Turbulence spawns hail, funnel clouds

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

Tornadoes near Odessa, as much as two inches of rain in the Midland area and pea-size to golf-ball size hail were all reported across the Per-mian Basin Thursday. And if the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal is correct, there is a 50 per cent chance that Midland area residents will be in for even more rain through Saturday.

The weatherman said .84 inch of rain fell in Midland Thursday, but added that unofficial reports said 1.5 to 2 inches fell in some parts of

Deadline dawns for Odessan

By JIM STEINBERG

One the eve of the federal income tax deadline, a federal district court jury here found Gordon W. Kahl, an Odessa resident, guilty on two counts of failure to file a tax return.

A stunned Kahl was remanded to the custody of U.S. marshals by U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle. He spent Thursday night in jail pending a bond hearing today.

"We haven't definitely decided but it's very likely we'll appeal this decision," Lewis Terrell, one of Kahl's two Lubbock attorneys, said.

Kahl was convicted of the misdemeanor offense of failing to file tax returns during 1973 and 1974, when he lived in Crane.

Having billed the case as the most important to be tried in the courthouse here, government attorneys were pleased with the verdict.

"We are pleased to see that the jury listened to the facts of the case and followed the court's instructions," U.S. Attorney John Clark said.

While making no public statements following the verdict, government officials have admitted the case caused them great concern. Kahl, a member of United Tax

Action Patriots, had publicly declared that the income tax law was unconstitutional and, along with other group members, urged people not to file tax returns.

Andrews reported .7 inch of rain and high winds, but no damage. Big Spring reported 1.7 to 2 inches of rain, some pea-to-golf ball-size hail that may have caused some roof damage, but no severe winds. Lamesa had .5 inch, moderate winds and no hail. Crane had an estimated .5 inch of rain, some hail and funnel clouds. The roof of the Warren Gasoline Co. carport, located about 20 miles west of the city, was blown off, the sheriff's office said. Stanton reported 1.25 inches of rain since Wednesday, but had no estimate on Thursday's rain. Calm winds were reported there this morning and Thursday. Rankin reported .5 inch of rain, no hail and moderate winds, but nearby McCamey had pea-to-golf ball-size hail.

Big Lake had one inch of rain, no hail and moderate winds.

The Odessa area had three tor-nadoes reported south of the city and two west of the city. Some pea-size hail was also reported there.

Late Thursday and during the night, twisters menaced Saragosa in Reeves County and Ward County, in addition to the Lubbock area and other parts of Texas.

Webb closure could shake school system

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

BIG SPRING - Big Spring school trustees are studying an administration proposal that would close five elementary schools and reorganize the junior high school structure.

The proposal for coping with reduced enrollment when Webb Air Force Base closes was presented to the board at Thursday's trustees meeting by schools superintendent Dr. Emmett McKenzie.

McKenzie formally resigned, effective May 31, at the Thursday meeting. He will become superintendent of schools in Alvin.

McKenzie this morning said the reorganization plan was not approved by the trustees. No decision will be made, he said, until the board has studied the proposal and considered alternatives.

Under the proposal, five of the city's 11 elementary schools would be closed and the pupils reassigned. Transportation would be provided to "students who might be displaced from

In some cases, that transportation would be for more than two miles and thus qualify for state aid. But, most of the transportation would be for shorter distance and would have to be paid for totally out of local funds, McKenzie said.

If the proposal is adopted, sixth grade would be removed from elementary school and all Big Spring sixth and seventh graders would attend Goliad Junior High School. All eighth grade students would attend Runnels Junior High School.

Big Spring High School would be unaffected by the reorganization plan, McKenzie said.

The school district expects a drop in enrollment of 1,000 to 1,200, from the present 6,200 students to somewhere around 5,000," he said. About 550 of the lost students will be from elementary school and the remainder from secondary schools.

Area inventor creates tornado-proof 'john'

Almer Silen has a novel idea; a tornado-proof outhouse that's designed for the unsafe indoors.

He positively declared that the quarter-inch steel shelter will even withstand earthquakes, as long as it doesn't fall into a gaping crack, and will serve well as fallout shelter. "It's regular bathroom size," said this Big Spring inventor and idea man. "It has a bathtub, stool and It also can be fitted with a vanity -

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - State Comptroller Bob Bullock today announced he would seek re-election to the post he has held for a little more than two years.

When asked about rumors that he wanted to run for governor, Bullock laughed and said in a joking manner he didn't think he could beat incumbent Dolph Briscoe.

In a more serious vein, Bullock said he considered the governor's race but feared some decisions he would have to make while continuing as comptroller might be misinterpreted if he was conducting a race for the state's highest office at the same time.

Also speaking this morning were Alberto Magnon, executive vice president of the Laredo National Bank, and Joe Spurlock, special assistant on legislative affairs to Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Magnon urged Texas petroleum business to try to get its share of oil produced in Mexico and to increase international trade with that country.

Spurlock reviewed bills before the present 65th Texas Legislature, stating that Briscoe's administration is trying to tighten the number of state services and employes and the number of dollars spent by the state. In addition, he said, Briscoe's administration is trying to crack down on crime, which Briscoe has determined as the No. 3 priority in the state, Spurlock said.

man's Compensation have been introduced into the Legislature. He predicted a compromise measure, which would raise weekly benefits to about $91, will pass.

Cory also outlined a list of probable candidates for state office in 1978.

He predicted that Attorney General John Hill will run against incumbent Dolph Briscoe for governor. Hill's primary disadvantage, Cory said, would be difficulties in raising money. No one is likely to run against Lt. Gov. William Hobby for re-election, he said. He said likely candidates for attorney general are Sen. Max Sherman, Secretary of State Mark White and former Speaker of the House bill is necessary is that a coal pipeline of rain over broad areas of the state for a second straight day, the Associated Press said.

There was at least small damage from wind, water and hailstones at many points and some roads were blocked, principally at low-water crossings. Rising streams chased campers and livestock from low areas, with the worst conditions reported in South Central Texas.

The wild weather kept official observers busy through the night and into the morning issuing a steady series of flash flood and severe storm warnings for one county after another from the north central into the southwest part of the state.

Stamps; group manager for the Internal Revenue Service intelligence division in Dallas, said "top tax protesters are given priority" for investigations without regard to the dollar amount involved. "We have to deter people from failing to pay taxes," Stamps said. The defense for Kahl had, in part, argued that the income tax law was both unconstitutional and offensive to certain religious beliefs.

During an emotional summation before the jury Thursday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck said. "The destruction of taxes is the destruction of civilization. I know this is the worst possible time for a tax case, but don't take your frustrations out against the government. Do you want anarchy or democracy?"

Carl Pierce and Speck prosecuted the case. Lewis and Buford Terrell poured down in 30 minutes at Mountain Home in the same vicinity. Authorities reported logs and stones washed onto Interstate 10 west of Kerrville and made the route dangerous although still passable. A boat dock and two paddleboats were swept away from the River Inn 12 miles west of Hunt. Johnson Creek inthat neighborhood rose six feet and continued to climb as a big rise tumbled toward its juncture with the Guadalupe River.

Radar spotted a tornado in the air 25 miles west of Kerrville soon after midnight but it spun away harmless-

Still other funnel clouds touched down in Central Texas near Austin, New Braunfels and Hindes, likewise dealing no damage.

Steady and often torrential rains doused many sections of the state and still more moisture was forecast. While most of the flood warnings expired after several hours, the National Weather Service placed all of North Texas under a flash flood watch lasting into tonight. It predicted thunderstorms packing locally heavy rain would spread northward through areas east of a line linking San Angelo and North Texas.

The massive storms sent big crests tumbling down rivers and creeks from the Lower Pecos Valley in West Texas eastward almost to San Antonio and Austin a northward past the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Spring warmth accompanied the unruly weather. Thursday's top temperatures ranged up to 85 degrees at Alice, Brownsville, Cotulla and McAllen in the south part of the state.

President wants to reduce inflation to 4 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today launched a drive to bring the nation's inflation rate down to about four per cent by the end of 1979, and said that if Congress passed a permanent income tax cut as a substitute for his discarded $50 tax rebate, "I would veto it."

Carter said the permanent tax reduction Republicans pushed in opposing his rebate would be irresponsible and inflationary. He said he does not believe Congress will

The President's inflationfighting program emphasized voluntary cooperation and shunned controls. To monitor it, Carter named a labormanagement advisory team with AFLCIO President George Meany as one of its leaders. Meany has been sharply critical of the administration's economic course so prices has been mounting this year, with the consumer price index up at rates that would point to annual inflation of about 9 per cent. The harsh winter has been blamed for part of the increase, and administration officials estimate the rate for all of 1977 will be about 6 per cent.

The President said government, business and labor can "reasonably aim at reducing the rate of inflation by two percentage points by the end of 1979, while still vigorously pursuing our commitment to full employment.

"Our goal is to reduce the inflation rate by two per cent by the end of 1979, which is a very difficult task to undertake," Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference.

In announcing his long-awaited anti-inflation plan, Carter flatly ruled out any wage and prices controls.

He said it is evident that inflationary pressures have been intensifying all year, with the average level of price increases running at an annual rate of nine per cent.

Carter said Meany and Jones would work with other business and labor leaders, as well as government officials, to develop economic objectives for the nation, including goals for jobs and inflation.

"Most importantly, this joint effort must be voluntary and cooperative and not be based on coercive or self-defeating controls," Carter said. He said Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal will head work with the panel. There were few features in the antiinflation program that had not been previously disclosed by the President himself and or other administration

The President said he thinks the Soviet response to his initial strategic arms limitation proposals, which Moscow rejected, "has been predictable." He said he sees no reason "to change our proposals."

"I don't consider the SALT to one party (strategic arms limitation) talks at this point to have reached an impasse," Carter said. He said there are continuing discussions between U.S. and Soviet representatives.

On other topics, Carter said: -The Central Intelligence Agency has just completed a survey of world energy supplies, and it shows that reserves are smaller than had been estimated before.

'Rights' pushed at OAS

The Washington Post WASHINGTON President Carter, in his first major statement of policy toward Latin America, Thursday pledged support for nations which respect human rights and announced that he will seek Senate ratification of a broad and detailed Inter-American treaty on human rights.

Speaking to many diplomats and policymakers at a meeting of the Organization of American States, Carter made no mention of the foreign aid cuts or public criticisms on human rights grounds which have caused friction with some military-run Latin American governments in the first months of his administration.

However, he gave no sign of backing off from his stand, saying that U.S. concern for indi-vidual freedoms "will naturally influence our relations with the countries of this hemisphere and throughout the world.

The "American Convention on Human which Carter endorsed Thursday, was negotiated in 1969 but has been ratified only by Colombia and Costa Rica. The United States was previously cool to the treaty, which includes 25 articles of individual freedoms including the "right to life" which begins "in general, from the moment of conception."

Administration of-ficials said the "right to life" section and some others would not apply here because of U.S. "reservations" rejecting those clauses. Carter previously committed himself to seek Senate ratification of United Nations treaties on economic, social and cultural rights, and on civil and political rights. These are also being studied for "reservations.

In another policy reversal announced to the OAS, Carter said the United States will sign and he will seek Senate ratification of the Treaty of Tlatelolco creating a nuclear-free zone in Latin America. The practical effect would be to prohibit U.S. deployment or storage of nuclear weapons in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the Panama Canal Zone or Guantanamo Naval Base. Officials said transit or overflight of nuclear weapons would not be affected, however.

Carter's decision to approve the two treaties brought the only applause during his address. He received a standing ovation at the end, but without notable enthusiasm.

Many of the govern-ments represented at the OAS are unhappy with Carter's emphasis on civil liberties, and five of them have renounced U.S. military aid on grounds that Carter's policy interferes in their internal affairs. On Wednesday the OAS permanent council — the group to which Carter made his speech — voted 17 to 5 against placing human rights problems in Uruguay and Paraguay on the agenda for a future OAS General Assembly

The President said he will deal with the United States later this year. "I simply already occurred and it's not some free voting.

EDITOR'S NOTE —
How lethal is asbestos, and how best can it be handled? Ban it, curb it, or let it fly. There are protections for people who work with it daily, but only recently has here been casual contact with it.

Public officials across the nation are asking whether asbestos materials are a health threat to the millions of students and working ntact with them daily:

Researchers already have linked cancer and chronic lung disease to ole who work with it over long periods of time contact poses a health problem they say: "We just don't know."

This uncertainty has created a dilemma for health officials across the nation who have had to deal with controversies surrounding the threat of asbestos-coated ceilings in schools and other public places.

Crumbling ceiling coatings have been stripped from several schools in New Jersey. where environmental officials labeled asbestos "a potential health hazard" to students. They also have been stripped from dormitories, courtrooms and other public places from California to the District of Columbia.

The National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences has promised New Jersey $70,000 to study ways of dealing with airborne asbestos governor's task force has been formed in Connecticut to study that state's schools, and surveys on the use of asbestos materials in schools are being conin many other

We don't want people to panic. We don't want districts to indiscriminately tear down buildings," says James Orsburn of the California Education Department. "But if there is a problem, we want people to know about it and do something about it."

Alarm over asbestos surfaced in Howell Township, N.J., in January after doctors said a student's respiratory ailment could have been caused by inhaling airborne asbestos particles at school. Some experts were skeptical because, they said, known asbestos-related diseases don't show symptoms for 25 years or so.

Nevertheless, school officials examined the ceilings and found that a coating sprayed on in six elementary schools in the early 1960s was flaking badly and sending microscopic asbestos fibers into the air. The test showed that the coating was 25 to 50 per cent asbestos.

The child's illness later was diagnosed as mononucleosis, but his mother maintains he was made susceptible to the virus by a weakened condition resulting from inhaling asbestos fibers.

State environmental officials who urged the Howell School Board to strip the asbestos materials from the schools - at a cost of about $60,000 — say the incident pointed out a serious potential health

The Environmental Protection Agency says how much asbestos can be in any material, whether its insulation in a highrise building, fireretardant ceiling spray, car brake linings or a kitchen oven mit. Since 1972, the EPA standard has been one per cent, far below that found in the

Howell Township schools. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration says how many tiny particles can be in a cubic centimeter of air while people are working with asbestos. That figure is two fibers per cubic centimeter over an eight-hour period. Even stiffer regulations, one fiber in two cubic centimeters, have been

Wolves relocated

GRESHAM, Wis. (AP) - Seven wolves who had been living here for the past nine years—the only gray timber wolf pack believed in existence in Wisconsin—recently were moved to an undisclosed destination by a group of scientists representing the U.S. Forestry Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife

The wolves had been raised on a two-acre farm by Larry Gehr, a photographer and naturalist, and his wife, Joen. "The pack was getting too large for us to handle anymore," Gehr said of his decision to turn over the wolves to the scientist.

The scientist said the pack was unusual because it was started from unrelated parents. There were 11 wolves but only seven were caught and put aboard a twin-engine airplane. The other four remained in an earthen den. They will be captured later and moved.

Welcome, historians

Spring meetings of two great regional historical organizations are being held jointly in the Tall City this weekend, with interesting, informative papers on subjects of historical interest being presented, in addition to other program highlights.

The Permian Historical Society opened its conference this morning at the Rodeway Inn, with an unusually large number of delegates in attendance.

Special awards were presented to four Permian Pioneers who have resided in the Permian Basin Empire for 50 years or more and who continuously have worked for its religious. educational, cultural, recreational or economic development.

Then, in mid-afternoon, the West Texas Historical Association convened its session, with more papers being delivered.

Dr. Robert C. Cotner of The University of Texas, Austin, and a former Midland resident, will introduce a special program at this evening's dinner session.

Other historical papers will be presented Saturday morning. with adjournment scheduled following a luncheon at the Rodeway. Tours of points of interest will be made during the afternoon.

It is impossible to place a value on the work of volunteer historians in researching. recording and preserving the history of any given city or region, but, needless to say, it is a most rewarding effort from which present and future generations will benefit.

We have a feeling, too, that volunteer historians never have received the credit due them for the valuable services they perform.

But Midlanders can and do salute members of the two organizations, thanking them for the services which they provide and for holding their spring conferences in the Tall City. They are invited back at any tine.

Meanwhile, it is hoped that the stay of the convention delegates here will be enjoyable and profitable from every standpoint.

A CHANGING WORLD

Shooting from the hip endangers peace

Copley News Service

There are more than a few people who think that the time has come for President Carter to take his on-thejob-training regarding foreign affairs out of the public eye into the privacy of the Oval Office. This would seem to be particularly desirable regarding the sensitive Israeli-Arab situation in the Middle East.

The headlines alone indicate the danger, at least lack of wisdom, in shooting from the hip on a war-peace issue about which one has had little experience: Carter Envisions Israeli Withdrawal to '67 Borders.'

"White House Clarifies Carter's Stand, Says He Believes in Defensible Borders. "Carter Endorses Idea of Palestinian Homeland."

"State Department Taken by Surprise on Carter Palestinian "White House Explains Carter's View on Palestinians."

'Carter's Mideast Statements Causing All Sides to Wonder.' "Carter's Off-the-Cuff Remarks Upset Israeli Election Campaign."

The President insists he is running an "open" presidency, and in lots of ways this is refreshing. Foreign affairs, however, are much more sensitive, particularly the Mideast situation, than an argument over a new dam in the Dakotas. His own staff of experts and experienced State Department men need to persuade him of this fact.

He says often that nothing he says about human rights and the abuse of dissidents in the Soviet Union will affect arms talks with the Kremlin. He very likely is correct, because the Soviets are very pragmatic and are not rattled by his high-sounding words on human rights.

The volatile Mideast situation is much different, just as the touchy situation regarding the fate of 240 Americans was a more dangerous situation in Idi Amin's Uganda. He needs to study more, proceed more carefully and go the way of traditional time-tested diplomatic procedures. On May 17, Israel will elect a prime minister, and it is a very close race. Telling Israel in precise terms what to do about its borders at this time has a great effect on the fate of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Saying one day that the Palestinians deserve a state of their own, then "clarifying" that statement with one that makes the Palestinian settlement part of an overall Jordanian agreement does nothing to ease the tense situation in the Mideast. Then, following that with an "explanation" that there should be Israeli positions along the Jordan River further damages negotiations that have been going on for several years between Israel and those in touch with the Arabs.

In Israel, competent observers compare Mr. Carter's direct and simplistic approach to that once used by ex-Premier Golda Meir. "But," one observer said, "Golda was an ambassador and a foreign minister for many years. Mr. Carter doesn't have that experience.

A quieter, more studied approach to the difficult Mideast situation would serve Israel and the Arabs better and it would serve Mr. Carter's sincere peace efforts far better.

WASHINGTON - A wealthy American plotted to assassinate two leaders of the Bahamas shortly before the Caribbean islands gained independence from Great Britain, according to confidential intelligence

The audacious murder plot against Premier Lynden Pindling and Deputy Premier Arthur Hanna is chronicled in classified reports prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

The "financial backer of this plan has been identified as a wealthy American citizen," who owned a hotel on an island in the Bahamas, the report declares. The hotel financier, IRS docunents, believed he had been tribution" to Pindling's political campaign in 1972. Because he refused to contribute, the American alleged, his hotel was burned down by

The alleged plot in 1973 came at a time when some Bahamans believed that the United States was secretly aiding anti-Pindling dissidents. The IRS, which had been investigating Bahamas, provided the assassination information to Bahaman authorities blood-soaked garment, which was identified as Patty's by her mother, Catherine Hearst. But by the time Patty was arrested and tried, the crucial piece of evidence had mysteriously disappeared. The jury never got to see the gruesome evidence of Patty's fight to defend constructed trap.

WASHINGTON - President Carter turned down suggestions from friendly Senators two weeks ago that he quietly shelve his $50 tax rebate scheme, thereby closing the last avenue of escape from a self-

When Congress returns from Easter recess Monday, the President will confront this no-win situation: if the Senate rejects the rebate, Mr. Carter will be seen losing his first major test of strength with Congress; if the Senate passes the rebate, nervous capital markets will react adversely and sluggish business confidence will droop still more.

What's more, the rebate has become intertwined with Mr. Carter's daring attempt to thin out federal water projects. Although old Senate hands expect Mr. Carter to remove their pet projects from the "hit list" today, presidential aides believe a hard decision not to do so was made late last week. Thus, still more congressional disappointment is

Most remarkable about the President's lavish political investment is its object: a proposal with little popular support, which boasts almost no champions in the administration and was originally suspect in Mr. Carter's own eyes. The President on the telephone Good Friday lobbying Senators on the rebate was testimony to his stubborn combativeness - which carried him from obscurity to the Oval Office but shows limitations in handling

The rebate came out of the transition period's quest for a quick fix to save the economy. Dr. Charles Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, pushed for a rebate. Instinctively, Mr. Carter expressed doubt that shoveling out $11.4 billion indiscriminately could work, but he finally bowed to the professional economists.

Enthusiasm for the rebate was well contained from the first, with labor and Congress unimpressed. Nor did budget director Bert Lance seem ecstatic. He might have been influenced by advice from private economic consultant Eliot Janeway, who immediately forecast that the rebate would "wreck" money markets - driving up interest to wipe out what help low-income people got Janeway's predictions were sub-stantiated on Wall Street, where indifference soon turned to hostility. Frightened financiers saw $11.4 billion wasted on the rebate as proof that Mr. Carter cared little about inflation. To money managers, Senate passage would be a signal not to in-

The rebate's transformation from economic stimulant to depressant caused some Senators to urge presidential disposal. Most recent was Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, a Senate Finance Committee member. who told the President economic indicators had improved markedly since the rebate was proposed, reason enough to shelve it. Mr. Carter politely but resolutely disagreed. Bentsen has secret support inside the administration. "I don't know anybody except Charley Schultze who still believes in the rebate, and sometimes I wonder about Charley,' one insider told us. Another presidential aide confided that many at the White House hoped Mr. Carter would abandon the rebate - either overtly or by just ignoring it

That option vanished last week when Mr. Carter turned on a personal lobbying effort in behalf of the rebate - a decision unrelated to the rebate's intrinsic worth. "The decision was we couldn't accept headlines in the morning paper about 'Carter Defeated on Rebate," revealed a presidential aide personally opposed to the rebate

Another White House staffer told us surrender on the rebate "just isn't Jimmy's style." What is that style? 'Stubborness, I guess," the aide replied - citing a quality abundant at the White House in recent years.

So, instead of choosing between supporting or abandoning the rebate. the option considered at the White House has been whether to retreat on some imperiled water projects in a trade-off, or hold firm on both the water projects and the rebate. This trade-off was clearly formulated by Senate majority leader Robert Byrd at the April 5 breakfast of congressional leaders at the White House (without comment by the President)

But the President is no more willing to give ground on water project cutbacks (which is intrinsically important to him) than the rebate (which is not). That seriously undercuts Sen. Byrd's hope that reinstatement of many water projects on April 15 would help pass the rebate on April 18.

Whatever happens to the water projects, the President has wagered his prestige on a bill that, if passed, almost nobody feels will do much economic good and many feel could do serious economic harm. That considerations of style led Jimmy Carter into this no-win situation may prove more ominous for the days ahead than the economic demerits of scattering $50 bills across the land.

Texas water board head advocates plan for state

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

By the year 2000, all of Texas west of Dallas will suffer water shortages unless a way can be found to bring in water from neighboring states, Gen. James M. Rose, executive director of the Texas Water Development Board, said Thursday.

Rose spoke to the water and state affairs committees of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

In 1974, Texas used 23.5 million acre feet of water, Rose said, 75 per cent for food and fiber, 11 per cent for municipal needs and 9 per cent for manufacturing.

The 1977 water supply in Texas includes 10.6 million acre feet of surface water and 4.3 million feet of groundwater that can be used without mining existing groundwater, he said.

Rose estimated compliance with the federal Safe Drinking Water Act will cost $700 to $800 million. He said he hopes federal money will be available to help in compliance.

If sufficient water is not found, he said, growth in Texas will be stopped. Further, he said, adequate food and fiber production is "vitally important to the United States and to the world." One effort Texas is making to solve its water problems is participation in needs of those states on the Ogallala Aquifer, Rose said. Those states are Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

Each state will have one vote on the final report and the federal government will have one vote. Rose said this "federal study at the state level" is a good approach to the problem.

Clubs provide outlet for kids

By CONNIE GRZELKA AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Shari Lewis, the children's entertainer, feels no need to hand out ideas to kids as though they had none of their own.

"Kids have sensational ideas. It's important that they explore their own ideas instead of just listening to those set forth by adults." This encourages children to trust their own concepts and themselves, explains the star of television's "The Shari Show."

Pointing to surveys that indicate that children are programmed to regard life as a series of events in half-hour segments, as in television, Ms. Lewis offers a suggestion: The old-fashioned club.

'Any number of children can start a club, even two or three. When there are other children around, there's always someone who'll trigger the activity to completion," she says.

A project is rewarding only when it is completed, she adds, noting the low frustration and concentration levels found in many children today.

Ms. Lewis, a former Scout and children's group leader, tells children how to organize a club and how to make it work on their own in her 15th and latest book, "The Kids-Only Club Book."

Her own daughter, Mallory, 14, tried to start four or five clubs over the past several years, but all attempts were short-lived. The reasons for such quick dispersions, says Ms. Lewis, usually include an unwillingness to work with adults and a simple lack

Nixon named in report on illegal campaign funds

By DAVID N. ROSENTHAL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Former President Richard M. Nixon and Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards were among politicians who received il-legal campaign contributions to aling at least $40,000 from a billion-dollar oil engineering and construction com-pany, a court-ordered report shows.

The report does not contend, however, that any of the 11 federal, local and state politicians it lists knew they were getting contributions because the cash was masked as individual gifts.

The report on J. Ray McDermott Co., headquartered here, was ordered by a U.S. district court in Washington, following a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) suit last October which prohibited the company's top executives from continuing illegal

The 40-page document was prepared by an audit committee of the McDermott board of directors and was filed with the SEC on this week. Other Louisiana politicians identified as receiving illegal contributions included U.S. Sens. Russell Long and J. Bennett Johnston, Reps. David Treen and Henson Moore and Lt. Gov. James Fitzmorris.

A candidate for the Texas state senate in 1972 listed only as "Mengden" was the only non-Louisiana politician besides Nixon to get money, the report said.
Nixon, Edwards and Long could not be reached for comment.

Treen and Moore both said they returned money given to them when they found out some or all of it came from McDermott corporate funds. Sen. Johnston has acknowledged receiving $20,000 from the late Roger

W. Wilson, a founder of the company and president of the firm from 1964 until his death in 1972.

The report said the contribution to Nixon was made in September 1972 by John Dupy, identified as treasurer of McDermott at the time and currently company vice president for ad-

The report, released after seven nonths of investigation, also said that McDermott may have paid $1,030,000 to foreign officials in at least 14 countries during the past five years.

In addition, it said some of the $17.3 million the firm paid as commissions to overseas sales agents may also have ended up in the hands of foreign government officials.

J. Ray McDermott reported $1.1 billion in revenues last year. The report said much of the firm's increase in revenue from $25.4 million in 1954 has been due to overseas operations.

The contribution to Johnston is the only one accounted for in the inspection of Wilson's special $300,000 fund. Contributions to the other politicians came from other sources, the report said.

In Baton Rouge, Rep. Moore said Wednesday that he had received $3,400 in contributions from six McDermott executives, including chairman and chief executive officer Charles L. Graves, during his 1974 congressional campaigns. He said he also received a $200 contribution from Graves in 1976.

Moore said he is now returning the money after the report said contributions were frequently given in the names of individual McDermott officials, who were later reimbursed illegally from company. Moore said he had no way of knowing whether the money he got from the executives was reimbursed by the company.

Treen said he returned a 1975 contribution of $1,200 after he learned several months ago the money had

Antihijacking pact with Cuba terminates

U.S.-Cuban antihijacking agreement expired today, a highly successful diplomatic venture that fell victim to the lingering uneasiness between the two countries.

However, Cuban President Fidel Castro has indicated that Cuba will continue to abide by the terms of the agreement despite the absence of a contractual obligation.

Castro announced last October he was calling off the agreement in retaliation for what he said was a series of CIA-sponsored terrorist acts against Cuba, including the crash of a Cuban jetliner off Barbados.

The antihijack agreement permits either side to cancel with six months notice. That period expired this morning.

Woody's jurors suggest sentence

FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (AP) — Convicted killer Allen Ladd Woody should be given a 99-year prison sentence, a state district court jury said Thursday.
Woody was convicted Wednesday of the 1975 murder of Beth Pearson, 15, of Kerrville.

Mrs. Pearson's body and that of Carol London, 18, were found in a pasture near Kerrville. The state's chief witness, Lyle Brummett, 20, of Kerrville, testified that Woody strangled Mrs. Pearson after apparently raping her.

'Soaps' reinforce stereotypes

By BETTI LOGAN Newsday

Today's soap operas are spiced up with touches of rape, impotence, abortion, drugs, incest and even miscegenation. But beneath the trimmings, they're feeding women with the same old diet. They serve to reinforce the notion that the woman's place is in the home and, of course, that the man is the backbone of

That's the conclusion of Dr. Judith Waters, psychologist, professor and mother of three who spent 10 weeks glued to the set keeping tabs on 1,000 bits of dialogue on three of the nation's soaps. The Brooklyn College professor gives her students the credit - or blame - for getting her interested in the

As Waters and psychology student Sherry D. Finz broke down the actors' lines into 19 categories (everything from aggressive and assertive to displays of deference and avoidance) they found that today's characters respond to their new problems in the same old stereotypical ways.

While analyzing the dialogue on "The Guiding Light," "The Doctors" and "General Hospital," Waters and Finz discovered that the "Men on the soaps are more directive (they initiate or direct others) and are usually found in office settings while female characters are mainly homemakers, interested chiefly in domestic affairs ... she is fond of babies and devoted to her children's success ..

"The study focused on the personalities exhibited on the soaps," Waters said. "The intention was to observe how the roles of men and women are depicted in an era in which some members of society are making an effort to achieve egalitarian treatment of the sexes.

Waters can only guess at the effect all this has on the average woman. She figures 6 million of them watch the soaps, almost religiously. "As to whether or not soap operas can change attitudes and norms, no concrete evidence is available to answer such a question. Logic will tell us that those same characters who hold audiences captive for any length of time are indeed capable of suggesting modes of action or behavior."

If average women do copy their soap opera heroines, society could be in for some real trouble. Waters found that female characters exhibited a greater number of "emotional," "dejected" and 'deferent" reactions than did men, whereas the men

"In many instances, when you find a successful business woman on a soap opera she is usually single, generally extremely attractive, a prude in the business world, who is just waiting to entice susceptible, unsuspecting husbands," Waters said.

Soap operas are popular and have a potentially strong socializing influence on their audience. According to A.C. Nielsen Co., 71 per cent of the soap audience is composed of women, mainly housewives. 'Soapland for its viewers generally satisfies the desire for art, culture and gives alternative solutions to everyday problems in the real world. Many viewers' mysterious fascination for soaps results from the desire to get involved with the lives and emotions of people close to their own age and outlook ... without having responsibility for them," Waters

Florida vote may mean demise for future of ERA

By MYRA McPHERSON The Washington Post

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. - The Florida State Senate rejected the amendment to give women the right to vote in 1919 and Wednesday, 58 years later, it dealt a crucial blow to the equal rights amendment by defeating it 21 to 19.

Proponents and opponents of the amendment see Florida's action as a possible end for the ERA, which must be ratified by three more states by March, 1979, for passage. Florida was the fourth state to vote it down since January.

Just two weeks ago there were 21 senators — a majority — pledged to vote yes on the ERA. Legislators who have been here for 20 years though, concede it is the most emotional issue they have ever had to deal with.

The reasons for its defeat are many - including arguments that the amendment legalized homosexual marriages, unisex bathrooms, and preempted state rights on many laws governing a family. Those allegations were labeled "lies" and "myths" by ERA proponents, but they were effective nonetheless.

But the major reason was a political power play that, like many legislative maneuvering, had little to do with the actual merits or nonmerits of the amendment, which simply says, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

This southern Senate, heavy with conservative Democrats, is controlled by three men - the President, Lew Brantley, a sheetmetal contractor; past president and dean of the Senate Dempsey Barron, an attorney and Gallen himself made no bones about his strategy. The only reason the bill every got out of his committee was that he knew there were enough votes to defeat it in the Senate and that "we could kill it better on the floor."

One ERA proponent, Sen. Robert Graham, said, "It's unfortunate that something of such fundamental importance as the ERA got caught up in almost undergraduate jealousy."

Mark Siegel, Carter's White House aide pushing for ERA passage, said they're playing "absolute hard ball:
'If you don't vote right I'll take away your chairmanship.

Kenneth MacKay, who has pushed unsuccessfully for reform of Senate powers, says to fight the leadership means that your "committee assignments go to hell, your bills don't go anywhere."

Barron, referred to by some as "king Barron," shrugged. "That's what losers always say."

Many who took the floor, ostensibly to debate the ERA, used their time to argue that they were not "good old boys" locked in a "last hurrah to desperately hold onto their power," as Sen. Lori Wilson, one of two women in the Senate and a sponsor of the the amendment stalked the corridors pushing buttons and pamphlets at anyone. Anti-ERA women wheeled infants through the halls with red and white Stop ERA buttons pinned to their diapers. The women themselves wore buttons which said, "There is a difference" and showed a little boy and little girl pulling down their underpants.

WASHINGTON - The Carter administration has picked James Hamilton, former assistant chief counsel of the Senate Watergate Committee, to become administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, reliable sources said Wednesday.

Hamilton's selection caps a two-month search by Attorney General Grif-fin B. Bell for a new head of LEAA, which distributed federal crime-fighting funds to the states. The administrator's post has been vacant since the departure of Richard W. Velde on Feb. 26.

The sources said President Carter is expected to announce Hamilton's appointment as soon as the FBI completes a check of his'background.

Bell has ordered a joint Justice Department-LEAA study group to examine the agency's operations and make recommendations about whether it should be drastically reorganized or abolished.

LEAA, a semi-independent agency under the policy control of the Justice Depart-ment, was established in 1969 as the spearhead of federal efforts to combat street crimes. It has distributed almost $6 billion to the states for research and support of local crime-fighting pro-

Four teams still remain unbeaten in the young Texas League season, including the Cubs, who are 2-0.

El Paso also used the rain to keep their slate unblemished, as their Thursday night encounter with Amarillo was rained out.

In TL games that were played, Shreveport took their third in a row fron Arkansas, trouncing the Travelers, 7-3. Tulsa followed suit by routing Jackson, 9-3.

Second baseman Juan Deliza drove in three runs in the Shreveport victory, and Larry Littleton and Doe Boyland each added two hits.

Jackson committed six errors and allowed the Tulsa Oilers seven unearned runs.

shipped off to Pompano Beach.
Two games don't a season make, but Pagel already has eclipsed his homer run total of last year with two, his rbi output with six and his batting average by .600 points. His hit total for seven at bats is just two shy of his eight total of last year.

Going into tonight's game, if there is one, Pagel is batting .857 and has supplied the big bat in Midland's 10-7 and 9-5 victories.

Pagel's performance hasn't been the only bright spots for the Cubs. Bill Huisman is still Bill Huisman, which is all Cubs fans can ask. Joe Hernandez is sporting a .500 average and Darrell Turner and Andy Muhlstock combined for the opening game pit-ching win, Darrell getting the win and Muhistock the save.

MARK COVERT won't compare Wednesday's 14-hitter with the two shutouts he notched last year at Arkansas while compiling a 7-8 record, but the mere fact that he went the route was remarkable in itself.

Not only was it his first start, but he threw a lot of pitches and in less than favorable weather conditions. It ered from the sixth in and, of course, he got the final out of the game in a cloudburst. The Dodgers seemed to have Mark ready for the showers, the clubhouse variety, several times, but that's when he was at his best.

In the sixth, Don Cardova, almost as tough an out as Pagel, singled to lead off and Charles Meyers followed with a double. Covert whiffed the next two batters, walked Mary Garrison to load the bases and then got Art Fischetti on a bouncer to first.

COVERT, A native of Boulder, Colo., ran into trouble again in the eighth when the first two batters singled, but responded with two strikeouts and then got Mike Rushde on a loft to left.

The Cubs and Dodgers wind up their series tonight and Saturday, both 7:30 p.m. games, and then the Cubs are off Sunday and Monday before the Amarillo Gold Sox, the defending Texas League champions, invade for a five-game series Tuesday through

Rankin holding down 6-A girls golf lead

MCCAMEY - The Rankin girls golf team continued to cushion their comfortable lead here Thursday afternoon on the District 6-A circuit, as the Red Devils shot a 408, the best round of the day.

Host McCamey was second with a 427, while Wink was a very distant third at 494.

Rankin took the top two places in individual medalist competition as Jamie Gossett topped the 6-A field with a 94, followed by her teammate Kim Rose, who shot a 97. McCamey's Beth Compton was third with 101, and Rankin took fourth and fifth again as Tammy Wilkerson and Kim Ratliff shot a 108 and 109 respectively.

With only Saturday's round at Iraan remaining on the 6-A tour, Rankin and McCamey have solid holds on the first and second, and will no doubt finish that way. The Red Devils have a 1750 total after 72 holes, while McCamey sports a 1839.

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — The last year, said Johnny Miller, "has been a numbling experience:

The worst slump of his career served as the wake-up call and sent Miller on a search through basic fundamentals to find the swing that once made him the kottest property in golf. And he's come up with something that "I still haven't got it down pat, but I'm on the right track," Miller said after his no-bogey, five-under-par 67—by two shots his best round of the season-had tied him with Ray Floyd for the first-round lead Thursday in the prestigious, $225,000 Tournament of Champions.

SPORTS CHATTER

Let's hear it for Cinderella

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

After hours and hours of deep soulsearching, I've come to the sad conclusion that it just doesn't pay to

"Oh boy," you're probably saying right now, as you sit at the dinner table feeding your face. "Ethel. Ethel, y'all come in heah quick and read this. That ol' boy from up East has finally gone bananas. I think he's been sniffin' too many oil fumes or

It's possible, but bare with me a little while longer, okay?

A day doesn't seem to go by anymore that I don't pick up a newspaper and see at least one of my sports writing collegues putting the knock on some individual or team that just happens to be riding the crest of athletic success. It's becoming the "thing to do." I mean, nobody will read your stuff if you keep hitting on losers, right? But winners; that's a different story entirely. They make mighty impressive targets.

"The best thing that could happen to baseball would be for the Yankees to lose this year," I would read. Or, "It's the same old dull story. Dallas and Pittsburgh are back in the Super

IT KIND of bothered me. And it bothered me even more when I realized I was doing the same thing. While any sports writer worth his beer and pretzels is supposed to be an objective viewer at sporting events and not a fan, sometimes, when no one else is looking, we let out a muffled cheer, or a low-keyed boo. And I've noticed most of my "horrays" have been for the underdog lately. In fact, I've started looking upon favorites with much the same rancor as I did that TV villian of old, Snidely Whiplash, when I was a kid. You remember Snidely. He's the dastardly fella that used to tie Sweet Nell to the railroad tracks before she was ultimately saved by Dudley Doright.

No one wants to see the favorite win anymore. They've become about as popular as spinach, polio and flat beer. As a case in point, just look at Chrissie Evert. I mean, if she doesn't qualify as a favorite, then milk isn't any good for your kids and it doesn't snow in Buffalo. I want the truth now. How many of you out there really root for Chrissie when you watch her on TV? Mrs. Evert, please put your hand Surprisingly, it wasn't always like that for Chrissie. Remember when she was the underdog, and crowds cheered for her instead of against her. Spats and seer-sucker suits were the rage then I think, and covered wagons the common mode of transportation.

NO. SERIOUSLY folks. It wasn't all that long ago. Just retrace your steps six years. The 1971 U.S. Open to be exact. Remember? Chrissie was only 16 then, but she captured the hearts of the tennis world by making it to the semifinals at Forest Hills. She was the darling of the crowd then; a teenage Cinderella waiting for the clock to strike midnight, and we all hoped it never would.

How times have changed. Chrissie has gone from being a Cinderella to the Big Bad Wolf. The other day I came across an article that said if Evert didn't start losing some matches pretty quick, women's tennis would be in big trouble.

Can you beat that? Here, we've got probably the greatest women's net player of all time, and just because she wins with the same regularity that I get irate phone calls, the sport is "in trouble." There's a rumor going around that she shouldn't be allowed to have kids for fear of what they might do with a racket in their hand.

As you can probably guess, it's getting to Chris.

"Every time I play, she said disgustedly, "they're hoping somebody comes along better than me. Every time I lose, people are hoping that's a sign somebody else is coming up. I've been number one in the world for three years; now people want a diversion.

CHEER UP Chrissie. You're not alone. Muhammad Ali, your pal Jimbo Connors, UCLA, the Boston Celtics, the Russian hockey team, the Taiwanese little leaguers, Mrs. Folger - they all know how you feel. Nobody likes a winner anymore. People are even starting to root against Starsky and Hutch. Believe it or not, there are a few ingrates out there who have said uncomplimentary things about Dorothy Hamill. I have tracked them to a house in Great Falls, Montana.

What's the answer? Be a loser I guess. Put a one-armed guy with a 0-500 record and a severe case of hemorrhoids in the ring with Ali, and who do you think the crowd will pull

I saw "Rocky" twice, and even though I knew he was going to lose the split decision to Appollo Creed the second time, I still booed the verdict. How do you explain that kind of I guess it's only human nature to root for the underdog though. I mean, when you see a guy out there who doesn't appear to have any chance in the world of winning, you kind of feel compelled to cheer for him.

So Chrissie, if you want people to love ya', blow your next 50 matches, hit the bottle hard, cut off your legs and play without a racket. You won't win a helluva lot of money anymore, but it'll be Cinderella time all over

'Spit and polish' techniques seem to be working for Rapp

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — The quick getaway of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League baseball race this year lends support to the old-fashioned "spit and polish" regimen practiced by rookie manager Vern Rapp.

"We've got a spirit and a united effort that's been missing on this club for years," said veteran catcher Ted Simmons, one of the Cards' chief

'I don't think ballgames are won by long hair or short hair," added out-fielder Bake McBride, "but we must be doing something right. This team is itching to go."

THERE EVEN was no loud beef from Al Hrabosky, the Cards' ace relief pitcher who was reduced to tears when he was separated from his Fu Manchu mustache by Rapp's "clean chins" code.

"I still don't agree with that order—it's an infringement on individual freedom," Hrabosky said. "But no doubt about it, Rapp has brought this team together. We had a lot of talent. It was just ready to ex-

The Cardinals opened the season by outslugging the Pittsburgh Pirates in three straight and then came to New York for a 2-1 edge that planted them firmly atop the NL East going into Friday's home opener against Pitt-sburgh at Busch Stadium.

Cardinal fans, spoiled by a rich tradition of players such as Pepper Martin, Dizzy Dean, Ducky Medwick and Stan Musial, should like the bill of fare that Rapp is serving up for them in 1977. It's a interesting team-young pitchers, slashing hitters, speed and daring on the bases.

IT'S CHIEF asset, however, may be its "all for one and one for all" credo-the trademark of Rapp.

"Individual performances show up in the box scores but the won-lost column is determined by how everybody plays as a team," the manager said before Thursday's game. "More than any other sport, I think baseball is a team game.

Rapp, St. Louis-born, Cardinal-cradled but part of Bob Howsam's Cincinnati system for seven years, established a stern, conservative system shortly after being named as a replacement for Red Schoendienst.

No long hair, beards or mustaches, he insisted. Jackets and ties on road trips, airplanes and public places. Emphasis on image.

"If you're going to be a major leaguer," he said. "You've got to look and act like one."

IN SPRING training at St. Petersburg, there were some chuckles among caloused observers when the Cardinals appeared on the field in neat red, white and blue warmup suits and went through balletlike routines under the tutelage of a St. Louis college professor.

"Waltz me around again, Matilda!" "Tuitti, fruitti, it's spring again!"

These were just some of the mocking cries from the sidelines. But the Cardinals refused to be deterred. They continued their calisthenics day after day-and still do them 15 minutes before every game.

"It's been great for body tone," acknowledged Hrabosky.

"We never went into a season in better physical and mental shape," said speedster Lou Brock, Rapp's right hand man as player-coach.

Miss Softball America registration Saturday

Miss Softball America clean-up registration will be held Saturday, April 16, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, April 17, from 2 to 4 p.m. at Gibsons Discount Center.

The Miss Softball America program is open to any girl, eight to 19 years of age. Teams will be selcted April 22, and league play will commence May 14. All games will be played at Lancaster Park, which is located at Kansas and Alpine Sts.

Each girl who registers for the program will be furnished with a uniform and equipment.

The board members for the Midland MSA program this year include: Arthur Sharp, president; Clarence Hill, vice-president; Darrell Crow, vice-president; Mrs. Walter O'Neal secretary; Weldon Brice, treasurer; Judia Forman, minor co-ordinator; Phil McNutt, minor player representative; James DeLong, major co-ordinator; Mrs. Ralph Truitt, major player representative; Tom Frizzell, senior coordinator; Joe Overton, senior player representative.

Composing the league committee will be: Bob Gains, field equipment; Brent Watson, concessions; Hartwell Martin, field management; Dow Scott, finance; and Mrs. Phil Foreman, uniforms. R.V. Culp, Jr. is the member at large.

SOME MAY say that Rapp, who never played a major league game, borrowed his disciplinary technique from Sparky Anderson, who has made it work so advantageously for the world champion Reds. It wouldn't be true. Rapp has his own style, which made him a winning manager at Little Rock, Indianapolis and Denver. He is a pleasant, soft-spoken man—no Captain Bligh. He rarely raises his voice. He is firm but sympathetic, with a strong feeling for per-sonal dignity and pride. He is a benevolent despot.

"For the last six or seven years, baseball has drifted too much toward individuality—everybody doing his own thing," Rapp says. "I can't swallow that. I am strong on togetherness. If we do things. together, we can win together.'

U.S. hosting Cup match

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Political implications equal, if not surpass, the athletes' prowess today as the United States Davis Cup team hosts the South Africans in international tennis.

Left-handed Roscoe Tanner faces Byron Bertram in the opening singles match. Tanner has beaten his South African foe in their latest two meetings.

In the second match, Brian Gottfried faces Ray Moore and the draw apparently went to the ad vantage of the United States since Moore has had little success against Gottfried while beating Tanner in three of their last five meetings.

FOES OF the racial apartheid policies in South Africa have promised to picket the matches at the Newport Beach Tennis Club and the local police have taken precautions against the threats. Even the press was advised to arrive at least an hour early to avoid any confrontations. W.E. "Slew" Hester, president of the United States Tennis Association, said, "Both the United States Tennis Association and the Davis Cup nations disagree with the apartheid policies of the government of South Africa. However, we are bound by the policies of the Davis Cup nations to play every country legally entered and placed in our draw, or to withdraw completely."

Hester added, "We conform to and support the policy of the Davis Cup nations to condemn any attempt to use national or international politics in deciding who will play in this association of international goodwill and fellowship.'

The winner of these zone matches will next go against Argentina's team in Buenos Aires.

A BACK injury suffered by Dick Stockton has changed the make-up of the United States team and reunited the doubles combination of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, former international champions. Smith changed his plans so he could replace Stockton on

The doubles match is scheduled Saturday and either team presumably could wrap up the title by that time in the best-of-five match event. The final two singles matches are scheduled Sunday and it won't be known until later if these will be needed to decide the outcome.

The United States has not won the Davis Cup since 1972 with Australia victorious in 1973, South Africa in 1974 when Mexico withdrew from the finals over the racial issues, Sweden in 1975 and Italy in 1976.

Team Canada prevails, 3-2

GARMISCH-PARTENKIR CHEN, West Germany (AP) — Team Canada got goals from Eric Vail, Glenn Sharpley and Walt McKechnie to edge West Germany 3-2 Thursday night in a brawling warmup match for the upcoming world tournament.

The Canadians crushed the same German team 8-1 Wednesday in Duesseldorf.

Vail, of the National Hockey League's Atlanta Flames, scored the first goal with an assist from Pierre Larouche of the Pittsburgh Penguins. Sharpley, of the Minnesota North Stars, made it 2-0 on a breakaway and McKechnie of the Detroit Red Wings made it 3-1 with help from Rick Hampton of the Cleveland Barons.

Littell trying hard to put playoff nightmare behind him

By STEVE JACOBSON Newsday

KANSAS CITY - Deep in the recesses of his memory, Mark Littell recalls the voices in the gloom that was choking him. They said, "Ralph Branca ... Ralph Branca Ralph Branca ...

Littell was the Kansas City pitcher when Chris Chambliss hit the sudden-death home run to give the Yankees victory in the fifth game of the American League playoff last fall.

"In the clubhouse, people told me it was the biggest thing since Ralph Branca," Littell recalled Tuesday "I asked, "Who is Ralph Branca?""

Littell knows now that Branca, pitching for a team called the Brooklyn Dodgers, was the pitcher when somebody on a team called the New York Giants hit a home run to wrench victory from one side to the other in the 1951 National League playoff, 25 years deep in

A PLAYOFF was a special circumstance back then, not a standard matter, and the rivalry between those two departed teams may never be matched. But even today Littell cannot recall the name of Bobby Thomson, the man who hit that home run. Littell was not born until a year and a half later. And fortunately, he says, there are some differences for him.

"Looking back, I had a good time in the playoff," Lit-tell said. "It's hard to believe it, but that was the most fun I ever had in my life. Of course, that's looking back

At that moment, on Oct. 14, 1976, what Littell wanted most in the world was for the Royals and the Yankees to have one more game to play. "I wanted it desperately,"

Littell turned 24 in January. He had just completed a brilliant first full season as a relief pitcher, saving 16 games. Branca's career had already turned downward from its peak. But that's all cool and rational comparison. In the immediate aftermath, there was little difference between the two men.

"The ball went up in the wind and I thought it might go out," Littell recalled. "I said, 'Oh, no!' Then the wind blew it out and I walked off the mound with the worst feeling in my life. It was like I let my best friends down, let my wife down, and that it would always stay with me the rest of my life, I couldn't be forgiven for it. There were a few tears here and there, too.'

PEOPLE SAID the same things in consolation to Littell that other people had said to Branca. "Mark took it very hard," Royals pitching coach Galen Cisco said. "I told him he should have been proud, that Chambliss couldn't have hit him if Mark hadn't earned the chance to be there. Of course, nothing anybody said meant anything to Mark at that time. Over the winter, I think it sank in." Over the winter there were opportunities to face life again and the reality of being a relief pitcher - "the nastiest job in baseball," he calls it - or to shy away from the memory and make it his personal ghost. Years later. Branch admitted that he hurt his arm trying to prove he wasn't affected by his personal ghost.

Most influential over his long winter, Littell said, was the presence of his wife, Marsha. She teaches communications at the University of Missouri, Kansas City branch, and has a degree in philosophy. She had Mark enroll in a philosophy course. "If it hadn't been for her, I might have looked at my situation quite differently," Littell said. "She understands how baseball is a second life to us. She helped me realize that my real life didn't end on the field."

Littell also was reassured by manager Whitey Herzog: "Go home, go hunting and fishing, and be fresh for LITTELL WENT out and faced the awkward questions at public appearances, the trials of speaking to an elementary school and having to reply when the children blurted, "What happened pitching to Chambliss?"

"No fewer than 5,000 people asked me that," Littell said. "It didn't bother me." He had the reassurance of a raise from the minimum salary ($16,000 last year, which was increased retroactively to $19,000) to "over $100,000." His goal, he said, "is to become renowned as one of the better pitchers in baseball. The only way was to block the memory of the home run out of my thought

At one of those appearances he met Kansas City Chiefs football coach Paul Wiggin, who had some advice of his own. He likened Littell's role to that of placekicker Jan Stenerud, kicking with the clock running down and the game in the balance. "If he misses, I'm still going to use him the next, and he's not going to let it bother him,"

ALL SPRING Cisco watched for subtle signs that Littell's thinking was disturbed. "He'll never forget it," Cisco said, "but he never showed me it bothered him. If it did, he would surely have said something."

The Royals opened this season in Detroit, where the fans sit virtually in the bullpen. As Littell warmed up, they were yelling, "Remember Chambliss." Littell went about his business. He went out, pitched to four batters and got the save.

Monday night he faced Chambliss for the first time since that homer, in the 11th inning — possibly sudden death again. Chambliss hit a flyball. "I thought about it for just a moment," Littell said. "Then I didn't think about it anymore." The Royals won 5-4 in the 13th, with Littell picking up his first victory of the season.

Ashbee learns of leukemia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers assistant coach Barry Ashbee says he is confident of winning a battle against leukemia.

Ashbee entered Hahnemann Hospital Wednesday, one day after learning that he had the dangerous blood disease. He is expected to be hospitalized two

"I'll beat this thing," Ashbee said Thursday. "I'll Ashbee said he considered himself lucky that the illness was discovered early, adding, "Most times this is so advanced when they find it that you don't Ashbee admitted that news of the disease was tough on his wife and two children, a daughter, 15, "The kids were in tears when the doctor explained my condition," he said. "But my boy took me to the hospital. He carried in my bag, spent three or four "I explained that I'm sick and won't be home for a while and they can help me by being strong people. I don't feel that because a person is sick, the family has to break down. It's no different than if I was on a He said his doctors had told him there was a good chance the disease could be contained. The illness will be treated with chemotherapy and possibly bone marrow transplants, he said. "I've got a lot of faith in the doctors," Ashbee said.

"They know what they're doing ... If I had any doubts, I wouldn't be staying here right now. I'd be out somewhere having a heckuva time."

He said he would be watching television tonight when the Flyers meet the Toronto Maple Leafs in their third quarter-final game of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs. Philadelphia lost the first two games.

Holder says his Cowboys had a "medicocre" second round but his team moves into today's third round of the 23rd annual All-America Intercollegiate Invitational golf tournament with a 10-stroke lead.

The defending champion Cowboys who won last year's National Collegiate Athletic Association championship, fell to a seven over par 295 Thursday day 68, fell to 74 and Loeffler had a pair of 71s.

HOUSTON (AP) - Oklahoma State Coach Mike but still managed to gain a stroke on the field and wind up with an even par two day total of 576. Host Houston was in second place with a 586.

David Ishii of Houston captured the individual lead with a one-under-par 71 to go with a first round 69 for a two day total of 140, two strokes ahead of first round leader Tom Jones of Oklahoma State and Arizona State's Bill Loeffler. Jones, who had a first

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - The Devil's Elbow course is not every golfer's oyster.

Among those who like it is Mary Lou Crocker, the Louisville, Ky. pro who is 41st in earnings on the women's tour this year with meager winnings of $3,222 in five tournaments.

Among those who have reservations, not about Devil's Elbow itself, but the way it suits her game, is Kathy Whitworth, the Texas veteran who is the leading money winner with $40,197. Both said as much Thursday after the first round of the second annual Women's International Tournament at Moss Creek Plantation. Miss Crocker led with a sparkling 66, sixunder-par, and was understandably ecstatic about the course and its condition.

"The greens are like silk," she said, perhaps with the winner's $12,000 share of the $80,000 purse in mind.

On the other hand, Mrs. Whitworth had a 74. That put her behind about half of the 70 players going into today's second round of the 72-hole tournament.

In second place, two strokes behind Miss Crocker at 68, was Jan Stephenson, an Australian-turned-Texan who lost last year's Women's International by one stroke.

The golfer who beat her, Sally Little of South Africa, who nows plays out of Dallas, had a 71, one of an even dozen to break par. That still put her five Amy Alcott of Santa Monica, Calif., was third at 69. She had the best front nine of the day, a five-under 31, but skied to 38 on the back because of a double bogey on the par-three 17th.

Among the 12 amateurs, the lowest score was a 70 by Nancy Syms of Colorado Springs, Colo. Her total was matched by Sandra Palmer of Fort Worth, Tex., England's Michelle Walker and Bonnie Lauer of Palm Joining Miss Little at 71 were Kathy Cornelius of Litchfield Park, Ariz., Debbie Massey of Bethlehem, Pa., and Silvia Bertolaccini of Houston.

Bouton making comeback try

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "Winning is great but the next best thing is losing. The worst thing is not feeling that feeling in my stomach, something haven't felt in a long time."

That is the reason former New York Yankee pitcher Jim Bouton gives for his final fling a baseball. At 38, Bouton has given up a $65,000 pe year job as a sports broadcaster and made a comeback attempt with the Knoxville Sox, a Class AA Southern League farm team of the Chicago White

His pay is $1,500 per month, more than the more tgage payments on his home at Englewood, N.J., home his wife is trying to sell to finance his dream of again playing in the major leagues.

he was considered washed up, and later he drifted from one minor league team to another while writing his controversial book, "Ball Four," poking holes in America's baseball mythology.

Bouton, using only a knuckleball, pitched his first game for Knoxville Thursday night. In seven innings, he gave up seven hits, including two home runs, to players half his age. The Chattanooga Lookouts, a farm club of the Oakland A's, went on to win the game 3-1 and Bouton was the losing pitcher.

the 1975 season with Portland, Ore., in the Northwes League. He gave it up last season to star in television series based on his book. The series wa cancelled after only five weeks.

He said he began calling the major league clubs in January trying to get one of them just to let him show up for spring training. Of the 12 clubs he contacted only the White Sox told him he could come, but with the condition that he pay his own expenses.

"I wouldn't want to be called up as a box-office attraction," he said. "I only want to go to the big leagues if I could win up there. Knuckleballers go or and on. Hoyt Wilhelm was still throwing them in th big leagues at 49, which gives me a good 11 years."

DENTON — Running fast is something most of us think about only when danger is near, but to Marvin Baker it is an everyday occurrence at North Texas State University.

Baker is a member of the North Texas track and field team competing in the sprint events. The Midland Lee High School product runs the 100- and 220-yard dashes and a leg on the 440 and mile relays.

Beginning his second year at North Texas, Baker has established himself as one of the top sprinters in the school's history.

In his first year at NTSU last year, the 5-foot-10, 160-pound Baker ran the 100-yard dash in 9.4, the best nonwindaided time in North Texas history. He duplicated that feat later in the

Baker competed in six 100-yard races last year, failing to place in only one. In addition to a first-place finish in a meet at home, Baker had two seconds and two thirds in the hun-

BAKER CONSIDERS the 220-yard dash his best event. He just missed the school record of 20.7 last season when he recorded a 20.9 in the opening meet of the year.

Baker came to North Texas from South Plains Junior College. He set the 220 record at the Levelland school in his freshman season with a time of 21.1. His best time as a sophomore

"My specialty was the 220 before I came to North Texas," Baker said. "I had some good times at South Plains. However, when I came to North Texas I began to run some good times in the 100 and I consider it a strong event now."

Baker's presence led to a school record last year in the mile relay. He was a member of the quartet that ran a 3:09.9 to break the record by two seconds. Baker ran on the 440 relay team that tied the school mark of 40.4.

A 1973 graduate of Lee High School. Baker ran track two years at Lee and played on the junior varsity football team. His high school bests were 9.7 in the 100-yard dash, 21.4 in the 220yard dash and 50.8 in the 440-yard

He then enroued at South Plains JC because it was close to home and was one of the few schools that offered him a scholarship. In addition to his 220 times, Baker ran a wind-aided 9.4 in

Head coach John McKenzie did not have to twist Baker's arm to go to North Texas. It was one of the few schools Baker considered after junior

"I had always wanted to go to North Texas because it had a fine reputation for its track program," Baker said. "UT-El Paso was the only other school I considered. "I also wanted to come to North Texas because of its ROTC program. South Plains did not have a ROTC program, so I talked to some recruiters at North Texas and that helped me make my decision."

SINCE TRACK holds no future after graduation, Baker plans to continue in the ROTC program at North Texas. He said he is not sure if he will make his career in the service. Bad weather early in the 1977 season has slowed down his training, Baker said. He said things are beginning to round into shape though after a slow start. "I had what I consider a great year in my first season at North Texas," he explained. "However, I really believe I can do better. I think I am capable of running even faster times than I had last year." Through three meets this season, Baker finished second, third and sixth in the 100, with a best time of 9.65. He placed third twice in the 220 races, with a top clocking of 21.7 in that

Baker enjoys running track and is ever striving to improve his times. He is hopeful of making a trip to Champagne, Ill., in June for the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships. Coach McKenzie is glad he is working toward that goal at North Texas.

MANNHEIM, West Germany (AP) Earvin Johnson and Darnell Valentine combined for 47 points to lead the U.S. high school all-stars to a 125-73 victory over Czechoslovakia and a berth in the semifinals of the International Albert Schweitzer Basketball Tournament.

Johnson, a 6-foot-7 forward from Lansing, Mich., took scoring honors with 25 points as the Americans romped to their fifth straight victory in the 12-nation tournament.

Valentine, a 6-foot guard from Wichita, Kan., had 22 points and a game-high eight assists, helping the Americans' soar above 100 points again.
The defending champion Americans meet West Germany in Friday night's semifinals when Turkey, the tourney's only other undefeated team, meets Spain.

Four other U.S. players scored in double figures against the Czechs, helping the Americans to a runaway 63-39 halftime lead. Forward Tracy Jackson of Burtonsville, Md., finished with 19 points, guard Tommy Baker of Jeffersonville, Ind., and forward Eddie Johnson of Chicago, had 13 each and center Pete Budko of Baltimore had 11. Johnson grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds.

CLEP moves bright pupils along

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON -- At the University of South Florida this year 200 members of the freshman class became "instant sophomores," before setting foot in a college classroom or taking a college course. They did it by taking five 60 -and 75-minute examinations before they arrived on campus.

At Arkansas State University 125 freshmen received a full year's credit in English composition by taking an examination that did not require them to write anything but their names.

Two thousand freshmen and sophomores at the University of Utah take the same exams each year, gaining academic credit and cutting lown on the expense and time it takes to earn a degree.

Students at all three institutions are participants in a fast-expanding credit-by-examination process called CollegeLevel Examination Program (CLEP), an arm of the College En-

Organized during the 1967-68 academic year, CLEP had only 1,400 takers its first year. Since then, the program has soared to the point where 95,000 students are taking 250,000 CLEP examinations in a variety of subjects annually. The pass rate is 74 per cent, and the tests are recognized by more than 1,800 colleges as substitutes for course credit. CLEP promoters say they've only begun to scratch the surface.

But there are many academicians who are beginning to challenge the CLEP exams as a debasement of the academic process and as invalid indicators of a student's academic achievement or ability.

Writing in the March issue of Change magazine, Carl A. Stecher, an assistant professor of English at Massachusetts' Salem State College, assailed CLEP as a "great credit

"That 1,800 American colleges and universities have given hundreds of thousands of credit hours for these examinations is a major academic scandal and a real embarrassment to American education," Stecher con-

"Some of the examinations are sub-standard," said Edward Caldwell, director of testing at South Florida. 'They are really only advanced high school tests. Unless a student is very, very bright, he could be doing himself a great deal of harm with the CLEP

The bulk of the criticism against CLEP is directed against the five general examinations in the broad, 'basic areas" of English composition, humanities, mathematics, natural sciences and social sciences. (CLEP also offers examinations in specific subject areas.)

All the exams consist of machinescored multiple-choice questions, and many educators are seriously questioning whether such tests can adequately measure the equivalence of college-level work.

In the English composition exam, for example, students are tested on their knowledge of grammatical terms and their ability to correct

What the exam fails to do, argued Stecher in the Change article, "is test such fundamentals as the ability to think logically and coherently, to formulate a thesis, to construct a paragraph with adequate development and to write an introduction and a conclusion. Other criticisms of the CLEP general exams center around the arguments that they're so broad that they really don't test anything validly, and that the pass rate is unduly high. At the University of South Florida 1,000 students — approximately half the freshman class — took one or more of the CLEP general exams. Eighty per cent received some form of academic credit in addition to the 200 who became instant sophomores, according to testing director Cald-

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - A dispute over medical malpraetice cases has erupted into a battle, with doctors allegedly refusing to treat "gunslinging" lawyers and lawyers accusing the doctors of trying to "blackmail" them into dropping

Several lawyers, who agreed to be interviewed only if their names were withheld, accused the doctors of having an "enemies list" of lawyers who handle malpractice cases.

"They figure that if you can scare the lawyers, you can get the (malpractice) immunity you want," a lawyer said Sunday.

The dispute has been intensified by soaring malpractice insurance rates and a controversial mandatory state insurance program. It came to light

Friday when Distr. Atty. Joe Balfe confirmed that his office was investigating a complaint of doctors refusing to treat lawyers or their kin. No doctor would admit having denied treatment to a lawyer or a lawyer's relative, but several said they had a legal right to do so. "I personally do not intend to care for people who are attacking me if I can help it," said Arndt Von Hippel, a

"If a guy comes into my office drunk, I'm not going to treat him. If a guy comes into my office carrying a gun, I'm not going to treat him. If a guy comes into my office to sue me or my buddy, I'm not going to treat him I'm not a public employe yet,"

Von Hippel said. Dr. George Seuffert, an anesthesiologist, said, "There are certain lawyers in this town that totally terrify me ... because they're real gunslinging plaintiffs' lawyers. I've seen a couple of them work my friends over the coals."

He said there's been no organized effort to refuse treatment to lawyers who specialize in malpractice cases but that "this is a small enough town that we know who they are."

Sources familiar with the matter have described two cases they believe were particularly serious, although neither involved emergency treat-

One involved a lawyer's child who went to Seattle for a tonsillectomy after being refused treatment here The second case involved the wife of an influential lawyer, who said she was forced to postpone an elective operation because of the dispute.

Balfe said the matter might go to a grand jury next week but that it was uncertain what laws, if any, may have been violated.

'Red tape' cooling FBI investigation of abuse

By RONALD J. OSTROW The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - It could go down in history as "The Lost Memo that Never Was Caper" — a classic example of how to use government red tape and the bureaucratic underbrush to cool off a political hot potato.

More than a year ago, at the height post-Watergate morality, the Justice Department began investigating unprecedented allega-tions of financial corruption among high-level FBI officials, possibly in-cluding J. Edgar Hoover himself.

Some of the bureau's past and pre-sent officials, it was suggested, might be guilty of taking costly government equipment for their private use and taking advantage of their official positions for personal gain.

For months after the department investigation surfaced, the air was thick with reports of what officials came to call the "abuse of power" investigation. Then, silence. Months and months of silence. Suddenly Justice Department sources had nothing to say.

Finally, Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell was pressed by reporters for a status report on the potentially explosive inquiry. "I'm not up on that case," Bell said at a March 18 press conference. "I haven't got a single report on that

When a reporter inquired further, Robert J. Havel, the department's No. 2 spokesman, said a report on the investigation had been submitted to the criminal division in the fall. But a memo from the division on what should be done accidentally had been lost in the shuffle, he said.

Given the transition from Ford to Carter Administrations, a lost memo seemed plausible. On closer examination, however, it turns out that the memo was never written.

Inquiries by The Los Angeles Times turned up this sequence of events: John M. Dowd, a veteran, hardnosed prosecutor who led the investigation, completed his 200-pluspage report and forwarded it to Justice Department superiors Nov.

One of those superiors, Rudolph W. Guiliani, subsequently sent a copy to Richard L. Thornburgh, then assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, "for a recommendation on what to do about it."

Dowd's report included no recommendations, only a detailed presentation of the investigation's findings.

Guiliani recalled in a recent interview that as muchas 70 per cent of the report dealt with actions tht would not produce criminal indictment. For one thing, the statute of limitations ruled out prosecution in many of the matters. Others that were still timely "lacked prosecution merit because they involved very small sums of money," Guiliani said.

However, the report did include facts that led Guiliani to conclude that one individual could still be indicted. He declined to discuss those facts or identify the individual.

Last July, before Dowd completed his report, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley fired his No. 2 man, Nicholas P. Callahan. Though the reasons for the unexpected action have not been disclosed, sources inside the department and the FBI say they related to the abuse of power inquiry.

Last fall, John P. Dunphy, a subject of the investigation who headed the FBI's exhibits section, resigned and pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge involving use of government lumber to build a purple martin birdhouse in his backyard.

Guiliani, now in private practice in New York, said there was "a three or four-or-five week breakdown in the criminal division's getting" Dowd's report. But even after the report was received, there was no response from he division Havel, the department spokesman, said it was his understanding that the criminal division's response went astray - not Dowd's report. And it was the missing criminal division response that explained the long hiatus in handling the case, Havel contended.

Thornburgh, the former criminal division head, said in an interview that his recommendations were never sought.

"I had my people review it, but I never received my marching orders," said Thornburgh, who has returned to private practice in Pittsburgh where he is testing the waters for the 1978 Pennsylvania governor's race. "I always thought it was kind of strange.

Whatever the actual cause of the delay, it was an unusual way to handle an investigation that caused more waves inside the FBI than the equally well publicized inquiry into FBI breakins in New York.

Even before the matter of the nonexistent memorandum arose, the investigation had an unusual history. Early last year the Justice Department took over direct supervision of the probe - an unusual step that removed much of the discretion the FBI usually enjoys in cases — after then Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi rejected as unsatisfactory a limited inquiry conducted by the bureau itself.

Great Western Drilling Co., Midland, was drilling ahead below 9,895 feet in lime and shale on a 13,700foot contract at No. 1 Barrow, Ector County scheduled 13,700-foot exploratory test, after it recovered gas on a drillstem test.

Packers failed on a 55-minute test taken from 9,747-9,798 feet. Recovery on the test was 1,023 feet of gas and 3,266 feet of drilling fluid with a trace

Pecos probe flows gas

Forest Oil Corp. No. 1 Garupa, Pecos County wildcat, 12 miles northwest of Fort Stockton and five miles northwest of the Petco field, is shut in after it flowed gas from two perforated intervals.

It flowed eight barrels of oil in six hours, plus gas at the rate of 150,000 cubic feet per day, through perforations at 11,456-11,470 feet, after acidizing with 500 gallons. It then flowed gas at the daily rate of 250,000 cubic feet daily, plus 19 barrels of water in 11 hours, after perforating from 11,502-11,709 feet. It is 1,700 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 7, block OW, GC&SF survey.

IF YOU THINK of a household burner-tip as the end of the line for natural gas, then visualize this gas well as the other end of the line. A Tenneco Oil Co. worker checks the valves at this well, which is in the Anadarko Basin of Oklahoma.

Houston's Archer questions President Carter's actions

that would turn the auto industry

"This isn't the kind of measure that is prime for a congressional rubber stamp," Archer said. "On the contrary, this is the kind of package that is guaranteed to stimulate controversy and debate." "What I'm really waiting to see is what Carter's proposals will have to say about deregulation of natural gas, decontrol of petroleum, and divestiture. In my opinion, those are three of the most critical issues that must be dealt with in any comprehensive energy package. concern over the need for energy selfsufficiency sheds a lot of doubt on his turning toward a free market approach to energy pricing. Jimmy Carter has stated publically that he doesn't see 'any prospect nor need for our country to be energy selfsufficient anytime in the future.'

"Even if he should favor total deregulation and decontrol, which it now appears he will not do, those would be among the first proposals to be tossed out by the Congress.

Archer said new hardships imposed on Americans by mandatory conservation measures would likely preclude consideration of permitting the prices of oil and gas to rise significantly. 'It is pure politics. We might get one or the other through Congress, but a package combining truly tough mandatory conservation and total deregulation and decontrol is unlikely

"On the other hand, the potential use of divestiture as a carrot to whet the appetites of the anti-oil and gas crowd in Congress is something we have to consider," Archer warned.

"Carter himself hasn't been shy about admitting he favors horizontal divestiture of major oil companies, and he might well try to couple that with some gradual deregulation measures in an attempt to appeal to some segments of both said," Archer explained.

The speaker then turned to areas outside the sphere of oil.

"There also is a growing concern that Carter's well-intentioned openness in foreign diplomacy has some very serious drawbacks: The arms limitation negotiations are of course the prime example.

'Everyone in America who had access to a newspaper knew in advance what Cyrus Vance was going to propose to the Russians — in effect leaving no room for negotiations at all. When Brehznev said 'nyet' to the proposal there was no where for Vance to go but home. Our trump card was the first one he had played.

as open as possible to public in-spection, but it is indead difficult to negotiate international arms agreements by public referendum.

"I hope Mr. Carter's apparent ineptitude in dealing with the Soviet Union so far isn't any indication of the kind of finesse we can expect to see in guaranteeing an uninterupted supply of foreign fuel to meet our demands.

'Quite frankly, I am not at all sure he has yet even a modicum of understanding of the position he holds, and what is involved in being the chief executive of the most powerful and economically successful nation on earth," the congressman said.

coming months "we will see a maturing process in the White House One which will result in a reaffirmation of our system of checks and balances, between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government."

"That is what makes our system of government so flexible. That is the kind of approach we need in finding solutions to our serious energy shortage and our economic problems that are so closely intertwined with the energy situation.

The speaker warned that it is not going to be possible to come up with solutions that everyone in this nation is going to agree with.

"We can't have conservation programs that don't create hardships for anyone. We can't have pricing

FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1977

WASHINGTON - The Carter administration is holding up 28 export licenses involving the shipment of almost 2,900 pounds of uranium fuel to research institutions and power plants around the world while it reassesses the threat of nuclear weapons spread.

All 28 export licenses involve the shipmentof what nuclear experts call "highly enriched uranium," which is uranium saturated 93 per cent with the isotope called U-235. This isotope is used in research reactors that make radioactive medicines and hybrid wheat and corn seeds but could also be used to make atomic weapons.

enriched uranium or plutonium to make a weapon or that countries would divert nuclear materials from peaceful to weapons purposes.

Uranium saturated 93 per cent with the fissionable isotope called U-235 is a strong source of neutrons, which can be used to promote a quick chain reaction as in a weapon or which can be used to permanently irradiate another metal like colbat to make it useful as a treatment for cancer.

There are 261 research reactors around the world using the highly enriched uranium fuel, most of them supplies by the United States. The holdup of the 28 export licenses for this fuel is the first time the United States has delayed uranium fuel shipments to research reactors in the 23 years it has supplied them.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market added a bit more to its recent gains today, registering continued approval of President Carter's decision to drop his proposal for a $50-aperson tax rebate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up 32.27 in the past five sessions, was ahead another 2.46 at 949.46 at noontime today.

Gainers took a 7-6 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed Wall Streeters voiced widespread approval of the end of the rebate plan, which they had criticized as unnecessary and potentially inflationary. Analysts said the President's separate anti-inflation message this morning contained surprises. But they noted that traders pleased that Carter stuck with his position against wage and price controls. Ford Motor picked up 1 to 57% in active trading. On Thursday the company reported plans for a 5-for-4 stock split and a dividend increase. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .07 to 54.99. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .10 at 112.69. Volume on the Big Board dropped off to 9.50 million shares over the first two hours from 15.51 million in the comparable period on Thursday.

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - A three-hour White House meeting with top officials of the Carter ad-ministration has left some small-business leaders more encouraged about their role in the economy than in many years. The March 29 meeting was attended for a time by President Carter and later by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, along with many top White House, department and agency personnel, and by members of various business associations. "Potentially it was the most significant meeting we ever had with a president," said Milton Stewart, president of the National Small Business Association. The talks covered a vast range of issues, including the frustrating paperwork load that some businessmen claim is almost destroying their efforts, and the inability of small business to obtain what it considers to be a fair percentage of federal procurements.

The business leaders said they were especially encouraged by the promise of continued access to White House officials, perhaps on a regular monthly basis, rather than because of any specific promises. Said one: "Suddenly we've got entree; people are willing to listen to us. Never has there been a time when a president would recognize small business as national force."

Herbert Liebenson, a legislative officer with the National Small Business Association, commented afterward that "Now we have a counterforce to the Business Roundtable," an organization of chief executives of the nation's very largest companies. Small business has for years attempted to counter what it claims is a preponderance of power wielded by big government, big business and big labor, none of which it says speaks for the small-business man. Stewart called on the President to expand small business's share of federal procurements by $9 billion to $10 billion a year, giving small business a 35 per cent share as against 24 per cent now. He also proposed that small business's share of federal research and development expenditures be increased from what he said was a "scandalous" 3.5 per cent to 10 per cent or more. And he suggested also that business be relieved of the myriad informational forms it must provide the government and instead be obligated for only two eports a year: an income tax return and a general During the presidential election campaign, Stewart's group won from Carter approval of a recommendation to set as a goal a greater growth for small business than for big business and govern-The candidate's approval was sought at that time, said Stewart, because of the frustration of small and medium businesses in competing with bigness and, in fact, protecting themselves from acquistions by big business. Stewart indicated that Carter hopes to carry out his commitment to greater growth for small business, which many businessmen consider to be all but the top 1,200, or the 'bigs.'

DR. NEIL SOLOMON New shoes and rash

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband developed a rash on his feet after wearing a new pair of shoes a couple of times. I think it's the shoes that did it. Is this possible?-Libby P.

Dear Libby: Yes, allergic reactions to chemicals used in leather, insoles and the adhesive in shoes are fairly common. Ask your husband to try wearing an old pair of shoes for a few days and see if the rash goes away. If not, check with your doctor.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What exactly is an "ectopic" pregnancy. A friend of mine had one, and I gather it means she doesn't have much chance of being able to have a baby in the future. But I hesitate to ask her anything about it .- Franny S.

Dear Franny: An ectopic pregnancy occurs when the fertilized egg is implanted outside the uterus instead of on the uterline wall, where it is supposed to be. This abnormal pregnancy usually happens in one of the two Fallopian tubes that bring an egg down from either of the ovaries to the uterus. This requires surgery, and the regular procedure has been to remove the whole tube, which, of course substantially lessens the chance of becoming pregnant. A newer technique has, however, been developed by Dr. John J. Stangel at New York Medical College. Only that part of the Fallopian tube which contains the abnormal pregnancy is removed. Then the tube is rejoined by microsurgical techniques-using jeweler's forceps and nylon sutures as fine as human

The operation is not an easy one to do. Dr. Stangel says it is rather like operating on a short piece of spaghetti. But it is, he adds, really worth it, because it does give the patient a much better chance of a successful pregnancy in the future. Two young women he operated on each with only one working Fallopian tube and that the one where the abnormal pregnancy was taking place— had a normal pregnancy within four months after the operation.

For N.O., of Albuquerque, N.M.: Yes, the common practice in many restaurants, hospitals and other institutions, including old people's homes and nursing homes of holding cooked foods in steam tables before serving does result in a sizable loss of B and C vitamins. It is an unfortunate practice but one that's hard to control.
