prices for horses I take pleasure in giving the following information, fron dollars, which I hope will go a little way toward correcting a popular error : The prices are not fancy. As a rule, horses in every grade are bought and sold as near what they Austing cales of Day Goods, Choruses Hars, Boors, Stons, Funniques, and every are worth as can be ascertained inst as real estate, mercantile stocks and bonds are bought. Let me if-lustrate: A lot in Wall street, New York is sold for $100,000, which is tion of Merchaudise, promptly us Liberal advance made on consists Goods at private sale, at Auction Prices at the rate of $1,600,000 per acre. What an inconceivable price is this tor mere land, agriculturally considered? But its agricultural value is not in any part an element of its value. It has simply commercial uses, and these commercial uses make the land cheap. So cutlery can be wrought so fine and of such high temper that it bears no relation to the crude iron out of which it was wrought. Diamonds are but pure carbon. But civilization and its necessities have given definite value to diamonds, and cutlery, and city real estate, and every other merchantable article and production that marks the progress and refinements of the times. At the sale of the Middle Bank stnd, Blair Arthol sold at about $65,000. Was this more than the real value ? As a mere pecuniary transaction I should say not. Blair Athol's earnings approximate year ly $20,000. Four years of this earning will extinguish the cost, and theaceforward his earnings will be profit, besides the chances for producing his successor, and perhaps his superior. In this latter event he has preserved the capital intact, and his entire net carnings may be set down as profit. In this country Lexington has been worth a net sum of $100,000 to Mr. Alexander. Leamington is equal to a fortune for Mr. Welch, equal to a fortune for Mr. and the same may be said of Harry Bassett, and Longfellow, and Ken tucky, and Bonnie Scotland, etc., to their fortunate possessors. If any of these owners sold their valuable property for less than their commercial value, it would be an act of lu nacy.

gard to tretters. You say $33,000 for Dexter was indeed a fancy price. Not at all. His owners knew his value, and Mr. Bonner drove a hard bargain and got a cheap horse, Dexter was then king of the trot ting turf, and for four years his rewould doubtless have approximated $150,000. Goldsmith Maid's vinnings have exceeded these figures since Dexter was withdrawn. In this connection, bear in mind that cord stood invincible; and during these four years his winnings upon vinnings have exceeded these figures since Dexter was withdrawn. In this connection, bear in mind that frotting race is a broader and deeper American passion and pastime than the running race. At all large towns, and in nearly all large towns, and in nearly all the countries, trotting than the ranning race. At all large cities, nearly all large towns, and in nearly all the countries, trotting meetings are held, and annually lien prices is, that they and their meetings are held, and annually over $1,000,000 is distributed in purses to first, second, third and fourth horses. The people of the United States yearly pay over two-and a half million dollars to witness these races, which goes to up, hold the park grounds, pay interest, profit and expenses, and holds up large sums to be distributed to the owners of the fleet-footed animals.

Besides his value as a racer, the American trotting horse has vast utility for carriage, park, saddle and road purposes. Let any observant person spend a day at the Central Park, and the adjacent drives in New York and Westches ter, and one of the wonders that he will see will be over $5,000 000 worth of fleet beautiful horses.

A letter written by the Washing correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazatte describing the White House and ite at-tendants and serroundings, bears the fol-lowing explicit testimony against the slanders that hold up the President as a corrupt and bad man, acting only from intensely selfish motives, and by his example demoralizing the nation :

" Now, a Washington correspondent, who remains at the capital during an entire administration, must of necessity become acquainted with the undercurrent of gos sip, which runs so strongly through both po itical parties. For six years General Grant, as an officer of the army, se I resi deut, and as a man, has been a somewhat prominent personage in Washington cir cles, both official and social. In all that time not a particle of evidence has ever come to the Washington office of the tiasette, whether in the form of gossip or of more definite charge, that connected General Grant personally with any dishonest transaction whatever. In the multitudineus operations of the Government with which the Departments are always burdthat end in a diminutive shape. We ened, there have been under his administration, as there will be under any administration, claims worked through by various means, which at times seem tainted with corruption; but evidence to connect the President with them, even remotely, has never been forthcoming. "In spite of the countless charges with which the land is filled, the fact remains that here in Washington, where their truth or falsity can be best tested, every fair uffu, of either party, will answer promptly that he believes General Grant, personally, a thoroughly bonest man.

We hope the Governor will presente his inquiries, even at the risk of being considered cruel, until we can worm out of the miserably conducted financial department of the State at least a clear statement of its utter pureliability, imbedibility and confusion. Hancock can get a statement as straight as a string, but its like pulling feeth to get the truth out of the Comptroller's department. The people are getting interested in this important question and campaign "ammunition" gotten up to suit, won't fire off worth a cent with the honest thinking masses. ent with the honest thinking masses One end of the Treasury Department was found to be rosten—the other end is fairly putrid with political dishonesty and the Lord knows what else. It is a most ex traordinary circumstance that from the eara generation no material improvement of Machpelah; for money in those primeval days went by weight. The 'steel-yard' is found in the ruins of Pompeli, and was bor-rowed by the Romans from the east. It was reserved for this century and for Fairbanks combine the 'platform" and the "compound lever" in a machine susceptible of almost innumerable modifications according millions of parcels, great and small, are weighed out daily, we may begin to realize how vast a saving of time and labor is conto the list of the great benefactors of men. His work has from the first stood at the head of all the weighing machines of the world.
