Death toll hits 562 in 'worst air crash'

Canary Islands (AP) - The Spanish air ministry said today the death toll from the fiery collision here of Pan American and KLM jumbo jets had climbed to 562 in history's worst aviation disaster.

There were conflicting reports on the cause of Sunday's collision. One report quoted airport sources as saying a misunderstanding by the American Pan Am pilot may have been a factor. But Spanish officials told a news conference the "key point of the investigation" was whether the KLM jet had permission to take off.

Officials said 72 persons survived the collision of the two Boeing 747s on the fog-shrouded runway. All the plane, and 11 were listed in very serious or grave condition. All 239 on the Dutch plane were killed. "The whole (American) plane was on fire and people were crying and screaming trying to get out," said James Naik, 37, of Cupertino, Calif. "Within just a few seconds the metal started to come apart."

The Spanish news agency Cifra

uoted airport sources as saying the flight recorder from the American plane showed the airport control tower had ordered Pan American pilot, Capt. Victor Grubbs of Cen-terport, N.Y., to move onto the main runway. The sources said the U.S. plane apparently misunderstood the order and taxied onto another runway where the KLM plane was taking off, Cifra said.

But Manuel de Prado, president of the Spanish national airline Iberia, said the KLM plane had been ordered to taxi to the end of the main runway, turn 18 degrees and prepare for takeoff. The Pan Am plane was told to follow down the runway and turn off onto a taxiway.

De Prado said he did not know whether the KLM plane had per-point of the investigation," said Tenerife Gov. Antonio Oyarzabal. Asked about a possible language problem, a spokesman for the control tower said the controllers talk to air crews exclusively in English.

In New York, a Pan American spokesman said the airline expected "anything substantive" concerning the cause of the collision to come from a U.S. government investigating team sent to the crash site "and anything else we view with concern."

Cifra quoted Grubbs, who was hospitalized at the Santa Cruz General Hospital, as saying he was taxiing down the main runway at the time of the collision.

"The crew saw nothing right up to the moment of impact," Grubb said. The Dutch pilot died in the fiery collision, along with the 238 other persons aboard, KLM said. Most of them were Dutch. Investigators were en route to Tenerife from the United States, the Spanish mainland and the Netherlands to try to determine the cause of the collision. The U.S. Em-

Brezhnev attacks U.S. support of dissidents

By KENNETH J. FREED

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev opened nuclear arms talks with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance today with a warning that American support of dissidents in Russia could undermine U.S.-Soviet

Brezhnev's comments at the closeddoor opening session were reported by U.S. officials and the Soviet news

Carter's public support of Soviet \said Vance read a formal paper dissidents, Brezhnev was quoted saying U.S. policy does not "square with the principles of equality and noninterference in the internal affairs of each other.'

He said this could make a "constructive development of relations between the two countries ... impossible."

Vance's spokesman, Hodding Carter, said the secretary did not respond to Brezhnev's remarks. He

Carter due to ask tax on bottles

Washington Post WASHINGTON — President Carter is expected to ask Congress for a tax on disposable bottles and cans as a way of discouraging the one-time use of containers and the waste of energy that goes into their manufacture.

The President is also expected to ask for a tax on virgin glass and metal that go into the manufacture of disposable bottles and cans as a further means of discouraging their

Along the same lines, he is said to be considering a tax reduction for manufacturers who use recycled materials to make containers.

White House sources said these proposals would be included in President Carter's environmental message to the nation, scheduled to be delivered Thursday. The message may be postponed, even though environmental aides worked Saturday and Sunday to get it ready in time.

Aides say the disposable-container taxes are almost sure to be in the President's message, while other proposals are still being discussed. At least three drafts of the message have been written, with the possibility that at least three more drafts will be written before a final draft reaches the Oval Office.

"The President hasn't seen it, Cabinet officers haven't seen it and even sub-Cabinet officers haven't seen it," one source on the White House Domestic Council said Sunday. "We hate to have the environmental message coming out close to the energy message (due April 20), but we may have no choice but to delay the environmental message until sometime next week."

One reason for the delay is that proposals included in early drafts of the message have been either removed or rewritten to reflect more realistic goals. Early drafts also have been broadened in the last two weeks to get more balance in the message.

Besides taxing disposable con-tainers, President Carter is likely in his environmental message to voice strong support for extending the jurisdiction of the Corps of Engineers over national wetlands.

first Brezhnev-Vance session went about as expected. Brezhnev's statement was reinforced later in the day in a luncheon toast by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. He referred to statement of principles agreed to by Brezhnev and then-President Richard M. Nixon in which both sides agreed on the need for equality and "non-interference in internal affairs of each other.' Gromyko said the United States confirmed these principles when it signed the final declaration on European security and cooperation in Helsinki in 1975. If good relations between

Washington and Moscow are to develop, Gromyko went on, they must adhere to these principles. "It would be a serious mistake to think otherwise," he said. Once again, Vance made no direct reference to human rights in his answering toast. After expressing his gratitude for the welcome he had received, the secretary spoke of the need to continue "the quest of reducing the threat of war and curbing the arms race. Before the meeting with Brezhnev began, he and Vance posed for photographers and exchanged the pleasantries.

"I bring you the warmest regards from President Carter," Vance responded. "I send him my heartfelt good

Bond issue would create facility similar to YMCA for Midlanders

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

For approximately $1.2 million, Midlanders who don't belong to the Midland YMCA will have public access to a similar facility, said Robert Thomson, director of the Midland Parks and Recreation Department.

First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave.

The center has an arts and erafts program, catered luncheons every Wednesday and a library, "but we do not have any kitchen facility," said Marge Holland, director of the center.

"We would like a large facility we could use when we have special functions," she added. At a special dinner for senior citizens last May at the center, some 90 people were served - but it was under crowded conditions, she said.

"It certainly is not adequate, but we have managed as best we could with what we have."

The proposed area for senior citizens in the recreation center would have a kitchen, meeting area, storage facility, office and restrooms. The current center even lacks a convenient restroom facility, Mrs. said. She estimates the present facility has only about 1,000 square feet.

Thomson said the city manager's office has estimated that passage of the $1.2 million issue would cost city property owners $7.50 on a house with a market value of $40,000.

Based on current assessments, the city tax rate of $1.14 per $100 of assessed valutation would have 15.1 cents added by passing all four bond issues on the ballot. Passage of the $1.2 million issue would add 2.5 cents.

These figures, however, would not necessarily mean that property tax rates would have to increase, City Manager James Brown said, because of increased assessments.

Nixon's appeal asked the court to overturn a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington that the tapes "are no longer confidential" and that copies may be released to the

The ex-president's arguments in the lower court lost out to those of the three television networks, public television, a news directors' association and a recording company which want the tapes made available. In a 2-1 decision last October, the circuit court rejected Nixon's arguments that the tapes' release would invade his privacy and prove embarrassing to him.

"The embarrassment Mr. Nixon fears is not republication of highly personal matters," the court said. The tapes, transcripts of which were highly publicized during the Watergate trial of John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson, are of conversations within the White House Oval Office.

If released, the tapes would let the public hear for the first time the voices of Nixon and the Watergate figures discussing the scandal - the tones and inflections of voice used by each man. Filing suit last year to have the tapes released were Warner Communications, National Broadcasting American Broadcasting Co., CBS, the Public Broadcasting Service and the Radio-Television News

Directors Association. Warner indicated the desire to reproduce the tapes as phonograph records and cassettes.

Attorneys for Nixon argued thatsuch reproductions would be 'played at cocktail parties and in satiric productions, and ... be exploited in any other fashion."

Nixon's attorneys also argued that release of the tapes could prove harmful to Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, who are appealing their Watergate convictions.

On Jan. 11, atttrneys for the networks and other companies seeking the tapes submitted a proposal to U.S. Dist. Judge John J. Sirica which envisions the National Archives selling one-hour tape casettes for $3.75 to $5.75, depending on tape for 40 years in the personal papers of Col. Mark Kimberling, warden at Trenton State Prison in the mid-1930s.

It presents no new evidence but may serve to revive doubts about Hauptmann's guilt which have cir-culated since he died in the electric chair on April 2, 1936.

Hauptmann spent 14 months on death row at the prison and was executed there for the murder of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., infant son of Col. Charles Lindbergh, the national hero who made the first trans-Atlantic flight in 1927.

Hauptmann gave the letter, written in German, to Kimberling, and asked him to send it to his mother Pauline in Kamenz, Geroany, near Dresden, and give a translation to then-Gov. Harold Hoffman.

There is no record whether Hoffman saw the letter. But according to an attached note, Kimberling decided not to mail it because it "might receive some press comment over in Germany, which might result in some unfavorable reaction, or, at least in placing us in an embarrassing position for having released it from state prison."

Copies of the letter were obtained by The Associated Press and The New York Daily News.

Hauptmann said he "was condemned without having the slightest idea of the crime."

County officials to view proposed site for plant

Midland County Judge Barbara Culver and members of the commissioners court plan to visit a proposed site of a sewage treatment plant for the City of Odessa, to be located within Midland County.

Odessa City Council last week authorized the city staff to begin negotiations with the owners of the land, southwest of Air Terminal. The 640 acres under consideration is about five miles from the present Odessa plant and is described as section 3, block 41, T-3-S.

The land is owned by Eloise Waters "and others" and is handled through the tax consultants of Kirkwood and Darby of Fort Worth, said Elmo Linebarger, Midland County tax assessor-collector.

The proposed purchase of the Midland County land would be a private business deal between Odessa and the land owners, Judge Culver

Midland County would not have any control over the specifications for the proposed plant, she said, because Texas counties do not have ordinancemaking powers.

The plant would have to be approved and operated according to state law, said O. E. "Lefty" Martin, city-county health unit sanitarian. The State Water Pollution Control Board would have to issue a permit to the plant, and which then would have to meet state pollution control requirements, Martin said.

Odessa officials already have had the land appraised at $135 per acre, making the total value $86,400. The entire cost of the project is estimated to be $16 million.

However, the airport at Santa Cruz was closed by stormy weather today. All flights were landing at Las Palmas, on Grand Canary island, and those who could not wait were taking a 50-mile ferry ride to get to Tenerife.

Police and medical workers worked through the storm recovering the shattered remains and trying to identify them. Bodies were being piled in an airport hangar.

Pan American said its flight carried 396, including 364 passengers who boarded in Los Angeles, 14 who boarded in New York; a crew of 16 and two other Pan Am employes. The airline said six crew members in addition to Capt. Grubbs were among the survivors.

KLM said most of its passengers were Dutch.

Both planes were bound for Las Palmas, on Grand Canary island 50 miles away, but had been diverted to Tenerife because of a bomb explosion in the flower shop of the Las Palmas airport. A Canary Islands separatist movement claimed responsibility for the bombing, in which eight persons were injured, one of them critically.

The accident occurred at about 4:40 p.m. in a fog that eyewitnesses said cut visibility on the runway to less than 60 feet. Spokesmen for the two airlines said both planes were preparing to take off for Grand Canary, the Pan Am plane taxiing and the KLM plane making its takeoff run at about 150 miles an hour.

A decline depends partly on whether a "sizable" number of European and U.S. coffee drinkers cut back on the amount they consume this year, said William C. Bowser.

An Agriculture Department report last week said, "Total coffee consumption in the United States has remained virtually unchanged since World War II, despite an expanding population, a growing economy and

Zaire troops withdraw from base

The Los Angeles Times

KINSHASA, Zaire - Government soldiers abandoned their forward operational base in Shaba Province as Katanga invaders continued their advance toward Zaire's economic hotline, intelligence sources said Sunday

The temporary base at Mutshatsha had been manned by only 170 or so Zairian soldiers and its reported fall late Friday was significant primarily because it brought the invaders closer to Kolwezi, the heart of the rich copper mining district. The base apparently was abandoned with little rising real income."

In the same period, that study said, the consumption per person has dropped 40 per cent. But, it said, price hasn't had anything to do with that for decline, according to Bowser's article today in Foreign Agriculture Magazine, are:

-A harvest of between 16 and 18 million bags this year in Brazil, which supplies a third of the beans moving in world trade. -August comes and goes without further frost damage to the existing Brazilian coffee trees. -Based on the flowering of those trees and the setting of the beans in December, the outlook for Brazil's 1978 crop is "highly favorable." -No further production problems in the other major coffee growing areas, such as coffee leaf rust disease in Central America.

He implied that U.S. wholesalers and retailers wouldn't hold prices at high levels to recover any current losses of profit on coffee.

A frost in 1915 1976 harvest in Brazil, the world's largest coffee grower, and the amount of coffee produced fell below demand. The difference can be made up from existing stockpiles held by Brazil. But fears of a shortage in the future and producing countries' demands for more money drove up the price of coffee almost immediately after the tripling of consumer coffee prices.

Old sketches may help find Victorio Peak gold

Sketches made of Victorio Peak nearly 40 years ago are helping space age electronics locate a cavern that legend says contains a fabulous hoard

But searchers said before they use the information they must dig through 33 feet of dirt at the bottom of a shaft from the top of the mountain. They said they couldn't do that until rainsoaked roads and peaks dried.

A search spokesman said radar tracings the past week nearly match the old sketches.

The man conducting the tests, Lambert Dolphin, said most of the other claims of where the legendary treasure was located didn't check out.

"The only mystery left is the Noss shaft," he said.

Ova Noss, first wife of the man who claimed to have found the gold in 1937 said, "I've always said that if they want to get to the treasure they should use the same route DOC Noss used."

The search on restricted White Sands Missile Range was cancelled Saturday because of a steady rain. Early Sunday morning military police turned back state officials and newsmen from the dirt road that leads to the peak because mud made it impassable

The Army, which granted a 10-day permit for the hunt to Expeditions Unlimited Inc., extended the search one day, through Tuesday, and said officers would consider a second oneday extension since Sunday's search also was cancelled.

Bell system accused The other prerequisites for a price of overcharging users

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bell System was accused by a spokesman for its competitors today of overcharging home and business telephone users by $2.25 billion a year to make up huge losses in an attempt to eliminate competition.

The charge was made in testimony prepared for the Senate Communications subcommittee by Edwin Stievack, general counsel of the North American Telephone Association, whose nearly 400 member firms sell telephones, computerized switchboards and other phone equipment.

The subcommittee, with several new members, is holding a series of far-ranging hearings looking at all aspects of telecommunications.

Stievack said, "The result of Bell's pricing some terminal equipment below even the cost of raw materials has been an overcharge to residential average more than $20 for every main telephone subscriber in the nation." He said his estimate of Bell losses from underpric ng was drawn from records at the Federal Communications Commission and state regulatory bodies, most notably New York's Public Service Commission.

The New York commission "found Bell's charges for terminal equipment were far below costs," Stievack said. "The commission found Bell underpricing terminal equipment by $225 million a year. Other commissions have found similar evidence and the FCC says the pattern may well be national" at a cost of $2.25 billion annually.

He noted that New York has ordered Bell to raise its rates for terminal equipment in that state and said some other states are moving in the same direction.

"The burden of this evidence is that

Bell's claim that business services subsidize home telephone subscribers at lower-than-cost rates is faise," Stievack said. "This point is crucial in the whole case for competition, since Bell insists that monopoly is the only way to insure continuance of the alleged monopoly. The alternative, Bell reports, is the 75 per cent rise in residential rates.

Stievack said a drive in Congress by AT&T to stifle competition would drive up consumer bills rather than reduce them. Stievack said that if all terminal equipment in the Bell System were provided by Bell the cost to consumers by 1980 would be $1.4 billion more than if half of such new equipment were to come from competitors.

"The additional capital needed and the expansion of the rate base upon which home and business telephones are figured would grow sharply if competition is eliminated," Stievack said. "If there is only a 50 per cent penetration of the new terminal equipment market by competition, it will save $1.4 billion, or by more than $13 for every main station telephone expected to be on line by 1980."

He said the saving to ratepayers would come because Bell's competitors sell or lease their equipment directly to consumers. But Bell, he said, rents its equipment, which remains part of the Bell System and thus part of the rate base used by regulators to determine maximum subscriber rates and thus profits for Bell stockholders.

Stievack said competition has created at least 27,000 new jobs within U.S. firms competing with Bell and that AT&T has stepped up production of terminal equipment to meet competition-fostered demand.

Radium Springs, where Expeditions Unlimited is headquartered in a rambling, old resort hotel, few of the searchers were out of bed early

The hotel's dining room normally does not open until 9 a.m., but Sam Scott Jr., nephew of search leader Norman Scott, made coffee for newsmen and dutifully collected 30 cents a cup.

He told reporters the expedition ac-quired the old sketches of the caverns from Mrs. Noss.

He said ground radar scans so far bear out the sketches, and that if the Noss story holds after excavation and more tests, "then I should think it's pretty conclusive that something's down there — and still is."

Scott said such evidence may be grounds to ask the military for more

Dolphin, who heads a Stanford Research Institute team, said the sketches - which he said were made by persons untrained in geology — "are consistent with what the mountain could be, consistent with the geology of the area."

'There's nothing that's wild or far out," he said. He said the shaft, which is more than 150 feet deep, should lead to a limestone layer in the peak where he will conduct ground radar tests. "The rock below (the limestone) is crumbly and wouldn't support a cavern. If there's no cavern or cave there (in the limestone), there won't be one anywhere," he said. Scott said workers were ready with new timbers to shore up the first 50 feet of the shaft, but could not get them up the mountain in the mud.

After the shoring work the ex-pedition was planning to get two people with shovels into the bottom of the shaft to dig through the fill.

Scott said that work is going to be cramped and dusty. Searchers estimate the men will have to send 900 buckets of dirt up the shaft to dump at the 100-foot level, where a winch built by Noss still stands.

He could not estimate how long the excavation would take, but said Mrs. Noss has provided searchers "all the information we need" once workers get past the fill.

Excavation work also is under way on the north side of the peak to get radar into a cavern called the Dome Room and allow scans from that The searchers' first area of ex-cavation, Soldier's Hole, leads to the Dome Room, but the opening is not large enough to get radar through, Scott said. A former Air Force captain entered Soldier's Hole in 1958 and said he found metal bars in the Ring Room,

But Leonard Fiege, now 47, could not get through the narrow passage into the Dome Room to verify his previous route, "so we have no first hand account," Scott said.

He said the Ring Room is not the original location of the fabled gold, since Noss said he wandered for 2,700 feet before stumbling onto a large room that contained stacks of bullion. gold coins, artifacts and 27 skeletons tied to stakes.

Scott said anything found in the Ring Room may be bars stashed there by Noss.

Searchers have abandoned ex-cavations at Soldier's Hole and two other sites, Bat Cave and Donkey's

Eyeglass ad ban ignored by Texas firm

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) Directors of the Oklahoma Optometric Association have decided to urge the Oklahoma County district attorney's office to prosecute a Texasbased optical company that is advertising eyeglass prices in Oklahoma.

The president-elect of the optometrists, Lloyd Peck, said board members directed the association's lawyer to meet with representatives of the district attorney this week.

A bill to legalize eyeglass advertising in Oklahoma is pending in the state Legislature, but Mayfair Associates of Dallas, which owns Lee Optical Co. in Oklahoma, is ignoring the current ban and advertising in Oklahoma City and Lawton

A lawyer for Lee Optical, George Miskovsky, said Lee will "resist any effort on the part of the optometrists to enforce this law because it is violation of the First Amendment.

Proposed meeting bill said open for abuse

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - There is too much potential for abuse in an amendment to the Open Meetings Act that would allow discussion of certain items without posting notice, a gcommon Cause spokesman said

Bill Emory told the House State Affairs Committee the prohibition against taking action on unposted items is insufficient protection.

The amendment, by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, would permit governmental agencies to discuss subjects brought up by someone in attendance at the meeting or matters dealing with internal administration or existing governmental policy.

Emory said a city council, for example, could discuss a subject at one meeting without posting notice on it, then at the next meeting "having a very quick deliberation and then voting on it."

Emory said he would not object to an amendment that would allow

But Rep. Bill Blythe, D-Houston, suggested a council member could use a friend as a plant at the meeting in order to discuss unposted items.

Dick Brown, executive director of the Texas Municipal League, said the amendment is needed to handle situations where irate citizens want to make a protest.

Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, agreed, suggesting council members need to be able to respond to a citizen who asks such questions as, "I want to know what you're going to do about mowing the grass in the park."

Brown said, "No doubt there will be those who will oppose this bill because they see it as the camel's nose under the tent.

The committee also raised state funding of driver education by $6.8 million over the next two years, raising the amount per student from $45 to $65. Present funding is based on $25 per student up to one-fourth of the enrollment in grades 10-12.

State associations of school administrators and school boards are lobbying for less property tax relief on the ground that the money should be used to provide better schools.

An opposing view came last week from the Texas Research League. The League said Texas ranks owned by business. Reducing the local share of the state-subsidized Foundation School Program "channels for most relief to property-rich districts where business property holdings are concentrated. The league, a business-financed organization, said it would be more effective to center property tax relief efforts "on classes of individuals alleged to be overburdened" than to provide blanket relief.

"At first, I used to tell people I was just lucky. But that's not really all true. From my position as payroll clerk, I could see this company was in good shape. I knew it was a good investment. I'm not a gambler.'

Parsons also got a promotion — to office manager and purchasing agent of Vermont Industrial Products, a VAG subsidiary.

The venture began New Year's Eve, 1974, when GAF announced it would close the mine March 15. The prospect was bleak for 180 employes, half of whom had worked here 20 years or more.

Lupien stepped forward with an idea. The workers should buy the mine. It didn't go over big among these Vermonters at first, few of whom had ever owned stock. Even Lupien, a French-Canadian with three semesters of electrical engineering in college, hardly qualified as a financial wizard.

But he persuaded every single miner to buy at least one share. It was either buy the mine or be out of a job.

Case involving missing

GLENVIEW, Ill. (AP) - Helen Voorhees Brach is a 65-year-old widow and heir to a candy fortune.

She has been missing for 38 days.
"Maybe she's suffering from amnesia, maybe she's been abducted,

"I've got a handful of nothing, every lead I've had has fizzled," said Ernest Rizzo, a private investigator hired by the Brach family. "I can't make a case for foul play and I can't make a case that's she's all right. The pieces don't fit either way.'

Police said Mrs. Brach - the widow of former Brach Candy chairman Frank Brach - never arrived in Florida and no dlights were scheduled

Since then, investigators have searched her 17-acre estate, talked with all her known friends and relations

The president's address opening the new Parliament was written by Desai and his advisers. It hit hard at former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, whom Desai and his allies ousted from both office and Parliament in the general election a week ago, and her 30year-old son Sanjay's bid for power during his mother's 21 months of authoritarian emergency rule

"The people," said Jatti, "have given a clear verdict in favor of individual freedom, democracy and the rule of law and against executive arbitrariness, the emergence of a personality cult and extraconstitutional centers of power.'

Sanjay also was the target of some 125 members of his mother's Congress party in both houses of Parliament and state legislatures. They demanded his expulsion from the party along with three former cabinet members closely associated with him, and there were calls also for the resignation of Congress party president Dev Kant Borooah.

This little tag can help you save on energy costs in a big way.

E-OK is a term Texas Electric Service Company is giving to homes that are certified energy efficient. Homes that can use a lot less energy than most other homes.

E-OK homes have more insulation, sealed windows, weatherstripped doors, and more efficient lighting, heating and cooling equipment. E-OK homes can offer significant savings on your energy costs.

You can spot these homes all over town by the blue and orange E-OK tag on windows, yard signs, doorbell identification and framed certificates. Look for them. E-OK tells you that builders, along with Texas Electric, are concerned about saving electric energy and saving you money.

An E-OK home is one that has been thoroughly checked by our customer representatives several times during construction. It will not only save you money year after year, it will also be more comfortable. Why? Because of more effective heating and cooling, and also because it's quieter.

An E-OK home doesn't have to be a new home either. With certain modifications, you can make your present home more energy efficient. Should you later decide to move you could have a higher resale value from an E-OK home. Lower energy bills are quickly becoming a very big selling point.

To learn all about an E-OK home and how it can be certified energy efficient, call Texas Electric for our free booklet. Or request one on the comment portion of your electric service bill.

Press responsibility

John Connally, former U.S. Treasury secretary, said in a Houston address recently that the press is one of the nation's most powerful institutions today and as such has the duty "to educate with a candid bias for the preservation" of the American economic system.

The former governor of Texas was addressing a large crowd of journalists, attorneys and public relations officials, and, as usual, he didn't pull any punches in his observations.

"I submit that the press, which enjoys such privileges in our society, has a responsibility to perpetuate this society as we treasure it," he said.

"I ask you where the press would be if it were not for the American system.

"It would be under some form of restraint from the government, up to and including the chains of intellectual slavery."

"It seems to be," Connally continued, "that the press is like a maverick passenger in a lifeboat, which bears all of us, keeps us out of the tyrannical waters of lost freedoms, including freedom of the press.

"Yet, through some sort of distorted logic, the press seems dedicated to kicking holes in the ship of state, rather than trying to make it more seaworthy."

Connally made it clear that should this nation's present economic system collapse, "we will surrender our personal freedom," including freedom of the press, "right along with our economic freedom, because the two are Siamese twins."

He went on to explain that the basic commitment of American society has been to rely on individual action and that the press "is obligated to help the American people understand that commitment and to understand further that opting in favor of governmental action as opposed to the free actions of individuals is not a choice without cost."

He said the press wields power "equivalent to the presidency, the Congress and the Supreme Court."

Although the press has as much power as the government, there is "no real mechanism for checking possible abuse by the media, except the responsible attitude and self-discipline of those in the media," Connally stated.

This is where a responsible press comes into the picture. This is something which any newspaper worth its salt strives diligently to be - responsible.

Connally then laid it on the line in outlining four areas in which the press "can oppress:" "The misleading or damaging headline ... - "The technique of page makeup which gives magnified attention to a story. "The quiet but deadly technique of a benign neglect or burial of a story.

- "The more serious matter of the growing volume of news reporting on serious subjects by reporters and writers with superficial understanding of the subject."

The former state and federal government official has had his share of dealing with the press of the state and nation, including the more liberal Eastern press, over a long period of time, and he has witnessed the good and the bad in news coverage, particularly of government happenings. There is little if any doubt he would fight to the finish for a free and responsible press and against secrecy in government.

He is for good, responsible government, just as is the responsible press.

The press today does have increased responsibilities along the lines of which Connally was speaking, and it is felt that the responsible press in a vast majority of cases is striving to fulfill its obligations to society in

KNOW YOUR HEMISPHERE:

Some Latins question impartiality of U.S.

By WILLIAM GIANDIONI Copley News Service

The United States' friends in Latin America seem to think that President Carter ought to tone down his talk about human rights.

They say the Carter administration's open criticism of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and other countries smacks of U.S. intervention in their internal affairs.

What is more, when Washington's outspoken comments on Latin America are contrasted with its apologetic approach to the Soviet Union, it also appears that the United States is discriminating against its hemisphere neighbors.

On one recent day, for example, interested Latin newspapers carried story from Washington reporting that subsecretary of state, Warren Christopher, just returned from Brazil, had said that the promotion of human rights is now an integral part of U.S. foreign policy.

Some of the same editions also printed an item from Geneva, Switzerland, reporting that the U.S. delegate, Allard Lowenstein, had backed down on his request that the U.N. Human Rights Commission ask the Soviet Union for information on the fate of dissidents in that country. Lowenstein's withdrawal came after the Soviet delegate protested 'furiously," the dispatches said, that the United States was endangering detente and using cold war tactics. The next day, Brady Tyson, one of Lowenstein's advisers, addressed the U.N. group and voiced profoundest regrets for the part he said the United States played in subverting the Marxist government of the late President Salvador Allende of Chile.

The fact that President Carter disavowed Tyson's statement only emphasized the impression in Latin America that there is confusion within the executive branch of the U.S. government on the human rights

As Latins see it, the United States is applying a double standard in its foreign policy.

The Carter administration spares the Soviet Union and its satellites, like Cuba, the embarrassment of sharp questioning about human rights violations, and yet harasses Latin American governments that are trying to fight off organized, internationally supported Marxist terrorists, for lesser offenses.

A recent editorial in the Mexican government newspaper, El Nacional, is typical of Latin America's increasing doubts about U.S. policy.

El Nacional lauded Mr. Carter's avowed desire to improve U.S. relations with Latin America, including Cuba.

But, the paper added, "unhappily the policy undertaken in defense of human rights looms as a pretext for intervention in the internal affairs of other countries...Carter's concern for respect for those rights might lead to the implantation of new 'big stick' (policy) for the nations of Latin America."

Clearly, Latin Americans, in-cluding the Marxists, were surprised by the U.S. vote in Geneva in favor of the latest U.N. condemnation of Chile. In the past, the United States has abstained on such measures.

Furthermore, dispatches from the Swiss capital said that U.S. delegate Tyson was one of the coauthors of the resolution that condemned the Chilean military junta for the "institutionalized practice of torture."

The condemnation was approved by a 26-1 vote, with Uruguay casting the negative ballot. Four of the five abstentions were Latin American -Peru, Costa Rica, Ecuador and Panama.

If nothing else, Latin America's apparent solidarity on the human rights issue should give the Carter administration some cause to rethink its policy toward the other American republics. It also might question the quality of the advice it is getting from pressure groups whose goal is construction of socialism in Latin

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WASHINGTON - The U.S. government is making a last-ditch attempt to nab that elusive financial escapes forever. The Carter Administration is actively considering another try at extraditing Vesco from his palatial villa in Costa Rica, according to government sources. But time is running out. Confidential State Dept. cables warn that Vesco will be eligible for Costa Rican citizenship in a few onths, thus effectively making him immune to extradition.

The financial outlaw evaded the U.S. government after it botched an attempt to extradite him in 1973. A new extradition law making it nearly impossible to seize Vesco was promptly pushed through in Costa Rica by then President Jose "Don Pepe" Figueres.

Figueres was grateful to the financier for helping to bail out both his government and his faltering personal businesses. But the "Vesco Law" was repealed after the current president, Daniel Oduber, took office. The United States now has until July 1 to extradite the brazen Vesco before he becomes a Costa Rican citizen.

In a confidential dispatch last September, then U.S. Ambassador Terence Todman reported that the Costa Ricans were becoming embarrassed by Vesco. President Oduber, the cable noted, now feels 'that he can act against Vesco without alienating former President Figueres." Oduber also wants to "deflate the corruption issue" and put an end to "Costa Rican disgust with the image Vesco brings to their

R. L. Vesco may escape forever

Concluded the cable: "If we are ever to convince the Costa Ricans that we have been serious about the Vesco case, we must be prepared to move on short notice with a well prepared extradition request."

VESCO: TAKE TWO - The millionaire fugitive is also the star of another controversy. A documentary film about Vesco that could have been embarrassing to the Ford administration was swiped from a Hollywood studio just two weeks before the 1976 election. Vesco alleges on the film that he was promised a pardon by President Ford, but that it was denied because of the furor over the pardon of Richard Nixon. The film suggests that U.S. officials are afraid to extradite Vesco because he might sink some politicians with verbal broadsides. Had he returned during the presidential campaign, Vesco says on the film, it would have created a "helluva mess." He calls this secret storehouse of knowledge his "life insurance.

"When Robert Vesco first arrived in Costa Rica, he liked the country so much he decided to buy it," says the film's narrator. This is echoed on the film by Capt. A. L. Eisenhauer, Vesco's former pilot and the author of a new book about Vesco, "The Flying Carpetbagger."

Also interviewed was the editor of the now defunct Costa Rican newspaper El Diario, who claimed his editorial attacks on Vesco caused the Costa Rican government to withdraw its advertising and thus forced his paper into bankruptcy.

The film, financed by the Mexican TV network Televisa, was spirited away by Televisa representatives shortly after a preview in New York City. "If you show this film before the (U.S. election) it would look as though Mexico is trying to interfere in U.S. politics," a Televisa representative reportedly explained to a newsman. Officially, however, a Televisa official insisted to our associate, Gary Cohn, that they took back the film and suppressed it, not because of politics, but "because of enornous cost overruns.'

WAR COLLEGE - A private military think tank, financed by defense contractors and oil companies, is being built on federal land at the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

The conservative Civilian Military Institute bills itself as an open forum for the military and society. But it enjoys a cozy relationshiip with the Air Force Academy, which will lease the group part of its new multimilliondollar visitors center.

The institute is being funded by defense contractors such as Rockwell International, which kicked in $250,000. Other sugar daddies include beer magnate William Coors, General Electric, Texaco, Standard Oil of Indiana, the Midwest Oil Foundation, and retired oil tycoon Arthur Johnson, who contributed $400,000.

The trustees of the supposedly private institute include Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and six top brass hats from the Air Force, Army and Navy. Civilian members include Air Force Academy president William Tutt, Pan Am chairman William Sewell, and former Secretary of State Dean Rusk. At a recent symposium, Rusk sees no problem with money coming from Pentagon contractors as long as the military men don't solicit them.

HOME, JAMES - President Carter's ban on linousines for government officials doesn't extend to Capitol Hill, where the taxpayers are shelling out more than $70,000 a year for congressional bigwigs.

Limousines and chauffeurs are provided for Sens. James Eastland, D.-Miss., Hubert Humphrey, D. Minn., Robert Byrd, D.-W. Va., and Howard Baker, R.-Tenn. Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, D.-Mass., and Reps. Jim Wright, D.-Tex., and John Rhodes, R.-Ariz., also have cars at their service.

INSIDE REPORT:

Why not sacrifice a few environmentalist scruples?

By HOWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The nagging question for President Carter a month before his energy message to the nation is whether political success in avoiding confrontation with passionate environmentalists over nuclear and coal production will yield political failure in providing the na tion's energy needs.

Contrary to Mr. Carter's warnings of painful sacrifices ahead, there is no intent of radical energy conservation that would change the American way of life. Consequently, to become invulnerable to a future oil embargo requires the production of much more eriergy from coal and nuclear But coal can nuclear power are ces. But coal and nuclear power are taboos for environmentalists who backed Jimmy Carter for President and are now strategically placed in his administration. The Carter answer is to appease the environmentalists with prestigious government jobs and conservation measures, while at the same time going slow on the nuclear and coal programs. But is the President going too slow? Those who say yes, mainly in industry, are privately telling energy czar James Schlesinger that the plan now forming may not even put a dent in the frightening energy

Final decisions on Mr. Carter's first major program are not yet in con-crete. Nor do those who have read sketchy first drafts of the President's message feel it approaches the clarion call to action that they want. What's more, decision-makers and speech-drafters must confine themselves to two unspoken political realities that circumscribe Mr. Carter on energy.

The first is that not even a President so popular as Mr. Carter can convert his energy-spoiled nation into an energy-saving China or Sweden. While Cadillacs and Corvettes may soon disappear and home insulation become mandatory, Americans will not let anyone drive them from auto and home into bus

To maintain a faintly reduced American way of life without vulnerability to the international oil cartel, the need for new energy-from coal and nuclear sources-is obvious. But that runs into political reality: President Carter will not reenact President Ford's head-on charges against the environmentalists.

The conscious plan of Dr. Schlesinger is to trade off energy conservation for environmentalist acquiescence in coal-nuclear development. Just to make sure, the President is naming prominent environmentalists to key positions in the Justice Department and the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ). Nevertheless, the administration's energy operatives are getting cold feet about relaxing environmental standards for coal production. This clear downgrading of coal leaves only one other option: nuclear power. But that brings Mr. Carter in conflict with his own campaign description of nuclear power as "a last resort" and with his intense fear of nuclear arms proliferation caused by supposedly peaceful production of plutonium.

The Carter-Schlesinger answer is to press ahead with nuclear energy production through so-called "conventional" means but not through reprocessing spent uranium into plutonium (which then could be used for weapons). More specifically, the decision has been all but pinned down at the White House to stop developing fast breeder reactors that burn reprocessed plutonium and yield additional plutonium. This compromise satisfies all but radical antigrowth environmentalists.

But it certainly does not satisfy power utilities or electric manufacturers, fearful that natural uranium will be depleted around the year 2000 and unwilling to embark on a major nuclear development program for only 25 years. One important utility executive told us that, as news of tentative decisions has spread from Washington, he and his colleagues over the past two weeks have devolved from cautious optimism to deepening gloom.

Their pleas, however, have not moved the decision-makers. When Schlesinger was told that General Electric Co. was on the verge of quitting the nuclear power business, he replied with a brief but salty expletive. Considering that doubt, one objective energy consultant believes that Mr. Carter should at least continue building the $2 billion fast breeder reactor at Clinch River, Tenn., both as a safeguard for the future and to reassure industry. Yet, it seems dead beyond all hope. The reason: Clinch River has become a hated symbol for cars, pay more for gasoline and insulate homes. Although they may not end up in the final draft April 20, two lessons have emerged from its preparation: first, production rather than conservation is the toughest obstacle for an energy program; and second, the biggest

Academy Awards show tonight

By BILL KAUFMAN Newsday

They are probably the most famous envelopes in the world, and what lies within them affects careers, finances, egos, digestive tracts and, in the words of a Hollywood producer, "the Valium sales in this town for two months prior to the event.'

The envelope derby is the annual "Academy Awards Presentation," a movie-industry ritual that will take place for the 49th time tonight. The Oscar presentation ceremonies will be telecast on the ABC network in a show emanating from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center.

The event is a far cry from the first awards bestowed by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in 1927. That year they were presented at a private dinner, with fewer than 250 persons attending.

Public interest proved so great, however, that the following year the Academy permitted a radio broad-cast. By 1952 television was the hot medium, and millions of viewers became fanatical watchers of the glitter and glamor of the presentations.

The Academy Awards actually are far more than just a highly publicized Hollywood event and an excuse for a television special. They play an important part in the distribution and marketing of films.

Industry sources say that a film that wins an Oscar in a major category may earn as much as $5 million extra at the box office in the course of its main run.

Even the nominations create a flurry of activity at the distribution level of the film studios each year. Actors and agents scurry to make the most of any nomination, and if they're fortunate enough to win the gold statuette, their negotiating position has been considerably enhanced, both in terms of money and script selec-

Since the Oscars presentations began to be televised, the ceremony has evolved into an entertainment event. Lavish production numbers have become a regular part of the telecast, along with top stars acting as hosts, Oscar presenters and performers of nominated songs.

This year among the celebrity hosts of the show is Ellen Burstyn, an Oscar winner herself for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Any More." Among the singers set to appear are Barbra Streisand, who'll perform her own song, "Evergreen," (the love theme from "A Star Is Born"); Ben Vereen, who will sing "Gonna Fly Now," from "Rocky" and Tom Jones, singing "Come to Me" from "The Pink Panther Strikes Again." The presenters include a large roster of Hollywood biggies ranging from Jack Nicholson and Liv Ullmann to Pearl Bailey and James Caan.

Voting for the Academy Awards is conducted by secret ballot and tabulated by an auditing firm. Up to five nominations are made in each category, with balloting for those for best achievement in directing. In essence the nominees are selected by a jury of their peers. Awards are given in two categories not represented by branches: foreignlanguage films and documentaries. Nominations for awards in those categories are made by large committees of members drawn from all branches. Final winners are determined by vote of the entire member-

Producing the Oscar telecast presents major problems, both technical and human. The show's coproducer and writer, Marshall Flaum, explained that literally thousands of feet of film clips have to be screened and selected from the nominated movies.

One of the major jobs in preparing the show is writing the special material for the presenters, "It's ex-tremely difficult," Flaum said. "We must make certain that what is written, obviously, is suitable to come from the mouth of whoever is uttering it. For instance, if John Wayne were one of the stars, it wouldn't be propitious for him to have a funny line about the President.'

Flaum, who has had a long association with producer David Wolper and who has himself been producer of the Jacques Cousteau and Jane Goodall specials for ABC, said that the logistics involved in staging the Oscar telecast are among the most deman-

nominations restricted to members of the Academy branch concerned; directors, for example, nominate only ding in the industry.

"We have to worry that the proper film sequence is cued up, that the orchestra has the right music at its disposal at the right second, that the proper award has been placed in the corrrect enevelope," Flaum said.

Past presentations have had incidents that made hearts skip a beat or two. Among them were the times when eager winners tripped on the steps while dashing up to the stage, or fortified themselves with too many cocktails and showed it on network TV: and when a young starlet, acting as a presenter, got an attack of hic-cups and popped a contact lens.

Despite off-camera ushers, presenters are continually walking off stage in the wrong direction and, though there has been work on a foolproof envelope, someone usually manages to wage an embarrassing struggle getting an envelope ripped

Then there are the unexpected twists that have to be handled, such as the one a few years ago when Marlon Brando had his Oscar Award accepted by an Indian girl who gave an impromptu plea for her people on Brando's behalf.

"On any live show like this, especially when you're dealing with sensitive and often tempermental and highly charged personalities like per-forming artists," Flaum said, "there's always the element of the business means to us.

Finder does not want it CHICAGO (AH) Peyer Meitzler, a man who says he doesn't 'even like crawly worms," got a shock when he picked up a wooden box a customer had left on the jukebox at his nightclub. "I turned the box around and the one with the rattle started making the noise with the tail.

Through the screen I saw them. It scared the hell out of me."

The box contained a 2-

foot diamondback rattlesnake, a 6-foot rattlesnake and a 4-foot cot-touch it either,"

> The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 4.33 at 924.53, after a loss of 39.14 points in the last seven sessions. Declines outnumbered advances by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The market's recent slide has been blamed on inflation and interest-rate worries, as well as uncertainty about the prospective effects of the energy program President Carter is slated to propose on April 20. In addition, generally gloomy ex-pectations for first quarter earnings reports were heightened Friday by Bethlehem Steel's projection of a loss for the quarter.

Bethlehem Steel shares fell 11/6 to 35% after a delayed opening today. The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .14 at 53.78. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .03 to 112.01.

Volume on the NYSE was a sluggish 7.04 million shares over the first two hours, against 7.14 million in the like period on Friday.

Fertilizer stocks were weak on a Wall Street Journal article citing some analysts' cautious views of the group's prospects.

Court denies review of WASHINGTON (AP) - A condemned Texas murderer who claims that having his electrocution televised would violate his right to die with dignity, was denied Supreme Court review of his case today.

The high court chose not to consider, at least for now, the appeal of Jerry Lane Jurek, convicted for the murder of a 10-year-old Cuero, Tex.,

The high court said it was rejecting Jurek's present appeal "without intimating any views on the merits of the questions" Jurek has raised in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in a federal district court in Texas.

Jurek was pursuing the appeal to the high court while also seeking a district court order releasing him on constitutional grounds.

Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall, who feel that capital punishment is un-constitutional, said they would have accepted the case for review and vacated the death sentence.

Jurek had been scheduled for execution last January, but Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. ordered Texas officials to keep the death-row inmate alive pending his appeal. The justices said today that the stay of execution will remain in effect until April 4. Jurek's attorney raised six points in his appeal: -That a federal judge's decision to allow Jurek's death to be filmed for television violates the convict's right "to die with a modicum of dignity and the public's right not to have the event thrust before their eyes." U.S. District Judge William M. Taylor Jr. had given his approval to have a reporter for Dallas television station KERATV film the execution, stating that televising the event could prove adeterrent to would-be mur--That Jurek was denied due process of law when Texas courts refused to grant a hearing on alleged new evidence after Jurek's conviction and sentencing. -That prospective jurors at his trial were unconstitutionally excluded for stating general reservations about imposing the death sentence.

-That Jurek was denied a fair trial because of the "inept performance of his two courtappointed lawyers." One of his defenders had been practicing law for only two weeks and the other has since been suspended from practice for professional misconduct. -That his sentencing was tainted because the trial court let a prosecutor refer during the sentencing portion of his trial to crimes for which Jurek was never convicted.

-The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals did not properly review the imposition of the death penalty in Jurek's case.

Jurek's case was reviewed by the nation's highest court last July as a test case on the constitutionality of Texas' death penalty. The justices upheld the capital punishment law in Texas, Florida and Georgia on July 2.

East wins but cannot return a spade. South is sure of his game with two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and a club. If East could return a spade, the suit would break 4-4 and the defenders would get two spades and the two red kings.

The point is that South must develop both red suits and should begin with the suit in which the dangerous op-ponent (West in this case) has his side

Test for stress tells true age

By BILL HENDRICK

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Here I am. In my prime, 29 years old, 6 feet 2, 177 pounds. I play racquetball at least two hours a week. I feel fine. Or so I thought.

Until I took the "stress test." You're in the shape of a man 40 to 49 years old," the doctor said.

'You're 12 pounds overfat," the other doctor said. And I felt it.

Truth is, I'm not much different from most Americans, they told me, and I can do something about it. The first step of the "stress test" at the University of Louisville was to immerse me in water. I sat in a chairlike contraption called a hydrostatic weighing devise that dangles into pool of water. The chair was attached to a scale. I was dipped into the water and told to make sure all of the air was out of my lungs.

'Squeeze it out. Squeeze it all out." says Dr. Art Weltman, 27, who joined Dr. Bryant Stamford, 30, in the research last fall.

The purpose of all of this was to determine my weight under water with no air in my lungs - so they could tell how much body fat I had Fat is less dense than water, and what weighed under water was "the amount other than the fat." Stamford, "Essentially, the part of you that was weighed under water was the lean body mass."

Everyone needs body fat, but not as much as most of us have. You can be a perfect specimen according to insurance company charts, but you still can be overfat.

After the water ordeal, electrodes were attached to me and I was forced to walk, then run, on a treadmill. When I got off the treadmill, I mounted a stationary bicycle and pumped the pedals until I was panting with exhaustion and sweating profusely. All the while, I had a snorkle in my mouth. To make it even more difficult to breathe, a clamp was placed over my nostrils.

The snorkle was attached to a gasometer, to measure how much oxygen is taken in and how much is breathed out. It was all registered on sophisticated equipment that blinked and counted and changed colors. The electrodes were attached to an electrocardiogram machine — used to detect abnormal heart activity. The purpose of all of this was to make me exert myself - to make my heart beat faster than normal. When the test finally was finished, the doctors fed the data into a computer I didn't like what the computer said, nor enjoy what the doctors told me. My prescription: Self discipline Walk 30 minutes, at least, every day at a pace of four miles an hour. That's not running. It's walking briskly. No pills, no crash diet. I wasn't even told to quit smoking, although they said smoking is harmful. "But I play ball once a week," protested. Stamford said that's not enough. To be fit, he said, you've got to eat right and exercise every day, or at least four or five times a week. In my case, I can lose one pound of body fat every two weeks if I take a brisk, 30-minute walk every day. But to stay in shape, I'll have to keep it up.

"We're living in a soft society. We wouldn't have any trouble if sex and eating chocolate cake were good exercises," Stamford said.

Exercise won't necessarily add years to your life, the two exercise physiologists say, but it will improve the quality of your existence.

Sudden flab in one spot

Dear Dr. Solomon: I never had a weight problem but all of a sudden. I seem to be getting fat, and in only one spot- my lower abdomen. It bulges out more every day, even though I don't weigh any more. I've always watched my diet, and have even lost a couple of pounds lately. But I don't get any flatter there. Do you have an explanation?-Mrs. Vera B. Dear Mrs. B.: You may have been so busy watching your weight that you overlooked something equally important: keeping in shape through proper exercise. What you're describing is a good, old-fashioned potbelly, which for some reason we associate only with men. Not so! Women are every bit as capable of getting one. The potbelly is made of exactly the same ingredient as the equally widespread "spare tire": flabby muscle. What you need to flatten out your tummy is to get those flabby muscles toned up again.

Assuming you have your doctor's approval (you should always have a checkup before starting on an exercise program) there are two excellent ways to get you back in shape: walking and-or swimming. Both provide balanced workouts for the important muscle groups. They also allow you to pace yourself, and to increase the amount of exercise very gradually day by day. Remember that gradualness and consistency are the two watchwords that apply to all exercise programs: don't subject your out-of-shape body to sudden major efforts, and don't exercise on an onagain-off-again basis, because it's worse than useless. Sensible exercise must become part of the fabric of your everyday life. If you follow such a routine faithfully, muscle tone will improve all over your body. (You can tell to what an extent that's true by monitoring all your sore spots after their first day of exercise: every one of those achy spots represents an outof-shape muscle that'll stop hurting and start firming up as the days go

If you don't suffer from lower back trouble, and if you doctor appproves, you might also try this additional special exercise for your flabby mid-

Lie down on your back on a flat surface iwth your hands behind your neck and elbows pointing up, your legs extended, with heels touching the surface. Now raise both your legs, keeping them straight, until they are about a dozen inches off the floor. Stay in this position for about 10 seconds, then lower your legs to the floor again. Repeat a few times.

Try to perform this exercise at least every morning and every evening. Keep at it, even if it doesn't seem to do much for you at first. The results will begin to show after a few weeks.

If the exercise is too hard for you start out by lifting one leg at a time at first, then graduate to lifting both simultaneously after a few days

Outspoken general raps Congress

Brown, in a top-secret lecture to highranking military and government personnel, labeled Congress as meddlesome and irresponsible in its dealings with defense and foreign aid.

The quotes by Brown, the often outspoken chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, came to light in an article which appeared in the Chicago SunTimes's Sunday editions and were confirmed by Thomas B. Ross, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

Brown, was also quoted as saying that "if any citizen of this country is so concerned about his mail being read or is concerned about his presence in a meeting being noted, I'd say we ought to read his mail and we ought to know what the hell he has

Brown has set off controversies in the past with his remarks, among them that Jews had inordinate influence on the nation's foreign policies. In an interview last year, he called Israel a burden to the United States and called Great Britain pathetic, with a military consisting only of "generals and admirals and bands." A number of congressmen and senators have called for his

The Sun-Times article by Ranan S. Lurie said Brown's latest remarks came in a speech on May 21, 1976, at Fort McNair in Washington to the National War College and Industrial College on the Armed Forces — about 220 colonels and 70 top-ranking civilians from the Defense and State departments. The general was quoted as saying that Congress "seems very much to me like the man who is kibitzing a chess game and oc-casionally reaches in and moves a piece and thereby screws it all up.'

In another remark, apparently directed at congressional action in-volving the United States' relations with Turkey and Angola, Brown was quoted as saying "Congress, with their constitutional responsibilities, can tell you to take it from Point A to B, don't drive it over 20 m.p.h. or 55. But that doesn't mean every damn hand has to be on the steering wheel. That causes a wreck, and that is what happened."

However, Brown reportedly added, "I'm sure they are well motivated and have only the interest of the country at heart."

And in stating his view that the United States should sell F5 fighter planes to Egypt, the general was quoted as saying "I just don't think the country is ready to do that. Congress just wouldn't face up to it

"I sat with the Jewish National Leadership yesterday — as strange as that may sound — for about an hour, and I tell you I would hate to have mentioned that I wanted to sell Egypt

The article said the quotes were released by Ross after three members of Brown's audience gave Lurie similar accounts of the talk. The three told Lurie they had been sworn to secrecy, but were offended by the nature of Brown's remarks, the newspaper said.

Gen. Brown, who was notified the quotes would be printed on Sunday, is traveling in Italy on defense business,

PLO says U.S. ignoring moderation message

The Washington Post

BEIRUT - The Palestine Liberation Organization has tried to tell the United States that it has adopted a more moderate stance toward Middle East peace by removing members of the radical Rejection Front organization from its executive council, a PLO official has said.

But, according to diplomats and Palestinians interviewed here, the PLO signal has not yet been recognized by the United States.

The signal was the Palestinian National Council's approval last Monday of the makeup of the executive committee with no representatives on it of George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a group that opposes any Middle East peace settlement allowing for Israel's continued existence.

"That was the most significant political decision of the National Council meeting," said Sayd Hamami, the PLO's representative in London and a close associate of Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat. Another top PLO official, who asked that his name not be used, said the National Council action was designed to show the world that the PLO had rid itself of "the highjacking, lunatic, Marxist-Leninist fringe" of the Palestinian movement.

"That's the Palestinians' message, the signal," the PLO official said. The Palestinians had been asked by the United States and Israel especially to give some tangible sign during its National Council meeting in Cairo that it had assumed the new, moderate approach that Arab nations such as Syria, Egypt and Saudi Arabia have claimed.

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, for example, called for the PLO to amend its national charter to recognize the right of Israel to exist.

While the Palestinians did not modify their charter, they did pass a resolution that one PLO official said is aimed at erasing any doubt that all Israeli Jews and Palestinians can live together in peace.

Part of the charter has been interpreted as meaning that only families of Jews who lived in Palestine before the creation of Israel in 1948 should be allowed to remain forcing European Jews who lived in Israel after World War II to leave. In the concluding statement of its meeting, the National Council passed a resolution stating that "All Jews who are willing to live

ATLANTA - For the last dozen years, they have ranked among that handful of coaches who consistently produce elite teams. Between them, they have won 743 games, two NIT titles, an Olympic gold medal and enough regular-season tournaments to fill a nice-sized trophy case.

But neither Marquette's Al McGuire nor North Carolina's Dean Smith has won the Big One, the NCAA tournament championship. For one of them, that will change tonight.

They've gotten to this 7:15 p.m. (CST) showdown by employing vastly different coaching styles and philosophies, and by recruiting much different types of players. It probably wouldn't be justice to end this crazy basketball season with an NCAA final between teams with similar approaches to the sport.

And this final has an added dramatic touch. It is McGuire's last game after 20 years (13 at Marquette) as a college coach and -- just as when UCLA's John Wooden bowed out three years ago — many would like to see him leave with the sweetest victory of

CAROLINA, HOWEVER, can counter with its own dramatic overtone. Only Kentucky's Adolph Rupp has coached an Olympic basketball champion and won an NCAA title seven months later. Smith can accomplish that feat tonight.

Both coaches have had one previous shot at the NCAA championship. McGuire lost to David Thompson and North Carolina State in 1974, Smtih lost to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and

UCLA in 1968. But neither of these schools nor the coaches, who are long-time friends, have played each other in a formal Carolina freshman sensation Mike O'Koren and Marquette playmaker Jim Boylan play against each other regularly on the Jersey City, N. J. playgrounds. Boylan, said Mike "which means he's good. Me? I'm pick-

Boylan is at Marquette only because Smith recommended him to McGuire two years ago when the guard was ready to leave Assumption College. Boylan had wanted to attend North Carolina but Smith won't accept transfers unless their last name is McAdoo.

MARQUETTE'S BUTCH.Lee wanted to try out for Smith's Olympic team (which included Carolina's Phil Ford, Walter DAvis and the injured Tom Lagarde), but was not invited. So he played for Puerto Rico and scored 35 points, mostly while being guarded by Ford, in a one-point loss to the Americans.

"Phil and Walter came back from Montreal and said Butch was busting everyone," said Carolina's John Kuester, who will gaurd Lee Monday night. "They did everything to stop him and couldn't."

The coaches agree there are no mysteries as to how they will employ their players in the final. Carolina wants a fast tempo ("So we can score 90 points," said Smith) and will press to force Marquette into turnovers.

Guilty Marsh sneaks

The Warriors want a slow-paced, catand-mouse game ("If we give up 70 points, it's tap city," said McGuire) and will not force shots or do any run-

Marquette will concentrate on stop-ping Ford. "He is the head of the body," said McGuire. "You've got to chop off the head. No one will ever know the real value of the four-corner until Ford leaves. He is their blue-plate special. He makes them."

CAROLINA WILL concentrate on Boylan and Lee. The Tar Heels don't want Marquette to control the clock

But not famed manager Angelo Dundee, who feels middleweight David "Sugar" Love of San Diego will be the next world champ in his division. "He has the fastest right hand for a middleweight I ever saw," said Dundee. "Now, a fighter isn't supposed to lead with the right all the time like David that's the big thing. Bobby (Voogalo) Watts of Philadelphia certainly is a believer after their feature match Sunday in the quarterfinal round of promoter Don King's U.S. boxing championships.

Watts, who weighed the same as Love at 159 and 34, was knocked to the canvas twice by Love's right-hand lightning in the third round of their scheduled eight-rounder. Referee Arthur Mercante stopped the fight at 1:41 of the fourth fround after yet another devastating right found Watts' chin.

"I knew Watts knew I was coming with my right, but there was just nothing he could do," said Love. "I can just get away with it.

VERO BEACH, Fla. spring training a month ago rookie manager Tom Lasorda let there be little doubt as to who would play leftfield in place of the departed Bill does. But he's so darn fast, he can get away with it -Buckner.

"Dusty Baker is my leftfielder," he said.

Since then, however, two things have caused a slight change, namely, John Hale and Lee Lacy.

In Sunday's 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros, Hale's triple in the bot-tom of the eighth-inning broke a 4-4 tie and Lacy delivered a double and a key sacrifice bunt.

"I'd say it's a logfight," vice president Al Campanis said of the battle between Lacy, Hale and Baker, still recovering from knee surgery over the winter.

Bulls charge toward playoffs

The Chicago Bulls' charge into the National Basketball Association playoffs continues in high gear.

The Bulls, considered dead after stumbling to a 2-14 record in the opening month of the season, reached milestone on their comeback trail Sunday night when they beat the injury-riddled Cleveland Cavaliers 95-90 before a crowd of 19,757 at Chicago Stadium.

The victory, coupled with Kansas City's 139-129 loss at San Antonio earlier Sunday, lifted the Bulls one-half game ahead of the Kings in the race for the sixth and final playoff berth in the Western Conference. Seattle, the third team in the scramble, lost to Phoenix 121-100 and dropped 21/2 games back.

"I don't want to think about the playoffs just yet," said Bulls Coach Ed Badger, "even though I know we have momentum. We have three top teams meeting us - Philadelphia Tuesday, Boston Wednesday and Denver Friday. I hope we'll have enough momentum for the playoff stretch."

One month into the season the Bulls were in disarray. They lost 13 games in a row, rookie hopeful Scott May was sidelined with mononucleosis, new center Artis Gilmore was labeled a disappointment and Badger's qualifications to coach a pro team were being widely questioned. They have been fighting an uphill battle ever since — and they have been winning it. The Bulls have won eight games in a row and 17 of their Chicago took a 12-point lead against the Cavs as team captain Norm Van Lier scored 14 of his season-high 27 points in the third period, but needed six points in the final 51/2 minutes by Gilmore to stave off a Cleveland rally. Gilmore finished with 23 points and Wilbur Holland had 20.

Spurs 139, Kings 129 The Kings' loss to San Antonio was their third of the weekend. Larry Kenon was the big man for the Spurs with a career-high 43 points and 20 rebounds.

Suns 121, Sonics 100 Guards Ron Lee scored 33 points and Paul Westphal added 29 as the Suns put the game away with a big third period.

Pistons 115, Rockets 100 Marvin Barnes scored 16 of his 20 points in the third period, leading the Pistons to victory, but late in the game he collided with Houston's Dwight Jones, fell to the floor and suffered a fractured left hand. 76ers 128, Blazers 116 Portland committed 21 turnovers in the first half, fell behind 59-50 and never caught up as Julius Erving scored 26 points for Philadelphia and George McGinnis 22.

Jazz 119, Pacers 118, 2 OT Nate Williams scored seven of New Orleans' 11 points in the second overtime. A jumper by Williams with 42 seconds remaining tied the score, then he hit a free throw with 29 seconds left, giving the Jazz their winning margin. James McElroy scored 37 points for New Orleans.

Knicks 109, Bullets 95

Washington saw its four-game winning streak snapped as the Knicks scored eight straight points in the third period for a decisive 72-61 lead. Earl Monroe filled the void left by the absence of injured Bob McAdoo and Walt Frazier with 31 points.

Celtics 114, Nets 109 Boston stretched a five-point thirdquarter advantage to 106-88 with five minutes to play in beating the lowly Nets. Jo Jo White led the way with 24

Chris awakens in time to win

NEW YORK (AP) — The queen of tennis seemed to be sleep-walking. Chris Evert was not in control.

In an alarming first set Sunday in a $150,000 women's tennis championship, Miss Evert gave up shot after shot and finally the set to Sue Barker. the 20-year-old upstart from Paignton, England, with the remarkably accurate forehand.

"I didn't feel anything in the first set. It was an effort to run. I wasn't flowing," said Miss Evert. "In the beginning I had no desire to win."

BUT AS the second set opened, she gained control of her baseline game, shooting to Miss Barker's ailing backhand, and it was back to business as usual for a 2-6, 6-1, 6-1 finish. "If I win the first set, I tend to let didn't go away as Miss Evert's strength built. Miss Barker provided

Miss Evert's backhand and forcing her to shoot too long in several games. The fans seemed to favor Miss

Barker through the second match but came back to Chrissie in the third, applauding her thunderously at the start of the fifth game and drawing a tiny smile that probably indicated relief. She took away $50,000 and became the season's money leader among the women with $174,500 in eight events, surpassing Martina Navrtilova. It was the fourth time she had won the championship, and she reclaimed the title from Evonne Goolagong, the winner last year who is pregnant.

Miss Barker received $30,000 for her second place finish in the four-day tournament but remained 0-12 against Miss Evert.

"In the first set, she let me dictate the match," Miss Barker said. "I knew it couldn't last."

Miss Barker winced a few times during the match, suffering from a sore shoulder she has nursed for three weeks. But she claimed the shoulder hurt less than at any time in the tournament. What did bother her, she said, was the crowd.

"When I lost quite easily in the second set, I lost concentration when they changed the balls and the crowd got into a couple of line decisions,'

Miss Navratilova, the defector from Czechoslovakia who had been favored to meet Miss Evert in the finals but lost to Miss Barker Saturday, won a consolation match 8-5 against 28-year-

The hottest bats in Florida and Arizona this spring are wielded by Infielder Ray Knight, trying to earn a spot with Cincinnati's world champions, singled home the winning run in the 10th inning as the Reds edged the New York Yankees 4-3 in an exhibition game that was referred to as the fifth game of the 1976 World Series.

"Game's over," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson recalled saying aloud when Knight stepped to the plate. "The hottest stick in Florida is up."

Knight leads the Reds with 18 hits and a .450 batting average, but that pales next to the .657 mark of San Francisco outfielder Randy Elliott, who drove in three runs with his second and third spring homers as the Giants outslugged the San Diego Padres 12-9.

AS THE Reds and Yankees hooked up for the first time since last October, Don Gullett was a primary part of the scene. Only the uniform had changed.

"It was different," admitted Gullett, who played out his option with the Reds and signed a six-year, $2 million contract with the Yankees. He pitched six innings and left with the score tied 3-3.

Another rookie, Boston pitcher Bob Stanley, won a spot on the Red Sox' 25man regularseason roster by hurling five strong innings in a 10-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

"This is great, just great," said Stanley, a 22-year-old right-hander with just 69 minor league games to his credit who pitched in the Class AA Eastern League a year ago.

A glance at the future

The NCAA basketball tournament. which boils to its conclusion tonight at Atlanta's Omni, kindles a fierce fan pride and, in a way, it's strange. It's only natural to be proud of home, state and sectional champions, but really few are home grown.

A viewer following the regionals on TV the last few weeks is impressed most by the fact that the contenders are cut from almost identical patterns

It seems pretty standard, two or three kids from the New York-New Jersey spawning grounds and then complete the lineup with prospects from the metropolitan midwest, North Carolina, Florida, or, if a coach is really lucky, he may find one neighborhood youngster good enough to start without hurting the team too

FOR EXAMPLE, UNC-Charlotte had two New Jersey starters and three from homestate North Carolina. Marquette recruited two from New York-New Jersey and the rest from the Chicago-Milwaukee area.

North Carolina has always relied heavily on prospects from the heavily-populated eastern seaboard

Kansas State rode to the Big Eight title on the east coast recruits.

When Syracuse and Tennessee played, however, one could almost envision a City College of New York vs. Long Island University game of 25 years ago, before New York kids discovered there was indeed civilization west of the Hudson and Delaware rivers.

OF COURSE, there are deviations from the rule. UCLA, except for an occasional foray east to entice a Lew Alcindor, sticks pretty much to home. Louisville and Kentucky are home grown clubs, subject to raids from outsiders. Arkansas was almost entirely homegrown, but NIT finalist Houston, the most Texas of all SWC teams in football, went outside the state for its top people in basketball.

Idaho State dipped into California and Ohio for help, but surprisingly had more native born and bred players than most others.

Still, the people who win, in the majority of cases, go to the same well, so it's somewhat amusing to see the sectional chest-pounding

One of the peculiarities this year was the absence of Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C., area players in the lineups of playoff teams. Both are ordinarily fertile grounds for college

IF YOU want to look to the future. the contenders in seasons to come will be the colleges who land such players as Larry Petty, Wayne McCoy, Lionel Harvey and Artie Green from this year's high school crop.

CARLSBAD, Calif. - forget the computer. These numbers don't lie:

Based on tournament victories that by late Monday night figure to number five in the last six months; on a streak that has seen him win 32 of his last 35 matches, and on wins over Jimmy Connors, Ilie Nastase, Arthur Ashe, Guillermo Vilas and, now, Bjorn Borg, Brian Gottfried may just be the No. 1 tennis player in the world.

Playing so perfectly at the start he discouraged the cool Swede until he eventually looked like any other topspin hitter with blond hair in a headband instead of one of the best player alive, Gottfried buried Borg, 6-1, 6-1 Sunday in the semifinals of the La Costa International tournament.

By early in the second set it was so one-sided Borg apparently gave up. So one-sided Borg, in a rare show of emotion, derisively applauded himself after one of his rare passing shots. So one-sided Borg had nothing to say after the match; he just declined comment and headed for a shower he probably didn't need, seeing how he wasn't on La Costa's center court long enough to work up a sweat. It was all over in 48 minutes.

And now Gottfried can win yet another tournament and add $16,000 more to the $63,000 he's already won in 1977 probably by simply staying interested Monday night in the final against Marty Riessen.

Both teams have had to struggle to get this far, although Carolina has had the tougher tournament opposi-tion, which it has overcome despite the absence of LaGarde and injuries to Ford and Davis. Carolina, shooting incredibly well, has won its last 15 games; Marquette eight of nine after suffering a midseason slump.

Whether the game ultimately is as close as many expect it to be most likely will depend on the skills of McGuire and Smith, both of whom have never coached better than they have the last month.

Smith, chosen Sunday by his national coaching association peers as coach of the year, is the ultimate technician. His teams play a complex assortment of offenses and defenses and are so thoroughly instructed in preseason practice that, he said, "We don't expect to fees anything during don't expect to face anything during the season that we haven't talked about before it starts."

McGUIRE IS the ultimate maverick. He says his coaching philosophy is "keep it simple, stupid." He hates Xs and Os but loves to match wits with the opposition during games. "When I get on the court." he said, "something snaps. Let's face it, you're a gladiator out there. It's

While Smith fretted about Marquette's size, McGuire was concerned about rescueing a broken-down motorcycle that he left in an Atlanta suburb two days ago. "I want to get by myself sometime before the game," McGuire said. "I think you make five major decisions every year and I want to make sure I'm clearheaded Monday night if a crisis

Saudis gave nation respite from hikes

BY STEVE MOTT The Dallas Time Herald

DALLAS - The success of the Saudis this year in keeping the world oil price increase at a low level has given the United States and other Western nations dependent on supplies from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries what may be only a temporary respite from the energy crisis.

For the near future, anyway, large increases in oil prices and the accompanying shock they would have on inflation in those countries do not seem likely.

In the United States, with one of the coldest winters in history now past, there's some time left before the hard decisions about energy conservation, use and development will once again have to be faced - most immediately April 20, when the Carter Administration's energy program will be unveiled But the cooperation of the Saudis and the return of warm weather, however, may have temporarily lulled the nation away from the precarious reality of its critical energy situation, according to some energy experts. And the expected emphasis of the Carter program, as well as the persistent slogans of the petroleum industry, may provoke continued disputes over energy solutions.

Several energy spokesman at last week's 17th annual Institute of Petroleum Exploration and Economics in Dallas renewed the industry's call for increased domestic production of oil and gas to reduce the country's dependence on politically insecure OPEC imports.

The customary collection of pleas for decreased regulatory impediments to production - especially on offshore development, deregulated, higher prices to pay for exploration, and "effective" conservation sounded like the industry was united behind a single voice in its short term solution to the energy

"It is my feeling that we will expand domestic production during the next decade and that such expansion, together with energy conservation, will permit us to lessen - although certainly not eliminate - our need to import foreign oil," said James S. Cross, an economist for the American Petroleum Institute.

He said a lower level of imports by 1985 - perhaps 5 million barrels a day instead of the forecast 6 to 12 mbd -"can be reached through an effective conservation program and by permitting domestic energy producers to expand by enabling them to compete in domestic markets on equal terms with foreign producers." Wayne E. Glenn, vice chairman of Continental Oil Co. (CONOCO), said that conservation was only a part of the answer to slowing imports, because the "energy-intensive" American economy required "boosted domestic production of conventional fuels" to maintain income, employment and economic growth. The industry's reasoning is that higher prices will not only encourage further, more expensive development of oil and gas, but also allocate supplies more realistically and efficiently, with the least amount of waste. In effect conservation by

And that should buy enough time to expand use of the nation's abundant reserves of coal until nuclear, solar and other alternative sources of energy can be developed, industry spokesmen say. It's a costly propsect, but it at least sounds like a solution.

Yet some industry observers, particularly those in the academic community, have begun to question how successful stepped-up development of much more expensive oil and gas will really be in balancing the energy equation. They're asking if all the talk about independence from imports really might be a delusion, from which perhaps only the oil companies will benefit.

James W. McKie, a professor of economics at the University of Texas, told the institute conference that forcing an increase in domestic production alone would only deplete reserves more rapidly than ever.

"To try to minimize our strategic vulnerability simply by increasing oil production now is to increase vulnerability in the future, to the extent that present production comes at the expense of future production,' he said. That policy has been called "Drain America First."

McKie argued that the country could not reduce its dependence on imports for long merely by offering the domestic industry the incentive to produce more oil.

"But on the other hand, we obviously cannot go for a policy of unlimited imports either," he added. 'Aside from the political consequences of relying too much on insecure oil, it would be of little economic advantage as long as OPEC can go pushing up the real price and as long as the rest of the world seems to be tracking the North American depletion trajectory for oil by about 15 or 20 years." McKie says the optimum policy is to limit demand, institute a "massive research and development" program for alternative fuels, and "deflect demand to those alternative sources as they become available. Meanwhile, we should try to limit dependence on insecure oil imports and develop storage and reserve capacity, as we should have begun to do in

McKie agreed that higher prices are needed to accomplish this policy, but added that the object of the price increases should not be to stimulate domestic production, but to "dampen the rate of growth of demand, to discourage low-priority uses, to develop the substitute technology which eventually must atke over the energy economy from petroleum, and to pay the necessary costs of environmental protection."

Another scheduled speaker at the conference, the controversial Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor, M.A. Adelman, was unable to appear in person, but sbumitted to the instilute a paper that casts some interesting shadows on current energy slogans.

In the main, Adelman concluded that the next 10 years would be very profitable for oil and gas producers.

'The odds look good for rising world oil prices over the next decade, but with continued turbulence in the market, not to mention unpredictable political repercussions.'

OPEC quite likely has a lot of room to raise its prices, and every reason to do so, Adelman said. Assuming the current supply and demand relationship with world oil could exist ten years from now, a doubling in the OPEC price would mean a 20 per cent reduction in sales, but a 60 per cent increase in revenue, he said.

Adelman contended that higher prices wouldn't necessary mean an automatic increase in supply. He cited the situation in Texas as an illustration.

"There is a lot of low sulfur coal in the western states, and even before the price explosion of 1973, there were plans for shipping it into Texas, where it would push natural gas from under electric power boilers into residential and commercial use, mostly in the Northeast," he said.

"In a rational economic world, that process would have been underway long before 1973, with utilities selling off their gas contracts at a tidy profit, which would have been their incentive for early replacement of gas-fired burners by coal-fired.

"The process would have been speeded up by the price explosion. I submit that it probably has been slowed down."

One reason for this, he said, was the resistance of public opinion to windfall profits for natural gas producers. And railroads, "excited" by the prospect of higher prices for coal transportation, have sought higher rates and blocked the development of Coal producing western states in turn prepared higher taxes "like OPEC before expropriation" while supporting delays in strip mining, supported by those opposed rising fuel prices anyway, Adelman said.

OPEC prices will continue to rise. almost regardless of what happens in the United States, he said. But Adelman added that it was wiser for them to allow prices to rise in small increments rather than big swells such as the one that occurred in 1973-

Why? Because it makes more sense to avoid large economic dislocations in consumer countries that might provoke import restrictions or raise taxes on imports sufficiently to reduce demand, he said.

Adelman compared Saudi Arabia to Texas and Louisiana "in the old days, which controlled the price by raising or lowering their own production, letting others produce ad lib."

OPEC can defeat the purpose of conservation efforts, he said, if it sticks together and learns to live with reduced production, as it did following the embargo in 1973.

Coquina Oil Corp. was bottomed at 10,522 feet in lime, circulating, at No. 1-E Bass-State, Eddy County, N.M., wildcat, one mile southwest of the Parkway, West (Morrow) gas field, after taking a drillstem test in an unidentified formation.

Tool was open one hour on the test taken fron 10,180-10,300 feet, on which gas surfaced in one minute at the initial rate of 196,000 cubic feet daily and increasing and stabilizing at 271,000 cubic feet per day after 15 minutes. Recovery from the test tool was 850 feet of gas-cut drilling fluid.

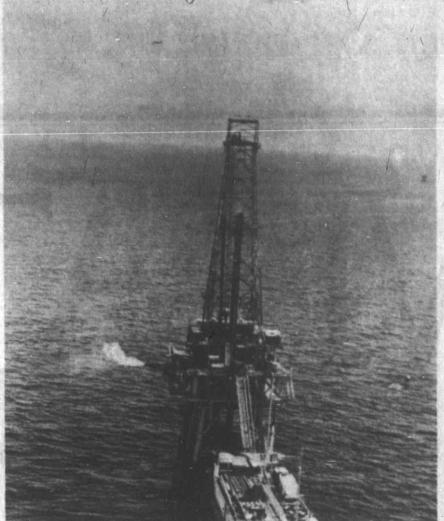

Earlier, a drillstem test in the Delaware sand from 4,685-4,746 feet, open 14 hour, recovered 50 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud and 120 feet of drilling fluid.

Exploration has been planned for Pecos, Winkler and Crane County areas, and an oil pay opener finaled in Pecos. Also, pool activity for development has been scheduled in Pecos, Winkler, Andrews and Glasscock areas.

Monsanto Co. intends to drill No. Atkinson-Bunger, an 18,000-foot searcher for gas in Pecos, 25 miles southeast of Fort Stockton.

Location, eight miles west of the Grey Ranch (Wolfcamp and Ellenburger) gas field, is 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 22, block 136, T&StL survey.

Mobil Oil Corp. will reenter and plug back to around 3,400 feet at No. 2-D State-Houston County Timber Co., for recompletion attempt as a Tubb gas producer in the Brooklaw field of Pecos. Presently completed as a lower Clear Fork oil producer in the Brooklaw field, it spots 1,980 feet from northwest and southwest lines of section 126, block 10, H&GN survey, 10 miles northwest of Girvin.

Four C. Oil & Gas Corp., Dallas, has completed No. 1 Sibley as a lower Clear Fork oil pay opener in the Four C sector of North Pecos, nine miles east of Imperial.

It had a 24-hour pumping potential of 11 barrels of 36-gravity oil and 118 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,110-1. Production was through perforations at 3,962-3,985 feet, after acidizing with 1,000 gallons.
Drilled to 4,110 feet, it has 5½-inch casing set at 4,100 feet, and is plugged back to 3.995 feet. Location is 467 feet from north and

2,450 feet from east lines of section 14, block 2, H&TC survey. Tops reported were San Andres. 2,276; Glorieta, 2,872; Clear Fork, 3,350; Tubb, 3,572 and lower Clear Fork, 3,800 feet. Elevation was unreported.

WINKLER PROJECTS Gifford, Mitchell & Wisenbaker, Midland, will drill No. 1 Dull Knife, a

22,500-foot wildcat searcher for gas in Winkler County, 15 miles northwest of Kermit. Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 13, block 74, PSL survey, % mile southwest of the Chevenne (Devonian and Fusselman gas and Capitan reef oil) field. Exxon Corp. has filed permit to plug back to about 15,290 feet at No. 1-

WORST OF ALL, NOTHING
YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT.
NO MATTER WHAT YOU

AND THAT MAKES IT
TOUGH TO KEEP GOING."

If you feel that way you're not alone. Thousands of people do. And with good reason. Just look around. Listen to the news. Chaos, corruption and irresponsibility seem to be everywhere.

Maybe you're right.
Maybe you can't change the world overnight. But there is a place to start. You can learn to live in this world by first learning to live with yourself. You can better understand others by first understanding who you are, what you can be and what you can't.

Only one person makes this possible. His name is Jesus Christ. For two thousand years He's been telling us we can start over—we can become new persons—through a personal relationship with Him. We can acknowledge our faults because He forgives us. We can love ourselves because He loves us.

ESUS said He came "so we could have life, and have it more abundantly." And countless Christians today are living proof that He does have the power to change lives. Executives and store clerks. Singers and homemakers. Sports figures, teenagers, actors and government officials. People you know. People you don't know. They've all found that Jesus Christ is the one person you can trust and believe in. That He gives your life meaning, purpose and direction. That He gives you peace of mind.

They are living proof that Jesus Christ is real in 1977. That people can be changed. And enough changed people can change the world.

F you would like to know more about people who are living proof, if you need more information, or have made a decision to accept Jesus Christ, there are people nearby ready to share that with you. Please let them know.

Professor gives kids engery-saving lesson

By BILL CRIDER

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - To preach a new gospel against the sinful energy hog, physicist Alan Johnson is spending a year as a modern-day circuit rider.

At first you might think he was doing a vaudeville turn — out there in front of a pack of kids, leaping and stomping, his sparse locks flopping as he fiddles wildly through a mountain music jig.

Actually, he is on a glum mission.

He is telling high school students they must change their lifestyle because the energy shortage may be with them for the rest of their lives.

With his fiddle and jokes, hauling a stage load of props in a small van, Johnson travels from school to school, putting on energy conservation shows at general assemblies in auditoriums or sympasiums. or gymnasiums.

"It's the fun'est job I have ever had, but I wouldn't want to do it more than a year," he said after an hour-long show in a gym at a high school with 1,000 students crowded into the

One thing certain - it is a drastic change from lecturing on solid state technology, which is what the 31-year-old physicist was doing at the University of New Orleans.

He remains a member of the UNO faculty, though assigned this odd line of work - one of eight similar shows in the nation financed by power company grants to universities.

To get his message across to restive youngsters, Johnson keeps 'em laughing while sliding in sad facts. For instance, the United States uses 21 million 42-gallon barrels of oil a day. But the assemblies don't hear that kind of statistic.

Instead, an empty soft drink can is popped up out of a garbage can to clatter on the floor. On that Johnson hangs the fact that it took one third of a cup of oil, or its fuel equivalent, to make every aluminum can thrown in the garbage.

Statistics say the average American household uses each day the energy equivalent of 46 pounds of coal, 9½ gallons of oil products, a half-pint of nuclear energy. Johnson reduces that to a bicycle built for two.

Mounted onstage, with two husky teen-agers pedaling, the rear wheel operates an automobile generator. It makes enough electricity to run a black and white television set among Urged on by the roaring crowd, the boys pedal frantically while Johnson capers around the stage, adding to the power load. He plugs in a 100-watt light bulb ... a 10-inch fan.

Despite all the bikers can do, the TV screen jitters and browns out.

"It would take 500 people eight hours a day, pedaling just like these guys, to make enough electric power for just one average American," Johnson says, when the uproar has
