

GOVERNOR PARDONS E. W. FRY

E. W. Fry, former county judge of Young county, convicted at Henrietta two years ago of forgery in connection with his discharge of official duties while county judge, is to be given a full pardon, notice from Governor Hobby being received by John F. Conn, clerk of the district court Clay county, Friday at Henrietta almost simultaneously with the mandate affirming the conviction, from the court of criminal appeals, which this week acted on the appeal, taken in November, 1917.

Notice of the pardon was given by telegram, received Friday, November 7, by Mr. Conn, direct from Governor Hobby, the telegram reading:

"Full pardon has been authorized for E. W. Fry. This your authority to hold mandate."

The mandate, by mail, was received just after the governor's telegram.

Fry on his conviction had been given a sentence of two years in the forgery case, the first of a number of similar cases transferred to Clay county district court from Young county, where the alleged forgeries took place.

The cases were of much interest locally, especially after the trial of Judge Fry, his younger brother, Pete Fry, who has since died, Rufe M. Todd and J. B. Lischke, of Fort Worth on charges of murder, growing out of the death of Deputy Sheriff Cherryholmes of Graham.

Pat Carlton, of Graham, was also killed at the time Cherryholmes was shot.

The trial in the Wichita Falls court resulted in the acquittal of all defendants.

It was following this trial that Judge Fry was placed on trial for the forgery charges, the first resulting in conviction.

Since the recent oil developments opened up the Ranger district Fry has been operating in that section, and has been very successful, it is said. It is understood that many of his friends in the oil fields were making every possible effort to have him pardoned. However, it had been stated, though unofficially, that the board of pardons was understood to be opposed to making any recommendations for a pardon until the serving of the sentence had been begun.—Wichita Daily Times.

U. C. V.

Young County Camp United Confederate Veterans met in regular session at the court house Monday, November 10, 1919. Fifteen of the old Vets were present. The Camp was called to order by Captain J. W. Still, and prayer was offered by Comrade Higgins. After, which the time was pleasantly spent by listening to those who represented the Camp at the Atlanta, Georgia, Reunion, relate their experiences and sightseeing while at Atlanta.

After which a brief statement was made by those present giving the date of their enlistment and the company and regiment to which they belonged, together with some of their trying experiences that they underwent during the war. This meeting of the Camp will long be remembered by those that were in attendance.

NOTICE TO LIGHT CONSUMERS

Owing to a fuel emergency caused by the coal strike and because of the increased operating cost of oil burning, it is ordered by the City Council that the Graham Light & Power plant be empowered to raise the rates for current furnished consumers sufficient to compensate for the difference in operating expense during the period of this emergency. All houses under meter to be increased on a percentage basis and all consumers on a flat rate to be charged 50 cents a drop for the first five drops and 35 cents for each drop thereafter.

By order of the City Council.
W. A. MORRIS, Mayor.
T. E. WALLACE, Sec'y.

S. Power has purchased some excellent residence property near the high school and he and his wife will move here within the next few months to make Graham their home.

CIVIC LEAGUE NOTES

The Civic League met on Wednesday afternoon, November 5, at 3 o'clock, with eight members present. Mrs. Duncan presided. Mrs. Kayser was elected corresponding secretary to succeed Mrs. Hattie Miller, who is out of town. Mrs. Boyd Street was chosen to represent the League at the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Port Arthur, with Mrs. Q. Street as alternate.

The Christmas Gift Shop will be held December 8—the second Monday of the holiday month. Not only every member of the Civic League, but all outsiders who will, are urged to contribute to the Gift Shop. Every woman has realized the rush of the gift season when it is frequently hard to obtain suitable gifts "with a heart." Let the Gift Shop solve the problem. In furnishing gifts for the market, it is well to remember that there will be a demand for small gifts of a twenty-five and fifty-cent value on up to the higher priced bits of exquisite fancy work. In other words, all gifts will be most acceptable. Every member of the League is expected to be responsible for five gifts. She does not of necessity have to make the five gifts herself, but she is responsible for that number. Let every woman who is interested in "Beautifying Graham" furnish her quota of gifts and make this venture a big success.

For those who shine in the kitchen, this market is extended to include her art. Instead of fancy gifts, one may contribute cake, pies, bread, canned fruit, preserves, jellies. These will be sold at once.

The Grab Bag is reported to be ready now. The Southern Musicians entertainment netted $74.00. The Glenn Wells entertainment $34.00. The Lyceum Course is paying well as the League has at this time realized $360.00 above the guarantee. Including fees paid in by dues, etc., the funds now amount to $443.00.

We will say here that the school auditorium will be lighted adequately by means of kerosene lamps so the lack of electricity should not be a serious hamper to the success of the lyceum. The fourth number appears in December. The series of entertainments are exceptionally good and it is a debatable question always as to which program of the fine series is the best.

Mrs. J. T. Rickman was received as a new member. Mrs. Frank Atcheson presented the names of Mesdames T. B. Wilson and J. T. Robertson, who also were received into the organization.

The contract for work in the park has not been let owing to scarcity of labor. The park committee is anxious to begin this work if a responsible party could be engaged.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, November 19.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY

The Presbyterian Auxiliary observed their annual Home Mission study the past week, meeting every afternoon at 3 o'clock at the manse where Rev. Mr. Smith directed the lessons. The book studied was "Christianizing Christendom" by Dr. S. L. Morris and was an able presentation of the subject, made very practical and inspiring by the director.

A large class was present on each occasion. Although on Friday afternoon the weather was bad, fourteen were present and enjoyed a social hour after the closing lesson. Verses by the "Cheerful Cherub" and white Chrysanthemums were favors. A delicious salad course with hot chocolate was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. B. Hockaday and Mrs. T. J. Price. The contribution to Home Missions for the week amounted to $44.45.

DONNELL NO. 1 INCREASES IN FLOW; RENEWED ACTIVITY IN OIL FIELD

LIGHTS ON SATURDAY NIGHT

If coal arrives tomorrow night and workmen have completed the repairs at the plant, the lights will again be turned on Saturday night. The Graham Light and Power plant has suffered far worse from the coal strike than any other business in the city and the manager, Ollie Wood, is in no way deserving of blame or criticism for the shut down. Mr. Wood has labored faithfully and unceasingly to give to the public the service desired, but it was beyond his power to do so.

When the supply of coal had been exhausted he had a burner made and attempted to burn oil as fuel, which resulted in a failure and the damaging of the boiler and furnace to the extent of over $500.00. The damaged boiler is being overhauled and will be put in first class condition before the machinery is started. A car load of coal is enroute to Graham and if it arrives tomorrow night Mr. Wood hopes to soon be in shape to give his patrons even better service than before.

Owing to the fact that the power plant has been shut down until this evening we are unable to give the readers of The Leader a paper up to the standard.

LITERARY CLUB

The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Club was entertained on Wednesday afternoon at the pretty new home of Mrs. J. L. Hathcock. Mrs. E. H. Morrison directed the program. Among the interesting current events reported at the roll call were the death of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, of Henry M. Alden, for fifty years editor of Harper's, of the perfection of our National Cemetery in France, of the state of Germany's national debt, of the extent of the printers' strike, and many other items of news interest.

Mrs. A. A. Morrison contributed an enjoyable piano selection. Mrs. E. H. Morrison gave a digest of an important epoch in United States history illustrating our national expansion by map. Mrs. Z. A. Hudson conducted the round table in which our further acquisition of territory and entrance into imperialism was brought out.

Mrs. C. F. Clarke told an interesting story which perfectly portrayed American life among the early colonists. She selected the historical novel "To Have and To Hold," by Mary Johnston, a tale based on the incident in our history of the sale of a boat load of English brides to the pioneer settlers. The story was very much enjoyed.

The Club acknowledges an invitation by the County Superintendent to be present at the Teachers' Institute on the evening of December 16, at which time Mrs. E. A. Watters of Fort Worth, state president of the Council of Mothers, will be present.

A letter from Gov. Hobby, chairman of the War Risk Society, asking for donations to erect a sanatorium for Texas soldiers who contracted tuberculosis while in the service, was read and members solicited to respond as liberally as possible.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, November 26, with Mrs. R. C. Hallam. Roll call "International Peace."

NEW BANK FOR GRAHAM

Arthur Mauldin, of Terrell, Texas, has been here for the past two weeks for the purpose of organizing a Guaranty State Bank. Most of the $25,000.00 stock has been subscribed and the preliminary papers forwarded to Austin. The new bank will be established in the Hallam building on the west side of the square.

We had hoped to give a more extended writeup of the organization of this bank but cannot do so in this issue owing to lack of time and space. More will be said next week.

For Service Car, call DUBE LAMAR, Ind. 9-W.

The past week of sunshiny weather has brought about renewed activity in the oil field. Many new locations have been made in both the northern and southern parts of the county. Five boilers for new wells arrived in the Graham yards the first of the week and most all of the companies operating in the field have received heavy shipments of piping and other materials.

The Roxana W. T. Donnell No. 1, which was put under pump last week, is steadily increasing in flow. Yesterday it produced a little more than one hundred and ten barrels. When facilities to care for the production of the well have been secured and it is finally shot one of the greatest producers in the field may be made of it. But, as it is, the well is an exceptionally good one and dispels all doubt of the existence of a great pool in that section. The W. T. Donnell well is on Survey 1111, eleven miles southwest from Graham, and is 1877 feet deep.

Below we give a report of the drilling operations in the county up to the first of the week:

Mattie Gervis Oil Co., Steen No. 1, on the Jonathan P. Scott Survey No. 1956, eight miles north of Graham, drilling at 2315 feet; on top of lime, making some gas.

The Merrill Oil and Gas Co., Hunt No. 1, on T. E. & L. Co. Survey 2735, drilling at 1230 feet.

The Merrill Oil and Gas Co., Farmer No. 1, Pointevant Survey No. 3, spudded in.

Dallas-Young Co., Stewart No. 1, on David Dawson Survey, drilling at 1050 feet.

Cosden, Timmons No. 1, on John L. Lane Survey 1337, six miles southwest of Graham, on top of black lime at 8576 feet.

Southwestern Miami Oil Co., McKeen No. 1, on the Wm. Fullerton Survey No. 99, spudded in last week, now 200 feet; using 20-inch casing and to make deep test.

Southwestern Petroleum Co., Scott No. 1, on Rudisoa Irrigation Co. Survey No. 1821, drilling at 480 feet; waiting for engine.

Sun Co., Donnell No. 1, on T. E. & L. Co. Survey No. 1212; 3185 feet; moving boiler back, showing gas and oil.

Langford, Staley & Chenault, Donnell No. 1, on W. L. Donnell Survey 1726, drilling at 500 feet.

Snowden & McSweeney, on E. F. Lindsey Survey, drilling at 1350 feet. Humble Oil Co., Graham No. 1, on T. E. & L. Co. Survey No. 3409, underdraining at 1255 feet.

Texas Co., Graham No. 1, running tubing and making about 50 barrels of oil with hole full of water; depth 3850 feet.

Texas Co., Arnold No. 1, on the J. S. Lee Survey No. 173, drilling at 4691 feet; flowing by heads, making 50 barrels.

Texas Co., Blair-Hughes No. 1, drilling at 2665 feet on the S. A. & M. G. Ry. Co. Survey No. 262.

Manhattan Petroleum Co., Johnson No. 1, plugging back to make a gas well. This well was lost from collapsed casing at about 2400 feet. New well to be started near.

Arkansas Oil and Gas Co., Jeffery No. 1, T. E. & L. Co. Survey 330, drilling at 820 feet.

Denny & Co. are to drill on the Allar Company lease, Block No. 42, Stovall Plantation, in James Tobin Survey. This well is to be at South Bend, considered in the shallow belt.

Texas Ajax Oil Co., Benson tract, five miles east of Olney, T. E. & L. Co. Survey 1481, drilling at 500 feet. Union Oil Co., Whittenburg No. 1, ten miles south of Graham, drilling at 3720 feet; drilling 35 feet in the sand, making now 30 to 40 barrels.

Prairie Oil and Gas Co., on the Armstrong Survey, two miles south of Eliasville; hole full of oil and will be drilled in as soon as tankage can be arranged.

LOST—Between Graham and Loving a price list book No. 185, belonging to the Pierce Oil Corporation, also a barrel record. Return to C. C. JOHNSON and receive reward. 12-3p

BLACK-DRAUGHT A FAMILY MEDICINE

No Kind of Stomach Trouble With Cramps and Terrible Pains Made This Oklahoma Man's Life Miserable Until Black-Draught Relieved Him.

Chickasha, Okla.—Mrs. J. W. Walker recently said this: "We use Black-Draught as a family medicine and think it is the only liver medicine made. My husband makes it up and uses it as a tonic as well as a laxative. I use it for headache, sour stomach, a full heavy feeling after meals, which I suppose is indigestion, and it certainly does me a lot of good."

My husband had some kind of stomach trouble—we don't know just what. It would strike him just any time in the day and cramp or pain him just terribly bad. Someone told him how to make a tea of the Black-Draught, which he did. It did him so much good, it removed the cause and cured him. Since then we have praised the Black-Draught to our friends, and gladly do so."

Seventy years of successful use has made Theford's Black-Draught a standard, household remedy. Every member of the family at times needs the help that Black-Draught can give in cleansing the system and preventing or relieving the troubles that come from constipation, indigestion, lazy liver, etc.

Try Black-Draught. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

FEDERATION MEETING SUPPORTS STRIKERS

COUNCIL HOLDS INJUNCTION "SO AUTOCRATIC AS TO STAGGER THE HUMAN MIND."

AID OF PUBLIC WILL BE ASKED

Lever Act Said Never to Have Been Intended to Apply to Workers and Used Term Unjust

Washington.—Holding that the action of the government in the injunction proceedings against striking bituminous coal miners to be "so autocratic as to stagger the human mind," the executive council of the American Federation of Labor has declared in a statement issued after a four-hour meeting that the miners' walk out was justified, promised for the strikers the entire support of organized labor and asked aid and indorsement for it from the general public.

The Lever act, under which the government acted in the court proceedings, never was enacted to apply to workers, the council asserted, and its use against the miners was classed as "an injustice not only to workers, but to all liberty loving Americans."

The action was taken without the participation of William Green, general secretary of the mine workers, who is a member, but all the remaining principal officers of the American Federation of Labor were present.

"By all the facts in the case the miners' strike is justified, we indorse it. We are convinced of the justice of the miners' cause. We pledge to the miners the full support of the American Federation of Labor of our country to give like indorsement and aid to the men engaged in this momentous struggle."

EIGHTY ACRES SWEEP BY FIRE IN OIL DISTRICT

Man Killed and Damage Exceeding $100,000 Caused at Waggoner City

Wiclat Falls, Texas.—One man was killed, several were more or less seriously burned, half of Waggoner City was destroyed and more than $1,000,000 damage done in an oil fire which raked eighty acres of the northwest extension of the Burk Burnett oil field, the largest producing oil field in America, Sunday. The fire was caused by lightning striking and exploding an oil tank belonging to the Apple-Dunlap-Bell company in block 84, on the outskirts of Waggoner City.

The main street of the town, which has about 12,000 inhabitants, and is the largest unincorporated settlement in America, was a sheet of water on account of the recent incessant rains. Down this natural carrier the burning oil waves flowed, searing everything they touched. Between 40 and 50 structures, including nearly all of the business section, were destroyed. Among them was the new home of the Waggoner bank.

A thousand people are made homeless at Waggoner City as a result of the fire. A pouring rain, which set in soon after the fire began, added to the discomforts of the sufferers, but could do nothing to check the oil fire, because oil burns easily on the surface of water.

INDUSTRIAL CENSUS IS TO BE MADE IN TEXAS

Three Zones Created for Gathering Information During Coming Census

Washington.—Three industrial zones will be established in Texas for the purpose of taking the industrial census with the decennial enumeration beginning next January, as a result of a conference between officials of the census bureau and Representatives Sumners and Lanham, and G. S. Max, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' association of Dallas. They will be the Dallas-Fort Worth zone, the Houston-Galveston zone and the San Antonio zone.

It has been the policy to take the industrial enumeration throughout the counties, without regard to sections of large manufacturing production. This year the county census is to be made as usual, but in the zones the inquiry will be somewhat more complete and go into greater detail.

CARE FOR VACCINATED HOGS

Lack of Proper Attention Has Resulted in Material Losses Which May Be Avoided.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Improper care of hogs following their immunization against hog cholera, administered in public stock yards and after arrival at their destination, has resulted in losses which may be materially decreased. The following instructions for the prevention of losses are valuable:

"Shipments should be made promptly after immunization, or should be delayed for not less than ten days. Truck hauls and shipments not exceeding 36 hours in length can be made promptly to advantage.

"Avoid crowding; allow stocker hogs relatively more floor space than fat hogs.

"It is important that drinking water be constantly accessible to the hogs, except in severe winter weather. If the car does not contain special water devices, a water trough, protected by slats over its top, should be securely fastened to the floor.

"Little or no feed is necessary during the 24 hours following inoculation, but clean water should be accessible. Short-haul shipments need not be fed in transit.

"When hogs arrive at their destination they should not be driven over the roads, but hauled from the car to the farm in wagons or trucks. Load and unload gently. Avoid chasing and unnecessary excitement in handling. In summer, unload where there is natural woodland shade or shelter pens; in winter, where there are suitable clean, bedded houses.

"Protection against rain should be provided.

"Do not permit wallows in pasture or lot. The use of wallows by recently inoculated hogs may produce pneumonia.

"For the first two weeks, if it is in season, allow shipped hogs limited fresh pasturage. If alfalfa or other leguminous pasture is not available, a supplemental concentrate should be supplied. If no pasture, use self-feeders for soaked oats, and separate ones for tankage or other protein concentrate. At the end of two weeks begin gradually to change to the permanent ration. Keep fresh, clean water always available.

Do Not Neglect Hogs After Vaccination Against Cholera.

"Watch your hogs carefully each day for failure to feed or other signs of disease or sickness. Have a quarantine pen and place sick hogs in it promptly.

"Short rations and a laxative may be used for slightly sick hogs.

"The appearance of any disease in which a number of hogs are similarly affected requires immediate expert advice and treatment. Consult your veterinarian."

REDUCE LOSS BY CHOLERA

Farmers Must Organize in Determined Effort Consisting of Self-Imposed Quarantine.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Permanent reduction in losses from cholera, says the United States department of agriculture, can be expected only when farmers organize in a determined effort consisting principally of self-imposed quarantine, the continuous employment of sanitary measures and the early use of the serum treatment should the herd become infected or dangerously exposed.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of Calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it." Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent Calomel. Take a dose of Calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Adv.

ECZEMA!

THIS isn't one of those fake free treatments you have seen so many times. We don't offer to give you something for nothing—but we do guarantee that you can try this wonderful treatment, entirely at our risk, and this guarantee is backed by your local druggist.

This makes the offer one which you can absolutely depend upon, because the druggist with whom you have been trading would not stand behind the guarantee if he did not know it to be an honest and legitimate one.

Hunt's Salve, formerly called "Hunt's Cure," has been sold under absolute money back guarantee for more than thirty years. It is especially compounded for the treatment of Eczema, Itch, Ring Worm, Tetter, and other itching skin diseases.

Thousands of letters testify to its curative properties. M. Timerin, a reputable dry goods dealer in Durant, Oklahoma, says: "I suffered with Eczema for ten years, and spent $1,000.00 for doctors' treatment, without result. One box of Hunt's Cure entirely cured me."

Don't fail to give Hunt's Salve a trial—price 75 cents, from your local druggist, or direct by mail if he does not handle it.

You can't make any storage battery last forever—that's a fact.

You've got to keep it filled with water and test it, just like a tire has to be kept filled with air, or it will cost you money.

Some day—if you have an ordinary battery—it's sure to have to be re-insulated, no matter who made it.

But—if you'll buy a Willard Battery with Threaded Rubber Insulation, you'll get clear away from the biggest cause of battery troubles. The insulation will probably last as long as the plates.

Drop in and ask us any question you can think of. We're here to give you the kind of help, service and advice that make friends.

EASY NOW TO SAW LOGS AND CUT DOWN TREES

Only one man, or even a boy, with the improved Ottawa-Engine Log Saw can easily cut twenty-five to forty cords a day, and at a cost of less than 2c per cord.

The entire machine is mounted on truck wheels to make it easy to move to the trees or logs, and from cut to cut on a log without stopping the engine.

The Ottawa can be fitted for sawing down trees. Its cuts level with surface of ground, thereby getting all the timber and leaving no stumps sticking up.

Full information and low factory price to you can be had simply by addressing the Ottawa Mfg. Company, 2724 Wood St., Ottawa, Kansas.

PERFECT HEALTH IS EVERY WOMAN'S BIRTHRIGHT

Houston, Texas.—"I was in a terribly run-down condition of health after a siege of ptomaine poisoning, and then the influenza. I could not seem to regain my strength and was really not able to do my household work. I knew I needed a good tonic and builder and remembered how my folks used to regard Dr. Pierce's remedies in my girlhood days, and then I decided to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I am now taking the second bottle and it is doing me a world of good. My strength is returning rapidly and I feel better in every way.

"I am glad indeed to recommend the medicine that is doing me so much good and do not hesitate to give this statement."—Mrs. Gertrude Sell, 2117 Common St.

Beaumont, Texas.—"One of my sisters became quite a sufferer periodically and would have fainting spells. She doctored, but did not improve. Then, three years ago, a friend advised her to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It helped her right away, and she has been in a healthier condition ever since that time.

"I would never hesitate a moment in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all young girls who suffer. I have such great confidence in it, seeing how it helped her."—Mrs. Mary E. Brauner, 1070 Harrison Ave.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth.

THIS WEAK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2343 North Taylor St., Philadelphia Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, back-ache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal health condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food-rotting, sour, gassy stomach, etc. Many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless traceable to an acid-stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, irritability of the liver, rheumatism, impure, impure blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with intestinal indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise as those who have used it.

The Magnificent Ambersons

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"EVERYTHING IS SO—SO UNSETTLED."

Synopsis.—Major Amberson has made a fortune in 1872 when other people were losing fortunes, and the magnificence of the Ambersons began then. Major Amberson laid out a 200-acre "development," with roads and stately, and in the center of a four-acre tract, on Amberson avenue, built for himself the most magnificent mansion Midland City had ever seen. When the major's daughter married young Wilbur Minsifer the neighbors predicted that as Isabel could never really love Wilbur all her love would be bestowed upon the children. There is only one child, however, George Amberson Minsifer, and his upbringing and his youthful accomplishments as a mischief maker are quite in keeping with the most pessimistic predictions. By the time George goes away to college he does not attempt to conceal his belief that the Ambersons are about the most important family in the world. At a ball given in his honor when he returns from college, George monopolizes Lucy Morgan, a stranger and the prettiest girl present, and gets on famously with her until he learns that a "queer looking duck" at whom he had been poking much fun, is the young lady's father. He is Eugene Morgan, a former resident of Bigburg, and he is returning to erect a factory and to build horseless carriages of his own invention. Eugene had been an old admirer of Isabel and they had been engaged when Isabel threw him over because of a youthful indiscretion and married Wilbur Minsifer. George makes rapid progress in his courtship of Lucy. A cotillion helps their acquaintance along famously. Their "friendship" continues during his absence at college. George and Lucy become "almost engaged." There is a family quarrel over a division of property which reveals that both George's Aunt Fanny and George's mother are more or less interested in Eugene Morgan. George's father dies. George is graduated. He and Lucy remain "almost engaged."

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

When they went down to the dining room, he pronounced acceptable the salmon salad, cold beef, cheese and cake which Fanny made ready for them without disturbing the servants. The journey had fatigued Isabel, she ate nothing, but sat to observe with tired pleasure the manifestations of her son's appetite, meanwhile giving her sister-in-law a brief summary of the events of commencement. But presently she kissed them both good-night and left aunt and nephew alone together.

"It never was becoming to her to look pale," Fanny said absently, a few moments after Isabel's departure. "I suppose your mother's been being pretty gay? Going a lot?"

"How could she?" George asked cheerfully. "In mourning, of course all she could do was just sit around and look on. That's all Lucy could do either, for the matter of that."

"I suppose so," his aunt assented. "Did Lucy get home? Did you drive out to their house with her before you came here?"

"No. She drove home with her father, of course."

"Oh, I see. So Eugene came to the station to meet you."

"To meet us?" George echoed, renewing his attack upon the salmon salad. "How could he?"

"I don't know what you mean," Fanny said drearily, in the desolate voice that had become her habit. "I haven't seen him while your mother's been away."

"Naturally," said George. "He's been East himself."

At this Fanny's drooping eyelids opened wide.

"Did you see him?"

"Well, naturally, since he made the trip home with us."

Fanny's eyelids drooped, and she sat silent until George pushed back his chair and lit a cigarette, declaring his satisfaction with what she had provided. "You're a fine housekeeper," he said benevolently. "I don't believe you'd stay single very long if some of the bachelors and widowers around town could just once see—"

She did not hear him. "It's a little odd," she said.

"What's odd?"

"Your mother's not mentioning that Mr. Morgan had been with you."

"Didn't think of it, I suppose," said George carelessly; and, his benevolent mood increasing, he conceived the idea that a little harmless rallying might serve to elevate his aunt's drooping spirits. "I'll tell you something, in confidence," he said solemnly.

She looked up, startled. "What?"

"Well, it struck me that Mr. Morgan was looking pretty absent-minded, most of the time; and he certainly is dressing better than he used to. I shouldn't be a bit surprised if all the young fellows had been waiting for was to know he had an assured income before he proposed."

"What young fellow?"

"This young fellow Morgan," laughed George. "Honestly, Aunt Fanny, I shouldn't be a bit surprised to have him request an interview with me any day, and declare that his intentions are honorable, and ask my permission to pay his addresses to you. What had I better tell him?"

Fanny burst into tears.

"Good heavens!" George cried. "I was only teasing. I didn't mean—"

"Let me alone," she said lifelessly; and, continuing to weep, rose and began to clear away the china and silver. George was distressed. "I didn't mean anything, Aunt Fanny! I didn't know you'd get so sensitive as all that."

"You'd better go up to bed," she said desolately, going on with her work and her weeping.

He obeyed, and could still hear a pathetic sniffing from the dining room as he went up the stairs.

"By George!" he grunted, as he reached his own room; and his thought was that living with a person so sensitive to kindly rally might prove tedious. He went to the window and looked through the darkness to the great silhouette of his grandfther's house. Lights were burning over there, upstairs; probably his newly arrived uncle was engaged in talk with the Major.

George's glance lowered, resting casually upon the indistinct ground, and he beheld some vague shapes, unfamiliar to him. Formless heaps, they seemed; but, without much curiosity, he supposed that sewer connections or water pipes might be out of order, making necessary some excavations. Not greatly disturbed, he pulled down the shade, yawned, and began to undress, leaving further investigation for the morning.

But in the morning he had forgotten all about it, and raised his shade, to let in the light, without even glancing toward the ground. Not until he had finished dressing did he look forth from his window, and then his glance was casual. The next instant his attitude became electric, and he ran from his room, plunged down the stairs, out of the front door, and upon a nearer view of the destroyed lawn, began to release profanity upon the breezeless summer air, which remained unaffected. Between his mother's house and his grandfather's, excavations for the cellars of five new houses were in process, each within a few feet of its neighbor.

It was Sunday, and so the workmen implicated in these defacings were denied what unquestionably they would have considered a treat; but as the fanatic orator continued the monologue, a gentleman in flannels emerged upward from one of the excavations, and regarded him contemptively.

"Obtaining any relief, nephew?" he inquired with some interest. "You must have learned quite a number of those expressions in childhood—it's so long since I'd heard them I fancied they were obsolete."

"Who wouldn't swear?" George demanded hotly. "What does grandfather mean, doing such things?"

"My private opinion is," said Amberson gravely, "he desires to increase his income by building these houses, to rent."

"Well, in the name of heaven, can't he increase his income any other way but this?"

"In the name of heaven, it would appear he couldn't."

"It's beastly! It's a damn degradation! It's a crime!"

"I don't know about its being a crime," said his uncle, stepping over some planks to join him. "It might be a mistake, though. Your mother said not to tell you until we got home, so as not to spoil commencement for you. She rather feared you'd be upset."

"Upset! Oh, my Lord, I should think I would be upset! He's in his second childhood."

"Well, I thought, myself, it was a mistake. I wanted him to put up an apartment building instead of these houses."

"An apartment building! Here?"

"Yes; that was my idea."

George struck his hands together despairingly. "An apartment house! Oh, my Lord!"

"Don't worry! Your grandfather wouldn't listen to me, but he'll wish he had, some day. He sticks it out that apartment houses will never do in a town of this type, and when I pointed out to him that a dozen or so of 'em already are doing, he claimed it was just the novelty, and that they'd all be empty as soon as people got used to 'em. So he's getting miserly in his old age."

"Hardy! Look what he gave Sydney and Amelia!"

"I don't mean he's a miser, of course," said George. "But why on earth didn't he sell something or other rather than do a thing like this?"

"As a matter of fact," Amberson returned coolly, "I believe he has sold something or other, from time to time."

"I suppose you're joking—or trying to?"

"That's the best way to look at it," Amberson said amiably. "Take the whole thing as a joke—and in the meantime, if you haven't had your breakfast—"

"I haven't!"

"Then if I were you I'd go in and get some. And"—paused, becoming serious—"and if I were you I wouldn't say anything to your grandfather about this."

"I don't think I could trust myself to speak to him about it," said George. "I want to treat him respectfully, because he is my grandfather, but I don't believe I could if I talked to him about such a thing as this!"

And with a gesture of despair, plainly signifying that all too soon after leaving bright college years behind him he had entered into the full tragedy of life, George turned bitterly upon his heel and went into the house for his breakfast.

His uncle, with his head whimsically upon one side, gazed after him not altogether unsympathetically. Being a philosopher he was not surprised, that afternoon, in the course of a drive he took in the old carriage with the Major, when George was encountered upon the highway flashing along in his runabout with Lucy beside him and Penderennis doing better than three minutes.

"He seems to have recovered," Amberson remarked.

"I beg your pardon."

"Your grandson," Amberson explained. "He was inclined to melancholy this morning, but seemed jolly enough just now when they passed us."

"What was he melancholy about? Not getting remorseful about all the money he's spent at college, was he?" The Major chuckled feebly, but with sufficient grimness. "I wonder what he thinks I'm made of," he concluded querulously.

"Gold," his son suggested, adding gently, "and he's right about part of you, father."

"What part?"

"Your heart."

The Major laughed ruefully. "I suppose that may account for how heavy it feels, sometimes, nowadays. This town seems to be rolling right over that old heart you mentioned, George—rolling over it and burying it under!"

When I think of those devilish workmen digging up my lawn, yelling around my house—"

"Never mind, father. Don't think of it. When things are a nuisance it's a good idea not to keep remembering 'em."

"I try not to," the old gentleman murmured. "I try to keep remembering that I won't be remembering anything very long." And, somehow convinced that this thought was a mirthful one, he laughed loudly and slapped his knee. "Not so very long now, my boy!" he chuckled, continuing to echo his own amusement. "Not so very long. Not so very long!"

CHAPTER XII.

Young George paid his respects to his grandfather the following morning, having been occupied with various affairs and engagements on Sunday until after the Major's bedtime; and topics concerned with building or excavations were not introduced into the conversation, which was a cheerful one until George lightly mentioned some new plans of his. He spoke of his desire to extend his proficiency in driving; in fact, he entertained the ambition to drive a four-in-hand. However, as the Major said nothing, and merely sat still, looking surprised, George went on to say that he did not propose to "go in for coaching just at the start"; he thought it would be better to begin with a tandem. He was sure Penderennis could be trained to work as a leader; and all that he needed to buy at present, he said, would be "comparatively inexpensive—a new trap, and the harness, of course, and a good bay to match Penderennis." He did not care for a special groom; one of the stablemen would do.

At this point the Major decided to speak. "You say one of the stablemen would do?" he inquired, his widened eyes remaining fixed upon his grandson. "That's lucky, because one's all there is just at present, George. Old fat Tom does it all."

"Oh, that will be all right, sir. My mother can lend me her man."

"Can she?" The old gentleman smiled faintly. "I wonder—" He paused.

"What, sir?"

"Whether you mightn't care to go to law school somewhere perhaps, I'd be glad to set aside a sum that would see you through."

This gentle divergence from the topic in hand surprised George painfully. "I have no interest whatever in the law," he said. "I don't care for it, and the idea of being a professional man has never appealed to me. I was speaking of driving a tandem—"

"I know you were," said the Major quietly.

George looked hurt. "I beg your pardon. Of course if the idea doesn't appeal to you—" And he rose to go.

The Major ran a tremulous hand through his hair, sighing deeply. "I—I don't like to refuse you anything, George," he said. "I don't know that I often have refused you whatever you wanted—in reason—"

"You've always been more than generous, sir," George interrupted quickly. "And if the idea of a tandem doesn't appeal to you, why—of course—" And he waved his hand, heroically dismissing the tandem.

"The Idea of Being a Professional Man Has Never Appealed to Me."

The Major's distress became obvious. "George, I'd like to, but—but I've an idea tandems are dangerous to drive, and your mother might be anxious. She—"

"No, sir; I think not. She felt it would be rather a good thing—help to keep me out in the open air. But if perhaps your finances—"

"Oh, it isn't that so much," the old gentleman laughed uncomfortably. "I guess we could still afford a new horse or two, if need be—"

"I thought you said—"

The Major waved his hand airily. "Oh, a few retrenchments where things were useless. And if you want this thing so very much—"

"It's not important enough to bother about, really, of course."

"Well, let's wait till autumn, then," said the Major in a tone of relief. "We'll see about it in the autumn, if you're still in the mind for it then. You remind me of it, along in September—or October. We'll see what can be done."

He rubbed his hands cheerfully. "We'll see what can be done about it then, George. We'll see."

And George, in reporting this conversation to his mother, was ruefully humorous. "In fact, the old boy cheered up so much," he told her, "you'd have thought he'd got a real load off his mind. Of course, I know he's anything but miserly; still I can't help thinking he must be salting a lot of money away. I know prices are higher than they used to be, but he doesn't spend within thousands of what he used to, and we certainly can't be spending more than we always have spent. Where does it all go to? Uncle George told me grandfather had sold some pieces of property, and it looks a little queer. I have a faint suspicion, not that he's getting miserly—not that at all—but that old age has begun to make him timid about money. There's no doubt about it, he's getting a little queer; he can't keep his mind on a subject long. Right in the middle of talking about one thing he'll wander off to something else; and I shouldn't be surprised if he turned out to be a lot better off than any of us guess."

Isabel had a bright idea. "George! Instead of a tandem wouldn't it interest you to get one of Eugene's automobiles?"

"I don't think so. They're fast enough, of course. In fact, running one of those things is getting to be quite on the cards for sport, and people go all over the country in 'em. But they're dirty things, and they keep getting out of order, so that you're always lying down on your back in the mud and—"

"Oh, so," she interrupted eagerly. "Haven't you noticed? The way they make them now you can get at most of the machinery from the top. I do think you'd be interested, dear."

George remained indifferent. "Possibly—but I hardly think so. I know a lot of good people are really taking them up, but still—"

"But still what?" she said as he paused.

"But still—well, I suppose I'm a little old-fashioned and fastidious, but I'm afraid being a sort of engine driver never will appeal to me, mother. It's exciting, and I'd like that part of it, but still it doesn't seem to me precisely the thing a gentleman ought to do. Too much overalls and monkey wrenches and grease! No; I believe I'd rather wait for September and a tandem, mother."

Nevertheless George sometimes consented to sit in an automobile, while waiting for September, and he frequently went driving in one of Eugene's cars with Lucy and her father. He even allowed himself to be escorted with his mother and Fanny through the growing factory, which was now, as the foreman of the paint shop informed the visitors, "turning out a car and a quarter a day."

From the factory Eugene took them to lunch at a new restaurant, just opened in the town, a place which surprised Isabel with its metropolitan air, and, though George made fun of her, in a whisper, she offered everything the tribute of pleased exclamations; and her gayety helped Eugene's to make the little occasion almost a festive one.

George's ennui disappeared in spite of himself, and he laughed to see his mother in such spirits. "I didn't know mineral waters could go to a person's head," he said. "Or perhaps it's this place. It might pay to have a new-restaurant opened somewhere in town every time you get the blues."

"No," Isabel said, "what makes me laugh so much at nothing is Eugene's factory. Wouldn't anybody be delighted to see an old friend take an idea out of the air like that—an idea that most people laughed at him for—wouldn't any old friend of his be happy to see how he'd made his idea into such a splendid, humming thing as that factory—all shiny steel, clicking, buzzing away, and with all those workmen, such muscled-looking men and yet so intelligent-looking? It's beautiful to see such a thing," she said. "It makes us all happy, dear old Eugene!"

And with a brave gesture she stretched out her hand to him across the small table. He took it quickly, giving her a look in which his laughter tried to remain but vanished before a gratitude threatening to become emotional in spite of him. Isabel, however, turned instantly to Fanny. "Give him your hand, Fanny," she said gaily; and as Fanny mechanically obeyed, "There!" Isabel cried. "If brother George were here, Eugene would have his three oldest and best friends congratulating him all at once. We know what brother George thinks about it, though. It's just beautiful, Eugene!"

Lucy leaned toward George and whispered, "Did you ever see anything so lovely?"

"As what?" George inquired, not because he misunderstood but because he wished to prolong the pleasant neighborliness of whispering.

"As your mother! Think of her doing that! She's a darling! And papa—here she imperfectly repressed a tendency to laugh—papa looks as if he were either going to explode or utter loud sob!"

Eugene commanded his features, however, and they resumed their customary apprehensiveness. "I used to write verses," he said—"if you remember—"

"Yes," Isabel interrupted gently. "I remember."

"I don't recall that I've written any for twenty years or so," he continued. "But I'm almost thinking I could do it again, to thank you for making a factory visit into such a kind celebration."

"Gracious!" Lucy whispered, giggling. "Aren't they sentimental!"

"People that age always are," George returned. "They get sentimental over anything at all. Factories or restaurants, it doesn't matter what!"

And both of them were seized with fits of laughter which they managed to cover under the general movement of departure, as Isabel had risen to go.

Outside upon the crowded street George helped Lucy into his runabout and drove off, waving triumphantly and laughing at Eugene, who was struggling with the engine of his car, in the tonneau of which Isabel and Fanny had established themselves. "Looks like a hand-organ man grinding away for pennies," said George, as the runabout turned the corner into National avenue. "I'll still take a horse, any day."

He was not so cocksure half an hour later, on an open road, when a siren whistle wailed behind him, and before the sound had died away Eugene's car, coming from behind with what seemed fairly like one long leap, went by the runabout and dwindled almost instantaneously in perspective, with a lace handkerchief in a black-gloved hand fluttering sweet derision as it was swept onward into minuteness—a mere white speck—and then out of sight.

George was undoubtedly impressed—"Your father does know how to drive some," the dashing exhibition forced him to admit. "Of course Penderennis isn't as young as he was, and I don't care to push him too hard. Well, I enjoyed part of that lunch today quite a lot, Lucy."

"The salad?"

"No. Your whispering to me."

George checked Penderennis to a walk. Whereupon Lucy protested quickly: "Oh, don't!"

"Why?"

"I know when you make him walk it's so you can give all your attention to—proposing to me again!"

And as she turned a face of exas-

gerated color to him, "By the Lord, but you're a little witch!" George cried.

"George, do let Penderennis trot again!"

"I won't!"

She clucked to the horse. "Get up, Penderennis! Trot! Go on! Commence!"

Penderennis paid no attention; she meant nothing to him, and George laughed at her fondly. "You are the prettiest thing in this world, Lucy!" he exclaimed. "Are you going to drop the 'almost' and say we're really engaged?"

"Oh, not for years! So there's the answer, and let's trot again."

But George was persistent; moreover, he had become serious during the last minute or two. "I want to know," he said. "I really mean it."

"Let's don't be serious, George," she begged him hopefully. "Let's talk of something pleasant."

He was a little offended. "Then it isn't pleasant for you to know that I want to marry you?"

At this she became as serious as he could have asked; she looked down, and her lip quivered like that of a child about to cry. Suddenly she put her hand upon one of his for just an instant, and then withdrew it.

"Lucy!" he said huskily. "Dear, what's the matter? You look as if you were going to cry."

Her eyelids flickered, and then she looked up at him with a sad gravity, tears seeming just at the point. "One reason's because I have a feeling that it's never going to be."

"Why?"

"It's just a feeling."

"You haven't any reason?"

"It's just a feeling."

"Well, if that's all," George said, reassured, and laughing confidently, "I guess I won't be very much troubled!" But at once he became serious again, adopting the tone of argument. "Don't you care enough about me to marry me?"

She looked down again, pathetically troubled. "Yes."

"Well, then, why in the world won't you drop the 'almost'?"

Her distress increased. "Everything is—everything—"

"What about 'everything'?"

"Everything is so—so unsettled."

And at that he uttered an exclamation of impatience. "If you aren't the queerest girl! What is 'unsettled'?"

"Well, for one thing," she said, able to smile at his vehemence, "you haven't settled on anything to do. At least if you have you've never spoken of it."

As she spoke she gave him the quickest possible side glance of hopeful scrutiny; then looked away, not happily. Surprise and displeasure were intentionally visible upon the countenance of her companion; and he permitted a significant period of silence to elapse before making any response. "Lucy," he said finally, with cold dignity, "haven't you perfectly well understood that I don't mean to go into business or adopt a profession?"

"I wasn't quite sure," she said gently. "I really didn't know—quite."

"Then of course it's true I did tell you. You know yourself there are a lot of people in the East—in the South too, for that matter—that don't think we've got any particular family or position or culture in this part of the country. There were one or two in my crowd at college; their families had lived on their income for three generations, and they never dreamed there was anybody in their class out here. I had to show them a thing or two, right at the start, and I guess they won't forget it! Well, I think it's fine all their sort found out that three generations can mean just as much out here as anywhere else."

"But what are you going to do, George?" she cried.

George's earnestness surpassed hers; he had become flushed and his breathing was emotional. "I expect to live an honorable life," he said. "I expect to contribute my share to charities, and to take part in—in movements."

"I have a feeling that it's never going to be."

George checked Penderennis to a walk. Whereupon Lucy protested quickly: "Oh, don't!"

"Why?"

"I know when you make him walk it's so you can give all your attention to—proposing to me again!"

And as she turned a face of exas-

gerated color to him, "By the Lord, but you're a little witch!" George cried.

"George, do let Penderennis trot again!"

"I won't!"

She clucked to the horse. "Get up, Penderennis! Trot! Go on! Commence!"

Penderennis paid no attention; she meant nothing to him, and George laughed at her fondly. "You are the prettiest thing in this world, Lucy!" he exclaimed. "Are you going to drop the 'almost' and say we're really engaged?"

"Oh, not for years! So there's the answer, and let's trot again."

But George was persistent; moreover, he had become serious during the last minute or two. "I want to know," he said. "I really mean it."

"Let's don't be serious, George," she begged him hopefully. "Let's talk of something pleasant."

He was a little offended. "Then it isn't pleasant for you to know that I want to marry you?"

At this she became as serious as he could have asked; she looked down, and her lip quivered like that of a child about to cry. Suddenly she put her hand upon one of his for just an instant, and then withdrew it.

County Agent.

REGARDING BOUNDARY LINES

The County Attorney is in receipt of the following:

October 30, 1919.

Honorable Chas. C. Triplett,
County Attorney
Graham, Texas.

Dear Sir: We have your communication of October 22nd addressed to this Department in which you submit the following inquiry:

"Where a survey calls for the bank of a river does that mean the first or second bank of the river?"

Your inquiry is for the purpose of determining who owns certain pecan trees on the bank of the Brazos river—the public or private individuals.

In reply thereto, I will refer you to some facts of an opinion prepared on a similar subject by Mr. Smedley, formerly of this Department. The question under discussion in the opinion was what constitutes the boundary of Texas along Sed river. In discussing same the writer says:

"It is a general rule, that when the bank of a stream is described as the boundary the title will extend to the margin of the stream unless there is something to limit it to the top of the bank. See Farnham on Water and Water Rights, Section. 657 and the cases there cited. See also, Nelson vs. McCormick, 15 N. Y. 296; Yrles vs. Van Beogart, 36 N. Y. 626; Lamb vs. Ricketts, 11 Chic. 311; Fleming vs. Ramsey, 27 Ky. 155.

"The ordinary meaning of the word 'bank' is the elevation of land which confines the river at ordinary high water, or the elevated land between ordinary high and ordinary low water. See Daniels vs. Cheshire, R. Co. 26 N. H. 85; Stone vs. City of Augusta, 46, Me. 127; Johnson vs. Enott, 13 Oregon, 308; 10 Pac. 418; Sundial Ranch vs. Hay Land Co., 61 Oregon, 205; 119 Pac. 768. Houghton vs Chicago, etc., Ry. Co., 47 Iowa, 370.

"In the language of some of the authorities, 'the banks of a river or stream are understood to be that which contains it in its ordinary state of high water.' See Minor's heirs vs. City of B. O. 115 L. A. 391; 38 So. 999. Ensley Development Co. vs. Powell, 147 Ala. 300; 40 So. 137.

"The banks of a stream immediately adjacent to its bed. The banks confine the waters within the bed."

The point clearly made in the above is that where the bank of a stream is designated without other objects to fix the exact boundary of a piece of land, it is meant the margin of the stream. Of course we understand that in the Brazos river, as in any other western streams, the water does not follow any fixed line in the bed of the stream but shifts with the seasons. Our construction of the bank would be, as set out above, that part of the soil or land that confines the waters of the stream at ordinary flood, and by the margin of your stream, as used above, it would mean that portion of the bed of the stream that would measure the water in the river at ordinary mean low water mark if the thread of the stream were adjacent to the bank.

I think the quotations from the opinion above will clearly advise you on the question at issue.

Yours very truly,
JOHN MAXWELL,
Assistant Attorney General.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION TO MAKE MINERAL LEASE

No. 682

In re Guardianship of the Estate of Hubert Mayes a Minor.

Notice is hereby given that I, Cisina Mayes, guardian of the estate of Hubert Mayes, a minor, have this day filed an application in the above entitled and numbered cause for authority from the County Judge of Young County, Texas, authorizing me, as guardian of the estate of said ward, to make mineral lease upon the terms therein requested, or upon such terms as the Court may order and direct, of the following described land in Young County, Texas, belonging to said ward, to-wit:

Being all the undivided one-eighth (1-8) interest of said ward, Hubert Mayes, in and to the following tract of land in Young County, Texas, described as follows:

Beginning at the stutheast corner of the said R. K. Mayes survey;

Thence west 1320 feet for the southeast corner of this 20-acre tract;

Thence west 1320 feet for the southwest corner of this 20-acre tract;

Thence north 660 feet for the northwest corner of this 20-acre tract;

Thence east 1320 feet to the northeast corner of this tract;

Thence 660 feet to a point for the southeast corner of this 20-acre tract.

Said application will be heard by the County Judge at the Court House in Graham, Young County, Texas, on the 14th day of November, A. D. 1919.

Witness my hand this 4th day of November A. D. 1919.
