

an' avarice. The left bank of the Rhine, the Ruhr Valley, the Saar Basin—one rapacity followed another an' out of it all came the defeat of the peace of justice that had been promised, an' that would have healed an' saved the world.

"No," said Uncle Henry slowly, "it's no use tryin' to excite me by harpin' on the big French army an' other things like that. All of it's small stuff, petty an' unimportant, compared to the crime that France committed against herself an' against the world when she listened to a lot of American politicians, an' forswore the war pledges that bound her to a peace of permanence, because a peace of justice. Feelin' as I did about the league, I reckon I oughtn't to have a spark of sympathy in my heart for France, an' yet—well, memory's a queer thing, isn't it?

"Lots of times you can't recall what happened a few hours before, yet somethin' that took place years ago will stand out as clear-cut as a cameo. There's 1914, for instance. As though it was all goin' on right out there in that street, I can see the German wave sweepin' over Belgium an' dashin' against the walls of France—human walls built overnight from men of every age an' courage takin' the place of steel

He believes in the widest publicity of

Will Build Levee.

Some Houston county Trinity river planters are going to construct a levee along the river on their farms to cost $150,000. Bonds will be issued under the state reclamation law for that purpose, and to this end an election has been held and carried. The election was held last week at the old McIver plantation, now controlled by the Lundy Brothers. The managers of the election were Lee Lundy, B. B. Monzingo and J. A. Smith. Bids for levying the river will be asked for as soon as the bonds are sold.

Brought Home the Honors.

Misses Florence Arledge, Josephine Edmiston, Lizzie Younas and other Crockett students attended the district meet at Huntsville Saturday and brought home the usual honors. Johnson Lundy Arledge and Guy Lansford won first honors in debate and other students won other honors. If there is any reason why they did not win more honors, it is because there were not more honors to win. Johnson Lundy and Guy will now go to Austin to enter the state debating contest and Lizzie Younas the declamation contest.

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT FRANCE

An Article Written by Uncle Henry For Collier's Weekly.

an' stone. Through all those terrible trying months of England's slow, creakin' preparations—through the long years it took to make our mixed population see that it was democracy that Prussianism fought against—France bore the full burden of that mad attack. When you stop to think about it, the amount of resistance in flesh an' blood is downright amazin'. Out in Arizona once I saw a big prospector grab a little fellow around the middle an' bend him back over a table. Inch by inch, until you could see death in the poppin' eyes an' hear it in the way his breath whistled, an' you almost wished the spine would snap to end the horror of it all! An' then I broke over the etiquette governin' such cases an' inserted myself into the argument with a billiard cue.

"Twice at the Marne we waited to hear France's back snap. A thousand times death looked out of her eyes an' rattled in her throat. An' there was never a time when she couldn't have made a bargain, never a time when she couldn't have saved her soul, but always she fought on—fought on until civilization rallied an' beat back the livin' death. An' now!" Again Uncle Henry paused and looked into space. "Don't read the Bible much, do you? I thought not. Well, some day between issues of 'Sexy Stories' an' 'Teasing Tales,' pick up old Jeremiah." For a second the old man sat still and bleak; then he began to quote:

How doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people! How is she become as a widow! She that was great among the nations, and princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary! She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks; among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her: all her friends have dealt treacherously with her, are become her enemies.

"Well," said the Cub Reporter, venturing to break a silence that was becoming awkward, "I—"

"What do I think about the French?" Uncle Henry's voice rose in sudden violence and his face flamed. "Why, dammit, decent Americans don't think about the French. They remember!"

Some people mean well, but never do well. They are always intending to do something that never gets done. Instead of taking a just pride in accomplishment, they are continually humiliated by the inadequacy of their excuses. And then they do not even drift with the tide of humanity, but are simply switched into the eddies of life. For them there is a beginning, and an end, but nothing in between. They have neither true friends nor bitter enemies, because they do nothing to inspire either friendship or enmity.

OUSLEY SAYS HE IS NOT KLAN MEMBER

Senatorial Candidate Abhors Religious Intolerance.

Bearing a Fort Worth date, the Galveston News has received the following letter from Clarence Ousley, candidate for the United States senate:

I have your telegram of April 1.

To your first question, "Are you a member of the Ku Klux Klan?" my answer is no.

To your second question my answer can not be categorical without knowing just what you mean by "for" and "against." I am not "for" the Ku Klux Klan in the sense of advocating it, because I do not see any need for it, and I surmise that much of the mischief now afoot in the land has its inspiration and excuse in the mystery that surrounds the klan. I am unalterably "against" the acts commonly attributed to the Ku Klux, and I condemn the violence and the intolerance that have sprung up since the organization became active. I can not hold the society responsible for these evils, because its authorized spokesmen deny them in both purpose and act. I must remind The News that the very principle of law which it is now invoking is designed to prevent condemnation upon appearance and hearsay.

I further remind The News and its readers that the presidential campaign of 1832 between Jackson and Clay was marked by a violent and national attack upon the noble order of Masonry which was then charged with evils comparable to the evils now prevailing. That historical episode should at least admonish us not to stir up hatred against men whose purpose we do not completely know.

This is not to suggest the slightest tolerance of lawlessness whether committed by Klansmen or otherwise.

So far as its objects have been disclosed I see no need for the klan and I surmise that evil persons within or without have taken advantage of its ceremonials and its masking to commit acts of violence. But I would no more assent to the prohibition of the klan as a secret fraternity than I would assent to the prohibition of the Masons or the Knights of Columbus or the B'nai B'rith.

If the klan oath is as the newspapers report it to be, then any officer of the law who takes it compromises his efficiency if he does not in fact forfeit his office, but I recall recent gross misrepresentations of the Knights of Columbus oath, and so I am not sure just what the klan oath is.

Lacking authentic information upon which I can form an intelligent and just judgment about the klan, I can only say that I utterly abhor religious and racial intolerance, and that I condemn secret tribunals that deny men the guarantees of the constitution, but I submit that we can not successfully prosecute a society; we must prosecute and punish men who do wrong. We had mobs before we had the klan. Let us punish the mobs. The klan will survive or perish upon its own qualities.

The point I am now trying to make is that we must not be diverted from the imperative need of suppressing lawlessness by a vain effort to suppress a society. It is easy to excite the public mind into hatred of the klan, and thereby to dissipate or misdirect our energies from the greater duty of making crime abhorrent. Let us combat lawlessness whether committed by klansmen or others.

EASY MONEY AND "BLUE SKY" LAWS.

The marvelous resources and the unprecedented opportunities offered by the undeveloped regions of the United States offer a continuing suggestion of "easy money."

Seeking after "easy money" has become a national vice with Americans. Speculation, in the hope of getting something for nothing, occupies the place in American life which gambling has held for ages in the lives of some of the European and most of the Latin races. Gambling, thru the medium of national lotteries, or in other ways, has long been legalized by the Spanish speaking countries, and at times by France, Italy and other foreign governments. While never legalized in the United States, lotteries were not for a long time contrary to national law. As a matter of fact they are not contrary to national laws of the present, except by indirection, namely, that lottery literature is unmailable and is forbidden in interstate commerce. As a matter of fact, however, postal laws forbidding use of the mail by lotteries are far more effective in prohibiting gambling on a national scale than would be a direct statute, because postal law violations are easily detected and penalties are sure and severe.

Prohibited from gambling where chance alone rules Americans gamble, where the element of chance, as to winning, does not even exist. Instead of buying lottery tickets which might win, they buy fake oil stocks which are sure to lose.

"Easy money" and "sure things" are interchangeable terms which exist only in reverse ratio to what the gullible believe. There is such a thing as "easy money" for the fake promoter—and "sure things" for the investigator—things that are sure to lose.

While the fake promoter should rank with the common thief the fake investor's plight is not one to shed tears over. He frequently acts thru ignorance, but more generally thru cupidity, expecting "something for nothing," which necessarily must be at the expense of the other fellow.

Notwithstanding "blue sky" laws in most states and rigid postal laws against fraudulent use of the mails, it is estimated that the American people lost last year one billion dollars in fake investments. That is ten dollars each for every person in the United States.—Texas Commercial.

ANOTHER BLANTON SENSATION.

Thomas Lindsay Blanton is something of an irritant, not only among the republicans of the house of representatives, but among his own colleagues, if we are to judge by Thursday's unseemly spectacle in the house, in which two Texas members took a rather unpraiseworthy part.

The Post calls it unpraiseworthy because it is unseemly for members to excoriate a fellow member behind the refuge of constitutional immunity, which is "and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place." Bawling out colleagues behind such a defense as that is neither brave nor commendable.

But the Post is not holding Mr. Blanton guiltless, if he has failed to speak with a painstaking regard for the facts.

He has said things on the floor of the house and in Texas that are either true or not true. The facts, rather than denunciation ought to determine the truth or falsity of what Mr. Blanton has said.

There is allowed each member of congress a "stationery account" of $375 for the term for which he was elected. Mr. Blanton declared in his Texas speeches that it was a practice of some members to pocket either all or part of that allowance in cash and use committee stationery, which each committee supplies its members without limit.

That is either true or not true.

He declared that the "stationery store" in the house office building carried a stock of goods and novelties which members could and did purchase and have charged against their stationery allowance. That is true or not true.

If some members have drawn all or a part of the stationary allowance of $375 a year in cash, and converted the money to their personal use, they have been guilty of petty graft, and bawl out Blanton as they may, they can make nothing else of it.

If they have purchased knives, poker chips, and goods at the house stationer's, other than stationer's, other than stationery allowance, it was a misuse of public money and petty graft, and the fact can not be changed by denouncing Blanton.

Instead of publicly brawling about such charges, let the house pursue the better course. Let the clerk of the house be instructed to prepare an itemized statement of the cash and purchase account of each member of the Sixty-sixth congress, showing in detail how each member used his allowance, and order the same published in the Congressional Record.

That will show the truth or falsity of Blanton's charges better than calling him a liar behind the immunity of the constitution.

The angry members of the house ought to know that the country is not well pleased with the extravagance and other petty abuses which reek on Capitol Hill. Many members are innocent, no doubt, of discreditable practices with regard to the stationery account, perhaps, the great majority of them. And certainly no Texas member would indulge in petty graft of that character or have any use for poker chips.

Anyway, an itemized account of how the stationery allowance of each member was drawn during the Sixty-sixth congress would dispose of Mr. Blanton's charges.

Publish it in the Congressional Record and stop the brawling. Is the congress afraid to do that?—Houston Post.

MOST UNPOPULAR NATION IN THE WORLD.

Senator Sheppard made some abrupt declarations in his speech against the Four-Power treaty that the people of the nation ought to ponder. The Post is inclined to believe he exaggerated the treaty's importance, but that is because treaties generally are not greatly respected at this time.

But the senator outlines some existing conditions that ought to receive attention, in view of the plan to scrap many of the fighting units of the navy.

His declaration that ours is the most unpopular nation in the world today is not exaggerated. Ours is the government that they all owe; ours the pre-eminently solvent nation and government; and ours the nation disinclined to lavish other billions upon Europe until conditions in the world are more stable.

Whatever European chancellors of exchequer may say with reference to the debts owed to the government of the United States, the European feeling is that all the debts should be remitted.

The feeling is just as strong in the United States that the debts ought to be paid.

So long as the debts exist and so long as the efforts of the government are directed to the collection of them, there will be an undercurrent of unfriendliness to the United States in Europe.

Long ago Lloyd George declared that all the interallied debts ought to be cancelled because they were a menace to peace, and they are a menace. It was no selfish view of the British statesman, for Great Britain has quite as much owing to her by the allied nations as she owes us.

The disarmament program to which the United States is committed is rendered all the more startling by the military status of Europe and the existence of an almost unanimous dislike of us by the nations with which we were recently associated.

Senator Sheppard may be proclaiming a real danger, all things considered, when he declares that the Four-Power treaty might commit us to a possibility of submitting vital interests to a council that would vote 3-to-1 against us.

Whatever the Pacific problems which the Four-Power treaty assumes to solve, world peace at this juncture, at least, can not be established upon agreements in the Far East. No Doubt the Far East is an ultimate factor, but there can be no such thing as world peace until Europe shall have become composed, and Europe is about as far from permanent settlements as she was on November 11, 1918.

It begins to look as if the Washington conference was more concerned with the superstructure of world peace than about the foundation upon which peace must rest, if it is to be permanently established.—Houston Post.

Occasionally we hear of a brainy man who reads action stories in order to divert his mind from the strenuousness of his career. He finds relaxation, and it is good for him. Stories founded upon the wild and woolly days of the early west appeal to him. The heroes are genuine "he men," with oceans of red blood in their veins, and he thrills as he reads of their marvelous exploits. But he misses the best of all action stories. He should read the Bible. No writer of modern or other fiction has ever been able to duplicate the wonders that are told in that book. No human mind has ever been able to fully grasp the import of the deeds recorded therein. It is the only book that has ever been written that holds its own against the lapse of an eternity of time. Even brainy men may find rest and relaxation in reading of the glories that are told in the Book of Books.

Some people loaf themselves to death. They are chronically lazy, lacking in ambition, and without sufficient energy to take the daily exercise that nature requires in order to keep the body functioning in normal condition. Their intellects become dulled, their minds become clogged, their joints become stiff, and the red blood of youth turns to the water of premature old age. They just drift, and sink, and are promptly forgotten.

Why the $10.90 USCO is better than just a $10.00 tire

On November 10, 1921, the 30 x 3 1/2 "Usco" was marked to sell for $10.90.

This odd and closely figured price was the lowest quotation ever made on any tire of known standards.

A genuine pioneering step by the makers of U. S. Tires.

Now comes a lot of different $10.90 tires being rushed into the market. "Special" tires. "New" treads.

Unfamiliar to look at—with perhaps an atmosphere of having been made to meet the price.

But the "Usco" still occupies a place by itself. A good old standby on millions of cars for years. Better than it ever was.

Still putting the emphasis on honest quality, even if it does sell for only ten dollars and ninety cents.

The $10.90 tire with the record of a proven product.

The tire that people still buy for the dignity of its quality regardless of the low amount they pay.
