Raymond Hotel

Burned

One man burned in the building. Loss $3,500

Amarillo, Tex., May 13. The loss in the Raymond Hotel fire which occurred Sat. night has been estimated at $3,500 on the building and contents. As every one was compelled to make a hasty exit after being aroused they escaped not even half clad and everything was a total loss.

Henry Braun was the only person who did not escape and his body was horribly burned.

Channing Couple Marry Here

Amarillo, Texas, May 35:

Walter A. Dennis and Miss Elizabeth A. Dowien, both of Channing, were united in marriage early Saturday evening at the new parsonage of the Presbyterian church on South Taylor street in this city. The couple was entertained at supper by Mrs. O. K. Gilvin. Mr. Dennis is a well known ranchman of near Channing and his bride is a trained nurse, having been employed at the St. Anthony Sanitarium in this city since the first of the year. They left for Channing Saturday evening shortly after the ceremony and will make their home on a farm near that place.

Both are popular young people and their friends both at Channing and here will be glad to extend their congratulations and best wishes.

Miss Dowlen is well and favorably known and has made a many friends in Moore County. She has lived at Channing with her parents for several of years and has a host of friends there.

Walter Dennis has been a resident of this county for several years and holds a high place in the estimation of the people, who are pleased to know of his good fortune. He is a young man of excellent business qualities and sociable disposition. The young couple will make their home at the Dennis ranch northwest of town.

The Pioneer joins their many friend in congratulations.

Commissioners Court Will Have Roads Graded

Contract Will Be Let Soon

At a session of Commissioners Court this week it was decided to let the established public road which runs west from Dumas to the county line remain so. This road is one mile south of the road now traveled to Hartley but it is over a more level route and is convenient for a connection with Channing as well as Hartley, should these towns care to grade roads this way.

The Hartley Commissioner informs us that he will have the road from Hartley within ninety days.

The Channing people should get busy and meet us at the coun

WORTHLESS READING.

"Worthless reading makes worthless people." Put that in big letters and hang it up in your sitting-room, where you can see it every day, and where the young people can see it. Maybe it will call their attention to the books they are reading, which are uplifting or degrading, says the Ohio State Journal. They are one or the other. Parents don't seem to realize this. Nine out of ten of them do not seem to understand the significance of a book. An education amounts to nothing if a boy or girl turns it into shallow reading. Their minds are filled with trash and their thinking is weak, when they read the kind of books that are mostly read these days. It is a sad mistake to allow this matter to go at random, and to allow the youth's taste for reading to grow rank and wild. The highest triumph of an education is the desire and habit to read good books. It makes no difference how well a boy gets along in his mathematics or language, if he has no taste for good reading it is all waste. Parents will take great interest in the marks their child gets at school, but they are hopelessly careless as to what those marks mean for him in his after life. It is time they were giving attention to this subject.

For at least four hundred years journalism has been a profession without academic recognition, in that a course of study was required to enter its portals. The late Joseph Pulitzer felt that it should be raised to the proper rank, and he founded and endowed a college, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. To the headship of this new institution is called Dr. Talcott Williams of this city, one of the deans of American journalism, and one whose experience, travel, accomplishments and scholarship make the selection wholly admirable. Journalism is not wholly taught. It receives more recruits than almost any other profession, and most of the postulants fall by the wayside. It is a trying-out process which results in successes in many directions other than newspaper work. To fit into the peculiar niche which makes journalism so important is given to few, but it is certain that no young man ever entered journalism and left it without carrying away valuable lessons.

The claque has never flourished in England theaters, but is a powerful institution in France, where a "chef de claque" enjoys a recognized status and makes a comfortable income. It is a mistake to suppose that the only duty of claqueurs is to applaud. A well organized claque includes some members who have cultivated the art of infectious laughter. These "cha-touilleurs" attend the lighter forms of drama and laugh so heartily and naturally that their neighbors join in, and leave the house, convinced that the play must be a funny one. Then there are the "pleureuses," who are paid to shake with sobs at the right moment during melodramas. These are the real dramatic critics.

A scientific assertion is produced to the effect that there are no germs in the telephone mouthpiece. Those receptacles of language must be sterilized by the heat of the messages poured into them by some unfortunate who has waited 15 minutes to get the curt information that "the line's busy."

SHE KNEW.

Mrs. Hixon—Is your youngest son noisy around the house?
Mrs. Dixon—Indeed he is. He whistles when he's awake and snores when he's asleep.

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING

"When my baby was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt.

"We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend induced me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things, and doctors, too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Joke Writer's Reply.

Blinks—It says here that a woman pointed a toy pistol at a burglar and he surrendered.

Jinks—Wise Burglar.

The system takes kindly to nature's laxative, Garfield Tea, which is mild in action and always effective.

A man is no sooner elected to office that he begins to kick because it isn't more remunerative.

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Do not sap the springs of life by neglect of the human mechanism, by allowing the accumulation of poisons in the system. An imitation of Nature's method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous strength is to take an alterative glyceric extract (without alcohol) of Golden Seal and Oregon grape root, Bloodroot, Stone and Mandrake root with Cherrybark. Over 40 years ago Dr. Pierce gave to the public this remedy, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He found it would help the blood in taking up the proper elements from food, help the liver into activity, thereby throwing out the poisons from the blood and vitalizing the whole system as well as allaying and soothing a cough.

No one ever takes cold unless constipated, or exhausted, and having what we call mal-nutrition, which is attended with impoverished blood and exhaustion of nerve force. The "Discovery" is an all-round tonic which restores tone to the blood, nerves and heart by imitating Nature's methods of restoring waste of tissue, and feeding the nerves, heart and lungs on rich red blood.

MRS. DORN.

"I suffered from pain under my right shoulder blade also a very severe cough," writes Mrs. W. Dorn, of New Brookland, S. C., to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. "Had four different doctors and none did me any good. Some said I had consumption, others said I would have to have an operation. I was bedridden, unable to sit up for six months—and was nothing but a live skeleton. You advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. When I had taken one bottle of the 'Discovery' I could sit up for an hour at a time, and when I had taken three bottles I could do my cooking and tend to the children. I took fourteen bottles in all and was then in good health. My weight is now 167 pounds."

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

The wonder of baking powders—Calumet. Wonderful in its raising powers—its uniformity, its never failing results, its purity.

Wonderful in its economy. It costs less than the high-price trust brands, but it is worth as much. It costs a trifle more than the cheap and big can kinds—it is worth more. But proves its real economy in the baking.

Printype Wins!

New Oliver Typewriter, Equipped With 'Book Type' Makes Tremendous Hit With the Public--
"Typewriters PRINT"

Sells for 17 Cents a Day

Another great Oliver innovation-- PRINTYPE. Some months ago, without announcement, we placed The Printype Oliver Typewriter on the market.

Today, one third of our output of Oliver Typewriters are Printypes.
It's more than a success. It's a revolution in typewriter type!

Printype is the most beautiful, readable, attractive, attention compelling type ever evolved for typewriters.

Thousands of dollars have been expended in producing this wonderful typewriter type, yet you pay only the regular price of $100 for the complete machine, the new Oliver No. 5, equipped to write in Printype. You can buy The Printype Oliver of the famous 17-cents a-Day Purchase Plan.

Printype is virtually book type-- the type which the eye has been trained to grasp quickly.

The type which the crystallized experience of centuries proves best for the printed page.

Great Beauty and Attention Value

Printype is the very soul of symmetry. The shading gives body, refinement and life which are utterly lacking in the old-style thin out line letters and numerals. It's a delight to the eye.

A letter written in Printype attracts the eye--its magnetic. A printype letter is so strikingly attractive so forceful, so distinctive that one unconsciously picks it out from a mass of mail, to read first.

Its perfection compels attention.
A large part of our sales have resulted from letters like this, sent by interested correspondents to users of the new machine: "For goodness sake, what machine did you use to write that letter?"

The answer--a Printype Oliver-- makes the sale.

Aids Eyesight-Prevents Errors

Printype aids and rests the eyes.
None of the strain on the optic nerve that sharp, thin, outline type imposes. This elimination of effort makes it a positive pleasure to read Printype correspondence. Ask the opinion of your oculist or optician.
He knows the value of Printype!

The Standard Visible Writer

Printype
OLIVER
Typewriter

Printype makes every letter, every numeral, every character employed in the whole wide range of commercial transactions perfectly plain.
Wherever accuracy is demanded, printype is worth a premium.

The Printype Test by Linotype Operators

One of the hundreds of interesting Printype tests was made by various newspaper publishers. Linotype operators of equal dexterity were pitted against each other in a speed contest.
One set of operators were supplied with copy written with the regular typewriter type. The opposing operators were supplied with written in Printype.

It was found that the linotype operator could increase his output 10 per cent, setting from "Printype" copy, every copy written with the ordinary
"outline" typewriter face.

Ask Us to Write You a Letter on The Printype
Oliver Typewriter

We want to write you a specimen letter on The Printype Oliver Typewriter and forward a copy of the book
A REVOLUTION IN TYPEWRIT-ER TYPE. Ask us for details of the 17-cents a-Day Purchase Plan, which has aided so many thousands to the ranks of typewriter users.

We urge upon you the importance of investigating the new face in Typewriting--PRINTYPE. (106)

MY LADY OF DOUBT

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North," etc.

Illustrations by HENRY THIEDE

COPYRIGHT, ACME CLURGE & CO., 1911

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

"I don't just 'member, sir," answered a negro, hesitatingly. "I was busy over dar' cleanin' de sideboard."

"Well, he's not here now, that's certain," broke in Grant impatiently. "and we've been in all the parlors! What next, MacHugh?"

"Try to head him off before he can get out of the city, of course. That's his game, probably. Osborne, have Carter come here at once. Why didn't you nab the fellow upstairs, Captain? Fool play that, sending him down here."

"I didn't wish to create a row in the ball-room; he was with Claire Mortimer—"

"Oh, I see," laughing coarsely. "Something besides military duty involved, eh?"

"I'll trouble you to be a trifle more careful, MacHugh," Grant said stiffly. "The fellow did her a small service in the afternoon, and she couldn't refuse dancing with him, as he was in uniform, and apparently all right. I advise you to drop that part of the affair. Here's Carter now."

I could hear the click of the newcomer's spurs as he crossed the room. MacHugh chuckled.

"Touchy about it just the same, I see; however we'll pass up the lady. Carter, there has been a spy in here tonight, calling himself Lieutenant Fortesque, of the 42nd Regiment. He came through the lines this morning with despatches for Howe, I understand. Did you meet him?"

"No, sir, but one of my men was riding about with him all day—Watts; I heard him telling about it an hour ago."

"Is that so? Where'd they go?"

"Covered everything, I judge, from Callowhill to the Lower Battery. Watts said he asked questions of everybody they met, but he didn't take any notes. He liked the fellow, but thought he was mighty inquisitive. Where is he now, sir?"

"The devil knows, I don't, and you'll have to find out. He'll head north-west likely; he'll never try to cross the river here. How many men have you?"

"Twenty."

"Scatter them to every north post."

The fellow had no horse, and your troopers can easily get ahead of him. Hurry up now." Carter departed with click of steel, and MacHugh evidently turned to his companion.

"We'll catch the lad all right, Grant. Some of those outposts will nab him before daylight. No use our waiting around here; let's go back upstairs."

The girl's nervous grasp on my arm tightened, her lips pressed close to my ear.

"I—I must get back to my place at the table," she whispered. "Surely you know what to do; this is a rear door; there are stables a hundred feet away; you must get a horse, and ride fast—you—you will do this!"

"Yes, of course—but how can I thank you?"

"Don't try; don't ever even think of it again. I hardly know what mad impulse sent me here. Now I have but one thought—to hurry you away, and get safely back myself—you will go?"

"Yes—but—"

"Not now! there is no time for explanation, promises, anything. You heard what they said; every avenue of escape will be blocked within an hour. If you go at once you can outride them—please, please go!"

She held out her hand, and I grasped it warmly, unable longer to war against the pitiful appeal in her voice.

"If You Go at Once You Can Outride Them. Please, Please Go!"

"Yes, I'll go, at once. But I take away with me a memory which will never permit me to be satisfied until we meet again. We have been together so short a time—"

"Had it been longer," she interrupted, "you would know me better, and care less, perhaps. I am a sham; a cheat," a trifle of bitterness in the tone. "You will learn all that some day, and laugh at yourself. Oh, I know you will; so not another word, sir. I am going; then, perhaps, you will."

There was a slight pressure of her fingers, and she had vanished so quickly I could only stare blindly along the deserted passage. Yet, an instant later, the peril of my predicament flashed back upon my mind, and I faced the immediate necessity for action. What her strange words might mean could not be interpreted; I made no attempt to comprehend. Now I must find means of escape, and learn the truth later. I opened the door cautiously, and stepped without, every nerve taut, every muscle braced for action. It was a star-lit night, and the numerous rear windows of the mansion cast a glare of light for some distance. The dark shadow of a high fence alone promised concealment, and, holding my sword tightly, I crept in that direction, breathing again more freely as I reached its protection unobserved. There was a guard stationed before the stable door—a Grenadier, from the outline of his hat—and others, a little group, were sitting on the grass a dozen feet away. If they had not been already warned I might gain a horse by boldness, but the probability was that here was where Carter had mounted his squad, and I would merely walk forward into a trap. I had better chance the possibility that some visitor had left a horse tied in front, or to one of the stands. With this possibility in mind I turned, and skirted the house, making myself as inconspicuous as possible. There were soldiers on the outside steps; I heard their voices without seeing them, and was thus driven to run swiftly across an open space, memory guiding me toward the opposite pavilion. Breathless, with heart beating fast, I crouched low in the shadow, endeavoring to make out my more immediate surroundings. There were no horses there, but I could clearly distinguish the stamping of restless hoofs somewhere to the right. As I straightened up, determined upon discovering an empty saddle if possible, the figure of a man suddenly loomed directly in front, advancing toward me. In startled surprise I took one step backward, but was too late. Already the eyes of the newcomer had perceived my presence, and he sprang forward, tugging at his sword.

"Hold on there! hold on!" he commanded shortly. "Who are you? What the devil are you skulking about out here for?"

It was Grant beyond a doubt; I would recognize the peculiar snarl of that voice in a thousand. He had not gone upstairs then; had not rejoined the lady in the dining-room. What would she think of his absence? What would she do when she realized its probable meaning? Someway I was not frightened, at thus meeting him, but glad—if those others would only keep away, and let us settle the affair between us. Here was his test—a coward would cry out an alarm, summon the guard to his assistance, but, if the fellow's nerve only held, or if he hated me badly enough, he'd fight it out alone. All this came to me in a flash, and the words of challenge spoken before he ven grasped the thought of who I was.

"So I have discovered you, have I? Why did you fail to keep our appointment within?"

He drew up sharply with an oath, peering at me through the dark, bewildered by my speech.

"The spy! Ye gods, what luck! Do you mean to insinuate I ran away, sir?"

"How else could I interpret it?" I questioned coolly, determined to taunt him to action. "I waited where you told me till I was tired. Perhaps you will oblige me by explaining your purpose."

He muttered something, but without comprehending its purport I went on threateningly.

"And I think you made use of the word spy just now. Did you mistake me for another?"

"Mistake you? No; I'd know you in hell," he burst forth, anger making his voice tremble. "I called you a spy, and you are one, you sneaking night rat. You never waited for me in the parlor; if you had you'd now be under arrest."

"Oh, so that was the plan?"

"Yes, that was it, Mister Lieutenant Fortesque."

"Well, Grant," I said sternly, "I've got just one answer to make you. You can call your guard, or you can fight it out with me here. Whichever you choose will depend upon whether you are a man, or a cur." I took a step nearer, watching him as best I could in the dark. "You are an unmitigated liar, sir," and with sudden sweep of the arm I struck him with open hand. "Probably you will realize what that means."

For an instant he remained so still I doubted him, even held him cheap; then the breath surged through his clinched teeth in a mad oath. He surged toward me, but my sword was out, the steel blocking his advance.

"You—you actually mean fight?"

"Why not? Isn't that cause enough? If not I will furnish more."

"I do not fight spies—"

"Stop! That silly charge is merely an excuse. You do not believe it yourself. You wanted a quarrel yonder in the ball-room. The expression of your eyes was an insult. Don't evade now. I am here, wearing the uniform of the British army. I have every right of a gentleman, and you will cross swords, or I'll brand you coward wherever there is an English garrison."

I saw the sudden flash of his drawn blade, and lunged up my own in guard.

"Wait; not here, Captain," I insisted quickly. "We're far too near your watchful friends yonder; besides the light is poor. Let's try our fortunes beyond the pavilion, where it can be simply man to man."

He turned without a word, and I followed, eager enough to have done with the business. The stars gleamed on the naked weapons held in our hands, but we exchanged no words until we had rounded the corner and come forth into the open space beyond.

CHAPTER VI.

The One Hope.

As he stopped and faced about, I as instantly halted.

"Perhaps this spot may satisfy your requirements," he said sarcastically. "'Tis far enough away at least, and the light is not so bad."

"It will do," I replied, and threw my scarlet jacket on the grass. "Strip to the white, sir, and then we can see fairly well where to strike. That's better. On guard!"

He came at me fiercely enough, confident of his mastery of the weapons, and, no doubt, expecting me to prove an easy victim of his skill. His first onslaught, a trick thrust under my guard, caused me to give back a step or two, and this small success yielded him the over-confidence I always prefer that an opponent have. I was young, agile, cool-headed, instructed since early boyhood by my father, rather famous swordsman, in the mysteries of the game, yet I preferred that Grant should deem me a novice. With this in mind, and in order that I might better study the man's style, I remained strictly on defense, giving way slightly before the confident play of his steel, content with barely turning aside the gleaming point before it pricked me. At first he mistook this for weakness, sneering at my parries, as he bore in with increasing recklessness.

"A club would be more in your line, I take it, Mr. Lieutenant Fortesque," he commented sarcastically, "but I'll play with you a while for practice—"

SO BLUE ALMOST CRAZY

Mineral Point Lady Tells About An Experience That Almost Drove Her Insane.

Mineral Point, Mo.—Mrs. Clara Cluff, of this place, says: "I had a pain in my left side and back, and suffered a great deal with womanly troubles.

I would take spells that lasted two or three days, when it seemed like I was uneasy all the time, and didn't feel like doing anything.

I couldn't sleep good at night. I felt as though I had just done a hard day's work.

I had suffered for six years, and I can't tell you just how I did feel, I felt so bad. The doctors' treatment didn't seem to help, and I was so blue I was almost crazy!

I tried Cardui, and before I had taken two bottles I felt much better.

I took 12 bottles in all.

Now, though I haven't taken any for a good while, I still feel all right—better than I have for years.

I would have been crazy if Cardui hadn't helped me."

Cardui will help you, just as it helped Mrs. Cluff.

Why not try it?

It may be just the very thing your system has long been craving.

See if it isn't so.

HELPS IN EMERGENCY

PANTRY SHELF OF GREAT VALUE TO HOUSEWIFE.

Should Hold Supply of Canned Goods From Which to Form a "Pickup" Meal When Situation Demands Immediate Action.

Every housekeeper has or should have an emergency shelf where she may keep on hand a small supply of canned goods which can be brought out and used as needed.

Canned salmon is almost sure to have a place on this shelf and the following recipes may offer variety for one who finds it necessary to serve this fish frequently.

Salmon Pudding.—One can salmon; 2 eggs; 1 tablespoon milk or water; 1 teaspoon salt; 1½ tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons flour; 1 cup milk, ½ tablespoon salt.

Drain the salmon and remove skin and bones. Beat eggs until light, then mix with salmon, milk and salt.

Put in a buttered dish, set in a pan of water and bake in a moderate oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Turn out on a hot platter and pour around it the white sauce which is made by melting the butter and mixing with it the flour and salt, then adding the milk gradually and cooking until it thickens.

Scalloped Salmon.—One can salmon; 1 cup bread crumbs; 1 cup white sauce; 1 teaspoon salt, 1 lemon.

Drain the salmon and remove skin and bones. Mix salmon, bread crumbs, white sauce and salt, and put in a buttered dish. Bake 15 to 20 minutes. When done, garnish with half slices of lemon.—Charlotte E. Carpenter, Colorado Agricultural College.

SOAP AND WATER FOR CARPET

Treatment That Will Serve to Give the Floor Covering a New Lease of Life.

To wash the carpet thoroughly you will require a bucket of warm water, a cake of carpet soap, a piece of house-flannel, and, if you are going to tackle a fair-sized piece of carpet at once, a supply of dry cloths.

Do not begin near the door, as you may require to leave the room for fresh water, and it is unwise to walk on the carpet when damp. Make up your mind to do without the room till all is dry. Start washing as far from the door as possible, and work towards it. The flannel is wetted, and a portion of the carpet well rubbed. It must not be overdone, only wetted sufficiently to secure a good lather by rubbing the carpet soap ball well in. Then with the clean, wet flannel remove the soap. Well rinse the flannel afterwards, so that it is quite soapless when you begin again, later on another fresh piece.

No soap must be left in the carpet when the final rubbing commences. Take a dry towel, and rub to your best. Though you cannot get rid of all dampness, you can almost dry the patch with friction, and this brings up the nap beautifully, also the colors.

Chocolate Nougat.

Take four ounces of blanched almonds, six ounces of icing sugar, the whites of two eggs; two ounces of grated chocolate; a few drops of vanilla essence, and some almond oil.

Put the sugar, chocolate and whites of eggs into a lined saucepan, and whisk them together until very stiff. Cut each of the almonds into three pieces; warm them slightly in the oven, and stir them into the saucepan with the other ingredients. Add vanilla essence, let all get thoroughly hot, when turn into a tin which has been greased with almond oil. Smooth over with a knife dipped in hot water, and when nearly set, cut in squares and pile in fancy dishes.

STATE TAKES HAND IN FIGHT

New Jersey Leads in Advanced Legislation Designed to Check Spread of Tuberculosis.

What is designed by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis as the most advanced legislation in the campaign against tuberculosis that has been enacted by any state in the United States, if not by any country in the world, is found in a bill recently passed by the New Jersey legislature and signed by Governor Wilson. The new law provides that tuberculosis patients who refuse to obey the regulations laid down by the state board of health concerning the prevention of their disease, and thus become a menace to the health of those with whom they associate, shall be compulsorily segregated by order of the courts, in institutions provided for this purpose. If such a patient refuses to obey the rules and regulations of the institution in which he is placed, he may "be isolated or separated from other persons and restrained from leaving the institution." The law further provides that all counties in the state of New Jersey shall within six months from April 1st make provision in special institutions for the care of all persons having tuberculosis in these counties. The state treasury will subsidize each county to the extent of $3 a week for each person maintained in these institutions, except those who are able to pay for the cost of maintenance.

THE OLD PLEA

He "Didn't Know It Was Loaded."

The coffee drinker seldom realizes that coffee contains the drug, caffeine, a severe poison to the heart and nerves, causing many forms of disease, noticeably dyspepsia.

"I was a lover of coffee and used it for many years, and did not realize the bad effects I was suffering from its use. (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it, too, contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"At first I was troubled with indigestion. I did not attribute the trouble to the use of coffee, but thought it arose from other causes. With these attacks I had sick headache, nausea and vomiting. Finally my stomach was in such a condition I could scarcely retain any food.

"I consulted a physician; was told all my troubles came from indigestion, but was not informed what caused the indigestion. I kept on with the coffee, and kept on with the troubles, too, and my case continued to grow worse from year to year until it developed into chronic diarrhea, nausea and severe attacks of vomiting. I could keep nothing on my stomach and became a mere shadow, reduced from 159 to 128 pounds.

"A specialist informed me I had a very severe case of catarrh of the stomach, which had got so bad he could do nothing for me, and I became convinced my days were numbered.

"Then I chanced to see an article setting forth the good qualities of Postum and explaining how coffee injured people so I concluded to give Postum a trial. I soon saw the good effects—my headaches were less frequent, nausea and vomiting only came on at long intervals and I was soon a changed man, feeling much better.

"Then I thought I could stand coffee again, but as soon as I tried it my old troubles returned and I again turned to Postum. Would you believe it, I did this three times before I had sense enough to quit coffee for good and keep on with the Postum. I am now a well man with no more headaches, sick stomach or vomiting, and have already gained back to 147 pounds." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Twice we circled, striking, countering, fighting, our blades glittering ominously in the starlight, our breathing labored with the fierceness of the fighting. Both our swords tasted blood, he slicing my forearm, I piercing his shoulder, yet neither wound sufficed to bring any cessation of effort. We were mad now with the fever of it, and struggling to kill, panting fiercely, our faces flushed, the perspiration dripping from our bodies, our swords darting swiftly back and forth. He was my match, and more, and, had we been permitted to go on to the end, would have worn me down by sheer strength. Suddenly, above the clash of steel, came the sound of voices; our blades were struck up, and the dark forms of men pressed in between us.

angry to blurt out everything he knew. They were all facing his way, actuated by the recognition. Breathless still, yet quick to seize the one and only chance left, I grabbed up my jacket from the grass, and sprang into the darkness. I had gained a hundred feet before those behind grasped the meaning of my unexpected flight, and then the tumult of voices only sent me flying faster, realizing the pursuit. The only open passage led directly toward the river, and I raced through the black night down the slope as though all the fiends of hell were after me. I heard shouts, oaths, but there was no firing, and was far enough ahead to be invisible by the time I attained the bank. An open barge lay there, a mere black smudge, and I stumbled blindly across the

SAVING TOILET TABLES

NEED FOR MATERIAL UNDER THE EMBROIDERED COVER.

Idea Is to Prevent Disaster When Liquids Are Spilled—Rubber Sheeting, While Expensive at First, Really Economical.

As a rule, it is not the mere spilling of a liquid on one's pretty embroidered bureau, dressing table or washstand covers that spoils them, but the instant effect of that moisture on the varnished surface beneath. In fully nine cases out of ten—on the dressing table, at least—the cause of disaster is toilet water, tincture of benzoin, spirits of camphor, or some similar article with the alcohol base, that at once dissolves the varnish it touches and makes a nasty mark on the linen above.

Where the old-fashioned washstand, with its bowl and pitcher and soap dish, is used instead of a stationary one with running water, the splashes, while less disastrous, have to be taken at once into account, as even water standing more than a few minutes will make sad blemishes on polished wood.

Many housekeepers put folded paper under the embroidered covers, but this was never more than a makeshift. Even sheets of blotting paper, recently recommended, can only partly arrest the possible damage where alcohol has been spilled, as that fluid will penetrate with rapidity and even a few drops are able to eat into the varnish.

A far better protection is given by some of the waterproof fabrics now to be had. Rubber sheeting, covered with fabric on either side, while expensive in comparison with blotting paper, is true economy in the end, as it is odorless and impervious to all moisture. Next to this, in point of desirability, would be a sheet of oiled silk—but this would need an undercover of plain muslin, to keep it from sticking to the wood in case anything warm happened to be set on the bureau or stand.

Still less expensive would be ordinary white table oilcloth, but if this be chosen, it is wisdom not to use it while perfectly new, as it has rather a pungent odor until after it has been exposed to the air for some time after leaving the store. This, too, would require a cover of muslin or white paper on its waterproof side, but, like the other two materials mentioned, it affords perfect security and is well worthy the attention of any one to whom the welfare of fine linen covers is a matter of interest.

English Stuffed Ham.

Select a freshly cured ham and have the bone removed. Fill with a stuffing made of bread crumbs, parsley, marjoram, white pepper, salt, one green pepper and butter. Tie up securely and inclose the ham in a paste of flour and water to keep the juice from escaping. Tie in a pudding cloth, put in a pot of boiling water and boil gently for two hours, or allow 20 minutes for each pound of ham. After this, remove the crust, pare off the skin carefully so as not to injure the shape of the ham, put in a roasting pan, sprinkle well with bread crumbs, set in a moderate oven and roast, allowing six minutes to every pound of ham.

Ginger Candy.

Put one pound of loaf sugar into a saucepan, with two tablespoons of water, and a small piece of bruised ginger. Let sugar dissolve slowly and come to the boil.

Stir in four ounces of honey and boil again for 15 minutes. Add a small piece of butter the size of a nut and oil mixture until it will candy when dropped into cold water. Remove the ginger and pour on to a buttered plate, and when cold break up into small irregular pieces.

Boy's Idea.

"Of course! Where did you think they grew?"

"Why, pa, I always thought the monkeys laid 'em."—Boston Transcript.

LIKE THE WOLF AND LAMB

Inoffensive Creatures Most Unjustly Charged With Sudden Attack of Bloodthirstiness.

A man who was caught in the act of skinning a neighbor's sheep, covered his embarrassment by declaring that no sheep could bite him and live. The logic of this is equaled by that of the Yankee soldier who once had a narrow escape from an enraged gander. The men of a certain Maine regiment, which was in the enemy's country in 1862, considered the order "no foraging" an additional and uncalled-for hardship. One afternoon about dusk, a soldier was seen beating a rapid retreat from the rear of a farmhouse near by, closely pursued by a gander with wings outspread, whose feet seemed scarcely to touch the ground, and from whose beak issued a succession of angry screams. The fugitive was not reassured by the cries of the gander's owner: "Hold on, man, hold on! He won't hurt you!" "Call off your gander! Call him off!" shouted the fleeing soldier. Neither man nor gander stopped until inside the campfires, when the soldier's friends relieved him of his fierce pursuer with the aid of the butt of a musket. "Did that gander think he could chase me like that and live!" the soldier exclaimed, as he surveyed the outstretched bird; but he said nothing of the baited hook, with codline attached, which might have thrown light on the unfortunate gander's strange actions.

Joe Record, wife and little daughter were trading in town Thursday.

Creeping silently over its side into the water. It was not thought, but breathless inability to attempt more, which kept me there, clinging to a slat on the side of the barge, so completely submerged in the river, as to be invisible from above. Swearing fiercely, my pursuers stormed over the barge, swinging their swords along the edges to be sure I was not there. One blade pricked me slightly, but I held on, sinking yet deeper into the stream. I could see the dim outline of heads peering over, but was not discovered. The same gruff voice which had interrupted the duel broke through the noise:

"I tell you he turned to the left; I saw him plainly enough. What did you say the fellow's name was, Grant?"

"How do I know? He called himself Fortesque."

"Sure; the same one Carter was sent out hunting after. Well, he dodged down there among those coal sheds. This is the only way he could have disappeared so suddenly. Come on, all of you, except Moore and Cartaret, and we'll beat the shore."

I heard them scramble across to the bank, but there were sounds also proving the guards left behind were still on the deck above me. Then one of the fellows sat down on the edge of the barge, his feet dangling within a few inches of my head.

"Might as well take it easy, Bill," he said lazily. "They're like to be an hour layin' hands on the lad, an' all we got to do is see he don't fox back this way. Got any tobacco, mate?"

The other must have produced the necessary weed, for there was a scraping of flint and steel, a gleam of fire glinting on the water, and then the pungent odor wafted to me in puff of smoke. With one hand, I unbuckled my sword belt, letting it, sword and all, sink silently into the river. I must cross to the opposite bank somehow, and would have to dispense with the weapon. Inch by inch, my fingers gripping the narrow slat to which I clung, I worked slowly toward the stern of the barge, making not so much as a ripple in the water, and keeping well hidden below the bulge of the side. The voices above droned along in conversation, of which I caught a few words.

"Who was he? You mean the lad they're after down yonder? Oh, I mind now, you came up later after we'd started the chase. Holy Mother, I don't know much myself, now I come to think of it. He looked like a Britisher, what I saw of him, an' he was fightin' with a Captain of Rangers—Grant was the name; maybe you know the man?—behind one of the stands."

"They'll never get him," returned the other solemnly.

"Because it's my notion he swum for it. I was closest down the bank, an' somethin' hit the water."

"But them's the Jerseys over yonder; if he was a spy he'd be headin' the other way."

"It's little he'd think of the way with the gang of us yelpin' at his heels. Besides, there's plenty of his kind over in those Jerseys who'd take good care of the likes of him."

"But there's a guard stationed across yonder."

"Pish, a corporal's squad, just about opposite at the ferry landin', an' a company of Yagers down at Gloucester. There's plenty room between for a bold lad to find free passage."

The two fell silent, staring out over the water. They had set me thinking, however, and this knowledge of where the British pickets were stationed was exactly the information I most required. I had no desire to cross the Delaware, yet apparently in that direction lay the only remaining avenue of escape.

At the tower end of the barge I managed to silently remove my boots, and then waited, listening to the movements of the men above. I must have clung there ten minutes, expecting every moment the party scouring the shore would return, yet not daring to make the venture with those fellows sitting there, and silently gazing out across the water. At last I heard them get to their feet, and tramp about on the flat deck of the barge, the low murmur of their voices reaching me, although words were indistinguishable. I could hope for no better time. Filling my lungs with air, I sank below the surface of the river, and then, rising, struck boldly out into the full sweep of the current.

CHAPTER VII.

The Blacksmith.

I had come up gasping for breath, well out in the stream, either shore a mere darker shadow showing above the water. How far I had been swept below the barge could not be guessed, as I could distinguish no outlines clearly, excepting the bare spars of a vessel, tied up to the west shore. As this ship had not been in sight previously I concluded the drift had been greater than anticipated, and I struck out quickly toward the opposite bank, fearful lest I be borne down as far as Gloucester before I could finally make land. It was a hard swim across the swift current, and I was nearly exhausted when I finally crept up the low bank, and lay dripping and panting in the shelter of some low bushes. Except for the bark of a distant dog there was no sound more disturbing than the rustle of leaves, and the lapping of water. As my breath came back I sat up, wrung out my clothes as best I could, and, with difficulty, drew on the boots I had borne across, slung to my shoulder.

I possessed but a dim conception of where I was, yet knew I must make a wide detour to the east so as to escape British foraging parties.

I must have plodded doggedly along through the darkness for fully five miles, without perceiving the first sign of habitation, or even a wood into which I could crawl for concealment, when I suddenly came upon a long, one-story stone building standing at the left of the road, a grim, silent, apparently deserted structure, one end of the roof caved in, and several of the windows smashed. I tried the doors, but they appeared firmly fastened. Far in the east there was a faint lightening of the sky promising the approach of dawn, and thus aroused to a knowledge that I must immediately attain shelter, I clambered through one of the broken windows, and dropped to the earthen floor within. I could see nothing, not even a hand held before my eyes, yet carefully felt my way forward through a tangle of rubbish, wheels, scraps of iron, some casks, a number of plough handles, and a raffra of stuff I could not make out. The place had evidently been used as a repair shop, but must have been closed for months, as I could feel the grit of dust everywhere, and cobwebs brushed against my face as I moved about. Finally I felt the outlines of a large box half filled with paper, and, for want of something better, crept in and snuggled down, intending to rest there until daylight should reveal my surroundings.

I was warm enough now, my clothing practically dry, but thoroughly tired from the long tramp over the

NOTES FROM HARTLEY

The official report of the wheat crop in this section gives 25 per cent less acreage than last year, with an average yield of 15 bushels to the acre.

The planters tell us that they have planted more milo maize than in former years, and it is up. The soil is in fine condition and all the ponds are full of water from the recent rains.

The Hartley Telephone Co. has just completed digging all the holes necessary for the new line to Dumas, 25 miles distant. The insulators cross-bars are on the ground and the cedar posts are on the way from Chicago.

CHANNING

Rev. J. R. Mood of Hartley was shaking hands with his many friends Tuesday. He reports crops around Hartley as looking fine.

Dr. G. W. Maulfair returned last Sunday from South Dakota, where he went with a trainload of cattle for the Matador ranch. On his return he visited Denver and other places of interest in and near the Rockies. He was delighted with the trip.

Twenty nine carloads of cattle from Tascosa were loaded here yesterday. They were shipped to parties in Montana, to whom they were sold by Le Bevins of Amarillo, the latter receiving check for something over $40,000 for the lot.

For Sherman county to properly develop during the next few years it will be necessary for many acres to be put under the plow. The Panhandle country has passed the stage where men are going to buy land merely to sell it to the other fellow and it must cease to be a speculative proposition. The season is in the ground now and the rains have come in this part of the Panhandle and the STAR would like to see many acres put in cultivation during the summer months and either planted to wheat this fall or prepared for spring crops next year.—Stratford Star

HUTCHINSON COUNTY Will Celebrate 4th July

Outlook Fine For Crops

One of the principal things being planned at present by the people of Hutchinson county is the great first annual Old Settlers' reunion July 45. This event will be a combination basket picnic and barbecue, continuing over 2 days. An amplitude of beef will be prepared each day for the feasting of the people, and Mr. Traylor states that hundreds will be present each day.

Aside from the general good resulting from a coming together of the people, there will be the establishment of records regarding the time of settlement of a larger portion of the earlier population of Hutchison and other counties in this section of the state.

Champ Traylor of Plemons was in Amarillo yesterday, and stated that conditions in Hutchinson county are first class since the ample rains of last week. Prior to that time the people were panicky, but now the normal optimism has been restored. Mr. Traylor is one of the well known pioneers of this section of the state and is authority for the statement that the outlook in his section of the state is good for crops in abundance. He calls attention to the fact that an abundance of grain and feed stuffs has been raised here from year regardless of the fact that seasons were not nearly so ample as could have been desired.—

Good Price for Wool

The sheep men in the western part of the county collectively sold their wool to a buyer, who took it on the ground at 13 1/2 per lb. which is considered a good price. The men like all other Hansford county producers, are having a good year.

WILL HOLD REVIVAL

Dalhart Boy Preacher to Storm Citadel of Evil in His Home Town.

Charles Mundell will begin a three weeks' revival meeting in Dalhart, June 30. All Christians are invited to co-operate and every body is welcome at all the services. It is not a church revival, but an independent union meeting for the salvation of the lost and the upbuilding of the churches.

Charles Mumpell has just returned from Oklahoma, bringing with him a list of over fifty professions and over thirty additions to the church, making approximately one hundred and fifty professions in meetings. His first sermon was preached on his fifteenth birthday since then he has preached over 150 sermons, witnessing nearly 200 professions, and has held eight revival meetings. He expects to continue his revival work in the independent evangelistic field as a licensed Baptist preacher for an indefinite time. He has a party of six workers with him among them Miss Esther Daugherty the noted singer of Oklahoma, and Billy Powell, a young preacher converted in one of Mundell's revivals.

Prayer meetings will be organized in order to effect the whole town, and two services will be held daily.

Never an "Independence" Day but scores of human beings are made dependent for life. The "Sane 4th" is being agitated in every State in the Union. Let the good work go on.

MACARONI IN WELSH RABBIT

By Many, the Combination is Considered Superior to That in General Use.

A new rabbit mixture for the chafing dish contains macaroni; it is really fine. Cut the macaroni in inch length pieces and boil in salted water as usual. When tender put it in the chafar with a cup of grated cheese to every cup of the macaroni. Add two tablespoons of butter, a teaspoon of salt and half a teaspoon each of paprika and pepper. When this is all hot and creamy and the cheese melted add three well beaten eggs mixed in a cup of rich cream, stir faithfully until the eggs are set then serve hot on fresh-made toast.

For a splendid rabbit without ale use one tablespoon of butter, one pint cup of cheese grated, juice of one lemon, seasoning of salt, pepper, cayenne and paprika (the exact amount will depend on the flavor of the cheese), the yolk of one egg beaten and mixed with four tablespoons of cream. Mix in the order given and at the end, just before serving, and a few drops of tabasco sauce.

MODEST COLORS WILL RULE

Simple Decorative Schemes Are in Order for the Coming Year, According to Report.

Already the question of house cleaning is being debated by thrifty housewives, and the new chintzes and cretonnes are being eagerly anticipated. Last season pattern and color ran riot, and there was a great popularity for black backgrounds on which bright colorings and large, bold designs were the correct taste.

Now we are to return to simpler decorative schemes and to small effects and neat patterns. Light grounds will be favored almost entirely covered by patterns of fruit, flowers and birds.

A new fadeless fabric for curtains is to be one of the specialties of the season. This will withstand the glare of suns and remain impervious to the eccentricities of every climate. It is made in a range of pretty colors, both plain and patterned, and is quite inexpensive.

REPLACE THE PLATE DOILIES

Table Runners, a California Idea, Find Much Favor With Hostesses in the East.

Instead of plate doilies eastern hostesses are adopting the fashion of the table runners of the California women. White Japanese toweling with blue figures or blue with white figures is bought in a roll of ten yards.

Each roll is cut into five strips and the ends hemstitched, with initials facing the hem at each end.

The runners cross one another on the table, and are arranged so each guest has an end under the plate, cup and bread and butter plate. With four at the table two runners are used, crossing at right angles; with six, two strips are used across the table and two lengthwise.

This toweling can be bought at any Japanese importer's and is inexpensive.

Chocolate Macaroons.

One ounce of grated chocolate, one tablespoonful of rice flour, a quarter of a pound of ground almonds, half a pound of sugar, three whites of eggs, half a teaspoonful of shredded almonds. Put the ground almonds and half the whites of eggs into a basin and cream well together for 15 minutes. Then add the sugar, rice flour, vanilla, grated chocolate and the remainders of the whites of eggs, and beat all together for ten minutes. Put the mixture into a bag with a plain tube, and force this out into rounds on white paper. Put the shredded almonds on the top and bake in a moderate oven for about twenty minutes.

(By B. O. COWAN.)

Most farmers have learned that stock growing or stock feeding is essential to successful agriculture. Experience as well as the agricultural college has taught the valuable lesson that the maintenance of live stock on the farm is necessary in order to conserve the fertility of the soil. Hence the majority of farmers are growers of live stock, and many who are not live stock breeders are feeders, thus getting the benefit of a home market for the grain grown on the farm and also the fertilizer that is left in the pasture and feed lots. These experiments in cattle feeding are always beneficial to the farm, especially if the manure made is properly utilized, and usually a financial profit is realized; but this is not always the case, since many feeding operations show a distinct loss. This may be due to the high price paid for feeders, to their poor quality, or to bad judgment in feeding and selling.

Profitable Bunch of Feeder Steers.

Usually the feeder is anxious to select good, well-bred steers, as they feed better and are more likely to show a profit than scrubs. Most feeders have a preference as to breed, but no breed has a monopoly of merit for the feed yard, and the person who will make such a claim is a partial partisan. That the short-horn steer is a profitable steer in the feed lot needs only to be asserted to meet with a ready endorsement from a very numerous army of feeders; the statement is almost self-evident and needs no more proof than the assertion that the majority of Americans are honorable and patriotic citizens.

The short-horn was the first of the improved breeds to mold and improve the cattle of the American continent. They were improved and exhibited and their wonderful feeding qualities extensively advertised by intelligent tenant farmers in Great Britain from 1730 to 1800. In the last decade of the eighteenth century some were imported to the United States. Later importations were quite numerous, and the use of short-horn bulls became so general and their improvement of the common cattle so marked that feeders of that period eagerly gathered grade short-horn steers into their feed yards. This was especially true of Ohio and Kentucky, and short-horn history is replete with instances of large lots of steers that were fattened in these states and then driven, as the only means of reaching a market, to Philadelphia, New York city or Boston. The abundance of grass and water en route made such journeys possible, and by careful handling a drove of fat steers accustomed to plenty of exercise could be taken 500 to 800 miles without serious loss of flesh. Governors Seymour, Felix and George Renick, all of Ohio, were pioneers in these feeding and marketing experiments. At that day, and even much later, steers were often held until four to six years old, and when fattened were very large. In 1857 B. F. Harris of Champion, Ill., whose name was this year added to the Illinois house of fame, marketed 100 grade short-horn steers in Chicago at $7 per hundred, and the steers averaged 2,377 pounds.

But the day of the big-overfed steer is passed, and we now have the era of "baby beef." To meet this demand, the short-horn is equal to the occasion, as he has been pre-eminent in the

Being a Baseball Star.

A star's job is a hard one. The mental strain is even greater than the physical. For what he undergoes the fabulous salaries are not fabulous.

Before going into details let us define a star—the ball player's definition:

"A star is any player who, through individual excellence, achieves a reputation for brilliant work, thus attracting fans to the park to see him play."

He is a star only so long as his performances stand out. He is paid the salary of a star as long as his reputation brings fans to the stands and money to the box office. The day that sees the waning of his sensationalism also sees the waning of his salary.—Edward Lyell Fox in Outing.

Proof of Precaution.

Mr. Lansbury's concern, as expressed in the house, over the military drilling going on in the north of Ireland reminds one of a story of how Ireland was occasionally taught to shoot in the past. The war office once sent a famous officer over to inspect the militia regiments, and the officer, after inspecting, asked for a few words with the drill sergeant.

"These men of yours," he said, "could not hit a target as big as the Tower of London. You can't have taken much pains to teach them."

"Tache thim to shoot," gasped the sergeant. "Of course I did not tache thim to shoot, yer honor; for, bedad, if I did there wouldn't be a landlord left in Munster."—London Chronicle.

DIFFERENT NOW.

Since the Slugger, Coffee, Was Abandoned.

Coffee probably causes more biliousness and so-called malaria than any one other thing—even bad climate. (Tea is just as harmful as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee).

A Ft. Worth man says:

"I have always been of a bilious temperament, subject to malaria and up to one year ago a perfect slave to coffee. At times I would be covered with boils and full of malarial poison, was very nervous and had swimming in the head.

"I don't know how it happened, but I finally became convinced that my sickness was due to the use of coffee, and a little less than a year ago I stopped coffee and began drinking Postum.

"From that time I have not had a boil, not had malaria at all, have gained 15 pounds good solid weight and know beyond all doubt this is due to the use of Postum in place of coffee, as I have taken no medicine at all.

"Postum has certainly made healthy, red blood for me in place of the blood that coffee drinking impoverished and made unhealthy." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum makes red blood.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

BIG TRADE IN COTTON GOODS

Gains in Manufactured Material Have Been Very Gratifying—Business With China Doubles.

It is a matter of peculiar gratification that as the years go by this country is sending abroad more and more of manufactured cotton goods. This means, of course, that instead of sending the raw cotton abroad to be manufactured elsewhere, as is still to so large an extent the case, the people of this country are gradually reaching a position where the cotton will not only be grown in America but will be manufactured in America, says the Manchester Union. The gains in manufactured cotton goods exported during the past eight months have been very gratifying. In February alone such exports were valued at $3,290,795, as compared with $1,845, 893 in February, 1911, and with $2,106,648 in January, 1911. For the eight months' period in each year the exports were $20,264,591 in 1912, $15,059,745 in 1911 and $12,745,689 in 1910. Notwithstanding the political agitation in China, trade with that country was more than double that of the previous year for the eight months' period, and this is a fact which does not appear to be capable of explanation on any other ground than that of a growing sympathy with the people of the United States.

Miss Cara May McKee, editor and business manager of the Moore County Pioneer, is a candidate for the office of county treasurer of Moore county. —Channing Courier.

Moore County is the latest county to have a lady candidate for office. Miss Cara May McKee announced in last week's Moore County Pioneer, of which she is editor, that she would be a candidate for county treasurer of Moore county.—Stratford Star

The Moore County Pioneer has again changed hands. It is now being ably edited by Miss Cara May McKee. Miss McKee, has announced as a candidate for Treasurer of Moore County and we'll bet she lands the office. Any lady who has the nerve to tackle the newspaper game in this western country is entitled to any office within the gift of the people, but we don't see how she is to dun the delinquent subscriber and at the same time ask him for his vote. —Hartford Headlight.

Yes, it takes more or less nerve for a lady to secure any paying position which a man can fill, for where there is money in the position, there is always someone to rise up and say: "That's no ladies place" but we believe that where both are qualified the lady should be first served. Thousands of well qualified fraile women are bending over some heavy task, while the strong arm man holds the light official job. We are more than willing for the men to do the voting but insist that they be careful and give due consideration.

If we have any delinquents on our list we are to busy to find them till after the election!
