Senate ethics code passes by 86-9 vote

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate, smarting from criticism of the recent 29-per-cent congressional pay raise, adopted a code of ethics Friday that will limit senators' outside earnings and require financial disclosure.

The 11,000-word Senate code, variously described as a "milestone" and "an unfortunate April Fool's joke," is basically similar to one

The Senate code, approved 86 to 9, requires no action by the House before becoming effective.

The Senate acted barely five weeks after members of Congress raised their pay by $12,900, to $57,500 a year. Other high federal officials shared in the pay hike, which went into effect without a yes-or-no vote in either the House or Senate.

Both President Carter and former President Gerald R. Ford tied their support of the big pay boost to adoption of a code of ethics, as had a special commission that recommended the salary increases.

And Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said that when Congress accepted the pay raise, it agreed by implication to adopt "a strong code of conduct.

"This code is a milestone," said Sen. Gaylord Nelson, whose special committee wrote the document. He told reporters after the vote that the action of Congress will prompt similar action in many states.

"The issue is one of openness in government and allaying suspicions people may have about people in government," he said.

All nine votes against the code were cast by Republicans, some of whom contended the attempt "to legislate morality" was faulty. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the code contains no meaningful enforcement procedures or penalties.

"I say this is an unfortunate April-Fool's joke on the American people,"

Goldwater said. Besides requiring financial disclosure and limiting outside earned income, the code bars acceptance of gifts of more than $100 from persons having an interest in legislation; abolishes unofficial office accounts, often called slush funds; tightens restrictions on the freemailing, or franking, privilege; prohibits travel at governent expense by lame-duck legislators; limits fund raising by staff aides, and requires nondiscriminatory practices.

The disclosure provisions require the reporting of income, property holdings and other financial information by categories. Senators will have to report whether outside earnings, for example, fall within or above specified figures. They will not have to list specific amounts.

Nelson said the worst penalty for violations is expulsion from Congress. But he noted that work already has started on legislation providing legal sanctions to back up the code.

The biggest fight during the twoweek Senate debate came when Sen. Edmund S. Muskie tried unsuccessfully to eliminate the provision limiting a senator's outside earned income to 15 per cent of his Senate salary, or $8,625 a year.

One effect of this will be to reduce the fees a senator may earn from making speeches. Some have been earning up to the $25,000 limit now

"The interest seems to be rather heavy, more than usual," observed Midland City Secretary James Mc-Cullough of voter feeling about today's city election.

McCullough declined to predict whether there will be a heavy turnout, however, partly because this election is being held on a Saturday and many people may be out of town.

One possible indication of how heavy the turnout will be is the nearrecord number of absentee ballots submitted. When absentee balloting closed, 672 Midlanders had cast absentee ballots a number surpassed only in 1967. Midland voters will go to four voting places to cast ballots, and one of those will be at a different location than in the past. Voters who previously cast ballots at the fire station at the in-tersection of Golf Course Road and Garfield Street will go this time to Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800

Carter SALT package called for Soviet cuts

By NORMAN KEMPSTER The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - President Carter's SALT package, described in detail by Administration officials Friday, would have required the Soviet Union to make deep cuts in its weapons programs while causing only relatively minor changes in U.S. arms

White House adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said the U.S. proposal would have banned mobile ballistic missiles - in which the Soviets appear to have a lead - but would have permitted continued development of cruise missiles - in which the United States has a technological advantage.

Brzezinski also said the U.S. plan would have permitted each side to maintain 550 land-based ballistic missiles equipped with multiple warheads. That is the number of Minuteman III missiles now in the U.S. inventory. Within that limit, the Carter plan would restrict each side to 150 giant missiles capable of carrying either one extremely powerful warhead or up to 10 smaller ones. The Soviets now have 305 of those while the United States has Brzezinski and Defense Secretary Harold Brown held separate meetings with reporters Friday as the administration sought to explain its position in the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) that broke down Wednesday in Moscow.

Brown said he anticipated give-andtake negotiations when Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko meet in Geneva next month. "I'd be willing to make you a small bet that we will be talking about SALT with them even before Geneva in some channel," Brown added.

Brzezinski was more emphatic: "We made the damnedest effort to produce a package which, within the limits of our own intelligence -and by intelligence I not only mean information but what is in our heads we could say was reasonable and equitable to both sides. We would like to discuss it and we intend to discuss

But there seemed to be very little in the package that would appeal to Brzezinski said the United States proposed a limit of between 1,800 and 2,000 on the strategic delivery systems - land-based and submarine-based missiles and longrange bombers - which could be held by each side. The tentative agreement reached by former President Gerald R Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974 would have imposed a limit of 2,400 systems.

According to the Pentagon, the United States now has 2,128 strategic delivery systems, including 1,710 missiles, while the Soviets have 2,540 systems, including 2,330 missiles. So the U.S. plan were enacted, the United States would have to junk between 128 and 328 delivery systems. mostly obsolete missiles and bom-bers, while the Soviets would have to get rid of between 540 and 740. The Soviets would have to include in their reduction 153 of their 303 extremely large missiles.

The proposed limit on land-based missiles with multiple warheads would permit the Soviets to add to their present stock of at least 230 such missiles. The proposal would not permit the United States to add to its inventory of 550 Minuteman III missiles. But the acquisition program for that missile is over anyway. The administration's budget for the coming fiscal year contains no funds to buy additional Minuteman IIIs.

Brzezinski said the United States proposed a total ban on testing, development and deployment of mobile ICBM's - long-range missiles that can be moved from place to place to make them almost an impossible target for an enemy attack.

"We would expect the Soviets to abandon the development and deployment of the SS-16, which is

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico - The 29 American tourists were more forward-looking than tired and more hungry than thirsty when their bus pulled onto Juarez Street and stopped at the Hotel Victoria here.

It was on a Saturday night, and the bus was behind schedule. But the margaritas weren't.

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - There is no evidence that saccharin, which the federal government has proposed banning, causes human cancer, the president of the American Cancer Society said Friday.

Dr. R. Lee Clark said, however, that the society will investigate the possibility that saccharin could cause cancer in humans, and will also urge a study of saccharin "by independent scientists.

"We believe that saccharin also requires special congressional review, to determine if it should be exempted from the Delaney Clause because of its importance in medical treatments" of diabetics and the

The Delaney Clause, part of the federal laws on control of foods and drugs, forbids adding to human foods any chemicals that produce cancer in test animals no matter what amount is fed them.

The Food and Drug Administration is in the process of banning the artificial sweetener because Canadian studies found that large doses produced bladder cancer in some rats. The FDA said a person would have to drink 800 glasses of saccharinsweetened soft drinks a day for his lifetime to take in the amount of the chemical given to the animals in a short time.

Clark said that under law the FDA had no choice but to ban saccharin. But "we would hope in the future to see dosage studies" more like the amounts actually consumed by humans when suspected cancer agents are tested in animals.

He said testing had become more sophisticated now, and it is time to reevaluate such things as dosage, costversusrisk ratios and how validly animal results apply to humans.

Speaking at the opening of the cancer society's 19th annual science writers seminar, Clark declared that the FDA in the past year or so "in effect impeded the clinical investigations of just about every new promising anticancer compound in this country

"They did so by applying another mandate — by demanding that all drugs be proved safe as well as effective.

But he said safety is a relative thing for people who likely will otherwise die if not given a new drug. He said specialists of the National Cancer Institute have accepted "that a certain degree of risk of potential side effects is acceptable, providing thereis the probability of benefit to the treated patient."

chers and some FEA officials "brought new drug investigations to a halt in the United States for a period of months, but currently both agencies are reaching a more realistic

That night, the American tourists partook of another steak dinner. The evening wore on.

And some returned fairly early to their hotel rooms and elsewhere. And a few others made tracks to an uptown discotheque for some funky American music and dancing.

The next morning, the band of tourists, which now numbered 30, again boarded the bus.

This time, the forward-looking travelers were bound to the train station for the 13-hour trip over the

The journey would take them over the desert, through the mountains, and into the tropical West Coast.

Lo-Vaca profits ordered credited to customers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A new majority on the Railroad Commission Friday ordered LoVaca Gathering Co. to credit its South Texas customers with approximately $2.6 million a month from its profits in the sale of natural gas to East Coast

The commission's newest member, Jon Newton, made a detailed motion to that effect after a three-hour hearing. He and chairman Mack Wallace waited for Jim Langdon either to second the motion or not.

Langdon began asking Wallace questions about the motion. Then, while he seemed to mull his response, the lawyer for Lo-Vaca jumped up and asked if he could announce what the company would do if the motion passed.

Wallace could have ruled the lawyer, Jefferson Giller, out of order, but he permitted him to proceed.

Giller said Lo-Vaca would make no more interstate contracts of the kind under discussion, because it couldn't make a profit on them. He also said the company would appeal such an order to the courts.

Wallace then asked Langdon if he would second the motion. Langdon said he couldn't, that he abstained. Wallace then called for a vote. Newton voted aye.

"The chair votes aye," Wallace

Giller had told the commission the interstate contracts cost Lo-Vaca customers nothing. Newton agreed, but then reminded Giller that when LoVaca lost money in 1973 and 1974, its customers contributed to its recovery. Lo-Vaca made a $6.2 million profit in 1976, according to its annual report released Thursday, and Newton said the customers that shared in the loss are now entitled to share in the profit. Giller also argued the company needed the profit to build storage facilities. Such facilities would free the company's operational problems with "take or pay" contracts during periods when gas consumption is low. The company must accept the gas or pay for it anyway if it has no place to put it.

Don Butler, representing Austin, said the storage facilities definitely are needed and should have been built years ago. But it also is important psychologically for angry LoVaca customers, whose rates have gone up as much as 10 times and are among the highest in the nation, to have their confidence restored in the company, he said. Besides, Butler said, leaving the profit with Lo-Vaca would assist its parent company, Coastal States Gas Corp., which is under a commission order to provide $2.5 million a month to Lo-Vaca for capital improvements. Lo-Vaca profits modify that order, he Brzezinski said the United States was prepared to accept a range limit of something less than 2,000 miles on cruise missiles. Present U.S. plans do not call for cruise missiles - pilotless aircraft - with a longer range than that, anyway. The Pentagon hopes to have cruise missiles ready for use by 1980. Brown estimates the Soviets are at least five years behind this country on cruise missile technology.

As he prepared to leave Moscow Wednesday, Vance said the Soviets "proposed nothing new on their side." But Brown said Friday the Russians made a counter proposal which was unacceptable to the United States.

The defense secretary said the Soviets reintroduced "with some modifications" the deal they offered His last surviving widow lives here and makes her livelihood by taking in Kissinger in January, 1976. The Soviet proposal would have placed a 350-mile limit on sealaunched cruise missiles, a range Brown said would permit Societ submarines to attack most major U.S. cities because they are near the coast but would not permit U.S. submarines to reach major Soviet cities which are inland. Brown said the Carter administration feels no obligation to accept elements of the 1976 package which may have been accepted by the Ford administration.

Refugees report anti-Red sabotage in Saigon

By GEORGE MCARTHUR The Los Angeles Times

BANGKOK - Starting late in the day on Saturday March 19, the city of Saigon was rocked by a series of explosions which continued for fourhours. Refugees claim the blasts were the most spectacular display by anti-communist resistance forces since South Vietnam collapsed two

Refugees said that word spread through the city the following daythat former South Vietnamese soldiers had sabotaged one and possibly more Communist ammunition dumps on the outskirts of Saigon. The display was timed to coincide with the arrival in Hanoi of Leonard Woodcock, President Carter's special envoy on Americans missing in action in the vietnamese

One woman who was in Saigon's downtown market district when the blasts started said that initially people were stunned and some ran for cover thinking the city was under some kind of attack.

Then, she said, the war-wise residents of the city realized from past experience that it was an ammunition dump blowing up somewhere. Some of the people in the marketplace then began to smile and some actually applauded as a sign of their approval that some Communist installation was being blown up.

Western diplomatic sources in Bangkok confirmed that Saigon was shaken by a long series of explosions on the afternoon of March 19. These sources said they did not know whether the explosions were the result of some accident or whether they were set off by resistance forces in South Vietnam

Refugees who arrived in Bangkok aboard a Red Cross flight Wednesday gave the first accounts of their experiences. They told their versions on the promise that their identity would not be revealed.

One woman who lived near the Roman Catholic cathedral in downtown Saigon said the initial blasts "shook the walls and rattled all the windows in my house."

Another refugee said the continuing explosions appeared to come from the direction of Long Binh the sprawling base about 15 miles east of the city where the Americans

They were all smiling but not saying anything."

There was no mention of the explosion over the Communist radio or in the controlled press.

Refugees said, however, that the Communists themselves evidently believed the explosions were the work of resistance forces. Three different refugees said that in their precincts the local Communist leadership called special meetings of all residents on the day following the explosions.

At these meetings, the leaders delivered stiff lectures berating those who displayed any sympathy for "reactionaries." These people

Refugees said that following the explosions all kinds of rumors began to circulate in the city. One rumor said that the resistance forces ac-tually had blown up five ammunition dumps around the city. At least two refugees claimed that the noise of the explosions seemed to come from several directions. While the refugees said that the authorities obviously were nervous over the explosions, they did not have any personal knowledge of arrests as a result.

'People are frequently arrested at night but we never know the reasons," one refugee said. Refugees previously have reported that ammunition dumps are a favored target of the few scattered South Vietnamese bands still carrying on some kind of resistance.

WASHINGTON - D.C. Medical Society officials are asking Washington doctors to create a $100,000 fund to fight "frivolous and

LET'S TEACH READING

By far the most important basic learning tool that should be taught in our schools is reading. I stand for doing whatever is necessary to teach our youngsters how to read better. A youngster must have a basic education in reading before he is prepared to learn all the other subjects that are taught in our schools.

DISCIPLINE

Our school system needs to put some teeth into its discipline rules. The school board must stand behind the teachers to assure a classroom environment conducive to better learning. DISCIPLINE MUST BE IMPROVED!

MOTIVATION

I am concerned with the downward trend over the past several years in the Scholastic Aptitude Test Scores (SAT) of our high school seniors. As a member of the school board I will concentrate on programs that will reverse this trend; programs that will motivate our youngsters to want to improve themselves.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD SCHOOL

I believe that the neighborhood school is extremely important to the education of our youngsters, especially those in the elementary grades. I will stand-up and oppose busing kindergarten through the third grade

PARENT INPUT

How can the school board know what is on the minds of the parents if board meetings are always held during working hours when so many of our parents can not attend. When elected to the board, I will propose that at least half of our meetings be held in

FRESH IDEAS

I believe that six years gives a person sufficient time to. fulfill his or her programs as a school trustee. I don't think the citizens of our community want career school board members but instead want a continuous flow of new ideas and fresh approaches. This can only come about with a

It is not strange that someone chose this lonely spot to erect a reverent memorial. It was on a desolate hill that three

Always these crosses have seemed to belong to the desolate hills of life. When a man feels the crushing burden

Presbyterian Week, an annual pre-Easter event sponsored by the Midland Presbyterian Corporate Ministry, will begin Sunday and continue through Wednesday.

The Rev. Tom W. Boyd, professor of philosophy at the University of Oklahoma, will conduct morning Bible studies and evening worship services during the four days. A leader in current religious thought. Dr. Boyd is a popular public speaker who offers his theology with an evangelistic style he has developed during his years in the ministry. Dr. Boyd previously directed youth workshops at Trinity University in San Antonio and taught theology at Vanderbilt University's Divinity. In 1965, he received Amoco Foundation's Good Teaching Award, which recognizes excellence in teaching at the undergraduate level.

The guest minister's theme for the series of Bible studies next week will be "How to Face the Facts Without Losing Faith." The four evening worship services are open to the

First Methodist sets Holy Week services

Holy Week at First United Methodist Church will be initiated with special services Sunday morning and evening, followed by noontime services Monday through Thursday. All events are to be open to the public.

Highlighting the church's Sunday morning service at 10:35 a.m. will be the procession of palms, a confirmation ceremony for young people of the church who have recently completed special instruction, and a sermon titled "The Christian Doxology" by Dr. Charles E. Lutrick, senior pastor of the congregation. The Chancel and Carol choirs of the church will sing special music.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The steep slide of the past decade in Roman Catholic school enrollment has halted, and a levelling off process now is taking place, says a report by the National Catholic Educational Association. It says that in the current 1976-77 school year, enrollment in Catholic elementary and secondary schools totals 3,364,000, down by 51,000 or 1.5 per cent, less than the 2.3 per cent decline in the over-all number of Catholic elementary-age children brought on by lowered birth rates.

Moslem leaders regret U.S. Moslem lawlessness

By STUART AUERBACH The Washington Post

BEIRUT - Moslem religious leaders in the Middle East, where the sound of the Muezzin calling the faithful to prayer echoes through the streets five times each day, are pleased that Americans are adopting the Islamic faith.

But they wish the newly converted would follow more closely both the Koran - Islam's bible - and the laws of the United States.

"No doubt we are happy to have Moslems in the United States. But we would be happier to know these Moslems are law-abiding people not causing harm to innocent citizens, said Ahji Mahmud Alaya, a recognized authority on Moslem law here who is the son of a former mufti (Moslem religious leader) of Beirut and secretary to Hassan Khaled, the present mufti.

While stopping short of condemning Washington's Hanafi Moslem group, Alaya - whose views echoed those of other Islamic leaders interviewed here — emphasized that the taking of hostages runs counter to religious law.

Moreover, while revenge is a part of the Islamic code, it must be done by the state not by individuals. In the eyes of most Moslems, revenge is the same as punishment. "Taking hostages of any kind is against the soul of Islam," Alaya said, repeating it three times to make sure his point came across.

"An innocent is an innocent," he continued. "To take revenge, do it against the man who made the

In Moslem countries, where there is no separation between church and state, revenge would be enacted by the government. In non-Moslem countries such as the United States, revenge - or punishment - would also be the job of the government, Alaya said. "There would be chaos if everyone did it himself."

While Alaya refused to attack Washington's Hanafi Moslems as betrayers of the faith, he pointed out that Islamic rules contained in the Koran are written in Arabic and it is hard for anyone who does not read Arabic to understand the rules of the

The religion holds, he said, that "no Moslem in the world can say another Moslem is not a true believer. We can't sit in judgment of other Moslems. That is up to God."

Moslem leaders here know little about their American counterparts and how they practice their religion. They have no direct relations with them, and newspaper accounts are not enough to judge them by.

The Hanafi takeover of three Washington buildings failed to atr ract much newspaper coverage here or in other parts of the Middle East.

WASHINGTON (AP) - "Feeling great," despite the loss of a foot, Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex.; returned to his office Friday for the first time since

Teague met with federal energy advisor James Schlesinger to discuss the aspects of the Carter administration's energy program which will come under the purview of Teague's Science and Technology

Teague's left foot was amputated about six inches below the knee in January. An old war wound had degenerated and become infected to the point that doctors said there was no way to save it.

Teague has a temporary prosthesis and is using crutches to get around. He will still be going daily to physical therapy sessions at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

But he said he plans to get back into his office routine next week, although he's uncertain how much time he'll be able to devote to it in the first weeks. He has lost 43 pounds since entering the hospital.

Teague said he and Schlesinger Carter package.

Patronage appointments bring formal complaints

By DAVID'S. BRODER The Washington Post

Reporters inquiring at the White House were told that Ista's report was about half-right. The White House did announce this week that Gerridee Wheeler was one of 45 persons named to serve, without pay, on the Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.

Originally named to the post by President Ford, Wheeler was identified in the White House press release as the past president of the National Association for Mental Health. But unlike three women members of the Democratic National Committee who were also named to the commission, no political identification was given for Wheeler.

The other appointment, of former North Dakota GOP chairman Allan Young, was not a presidential choice. Young was named to the regional selection panel for White House fellows by Bruce H. Hasenkamp, director of the Presidential Commission on White House Fellowships. Hasenkamp himself has been replaced by Carter.

That was the question the IAB asked Hill.

Workmen's benefits may jump

Hill said the carry over should be stacked onto this year's average wage increase in determinig the new benefit ceiling.

'The opposite interpretation would allow consecutive yearly increases in average wages of $9 without an increase in compensation rates," and this wasn't the legislature's intent, Hill said.

IAB member Sid McKinney said the average wage in manufacturing has

U.S. aid to Zaire

One of the anomalies of the shocking, mysterious invasion of Zaire is that it is more difficult for the United States to learn exactly what is going on there than it is to get information back from Mars.

The invasion has been on for three weeks, but only in recent days has it been determined that the invaders principally are from Katanga. The numbers involved are not known definitely. Neither is it known for sure whether Cubans in Angola are taking part.

It is clear, however, that the attackers are striking surgically at the economic heart of Zaire, which has been a political friend of the United States since the African state achieved its independence in 1960.

A news release From Kinshasa, Zaire, the middle of this week, said the Zaire army staff had fled the copper-mining center of Kolwezi in southern Zaire in the face of Katangan invaders.

All Americans in the area except four Protestant missionaries were reported to have been evacuated. Again reports are conflicting. Officials of the Zaire government said the invaders had made no recent advances. Other sources, however, estimate the invaders have driven government forces and officials from about a third of Shaba province.

Eyewitnesses say the invaders have captured at least one town and the former army headquarters in Shaba. The picture from Zaire's viewpoint is none too bright.

Zaire, incidentally, is economically troubled and has an external debt of $500 million. Only the continuing extraction of copper and diamonds from the Shaba province, at which the invaders are striking, can repay that debt. American mining investments in the region total $1"

Given the United States stake in the continuing well-being of Zaire. President Carter's immediate response to a plea from President Mobuto Sese Seko was timely and justified.

On the basis of the previous administration's rejected effort to assist survival of selfdetermination in Angola, it is logical to speculate that President Ford could not have assisted Zaire had the invasion occurred before he left office.

It is hoped that the muted criticism in Congress of President Carter's assistance is a recognition of realities as well as an index of the continuing rapport which Mr. Carter has with Congress.

U.S.-Vietnam aid agreement (?)

By JACK ANDERSON and LES

WASHINGTON - Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger will be subpoenaed by the House, if that's what it takes to find out whether they wrote a secret codicil into the 1973 peace agreement with North Vietnam.

In the past, both men have denied the existence of any such secret accord. But one top U.S. source read us excerpts that he had copied from the leged codicil. The key passages confirm North Vietnamese claims that Nixon promised them "postwar construction" aid of at least $3.25 billion spread over three years.

House Asian Affairs Chairman Lester Wolff, D.-N.Y., has written privately to both Nixon and Kissinger, inquiring about the codicil. Nixon ignored the letter; Kissinger sent an evasive reply, suggesting that Wolff contact the State Dept.

Kissinger told us that Nixon had made the $3.25 billion offer in a secret letter to North Vietnam's Premier Pham Van Dong. The North Vietnamese abrogated the agreement, Kissinger said, by their takeover of South Vietnam.

But according to our source, the North Vietnamese believed they had a commitnent for immediate economic assistance. A Joint Economic Commission began work on the reconstruction effort, but then closed down. The North Vietnamese looked upon this as a violation of the peace agreement and, therefore, began preparing for their final military offensive, the source said.

The secret Nixon letter, he said was actually part of the codicil. The State Dept. began passing it off as a private, presidential letter after Congress got too inquisitive, he said.

He pointed out that a presidential letter is less binding than a formal codicil and, therefore, less likely to disturb Congress. The State Dept. could also justify withholding presidential papers, but not a secret codicil, from Congress.

The codicil consists of three parts. our source said. The main document, addressed to Pham Van Dong, offers the controvesial $3.25 billion in "grant aid." This was prepared before the peace treaty was signed in Paris but was not formally adopted until a week afterward, the source said.

Reading from his notes, he quoted excerpts from the codicil. It does not spell out the details of the $3.25 billion reconstruction plan except to state: "Other forms of aid will be agreed upon by the two sides.'

The Joint Economic Commission began to work out these details before it was disbanded. It was agreed that the United States, for example, would construct an entire steel mill and a modern thermal power station in North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese, in turn, agreed to spend 85 per cent of the aid money in the United States, but could spend up to 15 per cent elsewhere. The purchases from America were supposed to include pre-fab housing, cement, sheet glass, plumbing and other construction material.

Wolff wants to establish exactly what secret commitments were made to North Vietnam. Then he would like to determine how much of the promised aid might be covered by the military construction that the United States abandoned in Vietnam.

But for many Americans, the big question is whether Nixon and Kissinger made a secret deal with Hanoi behind their backs. Wolff has sought unsuccessfully to get the Nixon codicil or letter from the State Dept.

Our source says the original is mysteriously missing from the files. Meanwhile, the frustrated Wolff plans to seek permission from the House leadership to subpoena both Nixon and Kissinger. The former president, after all, has made unsworn statements for David Frost's TV special for an estimated $600,000.

Footnote: Wolff refused comment.

WHO'S NEWS: As secretary of the sprawling Health, Education and Welfare Dept., Joseph Califano is continuing to live like the highpriced, high-powered Washington attorney he used to be. White House sources tell us that President Carter is irritated over the recent revelations that Califano hired a chef and bodyguard for hinself at public expense. Carter had ordered his cabinet officers to maintain a humble pose. So Califano is the first member of the cabinet to land in the Carter doghouse.

- One of the loudest howls against the government ban on saccharin cane from Rep. Thomas Foley, D.-Wash. Snorting indignation, he introduced a bill to overturn the Food and Drug Administration's ruling. Reason: the congressman and his wife love the diet cola, Tab, which contains saccharin. Mrs. Foley rushed out after the FDA announced its ban and bought up 20 cases of Tab. A spokesman confirmed that the Foleys are hoarding "substantial amounts" of Tab both at home and at the office.

Parks needed

To The Editor: Let's put our children back in our parks.

They need facilities for healthy active development. With better athletic equipment and family recreational facilities, perhaps they will be MORE interested in character building activities and LESS interested in drugs and alcohol.

With good lighting and more family oriented activities the possibility of drugs being used around the parks will be less likely.

All families do not have memberships in private clubs and organizations so good parks and recreational facilities are really necessary to ALL of us including the approximately 9,000 senior citizens who live in Midland stop and substance begin? Even if Mr. Carter's gestures were merely symbolic, the end result is the same. He is getting closer to the people. The walls are breaking down that separate the imperial president from the people he's supposed to represent. He is talking directly to the people, hearing their concerns, and learning just what they think about him and his policies through one-to-one conversation. Some will argue, for example, that Mr. Carter actually called back Ruby Hewitt of San Bernardino, Calif., merely for appearance's sake after promising her on his March 5 talk show he would help. But he did find out the answer to her problem, and he did call her back, and she knows more now than she did before, and so does

There is no greater investment than our children and A LITTLE CAN HELP A LOT, so please vote yes for them for better parks.

Right now, 71 per cent of the American people approve of the job Jimmy Carter is doing as President. (It is still Jimmy, by the way, for those who thought it would suddenly become James Earl as soon as he moved into the big house.)

Specifically, they believe he is doing an exceptionally good job managing energy matters and the economy, the two issues at the top of most priority lists.

Perhaps the Washington cynics will turn out to be right. Perhaps town meetings, radio talk shows and fireside chats are nothing more than media events.

But somehow, the people are get-ting through to this President much more clearly than they have to most of his modern predecessors. And when this President gets information directly from his constituents, it just can't help but influence the decisions he makes and the direction his administration takes. Time will tell. But the cynics may, just this once, be

Three share Greensboro Open golfing leadership

Irwin, one of the game's most feared competitors, birdied the final hole for a six-under-par 66 that put him in a three-way tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the $235,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf

"I think I'm starting to get the hang of things," said Irwin, a former U.S. Open champion who, at one time or another, has been in the title hunt in each of his last two starts.

He shared the top spot with a pair of rapidly-improving nonwinners, Danny Edwards and Larry Nelson. All were at 136, eight under par for two trips over the hilly, 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course.

The slightly-built, balding Nelson, who didn't take up golf until he was 22, also had a 66 that could have been much, much better. Edwards, who has finished 20th or better in all but one start this year, shot another 68 in the warm, sunny weather.

It was two strokes back to Rik Massengale, the Bob Hope winner, who had a 67 for 138, and two more to big George Burns, 72-140.

Andy Bean, the first-round leader, slipped from an opening 67 to 76 and

Slump-ridden Johnny Miller, who has finished only two tournaments all year, strained his left wrist coming out of a bunker on the ninth hole and withdrew after a horrendous 42 on

"It's no big deal," said Miller, the current British Open king. "I've had trouble with the same wrist for five years. It'll be okay next week" for the Masters tournament in Augusta, Ga.

The present Masters champ, Ray Floyd, had a 71-144 but PGA titleholder Dave Stockton was 76-153 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Al Geiberger, who is defending his title here despite the death of his father in the crash of two jets in the Canary Islands, matched par 72 for a 143 total.

Irwin, winner of more than $250,000 last season despite skipping most of the summer events, had to hole a 15foot putt-"a helluva putt," he saidon the final hole to tie Nelson, 29, and Edwards, 26, each still seeking their first tour titles.

"These are not non-entities," Irwin cautioned. "They are very accomplished players. They haven't won, but they've been right at the top. They will win, both of them, Either

Edwards bogeyed twice but rode a hot putter to his share of the lead. He scored three times from about 30-35 feet and chipped in for another birdie. Nelson, who was ill Thursday night and almost didn't play Friciay, started "feeling a lot better when I started making birdies." started making birdies.

He, too, escaped with a bogey and holed only one long putt, from about 18 feet. Three birdies came after iron shots had come to rest within eight feet of the flag. One was on a threefooter and another came off an two iron shot that stopped some six inches from the cup. He missed two birdie putts of less than five feet and had seven other opportunities from

There were no real disappointments for Midland High as the Bulldogs qualified all of the individuals they expected with the exception of Pat Darden in the mile. Darden missed the meet with the flu.

Umfleet to Wichita

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. - We hoped we'd have to go to find Mike Umfleet some morning when the Chicago Cubs were working out at Scottsdale Stadium, so it was a disappointment when the former Midland Cubs' third baseman was spotted on his way from the locker room to the big diamond at Casa Grande where Wichita was playing the Giants' Phoenix farm

UNLIKE MOST players farmed out, Mike was just thrilled at having had a chance to play on the varsity. "It was a wonderful experience,

Cubs defeated, 17-14

By TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. - In chilly, windy weather that was fit for it. Midland's Cubs drove to within field goal range only to have time, not to mention outs, run out as the Holyoke Brewers scored a 17-14 victory at Eldorado Park Friday in a game of you-name-the-sport.

The score indicates football, but if you go by home runs and base hits, it sounds more like slow pitch softball.

Phil Monteau, infielder from Galveston, Tex., led the Eastern Leaguers by hitting for the cycle while outfielder Jeff Yurak and infielder Fred Flores chipped in with homers.

Bryan Rosinski and Aaron Randall homered for the Cubs while Karl Gordon, Eric Grundy and Vern Jark, as well as Rosinski, knocked in two runs each for Midland, which fell behind 13-5 early and never could catch up.

Randall, the Grambling College grad who twice previously has tried to make the Midland club only to wind up in Pompano Beach, continued his impressive hitting with two singles to go with his hoe homer.

The loss left Midland with a 3-4 record in the Cactus League.

CUB BRIEFS - Fallout from Wichita brought Midland pit-chers Wayne Doland, Larry Groover, Willie Prall, catcher Steve Haug and infielder Keith Drumright...Doiand, a 13-game winner with Midland last season, hopes his demotion is just a move to give him more work...Only player beside Randall to get more than one hit was Vern Jark, the second baseman from North Dakota.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Joe Wallis, former Midland Cub, making a rare appearance in the starting lineup, knocked out three hits, stole a base and scored three runs Friday as the Chicago Cubs beat the Cleveland Indians 10-4 in exhibition

Guillermo Hernandez, a rookie left-hander, was the winning pitcher, and worked the first five innings. He gave up four hits, one of them a tworun homer by Frank Duffy, who drove in three of the Indians' four runs.

The Cubs went ahead to stay in the third, breaking a 2-2 tie on doubles by Bobby Murcer and George Mitterwald. Wallis tripled during a tworun fourth-inning rally and double and scored in the sixth.

NFL winds up annual meeting with deferment

PHOENIX (AP) - The National Football League closed its annual meeting Friday by deferring any solution to retroactive compensation and deciding to experiment with a seventh field offical during early exhibition games. "The problem of retroactive compensation was discussed at length and tabled for our next meetings in early June," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said. "The owners didn't vote to drop it.

"The sentiment was to keep it alive for now. If the issue had been close to dead, we would have voted it down. If it had been close to being settled, we would have stayed with it and come to some sort of conclusion.

The issue involves the oneyear period when option compensation did not exist. Under the old Rozelle Rule, in which the commissioner could make arbitrary decisions, a team which signed a free agent could be forced to compensate the player's former team with one or more players or draft choices or cash or a com-bination. The rule was declared illegal in federal court.

Under the recently signed bargaining agreement between the owners and players' union, com-pensation is determined by the

During that period when compensation was not required, some teams signed free agents, most notably Washington, which picked up John Riggins from the New York Jets and former Dallas Cowboys Calvin Hill (via the defunct World Football League) and Jean Fugett. Former Miami Dolphins (also former WFLers) Marry Csonka and Paul Warfield went to the New York Giants and Cleveland Browns respectively. And other players also ricocheted around without their former teams getting anything in return.

Earlier this week the owners decided not to use the May 3-4 college draft as a vehicle for repaying the teams which lost players. And sentiment remained split — splintered would be more accurate — with some owners demanding compensation and some willing to forego it, some willing to pay compensation and some refusing to do so, and some saying the whole issue shoule be forgotten since the signings were legal at the time.

"I think everyone would like to see this thing settled," Rozelle said, "but there doesn't seem to be any clear-cut

The seventh official -"the best way to use him would be as a sort of free safety," NFL Executive Director Jim Kensil said — would be situated deep in the middle of the secondary, midway between the back judge and field judge. His responsibility would be the central area of the field covered by free safeties and occupied by tight ends or running backreceivers when the wide receivers are on deep patterns.

Hearing set for Monday in Randle-Lucchesi case

TEMPE, Ariz. ZAP) - A broken promise prompted a flurry of punches to the face of Texas Rangers manager. Frank Lucchesi, second-baseman Lenny Randle said Friday.

Randle, who was suspended Monday after breaking Lucchesi's cheekbone in Orlando, Fla., gave his side of the incident to Phoenix Gazette sports editor Joe Gilmartin.

'I'm a religious person," said Randle, who faces a hearing Monday on his suspension at Arlington, Tex. 'I've never done anything like this was being lied to."

In seven years with the Rangers, Randle has played seven positions, but this year, it was going to be different, he said

"No more Mr. Versatile. This year, I was going to concentrate on playing second base.

Lucchesi, in effect, promised him a chance to be the regular second baseman but failed to deliver, Randle said. Instead, the post went to another former Arizona State University star,

"Frank told me they had to give Bump a chance to prove himself, but that he already knew what I could do," Randle said. "And I said that was fine. I started at second base in the opening exhibition game, and everything was beautiful."

But Randle did not play again for a week, and finally surfaced in a "B"

"I only played about four of the first 20 games," said Randle. "I had several talks with Frank, all of them cordial. I said I wanted to play some more, that I wanted to get used to Bert Campaneris, and that Wills had been up 45 times, and I'd been up 15, which wasn't a fair shake.'

There was a report that Randle was thinking of leaving camp, and Lucchesi was quoted as saying he was tired of "punks" making $80,000 a year by saying "play me or trade

'I was making $80,000, so I guess I was the punk," said Randle.

Randle said he sought out club vice president Eddie Robinson. "I told him had to have the truth, and he told me in so many words I'd probably be a utility man again.

"I told him that if I wanted to be a reserve, I would have joined the National Guard. I had pretty good rapport with Eddie. He was the one who finally told me what was going Rapport was not as good between Randle and Lucchesi, however. A few days before the punches were thrown, Randle said he encountered Lucchesi and kidded, "Good morning, Skip, is there anything I can do for you?" Randle said Lucchesi replied, What are you trying to do, make brownie points?"

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) -Jerry Martin, a reserve outfielder the past two seasons with Philadelphia, delivered two late clutch hits to carry the Phillies to a 2-1, 11inning exhibition victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday.

Martin smacked a one-out double in the ninth to set up the tying run, then singled in the second extra inning to drive in pinch-runner Tim McCarver with the winner.

McCarver ran for Greg Luzinski, who hit a one-out triple off Clay Carroll, the last of four St. Louis

Grand Prix West may be called

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - The threat of last-minute cancellation hung over Sunday's United States Grand Prix West, even as the exotic Formula 1 machines took to the track Friday afternoon

Sources told The Associated Press that the Long Beach Grand Prix Association, headed by Chris Pook, is $150,000 short of the amount they agreed to pay the Formula 1 Con-structors Association to stage the

F1CA leader Bernie Ecclestone issued an "or else" ultimatum after a stormy meeting Thursday night. The LBGPA was reportedly trying to secure pledges for the remainder of the money against anticipated gate

However, another source said advance ticket sales have been cautious and "nothing to write home about." Pook was unavailable for comment. Aides said he spent much of the night installing fence around the course after workmen walked off. According to sources, Ecclestone has never left his offices in England without the guarantee in the bank. However, Pook reportedly promised that the money would be here upon Ecclestone's arrival.

When not all of it was, the trouble started. Ken Gardner, of the sixwheel Tyrrell team, was so enraged at the situation, he picked Ecclestone up off the ground and shook him, sources said.

The militant F1CA has never backed down on a guarantee agreement with organizers. The Canadian Grand Prix two years ago was cancelled when organizers refused to meet F1CA demands.

"I doubt if they will cancel, since everybody is here already, but it leaves the F1CA in a delicate position," a source said. "If they back down, it will ruin their bargaining power with every other organizer. If they cancel, everybody is going to be BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Joe Kansas City's second-inning surge Zdeb pounded a three-run, tie-included a bases-loaded walk by Fred breaking homer in the eighth inning to give the Kansas City Royals a 12-9 exhibition baseball victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday.

The belt, which snapped a 9-9 tie, came off losing pitcher Terry Forster, who spent the previous day in Pittsburgh getting his sore throwing arm.

The Royals erupted for five runs in the second inning off Pirate starter John Candelaria, who also yielded a two-run homer in the fourth to John included a bases-loaded walk by Fred Patek and a tworun throwing error by Pirate outfielder Dave Parker.

Africa makes new changes

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) - The Africans modified their line Friday in their bid to isolate South Africa from world sport.

Instead of seeking to forbid countries from competing against South Africa, they simply pressed for the ban to be applied to National Olympic Committees.

The change of wording brought a gentle note of harmony into a stormy week of Olympic conferences which at one time threatened to widen the split between the African countries and the Olympic Games.

The re-worded resolution was accepted by the executive board of the International Olympic Committee as a basis for consideration. Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said "We will now study the suggested amendment to see what its implications are."
