Texas Instruments plant slated

Texas Instruments announced late Friday in Dallas it would start up a new manufacturing operation in the Midland-Odessa area during May.

TI executive vice president A. Ray McCord said the company has leased the 66,500-square-foot Windecker Building at the Midland Regional Air Terminal to house initial operations.

McCord also said TI has purchased a 200-acre tract of land midway between Midland and Odessa as the site for future construction of a TI plant. The site is at the southeast corner of the Interstate 20 and Pegasus Road (FM 1788) intersection. The TI official said specific products to be manufactured here have not been determined and no timetable has been set for beginning of construction on the new 200-acre

McCord did not give an estimate of the number of persons who would be employed in the initial operation in the Windecker Building, nor would he reveal an ultimate work force for the manufacturing plant at I-20 and Pegasus Road.

However, some persons close to TI's move to the Midland area believe the eventual employment would be as many as 2,000 persons. That number is strictly a guess and has no official backing from Texas Instrument of-

At the same time McCord made the Midland announcement, he said most consumer products operations now located in Dallas will be moved to Lubbock over the next five months.

He said approximately 200 to 300 technical and administrative personnel will be transferred to the company's new manufacturing plant in Lubbock where they will establish a 'management and technology center" for consumer products.

He said the objective of establishing this kind of consumer product technology center is to provide for planned development of these products and to strengthen single-site responsibility for this part of TI's

McCord also said that a further step in the development of TI's consumer products business, which includes electronic watches and calculators, would be the start up of the new manufacturing operation at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The U.S. Embassy guard said the center of Bucharest, the city's old section, was almost destroyed. "You can hear sirens running around, the people are all in the streets and the rescue teams are trying to do what they can in the darkness with all the lights out," he said.

He said the U.S. Embassy had been damaged, but none of its personnel was hurt and no American casualties had been reported.

The guard said the quake lasted about five minutes. "It shook the

The U.S. Bureau of the Census has taken affront to the alias, "Big Snoop," that was generously bestowed upon the bureau in a Roustin' About column. That "Big Snoop" characterization "questions the validity of the various censuses and surveys" made by the bureau, Heary H. Smith said in a letter of rebuttal and clarification.

taken on the whim of someone at the bureau," wrote Smith, a bureau public information officer. "They are all in direct or indirect

"These (surveys) are not simply response to the law," the bureaucrat Smith mentioned the importance of the twice-yearly crime survey, which is made by door-to-door visits to selected households. A "great deal of crime is not reported to the police," Smith noted. And a sampling survey can fill in the gaps. The crime survey is conducted to provide poop for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (DEAA).

LEAA wanted to use a professionally-designed sample survey rather than depend solely on law enforcement agency records(,) which are sometimes inconsistent,' Smith wrote.

LEAA, it would appear, wanted to get the Big Picture - the nearlywhole story - about crime. . . It (LEAA) wanted a survey which would provide the demographic, social, and economic details necessary to understand crime fully." So, it's perfectly understandable that the bureau has to snoop around, rather, make extensive inquiries, to get the first-hand data on crimes against persons and property . . . in home, on the street, at work and

The payoff in the data collecting is this: Results of the censuses, surveys and estimates are used in "decision making by the public and private sectors at all levels," Smith wrote.

And the federal government doles out about $39 billion a year to "local jurisdictions" for many programs.

"As money, manpower, and resources become more scarce, and as we move into new areas of social awareness." Smith wrote, "decisions must be made on the basis of the most accurate, up-to-date information

"Our job is nothing less than to supply much of that information," the bureau man said via letter.

And Smith took exception to the Roustin' About slant that information given to the bureau is "held in some sort of confidence and ... not, supposedly . . . fed into free-access data banks."

Smith retorted: "Confidentiality is not a haphazard thing with the bureau." The Census Bureau is required by law to "hold all personal and corporate information collected in complete confidence. No one except sworn bureau employees is ever allowed to see this information.

And he has more to say on sworn silence:

"We feel our record on confidentiality has been outstanding, and that a unique contract of trust has been built up over the last century between the bureau and the American

But some people feel that their right to privacy is being infringed upon by the inquisitive data collectors.

That attitude, surely, has something substantial to do with

Smith quoted former bureau director Vincent P. Barabba: "We know that a census or a survey is only as good as the contract of trust with the people who answer the questions. Without willing and complete answers, "the quality" of the statistics would decline. "As a result," Barabba said, "the United States would lose its main decision making tool, and society would be the loser.'

In wrapping up his rebuttal, Smith noted that the bureau takes "very seriously" this complex subject of privacy and comfidentiality.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Things to do Saturday: 1. Wash the car.

 Shop for groceries.
 Call the President. Jimmy Carter will be in the Oval Office from 2 to 4 p.m. EST awaiting your call and who-knows how many others. It's the first-time-ever performance of a President as a radio call-in talk show guest, a chance for the ordinary citizen to catch the ear of the man in the White House. Ask or advise.

Either is fair game.
And an added bonus: Walter Cronkite will introduce you to the President. As Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said, people might be disrespectful to President, but never to Cronkite. The number to call, as the say on more modest talk shows. is area code 900-242-1611. That's right, area code 900 - a toll free number.

The program, produced and paid-for by CBS, is called "Ask President Carter." It's a device to de-isolate the President. If it works, says White House TV adviser Barry Jagoda, it will be done again.

Frankly, your chances of getting in are minimal. CBS figures that President Carter will be able to field 50 to 100 questions in and two commercial-free hours. Computers that channel calls from around the country to 20 telephones in the White House complex will seek to assure fair geographical spread.

Phone lines open an hour early. The callers who reach the White House will be asked their name and directory listing of address and telephone number. CBS staffers will verify them and call back to say hold for the President. Nobody will screen the subject matter.

The whole thing will be taped and shown later on some public television stations.

RAIN IS FORECAST over the Southeast and in western Montana today. Snow is expected in the Great Lakes area. The rest of the nation will be fair, with colder temperature due in the upper Midwest.

Midland Christian fund drive under way

Midland Christian School has begun a drive to raise $600,000 to provide facilities for expanding the school's program to include 10th through 12th grades, said Wiley Brown, principal and superintendent of the school.

The fund raising drive, called Proect '77, begins with $20,000 committed to the program, he said.

Midland Christian plans to add 10th grade in September of this year and grades 11 and 12 in succeeding years.

The main features of the new buildings, Brown said, will be expanded cafeteria and kitchen facilities; new and enlarged space for grades one, two and three; additional classrooms for grades four, five and six; a new library, new physical education facilities; classrooms for junior and senior high school; offices, and room for educational progress.

The school, now located at 2001 Culver St., begain in 1957 with pre-school and first grade. Grades two through six were added upon moving to the present location in 1965, and grades seven, eight and nine have been offered since 1972.

Curriculum offerings for the secondary schools include Bible, English, biology, physical science, algerbra, geometry, social studies, art, crafts, typing, shorthand, drivers education and home economics, Brown said. Athletic teams will be fielded in basketball, track and possibly foot-

Feminist acquitted

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) - Inez Garcia, who killed a man she said helped rape her and became a feminist symbol of a woman's right to self-defense, was acquitted Friday of seconddegree murder after a retrial.

The jury of 10 men and 2 women deliberated nearly 11 hours spanning two days. The trial started Feb. 14.

Mrs. Garcia was convicted in 1974 of second-degree murder in the death of Miguel Jimenez, who she said stood guard while another man raped her.

The California Court of Appeal overturned the conviction on a technical ground in December 1975. Mrs. Garcia was released on $5,000 ball after serving 15 months in prison. The Monterey County courtroom, packed with about 75 partisan supporters of the defendant, exploded into cheering when the verdict was read. Several women burst into tears. "I'm going to make up for lost time with my kids," said a jubilant Mrs. García as she hugged her 13-year-old son, John, and a nephew and niece. She and her husband are separated. Louis Castillo, the man Mrs. Garcia said raped her, was never charged. In the first trial he denied raping her. but he refused to testify in the second. asserting his right against selfincrimination. Mrs. Garcia's first trial was disrupted by occasional shouts from activist spectators and sometimes by the defendant herself.

At one point, she expressed regret at missing Castillo, who fled as Jimenez was being shot once in the head and four times in the abdomen.

A jury deliberated three days at her first trial before finding her guilty of second-degree murder. She was sentenced to serve five years to life. According to Mrs. Garcia, Jimenez and Castillo came to her apartment looking for a friend, dragged her into a nearby alley, and Jimenez stood guard while Castillo raped her. Within a half-hour, she loaded a .22caliber rifle and found the two men about five blocks away. When she was arrested later that night she did not tell police about the rape. Therefore, it was never medically verified. She said she was ashamed and fearful but later told a

At the Air Force Institute of Technology in Ohio, students conducted a survey last year which found that 35 per cent of Air Force enlisted men would join a union and 33 per cent were undecided.

signed a petition asking Congress not

Once considered unpatriotic, the idea of unionizing America's two million servicemen is gaining momentum and respect. Military journals are filled with articles on the subject. Congressional hearings are expected this year, and there is even a fullfledged counterdrive against unionization Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-5.C.) and 37 co-sponsors have introduced legislation that would fine a union from $25,000 to $50,000 for attempting to sign up servicemen. In the House, Rep. Bill Nichols (D-Ala.) has introduced a bill to prohibit servicemen from joining unions.

The unions in question are not the anti-Vietnam War unions that were proposed several years ago. "We're strictly a bread-and-butter union-a George Meany type union," said Greg Kenefick, spokesman for the American Federation of Government Employes, the largest union seriously considering a membership drive among servicemen. William L. Spence, president of the Association of Guard and Reserve, agreed. Both unions hope to deal with such issues as pay, retirement benefits, commissary privileges, travel allowances, leaves and temporary duty pay Other questions, such as mission, left to the military, both men said. Spence's organization, which is affiliated with a union for civilian employes of the guard and reserve, has been active for about a year, he said. He declined to give specific figures on the number of men who have signed up, but he said that membership includes personnel on active duty as well as in the reserves and guard duties, strategy and tactics, would be

The AFGE, with 300,000 civilian members, principally in the Department of Defense, could easily overrun Spence's union if it decides to begin a membership drive. It changed its constitution to include servicemen in September, and several regional directors began signing up men.

At Ft. Devens, the federation tenatively approved setting up a local Division - the Green Berets - and at Ft. Riley names were taken. At Ft. Dix. N.J., and Ft. Benjamin Harrison. Ind., membership drives were started and then stopped. The union leadership decided that a full scale drive had not yet been authorized. That authorization can come only if the union's 1,500 locals approve. The 15-member executive board will decide next week whether to put the question to a vote later this spring. If it does, it is difficult to predict how the vote will come out, Kenefick said. because the locals are about evenly divided. "But whether or not AFGE is the union that organizes the military. it is clear to me that a union in the military is inevitable," he said. Military writer David Cortright, who has studied military unions in the seven NATO countries that have them, agrees. He agrees that a union would be good for the U.S. military because it would make it more ac countable for its actions. There would be fewer atrocities and cover-ups, such as the one at My Lai, he says. and fewer cases where men sued the Army because it failed to train them as promised by recruiting sergeants. The strongest argument against a serviceman's union, he says, is that a union "might raise considerable resistance against efforts to reduce the size of the military ... featherbedding' of a most dangerous sort.'

Sen. Thurmond, a major general in the Army Reserve and president of the Reserve Officers Association, is the principal spokesman against unionizing the military. In an article prepared for the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research in Washington, Thurmond raised the question of strikes. "An effective defense force is built and maintained upon a foundation of discipline, patriotism, command authority and quick responsiveness," he wrote. This foundation cannot exist with loyalty divided between the chain of command and a union.'

The Defense Department has told commanders they cannot negotiate with any union, and service secretaries and high-ranking officers have spoken out against the idea When President Carter talked with Pentagon employes this week, the first question he was asked was about military unions.

'My own opinion, which is strongly held, is that it would not be advisable to have military personnel unionized." he said, and added that he did not think legislation was necessary to prevent military unions. However, he did not say whether he prevent it. An executive order signed by President Kennedy in 1962 per-mitted the unionization of civilian federal employes.

In the real world, of course missionaries don't look or act like that. Idi Amin knows that. It is the real missionaries whom the Ugandan president ordered to show up at Entebbe Airport before he changed his mind and said, well, maybe later on. It was a real missionary whose battered body was found Tuesday in Rhodesia, the 11th missionary to die there in the last three months of fighting between the Rhodesian government and black guerrillas.

Well over half of some 240 Americans now in Uganda are estimated to be missionaries. Of that number abbut a third are Roman Cathlics; the rest are mostly members of conservative evangelical groups including the Southern Baptist Convention, and the African Inland

Presentation of charter set Sunday

The congregation of Midland's Permian Church of Religious Science will be presented an official church charter at the Sunday morning service of the church.

The charter presentation will be made by Dr. Glen Hayden, deputy director of the department of member churches of the United Church of Religious Science, with headquarters in Los Angeles.

Another highlight of the 11 a.m Sunday service will be the installation of a new slate of trustees of the local

While dying for one's faith is highly spoken of in Christian song and prayer, martyrdom is an end sought by few. Who, then, are the "new" missionaries, and why do they enlist?

"You feel a calling to it," explains one Catholic priest who served in Uganda from 1971 to 1975, and who hopes to return. (He asked that his name not be used because of 'problems'' he might encounter trying to re-enter Uganda)

There is, he explains, a feeling of "belonging" there and a belief that you are doing something worthwhile. "I don't want to kid you; I'm worried about the situation out there," he says. "But I'm looking forward to going back. Having been out there, you get into the language and the culture. It's something you grow into. It becomes part of you. You get to feel at home, and you want to go back again.'

This 32-year-old priest is one of 7,010 American Catholic missionaries and 36,950 Protestant ones working overseas today. It is, incidentally, the largest Protestant mission force in history. Among the Protestants, the Southern Baptists, with some 2,700 missionaries in 85 countries, are leaders, with the Wycliffe Bible Translators and Seventh-Day Adventists close behind.

"We are basically there to share the good news of the Gospel of Jesus Christ - how he died for our sins,' explains Bob Stanley, for 10 years a Southern Baptist missionary in the Philippines and now an executive with the denomination's mission board in Richmond.

newspaperman and journalism

"It was in 1966; I was 37 at the time. I was teaching journalism at North Texas State University at Denton." This was after eight, years as a newsman for the Dallas Times Herald. "A representative from the Southern Baptist Convention mission board came and talked at our church and I got the feeling that perhaps God was wanting us - that maybe the publications experience I had had could be used in the Lord's work.

"Of course I grew up in the Southern Baptist church, where all the local activities taught us that it was our responsibility to share the good news of Christ. When you think about it, going overseas as a missionary is just doing that same thing in a different situation. So it became clear to us, after many consultations (with mission board executives) that God was calling us to be missionaries.'

So, in mid-career, Stanley pulled up stakes and he and his wife went to the Philippines where he headed church publications work for the Philippine Baptist Mission.

Major Protestant denominations express things differently from evangelical Christians like the Southern Baptists. "Competence, commitment and worldly wisdom" is the way United Methodist Avery Manchester sums up his ideal missionary. A former missionary himself, Manchester is candidatesecretary for the Methodists' New York-based board for global ministries and screens all applicants.

"We need competence in their particular area of specialization medicine, education or whatever - so they have been tempered and tested by training and experience," Manchester explains.

"But that has to be balanced out by commitment, so that the adrenalin of being in a new country, a strange culture, doesn't cause them to lose their heads.

The "worldly wisdom" is needed, oard in Richmond. he says, "so they don't get conned by Stanley is a layman, a former the CIA." After a considerable flap trying to elicit information from missionaries. Taking no chances, the Methodists have told their missionaries that they will get sacked immediately if they talk to the CIA.

Some people want to be missionaries for "wrong reasons," Manchester acknowledges. "The people we try to screen out are those who are looking for an escape anybody who is looking for an 'out' instead of an 'in.'" Also rejected are 'people for whom faith is a front instead of a force in their lives people who use their faith to cover up their problems," he says.

Rev. John Thompson, a Torontoborn Anglican priest, found missionary work one way of experiencing life in other, perhaps more exotic places. He and his wife headed for northwest Canada, which he describes as a "frontier area, with logging and mining," and found that they liked the transition to "a reduced sort of existence." When an opportunity for overseas work became available, they gladly went - first to Malawi, then to Uganda.

The Christian missionary colonization of Africa and the Orient by European powers in the 18th and 19th centuries. With the struggle for political independence following World War II, the church had either to adapt or be driven out.

"Missionary" became a dirty word. Liberal Protestant churches, usually the first to catch on to these things, dubbed their missionaries "fraternal workers;" venerable mission agencies became the "Board for World Ministries."

The change was more than jargon. The churches planted by the missionaries of the 19th century took root in African and Asian soil and produced indigenous leaders, who stood on an equal footing with European and American Christians at World Council of Churches assemblies and at the Vatican Council.

Some countries, such as Zaire, tossed out all missionaries for a time so that they could come back a few years later as genuine fraternal workers. Today in Africa the leadership of the churches is in the hands of Africans. In major denominations such as Methodists, the African - or Asian or Latin American - churches not only have veto power over missionary personnel but also decide what tasks missionarfes will do.

With Southern Baptists, Stanley points out, "The preacher is still the backbone of our missionary force, but he may not be preaching all the time." He is more likely to spend the bulk of his time organizing churches and evangelistic programs and training Africans to do the preaching.

'They (the Africans) know the language and they know the people; they can do a better job of preaching than the missionary can," Manchester explains.

Missionaries in many countries today must function under governments - such as Amin's - where violations of human rights are commonplace and justice is a farce. As guests in a foreign country, they must tread a very narrow line of proclaiming the Christian gospel, with its emphasis on justice and human dignity for all, and avoiding the ire of government leaders who

That's the keynote of Christianity always another chance. It's also what Lent is about, a 40-day season of penitence, meditation and sensitizing of conscience. "We all need times of quiet, penitence and reflection as a restorative from the distructions of the world," says the Rev. Frederick Rapp of St. Stepehen's church, Port Washington, N.Y. "It answers deep needs of the human spirit." But he emphasizes that the traditional practices of Lent, such as the imposition of ashes, meditation and fasting, are not the objective themselves, but only the means to it.

"People often confuse the means with the ends," he says. "Discipline is never an end in itself." Noting, for ex-

Appeal is justified

Thank goodness that the Interior Department and the Federal Power Commission will appeal the decision of a federal judge who canceled federal oil and gas leases off the mid-Atlantic coast.

Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus early this week announced the government's plan to appeal the decision.

Earlier the same day, Chairman Richard L. Dunham of the FPC said he desired to intervene in the case to seek a reversal of the Feb. 17 decision of New York District Judge Jack Weinstein.

Every legal action possible should and must be brought in an all-out effort to reverse Judge Weinstein's surprising, harmful decision.

The Interior Department, last Aug. 17, awarded leases for the exploration and development off the Atlantic Coast. This was a most significant action, signaling a long-time need to find and develop oil and gas reserves to help meet the nation's energy shortage. It was a great step in the right direction, something which had been urged by responsible and respected individuals, firms and groups for a long time.

It appeared particularly fitting as the nation's coldest winter in years unfurled. Then right in the middle of the bitter cold weather, the New York judge issued his shocking decree. Many persons couldn't believe it, particularly since additional supplies of oil and gas were needed so urgently in the North and East.

And at the very same time a government report accused 10 major oil companies of withholding natural gas.

If one is going to point the finger, it must be at the New York district judge as one who is withholding natural gas, or at least delaying exploration and production measures. Let's start placing the blame where it should be.

And it just so happens that much of the natural gas the companies were charged with withholding comes from wells located in the Gulf of Mexico.

All too many people in the North and East are perfectly willing to have the gas fields developed off the Gulf Coast or in the South and Southwest generally, but they don't want wells drilled off the Atlantic Coast. Perhaps the bitter cold of this winter has altered the thinking of some persons in the North and East and, if so, they should start letting their representatives in Congress, their state officials and others, including the environmental extremists know about it. The environmentalists are responsible to a marked degree for many of the nation's energy problems as well as the problems of other industries. They are the ones who really are saying "let them freeze." And their delaying tactics may do just that over a period of time.

Judge Weinstein said the Interior Department must redo its environmental impact study and hold a new lease sale before any drilling can start on the 214,000 offshore acres leased to 39 oil companies last August.

Andrus, in announcing the decision to appeal the court order, did, however, add a new twist to offshore leasing. He said that if the Atlantic leases are approved on appeal, he will require the preparation of an impact statement prior to his ruling on developing leases. It is hoped that this will not be used as a delaying factor in the exploration and development program. The United States needs oil and gas NOW.

Anyway, it is hoped the New York judge's order will be reversed promptly.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. obligated to pay trillions

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam's credit around the world is as good as gold. Yet our federal uncle has run up a staggering "contingent liability" that could jeopardize government-guaranteed loans, pensions and insurance benefits.

The federal government has dangeroulsy overextended itself by the inconceivable sum of $6.4 trillion. This outlandish figure is the sum total of all federal benefit payments, loan guarantees and insurance programs. The lion's share, a whopping $4.6 trillion, is the amount the government is obligated to pay in federal pension benefits.

It is unlikely, of course, that this enormous obligation would ever come due at once. But a national calamity could create such a demand on the government that it might not be able to meet its commitments. Just 5 per cent of the liability, if it should suddenly become due, would cost the Treasury $85 billion.

But the real danger is the constant, spectacular increase of this "contingent liability." It has soared an astounding 100.7 per cent just since 1971. And no end is in sight.

The government has also lost control of the pension deficit. In the last four years, the deficit has soared from $251 billion to the frightening $4.6 trillion. This means the government owes $4.6 trillion more in pensions than it collects in its retirement funds.

Rep. Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, is deeply alarmed over this perilous financial situation. He told us that the "contingent liability" is not even considered part of the federal budget. So he is drafting legislation to force Congress to include this huge obligation in its budget estimates.

Somehow the public debt must be controlled; otherwise, a financial calamity is looming ahead.

GLOMAR GYRATIONA: Two years ago, we broke the astonishing story that the Central Intelligence Agency and the Howard Hughes organization had joined forces to hoist a sunken Soviet submarine, or at least part of it, off the bottom of the Pacific. Now we have learned from the Howard Hughes papers that the late billionaire tried to turn the taxpayers investment into a profit for himself.

The amazing submarine feat was achieved by a giant claw which was lowered three miles to the ocean floor. With TV cameras for eyes, the great claw clamped hold of the sunken sub and lifted it slowly to the surface. According to some reports, the sub broke apart and the largest section plunged back to the bottom.

We also reported that the secret venture cost the taxpayers an enormous $400 million, more than twice the cost of the Hoover Dam. Yet the retrieved sub was 18 years old, obsolete and, therefore, nothing more than a curiosity piece.

The secret Hughes papers indicate this didn't trouble Hughes. He instructed his attorney Chester Davis, to study the possibility of exploiting the deep-sea claw for commercial purposes. The attorney suggested in a March 26, 1974, memo that the Glomar Explorer, as the great claw was called, might be used for mining the ocean bottom or laying undersea oil pipelines.

Davis described the Glomar Explorer as "the most sophisticated deep-sea mining ship afloat." In a cryptic reference to the submarine recovery, he suggested that the "accomplishment of its primary mission within three or four months should prove the feasibility of recovering (manganese) modules at those depths."

He noted: "We are way ahead of anyone else, through the Hughes

From the time he was a young boy and during his school years at Eton and Oxford, he studied to become a member of the foreign service and concentrated on languages. He had a most fluent command, written and spoken, of at least half a dozen and a working knowledge of others. He spoke the languages of the Middle East, including Egyptian, Arabic, Hebrew and Greek, in addition to faultless French and excellent German

At various times he served as colonial and dominion secretary, minister of war and foreign minister, and he was handpicked by Sir Winston Churchill as his successor.

Unfortunately he was struck down by a serious illness and at the time of the Suez crisis he was really a sick man, carrying on under great physical strain and hardship.

The last time I saw him at Alvediston we discussed the world situation and I asked him if there had been any change in the basic Soviet policy. He replied, "No. When I went to San Francisco to attend the first meeting of the United Nations the prime minister (Churchill) and I had exchanged telegrams of foreboding as the Russian mood and methods became increasingly disquieting."

In the last years of their lives there were many exchanges between Eisenhower and Avon and they were close friends. They discussed at length the advisability of establishing a miniature United Nations, made up chiefly of English-speaking countries and those with long-standing democratic traditions.

Avon felt that the U.N. was becoming too big, too unwieldy and too influenced by Communists. Eisenhower agreed, saying, "When all of these new nations become members, most of them are likely to be Communist-oriented, which will only increase the strength and position of Russia in the U.N."

Avon probably will be best remembered for the fact that when he was 40 and the foreign secretary and holding great power, he resolved on the night of Feb. 20, 1938, to leave the Chamberlain government because of its policy of appeasement with the dictators.

He once said, "Virgil, I simply couldn't live with myself if I was a party to appeasement. No solution ever will be found with dictators if we engage in all-out appeasement."

INSIDE REPORT:

Ronald Reagan and 1980: Better not count him out

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — Ronald Reagan, more active nationally than any other Republican politician, is laying plans for another possible presidential run in 1980 (when he will be 69) made possible by the Reagan money machine, his combat-conditioned political staff and his availability to go anywhere, anytime.

That availability helps explain why Reagan, barely edged out of the presidential nomination by President Ford last summer, will address the annual Republican party fund-raising dinner May 19 in an unlikely state: liberal, ethnic, heavily Democratic Rhode Island. "We wanted a little extra impetus," Republican state chairman Americo Campanella told us.

In looking around for that "extra impetus," Republican state headquarters also sent invitations to Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, the party's newest light as Senate minority leader, and to Texan John B. Connally. Baker asked for time to consider his schedule; Connally replied that he could not be certain; Reagan's handlers here shot back an acceptance that nailed down the spot for the party's conservative warhorse.

Rhode Island is just one blip on Reagan's escalating political travels, accompanied by a newspaper column (100 clients) and a daily radio commentary (250 clients). Reagan is being quietly advertised by his aides not as a politician still yearning for the presidency but as one keeping himself available for a summons if the "cause" is right, and the summons should come.

Beneath that surface, the man who was reluctant to enter the 1976 race, and who warmed up to long days and nights on the stump as the campaign heated, can scarcely be called reluctant today. Although even staunch Reaganites believe he is too old for anything other than a kingmaker's role in 1980, he has by no means ruled out a last hurrah

Whether 1980 turns out to be kingmaking or last hurrah, what he is doing now lays the groundwork. His longtime aides, Michael Deaver and Peter Hannaford, spend much of the time in their public relations firm here handling Reagan's speaking, writing and commentary contracts. They claim his speech invitations run up to 300 a month, of which about 10 are accepted. The gross of all his endeavors: somewhere around $500,000 a year.

Across town in Santa Monica, carefully separated from the Deaver-Hannaford office, the political end of Reagan's operation is handled by Lyn Nofziger, his oldest political aide who helped persuade him to run for President in 1975. Nofziger operates the Reagan political front, a political action committee called "Citizens for the Republic" whose initials, CFR, happen to be the same as the principal campaign vehicle set up for him in 1975.—Citizens for Reagan.

Nofziger, paid $45,000 by the CFR (slightly higher than the Republican national chairman's regular salary), is blessed with an estimated $1 million left over from unspent 1976 contributions to the Reagan campaign. That enables Nofziger to entertain presidential-sized plans and budget.

In February, he mailed the first biweekly CFR newsletter, each issue of which will feature a column and picture of Ronald Reagan on page one. Consistent with Nofziger's versatility and sense of irreverence, he plans to plough new ground — as yet unspecified in political action.

The main problem for both Deaver-Hannaford and Nofziger-CFR is Ronald Reagan and how to keep him in bounds. That represents a singular change from 1975 when Reagan genuinely resisted becoming a candidate for many-months.

For example, in last week's congressional election for Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland's old seat in the 7th District of Minnesota, Reagan wanted to campaign for Republican Arlan Stangeland, the eventual winner. All his advisers said no: a Reagan appearance could polarize the voters and cost Stangeland votes; so, Reagan contented himself with a $1,000 contribution from the CFR.

Similarly, Reagan was leaning toward saying yes when right-wing conservatives asked his help in establishing an opposition "shadow cabinet." Once again, his aides said no. For Reagan to join superconservatives such as beer baron Jossph Coors and fund-raiser Richard Viguerie would damage him with the Republican moderate-right.

Such Reagan inclinations point the direction of his thinking. Despite the enormous odds against him, he is not shy about 1980. The liabilities are profound. At 69, he would be the oldest man ever nominated for President; William Henry Harrison was 68 when sworn in, and he soon died of pneumonia. Moreover, the Reagan camp is aware of some sharp criticism, particulary in the South that Jerry Ford would have won had Reagan campaigned harder for him.

Such critics infuriate Reagan.

Anger at his critics, indeed, is just one more sign that Reagan — well-heeled, well-staffed and highly available these days — is nourishing a presidential ambition greater than any he had leading up to 1976.

Demise of Gonzalez not easily explained

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) - The roots of the demise of Henry B. Gonzalez as chairman of the House Assassinations committee, and perhaps of the committee itself, are hard to fathom

Much of the conflict is undoubtedly tied to personalities: Gonzalez', committee counsel Richard Sprague's, and those of the other 11 committee members. But congressmen are loathe to speak publicly about the characters of their colleagues.

Gonzalez' colleagues on the committee generally give just one public reason for the refusal to back his firing of Sprague that has led to Gonzalez' resignation.

"He waited until everyone was out of town, and then he acted unilaterally," said Rep. Samuel Devine, R-Ohio.

In Devine's eyes, the fact that Gonzalez wanted to fire Sprague was one thing; going about it the way Gonzalez did was another thing entirely.

The House rules say that only a committee majority can fire a member of the professional staff. At the last meeting the committee held before its mid-February recess, Gonzalez indicated that he and Sprague had some problems to work out, but he did not say anything to indicate he wanted to fire him, recalls Rep. Richardson Pryer, D-N.C.

The next thing the members knew, Gonzalez had fired Sprague. The congressional delegate from the District of Columbia, Walter Fauntroy, was among the first to find out. He quickly notified the other members of the committee, and they told Sprague to stay put, setting the stage for confrontation. Gonzalez said he was only doing what every other Gonzalez spent in Washington prior to falling ill.

committee chairman does, hiring and firing staff. The authority is generally ceded to a chairman by committee members.

But the Sprague case was seen differently for several reasons, according to committee sources. If Sprague had been fired, the committee would have faced a rushed job of finding a competent replacement in time to persuade a skeptical House that the committee deserved to be extended beyond the March 31 termination date it now faces. And Gonzalez, as chairman of a select committee, had few of the levers that chairmen of legislative committees can use to keep their members in line. A chairman of a legislative committee, for example, can sit on members' bills and refuse to hold hearings on them in retaliation for defiance. Gonzalez had no such threat to wield. According to a source admittedly sympathetic to Preyer, Gonzalez further weakened his position at the committee's first meeting after the Sprague incident. He said publicly then that he "knew" Preyer wanted badly to usurp his position as chairman of the committee. Preyer, a courtly, diffident North Carolinian, is a former federal judge. The junior members of the committee openly defer to his opinions on many

Elizabeth Panke, a brunette divorcee who has lived here two years, said under questioning she had no initial knowledge of the case because she was out of town when Davis was arrested and does not subscribe to newspapers.

Cullen, a Fort Worth millionaire, is accused of murdering his stepdaughter and his estranged wife's lover in a midnight shooting spree last August at the palatial Davis estate. Davis' wife, Priscilla, and a young friend of the family, Gus Gavrel, were seriously wounded in the attack.

Courts have refused to release Davis on bond. Attorneys have predicted jury selection in the sensational case may take a number of weeks because of the pretrial news coverage it created. Mrs. Panke said she was out of town when the killings occurred, does not subscribe to any newspaper and therefore had no initial exposure to news stories about them.

Chaps gain finals against Western Texas

By TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

ABILENE - Midland College moved into the finals of the Region V Junior College basketball tournament Friday with an 81-73 victory over Clarendon College, which is believable enough.

But how about trying this one on for credibility? Western Texas College, although trailing 78-77 going into overtime, came back to defeat Hill College, 93-86.

With the score tied ??-77, Hill College ran down the clock and got off a shot with four seconds left in regulation time, and missed. In the scramble for the ensuing rebound, WTC Coach Mike Mitchell was so incensed that a foul wasn't called in the struggle for the rebound, he threw a tantrum at mid-court. A technical was called and Mitchell was ordered out of the gym.

For a few crestfallen moments, it looked to the Westerners es though the outcome would ride on the tree throws by by Tyrone Emerson. He made the first, missed the second, but since the foul came after regulation time expired, play was resumed in overtime with Hill leading 78-77.

Western's victory makes it an all-Western Junior College Conference final at McMurry gym at 8 p.m. tonight.

Tommy, Parks led Midland to its win with 20 points while Jackson Pace and Ricky Hudgins had 16 each, and Ron Jones 12, all in the first half.

MC jumped out to a 15 point lead in the first half, 44-29, and still led at 46-35 by intermission.

Hill rallied to go ahead 57-56 on two of Carl Davis' 20 points.

Ricky Hudgins put Midland back in front and then Jackson Pace scored off a fast break and Alvin Mayes fed Hudgins for a lefthanded hook to make it stand up as the game deteriorated into a foul-shooting

Tommy Nobis eyes retirement

ATLANTA (AP) - Tommy Nobis, an original member of the Atlanta Falcons, said Friday he's on the verge of calling it quits in the National Football League.

'I think I can still contribute in a playing role, but I think I can make an even bigger contribution in a nonplaying role," Nobis said.

The former All-Pro linebacker said he hoped to become an assistant coach with the Atlanta team which made him its first-round draft choice in 1966, the team's first year in the NFL.

Nobis, 33, is the only original Falcon player still with the team.

He met with new Falcon General Manager Eddie LeBaron Friday, apparently to talk about a nonplaying job with the Falcons, but there was no announcement of such a job offer.

Nobis said his retirement talk had nothing to do with extensive changes the Falcons have made in past weeks.

"I told (owner) Rankin Smith after the season ended that I was considering retiring; it was something I was thinking about long before anyone was hired," Nobis said.

Earlier this year, Smith named LeBaron to replace Pat Peppler as general manager and Leeman Bennett to be coach in place of Peppler, who had held that job on an in-

Lee rally sinks Hobbs

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Led by the big bat of sophomore John White, the Robert E. Lee Rebels rallied from a two-run deficit to upend Hobbs, 3-2, Friday afternoon at the Lee diamond, for their second win over the New Mexico school in four

The Rebels toppled Hobbs Tuesday in a contest abbreviated by darkness after five innings, but Friday, Coach Ernie Johnson's young team needed the final two frames to pull out their second conquest in as many outings.

White, one of six underclassmen in the Rebels' starting lineup drilled a run scoring double in the sixth, and scored minutes later on a throwing error for what proved to be the win-

Doug Schmidt picked up the win in relief of starter Mike Stanford, while Hobb's Joe Hukins absorbed the loss after going the entire distance.

The Eagles broke out to a 2-0 lead with a pair of unearned runs in the third. Shortstop Mark Beeson reached base on an error by the Rebels' Doug Schmidt, when the junior first baseman lost Beeson's Texas League

Hobb's second sacker, Doug Mc-Daniel attempted to move Beeson down to second with a sacrifice bunt, but Stanford fielded it quickly, and got the runner at second to stifle the Eagles' strategy ploy.

Monty Ragsdale, Hobbs' next batter, went to the bunt again, and this time they got what they were after - and more.

The pitcher Stanford and first baseman Schmidt both tried to make the play on the ball, and no one was left to cover first.

Stanford then walked centerfielder David Ricks to load the bases, and a grounder to the right side of the infield by Hukins scored Hobbs' first run. The second Eagle run came across the plate when designated hitter Mark Venable drilled a single up the middle.

Lee struck for a single run two innings later, on some good hustle and a Hobbs mistake. John Hopkins led off with a base hit to right center, and moved on into second when the Eagle outfielder hesitated with his throw. Pinch hitter Don Rasure moved him over to third on an infielder grounder. and he scored on a throwing error by Hobbs third sacker, Monty Ragsdale.

Hobbs threatened in the sixth, when Stanford ran into control problems and loaded the bases with three walks. Johnson went to Schmidt quit of the bullpen then, and the youngster responded by getting his team out of the jam. He got Doug McDonald to pop up to the shortstop for the second out of the inning, and struck out Ragsdale to close the door.

Then the Rebels went to work Craig Van Horn singled to open up the fireworks, and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Richard Josefy, the Lee left fielder. White tied the contest by scoring David Pitts, who had gone into the game as a pinchrunner for Van Horn, with a slashing double down the right field line, that bounded over the fence, He scored on Ragsdale's throwing error of a John Hopkins grounder moments

Hobbs gave Johnston's team a little bit of a scare in the final inning, loading up the bases on a pair of Rebel errors and a walk, but the New Mexico outfit couldn't plate a run.

Schmidt struck out Danny Cabrera for the first out, and Lee's shortstop, Mike Richard, short-hopped a ball up the middle and threw to the plate for the second out.

Adam Garza was Hobbs' last chance, but he never got an opportunity to take a swing. Schmidt's first toss to him was in the dirt and got away from catcher Jeff Matthews. Joe Hukins, who was on third, came toward the plate, but Matthews got to the ball and his peg to Schmidt, who was covering the plate, was in time to

Daingerfield gains finals

AUSTIN (AP) - Daingerfield scorched Huntsville for 43 points in the first half and held off a furious second half rally Friday night to beat the Hornets 66-55 in the Class 3A semifinals at the state schoolboy basketball tournament.

Huntsville freshman Lloyd Archie missed two crucial oneand-one free throw situations in the closing minutes, and Daingerfield went into a stall to protect a lead that Huntsville had cut to 57-53. Huntsville's high scorer, Royce Craft, fouled out with 4:56 remaining / in the game after hitting 15 points. Daingerfield's Sedrick Younger went to the bench 24 seconds later after tallying 19. Daingerfield had a 43-26 halftime lead in what looked like a route before Huntsville's fullcourt press narrowed the margin.

Soviet pair capture ice dancing medal

TOKYO (AP) - Irena Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov of the Soviet Union, skating into artistic poses on ice illustrating "life and death." won the ice dancing title Friday night and countryman Vladimir Kovalev led in the men's individual skating at the World Figure Skating Champioriships.

The Soviet Union sweep of gold medals here so far has been broken only by 16 year-old Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., who succeeded Dorothy Hamill as world skating

But East German Jan Hoffmann and Americans Charles Tickner and David Santee still had a chance in the five-day meet's final event, the men's competition, which concludes with free skating Saturday night.

Earlier, Soviet champions Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev won the pairs figure skating title for the fifth straight year.

Miss Moiseeva and Minenkov, 1975 world champions and last year's runners-up, were the unanimous choice of the judges for first place after their elegant and theatrical free skating program, receiving nine ordinals and 207.82 points.

Janet Thompson and Warren Maxwell of Great Britain won the silver medal after placing second in both the compulsory dances and the free dance.

They skated a lively, toy soldierstyle march to the music "Snoopy vs. the Red Baron" Thursday, and put together a harmonic dance to gypsy music and "Fiddler on the Roof" for their free-skating event Friday to win a total of 24 ordinals and 201.66 points. Natalia Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov of the Soviet Union were third with 28 ordinals and 199.92 points, Hungarians Kristina Regoeczy and Andraas Sallay were fourth with 29 and 200.70 while Marina Zueva and Andrei Vitman of the Soviet Union were fifth with 45 and 194.66.

"I've always hoped to be the winner but I didn't try to guess beforehand," said the 21-year-old Miss Moiseeva, a student of the Institute of Physical Culture in Moscow.

A&M trailed 3-0 going into the sixth inning before scoring single runs in the sixth and seventh frames and three in the eighth to run its con-game in the third inning and gave up only one run and three hits and struck out 10 the rest of the way to run his record to 2-0 for the season.

Kingman blasts Mets for big cut in salary

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) -Dave Kingman, seeking a long-term contract at a reported $3-million figure, charged Friday that the New York Mets were not in tune with modern-day big-league salary scales. "They are conservative," the towering home run slugger insisted. "They want to keep things normal when all you have to do is look at what other clubs are paying to know they are not normal at all. "I know from investigation that the Mets rank 10th among major league teams for the size of their payroll." With negotiations stalemated, the Mets' general manager, Joe Mc-Donald, invoked the club privilege Thursday of renewing Kingman's contract for his option year with a 20 per cent cut in salary. The salary is said to be $90,000.

If the 6-foot-6, 210-pound outfielder plays out the 1977 season without signing, he can become a free agent and try to sell himself to another club.

"I am not threatening to play out my option," Kingman said prior to a workout at Payson Field on a right instep swollen from a vagrant pitched "I hold no animosity toward the club. But I must say I am disappointed about having that 20 per cent cut imposed. It might well interfere with our negotiations. McDonald has called Kingman's demands unrealistic and has said there is no way the club could pay Kingman more than it pays Tom Seaver, the team's ace pitcher. Seaver is entering the second year of a three-year contract worth $700,000. Seaver, instead of being chagrined at Kingman's demands, is said to be supporting his teammate and has been sharply critical of club pressure prior to his own signing a year ago.

"The club talks about team loyalty," Seaver said. "It was ridiculous in my case and it is just as ridiculous in Kingman's case.' Kingman bridles at the club's reference to Seaver's salary. "I don't want to get into perllie Nastase, Connors to vie

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) - Jimmy Connors and Ilie Nastase appear all set for their winner-take-all World Heavyweight Championship of Tennis match Saturday. More than 2,800 fans are expected to witness the match at the open-air center court in a plush tourist hotel about 30 miles west of San Juan. They've paid from $20 for a distant single seat to $500 for a six-seat box. Connors and Nastase will battle for a $250,000 prize, the largest purse ever put up for grabs in the tennis world. Doctors have given Connors the goahead after a knee injury sidelined him for several days two weeks ago.

Nastase, who has defeated the equally controversial Connors in 15 of the 20 times they've met, is confident he can do it again, and says Connors is using his injury as an excuse.

"I have beaten him before and I can do it again," Nastase said earlier this week. "There is a lot at stake at the sonalities," he said. "But, speaking generally, you can't compare a pitcher's pay with that of a man who plays every day. 'A pitcher works every four days-on our club, every five days because we have a five man rotation. I must play every day." Kingman said his contract demands were based on two factors-the existing major league salary structure and his own merit and potential. "I am bargaining for my career," he said. "Baseball is a risky business.

Your career could end just like that He snapped his fingers. "I must consider my security. I am

28. I haven't begun to approach my prime. I see no reason I shouldn't hit 50 home runs a year." Kingman hit 36 home runs in 1975, his first year with the Mets after being dealt away by the San Francisco Giants. Last year he was moving toward a big home run production—with 32 by July 19— before he sprained his left thumb diving for a ball in the outfield. He was out a month and finished with 37

Kountze downs Wiemar, 75-59

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Esker Boykin and all-state Russell Coffey shredded Wiemar's zone defense for 65 points Friday as Kountze defeated Weimar 75-59 in the state schoolboy basketball tournament.

Kountze will meet Morton, a 68-52 victor over Linden-Kildare, for the championship Saturday night.

Boykin, only 5-foot-7, threw in 33 points, mostly on long jump shots from the corner. Coffey, held to six points in the first half, poured in 26 in the second half for a total of 32.

Phillies sign Schmidt for rare six year pact

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) -Major league home run leader Mike Schmidt signed a rare slx-year baseball contract Friday with the Philadelphia Philles which he indicated was worth about $2 million.

The third baseman refused to give the exact price tag of the pact but answered, "yes," when reporters asked whether the figure was in the vicinity of the $2 million reportedly sought by his agent. Schmidt, however, said dollars played second string to his desire to stay with the Phillies and shoot for a World Series victory. He said he leaves money matters in the dugout once he takes the field. "I made $120,000 last year and never thought about it one time while I was on the field," Schmidt said. "I tried to carry the same personality out on the field and just play ball. "Perhaps I could have made a greater deal, made more money some place else, but I really didn't want to leave Philadelphia.' 'We have a chance of being a winning ballclub for several years and a World Series champion." Sch-midt said. "To me that's very important. You can't put dollar bills on something like that.

The Phillies won the National

up their pennant hopes in three straight playoff losses to Cincinnati. Schmidt came in from a workout to join in the contract annnouncement at a news conference attended by Paul Owens, the team personnel manager, agent Dave Landfield and Phils owner Ruly Carpenter. "We will not divulge anything but the length of the contract," Carpenter said when pressed about the price tag and possible deferred payment or guaranteed income facets of the deal. Landfield, of Los Angeles, negotiated with the Phillies throughout the winter and flew to the spring training camp here on Mon-day, where talks continued on a dayto-day basis.

Only two other players in major league baseball currently have sixyear contracts - New York Yankees pitcher Don Gullett and first baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Schmidt, 27, hit 38 homers last year, batted .262, drove in 107 runs and scored 112. Schmidt has led both leagues in home runs in three of his four major league seasons. Eleven Phillies remained unsigned, including pitchers Jim Lonborg and Gene Garber. Schmidt was the 29th player to sign with the Phils for the

Foote renewed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - The Montreal Expos announced Friday that they have invoked the automatic renewal clause in catcher Barry Foote's baseball contract. Charlie Fox, the Expos' vice president and general manager, said the renewal was invoked at a pay cut of 20 per cent. Foote, pitcher Bill Greif and outfielder Gary Roenicke have not signed contracts for the 1977 season. The first intra-squad affair is set for Sunday instead of Monday as originally planned.

Rodeo madness still lives today

By NICHOLAS C. CHRISS The Los Angeles Times

HOUSTON - Who else but a Texan would pay $10,000 for five chickens? Where but Texas would someone like Mrs. Emily Dial from the Three X ranch put her prize cow in a red velvet four-poster bed?

Where else would Anthony Luccia. an insurance magnate, wear to lunch his custom made gold and silver collar tips embossed with his initials? Where else would you find "Cowboys For Christ?" And where else would Ada Brown wear her black and silver cowgiri suit embroidered in silver threads, and white and silver cowgirl boots, while she frets about the state of the world?

What world? The world of the combination livestock show and rodeo taking place in Houston these days. Almost everything else, from Uganda's problems to Houston's lack of rapid transit, takes a back seat.

In Houston the promoters call it the "largest show on earth," an obvious takeoff on the Barnum and Bailey circus motto. It brings thousands and thousands of Texans and other out-ofstate visitors into the city. The festivities opened with a parade Feb. 25 and will continue through Moriday. On one day, 36,000 persons visited the livestock show to hear, see and smell the hundreds of cattle being jud ged on the hoof.

Six thousands of them arrived on horses after spending days on the trail, winding into the city from several different directions. Some of them rode, or attempted to ride, 600 m lles, roughing, it in the suburban

In Houston they were met by a "horspitality committee" to help them get established

Each spring the nations fifth most populous city "returns to its frontier heritage," the promotion brochures

It's called "Go Texan Days," and people really do dress for it. It is not uncommon to see a businessman decked out in denim, carrying his briefcase to a broad meeting. "Once again Houston belongs to the horse," says one of the brochures, and there was plenty of visible evidence of that during the parade in downtown Houston opening day, when hundreds of horses filled the city streets.

Of course, not all of those who pour into the city ride horses. Some travel in sleek motorhomes equipped with color TV, bars, quadrophonic sound systems, hot water, deep nap rugs, air conditioning, heat, generators and other luxuries of life that do not resemble the old West.

There used to be a good bit of carousing on the trail rides but the riders are strictly supervised these days. Today the rules stipulate there must be "no public drinking or display of beer cans" while riding, and riders are admonished to "look

Many ranching women, such as Mrs. Dial from Tree X Ranch, take part in the livestock shows and the rodeos. It was her Brahman cow that rested in its own four-poster bed after it won the grand national championship, and before the livestock show started here in Houston.

"It's worth the publicity," Mrs. Dial said, adding that the cow's calves are worth $25,000 apiece. That's not all that is expensive during livestock and rodeo days.

The Western apparel stores are beseiged by cowboys and cowgirls looking for fancy duds such as "the ultimate alligator boot," which cost $1,000 a pair. A salesman at Cutter Bill Western World said 40 pair of the "ultimates" were sold.

The livestock and rodeo show also abounds with stands selling everything from beef jerky to cow herns, and there are also dozens of publications to keep the visitors up to date on livestock and cowboying, ranging from the Weekly Livestock Reporter to the Christian Ranchman.

The Christian Ranchman is edited by the Rev. Ted. A. Pressley, an ordained minister and former ranchmanager, horsetrainer and rodeo

It was Mr. Pressley who organized 'Cowboys For Christ.

The parade that brought the trail riders into Houston this year was headed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe who owns a million or so acres of ranchland in West Texas. But to the surprise of many, Briscoe rode into town not on a horse, but in a powder blue Continental sedan, wearing a pinstripe suit and pearl grev stetson. don't have to prove I'm a cowboy." the governor said. It's true that some traditions are, dying out, as represented by the growing use of motor homes on the trail rides, the increasing use of dull rather than sharp spurs, cowboys who wear silver sunglasses to block glare and who sport feathers and swizzle sticks in their cowboy hatbands.

Some of the richest prizes in the world are offered at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo

The livestock shows hold the world record for prices paid for junior market animals - $50,000 for a steer. $23,000 for a barrow, $10,000 for a turkey and $10,000 for a pen of five broilers.

It was 9-year-old Adam Facundo of Kyle, Tex., who received $10,000 last year for his five chickens - also a world record price. He had paid $1 apiece for them

In fact, some of the hottest competition and biggest prizes take place in the junior livestock showings.

About 12,000 youngsters from across Texas are taking part in the junior showings that began Tuesday. Livestock show and rodeo profits are used to fund 132 scholarships for college level students, the majority of them four-year $4,000 awards divided between 4H and FFA members.

Detroit tops income-wise

DETROIT (AP) - Defroit has earned a reputation as a good place to work, according to a survey conducted by a national news magazine.

The study showed the annual income of the average factory worker in Detroit to be $16,310, compared with the national average of $10,818. Among the top 10 cities in the nation, no other city came within $4,000 or reached 75 per cent of the Detroit average, reports the U.S. News and World Report survey.

This was pure foolishness. If North had bid only three spades, South would have gone on to game. What's more, he should have made it.

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Sam Cahnmann won't be a lawyer for at least another year, but he may get a chance to argue before the U.S. Supreme Court on why he should be allowed to run for the city council.

The 22-year-old University of Illinois law student filed an appeal this week asking the high court to review a suit he filed in 1975 after he was told he couldn't run for Urbana city councilman.

"Even though I wasn't a law student at the time, my first reaction was 'There must be something unconstitutional about this," Cahnmann said of the state's one-year residency requirement that kept him off the ballot

If the Supreme Court hears the case, which contends the state law violates the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution's 14th Amendment, Cahnmann says he will act as before the Supreme Court. Although the high court hears only a fraction of the cases that are appealed, Cahnmann thinks he may stand a chance because "there have been contradictory rulings in 13 federal court cases similar to mine. "And I think maybe the court will have sympathy for my case because the facts make it look particularly inequitable," he added. When Cahnmann filed his nominating petitions in late 1974, he Jackson says his chapter would also like to organize a crime prevention unit similar to one operated by the chapter at the Enfield prison farm. That would send inmates into the community to talk about crime and how to avoid becoming a criminal.

Last year the Somers chapter ranked in the top 15 of the 103 Jaycee chapters in Connecticut, according to Roland Violette, Jaycees district director with responsibility for the prison unit

Violette says the chapter had gone downhill early last year, so much so that the warden refused to meet with inmate Jaycees or allow Violette to visit the prison.
