The Journalism Staff has "finally" got the annual sent off. They should arrive around the end of April or the first of May. (Hopefully the end of April.)

Look out, sore muscles and tired bodies, here we come! The track season is now underway at MJHS.

The first track meet will be at Friona on Friday the 13th! (on, no!) Hope we come back all right.

Open House was really successful this year. Everyone put in much hard work and effort on their projects and reports and everyone is expecting to do well at regionals. Good Luck!

Don't forget that the Student Council is still saving Campbell soup, V-8 Juice, Franco-American, and Swanson labels. With your help, they were able to collect 3700 labels, plus 700 bonus points, which they will use to get two cassette players. If you want to help, just contact a Student Council member of sponsor, and they will be glad to come and get your labels.

Have a nice day!!

Engineer's book advocates changes in home environment

COLLEGE STATION — The bathtub—unchanged in 50 years—is too short, too narrow and too low and toilet seats should be redesigned to be more comfortable, claims a human factors engineer.

A new textbook by R. Dale Huchingson takes a questioning look at devices and machines that are supposedly people-oriented but don't quite measure up.

"The book advocates that we think critically of the world," said Huchingson, professor in Texas A&M's Industrial Engineering Department. "Americans grew taller by four tenths of an inch per decade to 1970, our last reliable figure. Engineers and others in design must take these factors into consideration."

The book contains sections on aerospace, surface transportation, communications and data processing systems, as well as industrial systems and the environment.

Sixth Graders Write Product Gag Stories

Students in Mr. Pat Watson's 6th grade Reading classes recently wrote stories using different brand names. This is a sampling of those stories, chosen by the annual staff as the best written.

THE VACATION

MRS. BAIRDS, MRS. BUTTERWORTH, MERLE NORMAN, and the SWANSONS all went on a vacation to HICKORY FARMS.

They had to fly the AMERICAN AIRLINES.

As they flew over the COAST, MRS. BAIRD got sick and had to see DR. PEPPER.

They had a JOLLY TIME and met their captain, ORVILLE REDEFENBOCKER.

They met some new friends, the BELLS.

MERLE NORMAN was practicing his magic and said "PRESTO" and a DOVE appeared.

When they landed they went to the POST office and mailed a POST card to the KRAFTS. MERLE NORMAN was getting hot, and so MRS. BUTTERWORTH said, "COVERGIRL". They went home and told the BORDENS and the KEEBLERS what a JOLLY TIME they had.

THE HUNT

One day Mr. DUNCAN and Mr. HINES went over to BETTY CROCKER'S house to eat cakes. About the time they got there, Mr. FORD came driving down the street in a CHEVY. Mr. DUNCAN said, "Shouldn't you be driving a FORD?" "Well, Mr. CHEVY is driving it."

BETTY CROCKER said, "Let's eat." After they ate, they decided to go for a HUNT. They went to the COAST and rode Mr. ZEST'S boat to the IRISH SPRING to HUNT. While they were there, a man came walking up. Mr. HINES said, "Hi, what is your name?" My name is Mr. CRISCO, and I own the land you're hunting on, and I want you to VANISH. So they left.

On the way back, they heard shots, then a cry of pain. BETTY CROCKER said, "That might have been Mr. CRISCO." But no one will ever know.

Scientists' goal is more rainfall for Hill Country

COLLEGE STATION — The craggy Balcones Escarpment and nearby Hill Country have long been popular with tourists for their rustic charm, but scientists say geological features of the area are also responsible for slightly more moisture falling on that area than on some adjacent regions.

Meteorologists from Texas A&M University will spend the next several months bent over thick volumes of weather data and peering into radar screens as part of a project to boost that rainfall even more through cloud-seeding.

Prof. Walter K. Henry said an increase could put average yearly rainfall for the eastern Edwards Plateau and Hill Country above 30 inches.

That might do much, he said, to replenish the important Edwards Limestone Aquifer, "country of 1100 springs," which supplies San Antonio as well as providing irrigation and drinking water for vast rural stretches of the state.

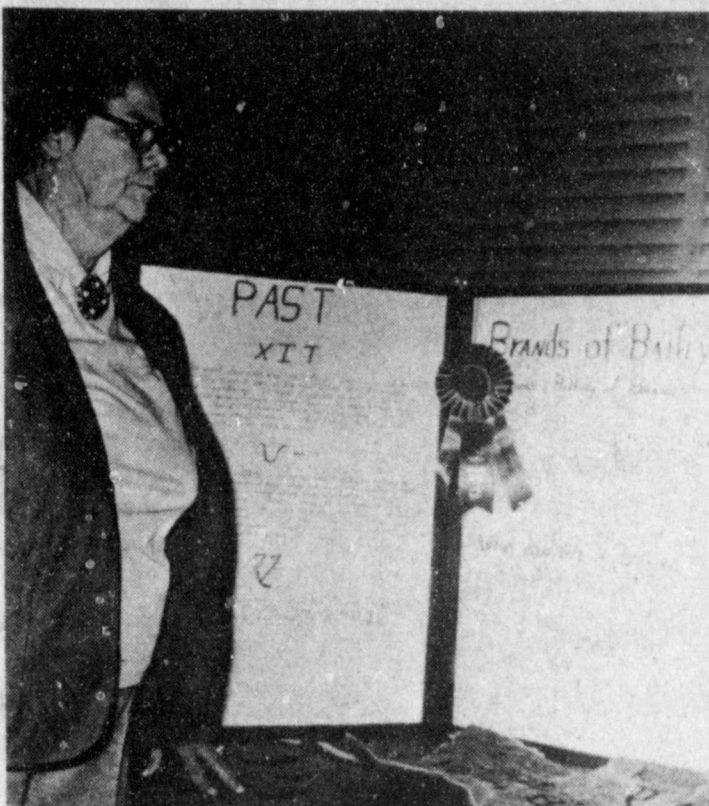

Most people have some good in them and all people some evil.

Overseas Adventure For Local Student

Youth for Understanding International Student Exchange announced that Stacey Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Campbell, from Muleshoe, Texas won acceptance to spend a year as an exchange student in Germany.

The 600 high school students selected from across the United States to participate in YFU's Year Program to 20 different countries will live with specially selected host families and attend highly competitive academic high schools in their countries abroad, gaining another language and firsthand experiences in a different culture.

In announcing student selection, Susan Greene,

XI Omicron XI

Sorority Met At

Imagination Plus

Thursday, March 3 the XI Omicron XI Sorority met at Imagination Plus for a program on parties, given by Betty Campbell and Cherry Estep.

After the program the members went to the home of Judy Wilbanks, with Lindy Schuster serving as co-hostess.

Rhonda Little, president, called the meeting to order. Officer and committee reports were given. Lynn Box reported that the MS Read-A-Thon will be March 16. Linda Marr announced that the progressive dinner will be March 24.

The Golden Moments were read by Lindy Schuster. Members were asked to be thinking of nominations for "Lady Of The Year," which will be announced at the Mother's Day luncheon, May 9.

Refreshments of fruit pizza, tea and soft drinks were served to the following members: Vickie Black, Sherri Shipman, Sandi Chitwood, Anita Allgood, Linda Marr, Barbara Finney, Lindy Schuster, Judy Wilbanks, Marjorie Merritt, Gayla Toombs, Lynn Box, Rhonda Little, and Jama Brown.

Director of U.S. Programs said, "The exchange experience comes at a unique time of life when students have the curiosity, flexibility and openness of mind to gain maturity and independence by participating personally in a different culture. This overseas adventure for students allows them opportunities no tourist ever has, as they truly become lifelong members of their host families and part of their communities abroad." Greene also pointed out that many of the 15-18 year old American students gain advanced academic credit at the college level for the foreign language fluency achieved during their 11 month stay.

In addition to the Year Program, Youth for Understanding offers a 2 month Summer Program to Europe, Asia, and South America, and each year brings approximately 5,000 students from 25 countries to live with American host families. Since 1951, over 80,000 high school students have participated in YFU's program, making it one of the largest teenage non-profit exchange programs in the world.

The application deadline for the Summer Program is March 15, and for the Year Program April 1, 1981. Program fees range from $1460-3745, and partial scholarships of $200-1000 are available. Students and parents interested in receiving information and applications should contact YFU's Regional Office at:

1438 Campbell Road
Suite 208
Houston, Texas 77055
713/932-0066

According to Mrs. Greene, calls may be made collect, or interested parties may call toll free the Washington International Headquarters of Youth for Understanding at (800) 424-3691 and ask for the U.S. Programs Department. She urged that due approaching deadlines, potentially qualified students not delay contacting YFU for assistance in the application process.

New technique uses nitrogen to recover oil

COLLEGE STATION — Enhanced oil recovery techniques using pressurized nitrogen are being adopted in some of the nation's oil fields six years after they were first developed at Texas A&M University.

The nitrogen replaces more costly natural gas in the method, producing substantially the same amount of oil from oil fields as natural gas, said Dr. Paul Crawford, who participated in the pioneering research.

"An overwhelming percentage of accidental poisonings happen to children under the age of five," points out Dr. Gary Nelson safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Much of this is due to the natural curiosity of youngsters and their tendency to put things into their mouths."

"Care should be taken, however, not to rely on safety packaging completely," cautions the engineer. "Since childproof containers must be reasonably easy for adults to open, some children will be able to open them as well. Thus it's important to keep medications and other poisons, even if they are in safety type containers, out of reach of children."

Nelson suggests these practices in addition to safety packaging to prevent poisoning accidents:

1. Keep all household products and medicines out of reach of children. Lock these items up when not in use.

2. Never let toxic products out of your sight when children are near, even if you must carry them with you to answer the phone or the doorbell.

3. Store medicines separately from other household products.

4. Keep toxic substances in their original containers.

5. Leave original labels on all products, and read labels before use.

6. Always have a light on when giving or taking medicines.

7. Avoid taking medicines in front of children, since youngsters tend to imitate grownups. And never refer to medicine as "candy".

8. Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically and dispose of unneeded medicines when the illness for which they were prescribed is over.

Teen face decisions about drugs and drinking -- and growing numbers find responsible decision-making difficult. Parenting today's teens also has its difficulties, especially on the subject of how to approach the drugs-and-drinking pressures that teens must deal with. For parents and others who are closely associated with young people, it may be helpful to reserve judgement and look instead at some of the factors which may influence teens' decisions.

A recent study on the relationships between peer influences, parental influence and drug use reported these findings: Non-users were more likely to have close relationships with their parents.

Non-users were more dependent on their parents.

Non-users considered themselves as lower in social adequacy -- that is, they considered themselves not so much a part of the social crowd.

Parental relationships appeared as a major factor in influencing teen drug use or non-use. In light of those research findings, it is possible to say with more certainty that close, caring families may be practicing effective prevention -- possibly without being aware of it. Looking at how close, caring families work can suggest ways for strengthening every family. At the same time, a closer look can help parents and others as they work to help young people make significant decisions.

Ultimately -- and hopefully -- this can affect the decisions young people make about drugs and alcohol. Here are things parents and others can do:

Provide love, affection and attention.

Be consistent with fair discipline.

Offer Encouragement Give youth an opportunity to express feelings and thoughts.

Provide means for youth to have successful and exciting experiences.

Use tolerance when mistakes are made.

Provide strong and respected role models.

Give youth accurate information about alcohol and drugs and related societal problems.

Help youth improve their decision-making skills -- by talking through the possible results of decisions and by helping youth set priorities.

Problems associated with alcohol and other drugs are not just youth problems. They are problems of adults and communities as well. A united effort from all concerned is needed.

Each Twin

Is Unique

While twins receive attention from the world, their parents are facing a twofold challenge -- that of childrearing and that of rearing twins as two separate, individual children.

Providing an environment for individualism, uniqueness and independence for each twin is difficult when two children are in the same physical environment, share similar family experiences, are the same age, are in the same stage of growth and development and share special bonds that other brothers and sisters may not understand, Ms. Taylor says.

Parents can promote uniqueness and individuality among twins by treating them as individual children dressing them differently, doing things with each one, encouraging separate classrooms and evaluating each for his own accomplishment -- not comparing, the specialist advises.

Twins means two -- two separate people, Ms. Taylor emphasizes.

Time was when everyone drank whole milk. But today there are many kinds of milk to fit the taste, physical condition or caloric needs of each family member. Whole milk contains at least 3.25 percent milkfat; lowfat, 1 or 2 percent and skim, less than 0.5 percent.

The family of milk has a product for every need of a family. Anyone counting calories may select skim or low fat milk. Others who want to maintain or gain weight while participating in active sports may prefer whole milk.

Generally, young children and teenagers prefer whole milk. But they often enjoy chocolate milk. It's available in many ways: whole chocolate milk, lowfat chocolate milk, made with 1 or 2 percent milkfat and even chocolate skim milk.

Adults may prefer either whole or lowfat milk. Many senior citizens eat less food and prefer whole milk for its satiety value while others select lowfat milk.

Any family member with digestive problems should try the youngest member in the family of milk. It's called sweet acidophilus. A concentrated culture of Lactobacillus acidophilus is added to cold pasteurized milk. Some scientists believe it helps minimize gastric disturbances by helping maintain the balance of microorganisms in the intestinal tract. This milk is used only as a beverage.

So each member of your family can select his or her favorite dairy beverage from the family of milk.

No Taxes Due

On Car Rebates

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Texans don't need to pay taxes on factory rebates offered for the purchase of new cars.

He also said car buyers who have mistakenly paid automobile sales tax on the rebate amount are entitled to a refund.

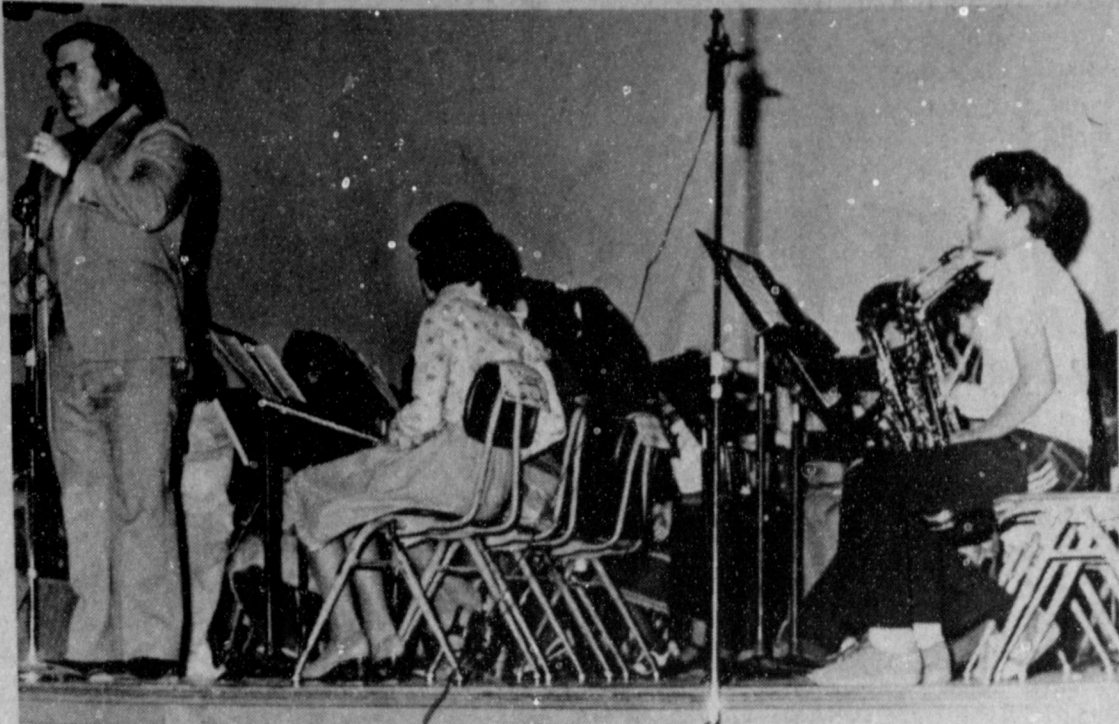

Bullock said the big three American automobile manufacturers are all currently offering some type of rebate to encourage the sale of new cars.

Bullock said rebates are cash discounts regardless of the method used to compute the amount or the method used to pass the rebate along to the consumer.

Rebates should be deducted from the price of a new car before the state's four percent motor vehicle sales tax is calculated.

If the sticker price is $7,500, for example, and the rebate is $500, the price of the car for tax purposes is $7,000, he said.

Information about tax refunds can be obtained through the Comptroller's Motor Vehicle Sales Tax office by calling toll-free, anywhere in Texas, 1-800-252-5555, extension 171.

I think it's safe to say that absolutely nothing can be more discouraging at planting time than poor soil. Gardeners all over the county are constantly amazed at what they are expected to grow their garden vegetables in. There are good soils and poor soils in Bailey County although most are not that bad for gardening if prepared properly.

Regardless of the type of soil in your garden, it can be improved by adding plenty of organic matter. This is one of the real keys to growing successful vegetables in your backyard.

If your soil is a heavy clay, adding organic matter will improve drainage and aeration as well as allow for better root development. If you have a sandy soil, liberal amounts of organic matter will help it hold water as well as nutrients.

Where do you get organic matter? This magical stuff, which does all the above things plus serves as a source of food for soil fungi and bacteria, comes in the form of peat moss, compost, hay, grass clippings, barnyard fertilizer, leaves or even shredded newspapers.

When adding organic matter to soil, be sure to apply enough to physically change the soil structure. Ideally, at least one-third of the final soil mix in your garden should be some type of organic material. To accomplish this, spread a 2-4 inch layer of organic material over the garden surface and till it to a depth of at least 6 to 8 inches. Apply the recommended rate of fertilizer over the garden surface at the same time and till it in along with the organic material. This is also a good time to treat your soil for nematodes if they have been a problem in the past. More about that later.

Last time I talked about working up the garden soil and mentioned using rototillers. I indicated they weren't absolutely necessary for gardening, but they sure do make soil preparation a lot easier. Many local gardeners prefer the shovel or spading fork to the rototiller and really enjoy getting out and working up the ground. But I know there are many who look for a simpler and easier way to handle this chore. For you folks who own rototillers or those of you thinking about renting or buying one, here are some tips to make the tilling job a lot easier.

1. Tilling the garden will be easier if you leave a row untilled between passes. There are two reasons for doing this: wide turns are easier to make with a tiller than "about faces", and the machine won't be pulling itself and you toward the next row (which it will do if you even come close to overlapping rows).

2. In tilling heavy clay soils or breaking up ground for a new garden, reduce the engine speed of the tiller so that it will dig better and buck and bounce less.

3. When tilling ground for the first time, don't try to work it to its maximum depth in the first pass. The first time around, set the brake stake half the depth you desire. Then set it to full depth and go over the ground a second time.

4. It's important to till only when the soil is somewhat dry and friable. Tilling when it's too wet will leave behind large clods which will become rock hard when dry. Also, mud clumps clinging to the blades of the tiller will upset its balance, causing undue wear on you and the tiller.

Our next column will deal with controlling soil-borne diseases.

Expense of Irrigating Reduced With Repairs

Costs of irrigating cropland can be reduced by keeping irrigation pumps and power units in good repair to improve fuel efficiency.

Whether or not such repair pays depends on the current efficiency of the pumping unit, says Gary D. Condra of Fort Stockton area economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

To evaluate the potential profitability of repairs to irrigation units, consider current pumping efficiency depth from which water is lifted, interest rate, cost and expected life of the improvement, and current condition of the power unit and pump.

Condra uses the following example to illustrate the effect of the current efficiency factor on the profitability of repair work.

Assume an 800 gallon per minute (GPM) pump runs 3,000 hours per year lifting water from 300 feet with an electric motor using 5 cents per KWH electricity. A 10 percent increase in pump efficiency from 40-50 percent will reduce fuel costs for the year by about $3,800. However, a 10 percent increase in pump efficiency from 60-70 percent will only reduce yearly fuel costs by about $1,800.

Assuming improvements cost $5,000 at 15 percent interest, the increase in efficiency from 40 to 50 percent will pay repair costs in less than two years. On the other hand, increasing efficiency from 60 to 70 percent requires almost four years to pay repair costs.

Stenholm Discusses Current Problems

Telling some 200 farmers and ranchers from the 17th Congressional District inflation and the present system covering agricultural commodities were burdening the producers of the nation, Congressman Charles Stenholm told the audience "we have got to turn this country around fiscally and change farm programs that are not working." The Congressman spoke to the meeting of producers from his district in a grass roots forum organized by the Texas Farmers Union and held Saturday, February 21 at the Cisco Junior College.

"Everyone in the 17th Congressional District knows what the problem is," Stenholm stated. "We do not have enough money to pay our debts at the end of the year and put in a new crop at the beginning of the year." The congressman said gross farm income lagged far behind other industries in the country while the net farm income was down 40 percent.

The current session of Congress will be taking up the 1981 Farm Bill beginning in March, Stenholm said. He predicted three types of bills could emerge. One would be an extension of the 1977 Farm Bill "with some increases in loan levels and refining of the farmer held reserve system, including cotton in the reserve." The second alternative would be to extend the current act for one year "as a simple extension."

The third alternative will be "to come up with new and different approaches," Stenholm remarked. "We are going to have to come up with a program which we can sell to both the American farmers and consumers," he said. Regardless of which type of bill is adopted by Congress Stenholm said government will remain active in the agriculture system because of the involvement in overseas markets and the world system.

Congressman Stenholm said the current embargo on grain to the Soviet Union will be continued "until we can come up with an honorable way to come out of a difficult situation." He said he hoped to see the embargo lifted "but then sell to them at a higher price." Stenholm added embargoes would remain a fact of life and would have to be used on occasion but said the last one enacted against Russia "should have been a total embargo, not just on grain and American Olympic athletes."

Aoudad Sheep Hunt Called Successful

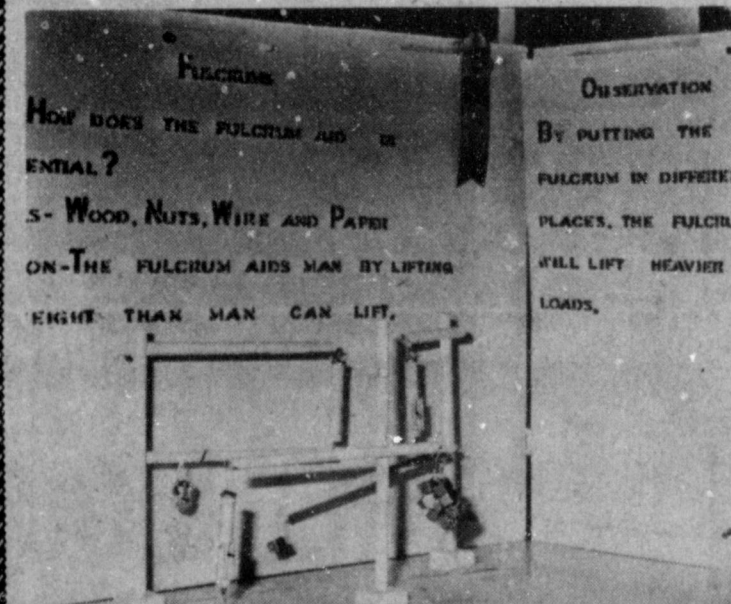

The first-ever public hunt for aoudad (Barbary) sheep at Caprock Canyons State Park in Briscoe County was successful with 43 hunters taking 20 aoudads.

The 43 hunters were selected by drawing from 835 applicants. The hunts were held January 3-17 to help control numbers of the aoudad sheep which compete for forage with the native mule deer herd in the park.

The largest aoudad taken weighed 175 pounds and had 23 inch long horns. The bag limit was one aoudad of either sex per hunter. Both sexes of aoudads have large, curved horns and make impressive trophies.

Hunting was allowed on 3,350 acres of the 13,655 acre park, located near Quitaque.

Aoudad sheep are natives of North Africa but they have been stocked successfully in many areas of Texas, especially in the Palo Duro Canyon region of the Texas Panhandle.

Speaking on the Proposed budget cuts which will affect agriculture, Stenholm said three particular areas were of concern. He was critical of the called for reduction in the milk program stating the small producer will be made to suffer. "Is that the man we want to put out of business by lowering the price five percent when we know the retail price in the grocery store will not go down," Stenholm asked. "The family farmers who are in business now are the most efficient producers in the world," he added.

The proposed cut in the Farmer's Home Administration (FHA) can be made at some levels, Stenholm said. "They should not hurt the production side of agriculture but it will affect some of the business loans the FHA should not have gotten into," he stated.

On the proposed reductions in the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), Stenholm said those who wanted to do away with the program would have to be strongly opposed. "But more and more coops are going to have to stand on their own feet. Some are getting two percent loan money from REA when they can get by on five percent," he said.

Congressman Stenholm said the disaster loan program could not be revived in the current session. "We lost that battle last year and there is no way it can pass," he said. "But we need to try and correct the deficiencies in the insurance program."

Any hope of suspending the Windfall Profits Tax is also bleak, Stenholm noted. "But there will be an effort to exempt the first 1,000 barrels of production for the individual producer and also some exemption for the small royalty owner," the Congressman stated. "Those are the people who need it the most."

Energy prices may level off in the near future if production remains high and demand slackens, Stenholm said. But he stated the government still needed to get involved in developing alternative energy sources. "We need an REA program to produce more energy for alcohol, synthetic fuels and solar systems," the Congressman said. "The free enterprise system will develop alternative fuels but we need a government crash program to meet these goals," he added.

With all the work needed to be done, Stenholm concluded "it is time we eigher lead, follow other leaders or get the heck out of the way."

SAT score decline and academic skills might not be related COLLEGE STATION — The decline in national average scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) may not reflect a decline in academic skills among the nation's high school students, suggest two Texas A&M University business analysts.

Instead, the average test scores — which have been steadily dropping over the last 20 years — may simply reflect the greater number of students taking the exam, say Drs. Robert Hill and William Fuerst in a study that attempts to explain the declining test scores.

"As the number of test-takers increases, average test scores tend to decline," the study reports, "because the sample of those students being tested has become more representative of an underlying population."

Brezhnev's Overture

Leonid Brezhnev recently suggested the possibility of a summit meeting involving himself and President Ronald Reagan. The suggestion generated receptivity both in this country and abroad.

This is understandable because the overwhelming majority of people of the world wish to avoid nuclear war, and anything which might contribute to a live-and-let-live policy, on the part of the world's two superpowers, is desirable.

The belief in Washington is that Brezhnev wishes to avoid a major new escalation of the arms and weapons competition between the two superpowers. That is very much in Russia's interest at present, since she is ahead in the arms race. And Russia, like so many other countries, is spending a large percentage of its budget on weapons.

For Mr. Reagan, recent lessons in summit meetings must be kept in mind. The hug former President Carter gave Brezhnev meant very little, and most observers would agree that Brezhnev took Carter to be a weak president. The same thing happened when the late President Jack Kennedy met Nikita Khrushchev in Vienna shortly after he took office.

Khrushchev sized him up as indecisive and lacking a strong will. And that led to much trouble in the years following—including the communist militarization of Cuba. On the other hand, President Nixon impressed the Russians as firm, and willing to use force, if necessary, and Nixon concluded the first nuclear arms treaty between the two countries.

Unfortunately for Mr. Reagan, he does not have the military chips to play which Nixon had. He will meet with Russian leaders at a distinct disadvantage, and thus his task is made that much more difficult. But Washington cannot adopt the position that it is unwilling to talk at the highest level, with Moscow, in the interest of peace.

In weakened circumstances, Mr. Reagan must be both firm and prudent, and a summit for him, at this early moment, is a vitally important, and perhaps fateful, step at the very beginning of his presidential course, which will demand all his abilities and communicative talents after very careful preparation.

Tuition Credits?

Once again an emotional battle is headed toward a decision in the 97th Congress—concerning tax credits for private school tuition.

There is an appealing argument to lessen the tax burden for parents sending their children to private schools. But it would be costly and could become very costly. There is also an appealing argument that to do so would be a violation of the First Amendment. (Ninety percent of today's private schools are church-run schools.)

On this question, as with abortion and other highly emotional issues, patience often seems to wear thin. Suffice it to say, here, that there are sincere and respected people on both sides of this argument on Capitol Hill. And on both sides supporters feel their way is the constitutional way.

One of the best discussions of the issue was contained in a recent issue of U.S. News. Senator Bob Packwood, the Oregon Republican, favored tax credits. Senator Ernest Hollings, South Carolina Democrat, pointed out the objections, saying the Supreme Court is clear on the question.

Private schools, in many areas, have outperformed public schools, which has been beset with terrible problems in recent years. But do private schools get a higher-level student, from middle class or better homes, which helps explain their superior academic averages?

Does private school aid threaten public schools? Will limited tuition credit today soon become full credit tomorrow, thus undermining the public school system? Or is private school tuition constitutional, as advocates claim, because of early American church-school aids? And since private school enrollment today is only nine percent of total enrollment, is the public school system really threatened by tuition exemptions?

POPE & JOB

ROME -- Pope John Paul II, weary and hoarse at the end of his 12-day Far Eastern tour, said that he liked his job as pontiff "so, so," found some difficulties, but had the help of the Lord.

ON ENVIRONMENT

Congress began what will be the major and possibly bloodiest battle of the year over the nation's environment. At issue is the country's major air pollution law.

NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

Reagan & Russia—Summit Now? El Salvador—The CIA

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- The most vital foreign relationship for the people of the world is that between the U.S. and the USSR; and a vigorous debate is now in progress in high Administration circles over President Reagan's initial moves.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev suggested a summit meeting in February, only four weeks after Reagan had taken office.

Russian military power now exceeds that of the U.S. in most vital categories. Therefore, any Russian leader begins a summit meeting from a position of strength. But any U.S. leader represents the strongest economic, and potentially military, potential in the world.

One theory in the White House and Congress is that the Russians appreciate the U.S. potential well and wish to avoid a major escalation of arms spending. After all, what have they to lose? They are well ahead. This school of thought holds that Moscow might even agree to a lesser advantage than at present to avoid a costly arms race, and somewhat dampen support within the U.S. for major new military spending.

Others view the Russian leader's recent summit suggestion as mostly propaganda, in itself being a ploy to weaken U.S. resolve for major defense spending increases, and to sow doubts about the necessity of U.S. rearmament in foreign capitals.

There are also two views, in Congress but not in the White House, about the Soviet role in Latin America. There is still some distrust of the CIA, and its documentation about Soviet arms supplies to El Salvador leftists. The recent testimony of the relieved U.S. ambassador in that country reinforced these doubts.

The former ambassador said leftists in El Salvador have no chance of overthrowing the government in the immediate future and that most of the killing has been done by rightwing elements.

From Moscow have come unusually hot denials of CIA accusations, and such blunt language as "lies" has been used repeatedly. And Brezhnev has said publicly that Russia is not intervening in this area. This is a much more vigorous denial than the usual from Moscow.

The White House is convinced Cuba is behind the current supply of arms to leftists in Latin America and moreover, ready to take action against this effort if it's not stopped. A blockade of Cuba is even suggested by some, but more likely would be a naval and air patrol by U.S. forces off the coast of El Salvador.

ON U.S. POPULATION

For the first time in history, the East no longer holds the bulk of the nation's people.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

Austin—As with past legislative sessions, the repeal of the Blue Law will once again be discussed by members of the 67th Legislature.

Two bills that would do away with the Blue Law in its entirety have been pre-filed by Representatives Doyle Willis of Fort Worth and Bill Ceverha of Richardson.

The Blue Law prohibits the sale of certain goods on both Saturdays and Sundays. Over 40 items are listed in the law including clothing, cameras, tools, luggage, floor coverings, blinds, jewelry, television sets, washing machines, air conditioners, toys, home appliances and business, home or outdoor furniture.

Also, kitchen utensils, china, electric fans, motor vehicles, musical instruments, recordings, power-driven hand tools and precious or semi-precious stones.

Violation of the Blue Law is considered a misdemeanor offense. A first-time offender can be fined up to $100. The law does not, however, apply to any sale for charitable purposes or to items used for funeral or burial purposes or solely as a part of the sale of real property.

Historically, the original Blue Law was enacted by the Texas legislature in 1863 for the purpose of banning all labor and hunting on Sundays within one-half mile of any church, school or residence. Various modifications in the law were made in 1961, 1967 and 1973 in an effort to better promote the health and welfare of employees. The 1961 modifications included specifying certain items that were not to be sold on Saturdays and Sundays.

As the 67th legislative session continues, I encourage the citizens of Texas to voice their opinions on the pros and cons of the Blue Law to me and my fellow representatives in the House.

CORDOVAN QUALITY

Cordovan Sovereign
Aramid Belted Radial

ARAMID BELTED — The strongest tire cord ever developed, the strength of steel with less weight. ARAMID is much more flexible — for a much more comfortable ride. ARAMID produces a lighter, easier rolling tire which improves gas economy. ARAMID absorbs more road shock — eliminates joint slap and provides greater impact resistance.

For years Steel belted radials have been the established standard of the industry... now Aramid — the space-age tire cord material has been developed by Dupont laboratories to replace steel as a belt material in radial tires. Aramid is the ideal material for tires because it combines the toughness and durability of steel at one fifth of the weight with the comfort and smooth ride of a fabric belted radial.

Cordovan Premier IV Polyester Steel Whitewall

Constructed with 2 belts of steel cord and 2 tough body plies of Polyester Cord. Good traction on both wet and dry pavement. High traction tread compound remains flexible at temperatures below freezing to maintain good traction. In many cases it eliminates winter tire changeover.

ing, and by involving the students in the classroom presentation," she wrote.

Dillman was also "interested in the total school program and conscientiously seeks to place proper emphasis on all areas of the curriculum. He is thorough and efficient..."

Some of the educational changes implemented under his auspices included central libraries in all schools. Title I and Title I Migrant programs, summer programs for the economically and educationally deprived children. Right to Read programs, and the modernization of the high school science lab.

Dillman also employed three full time counselors, two full time nurses, added new courses to the school curriculum, added five kindergarten units, and employed full time secretaries and teacher's aides for all schools.

Along with his exceptional school record, his membership and participation in school related organizations is very impressive.

A life member of the Texas State Teachers Association, Dillman was president of District XIII, vice-president of the State Human Relations Committee and was a delegate Dillman became superintendent only three years after the building of Richland Hills in 1957. Originally built for grades one through six, the two thorough six, the two principals have been employed at the elementary school. Frank Ford was principal from 1957-61 and Milton Oyler is the present principal. Kindergarten, first and second grades are taught in the school today.

Two teachers have been with the now Neil B. Dillman Elementary School since its beginnings including Helen Bryant and Ruby Lambert who both teach first grade.

Originally from De Shazo, teachers who have been with Richland since the system was changed in 1971 include Kathryn Sanders, Mary B. Obenhaus, Norma Jo Prather, Virginia Bowers, Eloise Wilson, was Mabel Wolf.

Current enrollment at the Neil B. Dillman Elementary School is 435.

How much did it cost you not to own a Valley Corner System?
In 1980. Plenty!

Depending on what you raised, at 1980 prices, there were big dollars that could have been added to your gross income by bringing corners and odd shapes into full production.

Yield/Acre	Producer Price	EXTRA INCOME with Valley Corner System
		Center Pivot 131 Acres	+20 Acres	+30 Acres	+40 Acres
Grain Sorghum 7,000 lbs.	$ 5.35 cwt	$ 49,059	$ 7,490	$ 11,235	$ 14,980
Potatoes 30 tons	6.83 cwt	536,838	81,960	122,940	163,920
Corn 150 bu	3.01 bu	59,539	9,090	13,635	18,180
Alfalfa 7 tons/yr	79.10 ton	72,534	11,074	16,611	22,148
Peanuts 4,500 lbs	21.46 lb	126,153	19,260	28,890	38,520
Cotton 750 lbs	76.46 lb	75,063	11,460	17,190	22,920

No wonder there are more and more corner systems than ever. And with prices rising, adding a corner arm to your existing system becomes more attractive all the time, because it's likely to be the least costly way to increase your gross and net. If you're considering a whole new system, opting for a corner system over a standard pivot is the least costly investment per acre when all the numbers are checked.
Stop by and see us for the complete corner system story.

Valley dominates the field.
