It may have been lots of money but in the meantime the Com-decided that we need the vault.

Now that the Enid, Ochiltree & Western is a certainty lets get busy and land the Mountain Valley & Plains Railway and the Denver & Gulf Railway; just an effort and they are ours.

After all, knockers may be a necessary evil, for the simple reason that those who are working the hammer overtime are as a rule mere "nobodys" that have lost the respect of those who know them and who have not a face that would inspire confidence on the part of strangers.

Did you ever hear a cheery, "Glad-hand" citizen say anything that was detrimental to the prosperity of his home town?
Did you ever meet a citizen of the above mentioned variety that he did make you think better of mankind and cause you to forget that the world is a cold deal? On the other hand: Did you ever see a grumpy old groutch whose eyes come to a focus two inches from his nose that would go out of his way in order to make some dirty remark about the town in which he lives and on the prosperity of which he is relying for a living? To which class of citizenship do you belong?

The national congress is still in session at Washington. Special committees are investigating government officials and looking into the high cost of living. It looks like these same congressmen might well have looked into this latter question before passing the tariff bill now in force.

prove those who live in the "Grumbler-infested" towns; nor do the "Grumbler-infested"

LAUGHS

A negro came running down the lane as though the Old Boy were after him.

"What are you running for, Mose?" called the colonel from the barn.

"I ain't a-runnin' fo'," shouted back Mose.

"I'se a-runnin' from!"

The teacher had gone back to the brave days of old for his reading selection for the day and read the story of the Roman who swam across the Tiber three times before breakfast.

One of the boys giggled when the story was finished, and the teacher turned to him.

"You do not doubt a trained swimmer could do that, do you, James?" he asked.

"No sir," answered James; but I wondered why he didn't make it four and get back to the side his clothes were on."

—Cosmopolitan.

"Mr. Smith," spoke up the young lawyer, "I come here as a representative of your neighbor, Tom Jones, with the commission to collect a debt due him."

"I congratulate you," answered Mr. Smith, "on obtaining so permanent a job at such an early stage in your career."—Success.

A prominent lawyer's wife had fads about hygienic sleeping. She once asked her husband, "Is it better to lie on the right side or on the other?"

He answered absently, "My dear, when one is on the right side, it generally is not necessary to do much lying."—Judge.

Three men of different nationalities were once conversing; the Englishman asked the Frenchman of what nationality he would have been had he not been a Frenchman.

"An Englishman, I suppose," he replied. "What do you think you would have been?"

"Oh, an Irishman, perhaps," replied the Englishman with a wink. Then, curious to hear the answer the Irishman would make, he asked "Paddy, what do you would have been had you not been an Irishman?"

"Begorra, and I would have been ashamed," was the reply.
