Are We Sincere?

I sometime wonder if the motives which prompt the writing and printing of the hundreds of columns of newspaper space in behalf of the senatorial candidacy of Lyndon Johnson are sincere and honest—I even at times doubt such expressions. I have heard of some voters being in favor of the "strongest man" thus letting their prejudices and dislikes obscure the welfare of their country. Wednesday—there came to my hands a long telegram, costing plenty of money—telling of the great support and indorsement given Johnson by President Roosevelt. This was followed in a few hours by a shorter telegram thanking us for our support. In perusing my daily paper this morning (Thursday) my eyes fell upon a full page "editorial", lavishly garnished with pictures of Lyndon Johnson conversing and shaking hands with the farmer, mechanic, the old folks the cotton man, engineer in his cab and the little school children—all of which is just "hill billy" politics in another form; just an appeal to sentiment and passion rather than sound reason. President Roosevelt and Secretary of Navy Knox, if reports be true, are telling Texas Johnson is the man to send to the Senate. The average Texan does not like to be told for whom he must vote—it smacks too much of the very thing we are fighting. Hitler and Mussolini tell their people who shall represent them.

If Lyndon Johnson is elected to the United States senate, I wonder if he'll be grateful to the President, Secretary Knox, and that big news paper who has given so much space and effort to secure his election? If he doesn't, then he is lacking in a most graceful attribute, I wonder if in his gratitude he will favor these strong supporters with his official acts. Draw your own conclusion.

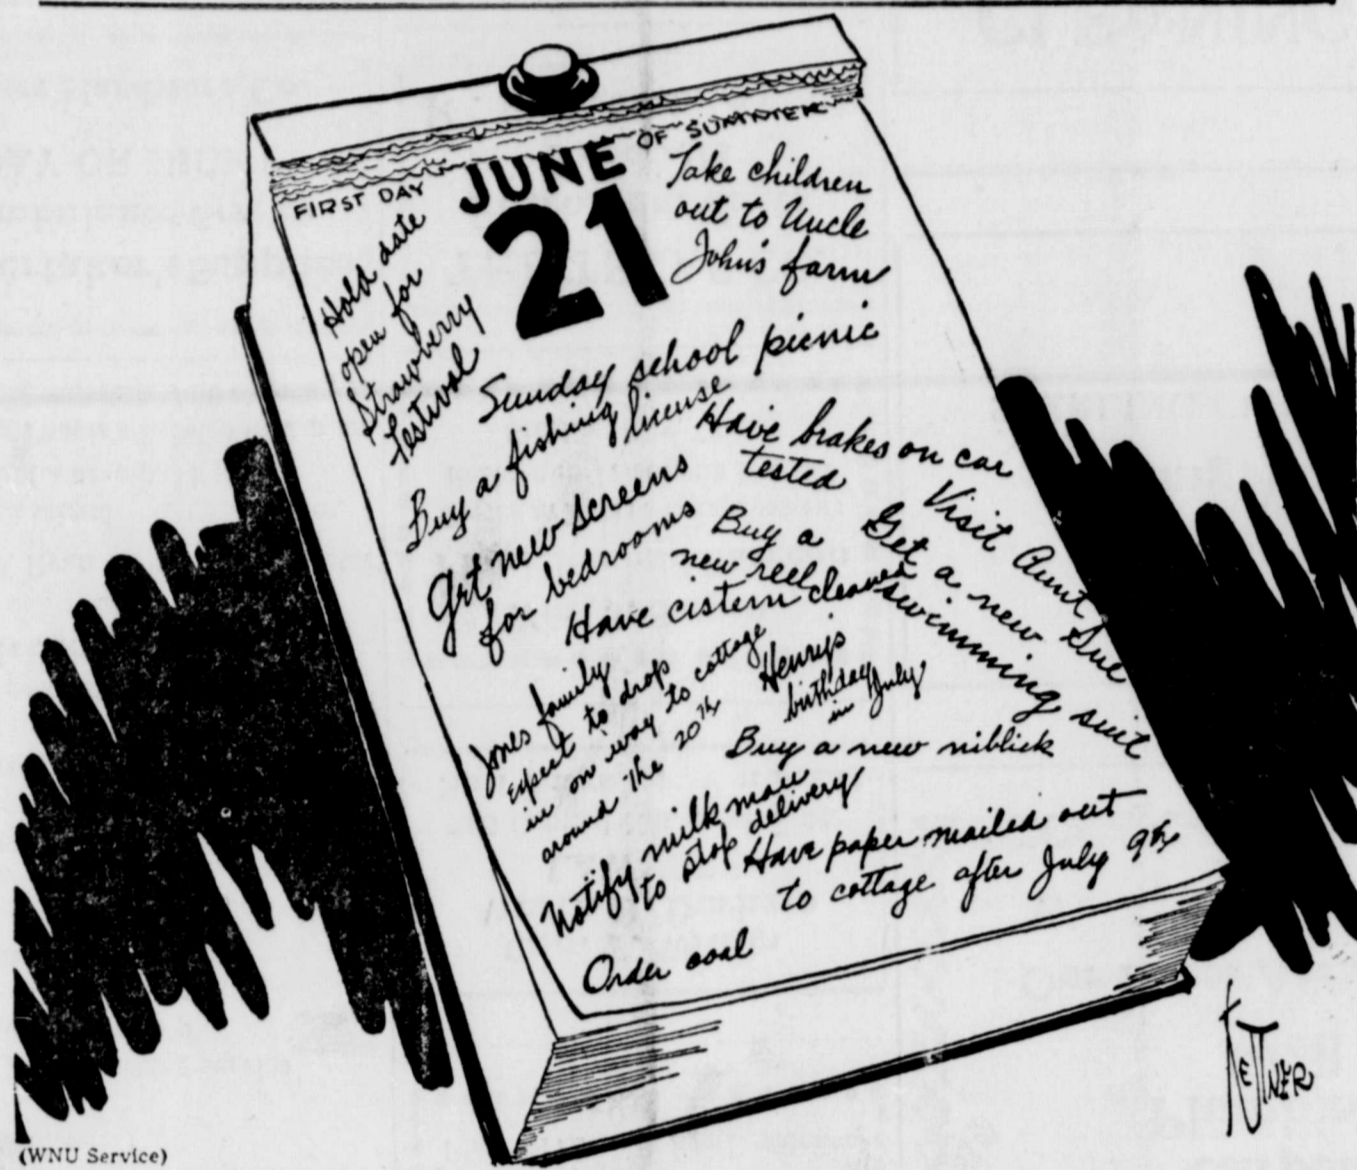

We elected Franklin D. Roosevelt to a third term as President of the United States for no other reason than we felt in the present emergency he was the most capable man that could be had. We felt that his knowledge of foreign affairs and policies was greater than any living man, for he had eight years in which to study them. We didn't want to change horses in midstream. If we were sincere in our belief then why not follow it up in our actions.

I believe it is generally admitted that three of the men who are candidates for the Senate are young, energetic and most capable men. Either of the three would make Texas a senator of whom she could be proud. This being the case, then why not strengthen our congressional delegation while we have the opportunity by adding a third strong man?

If the President and other high officials are sincere in their assertions, then Lyndon Johnson is a wonderful congressman. He has supported the administration and brought to Texas and his district many governmental projects and improvements. He has supported the President in foreign affairs—in fact in this matter he has said that he will continue to do what the President says.

It is just as necessary that the administration have the support of the House as of the Senate, even more so. If Johnson is as good a congressman as the high officials in Washington would have us to believe and is needed in the present emergency, then why not keep him

Coke County Man Killed In Storm

Lester Keenan was killed and his wife seriously injured when a tornado struck the farm home about four miles north of Robert Lee last Sunday night.

The wife suffered broken ribs and lacerations about the face. She was carried to the home of a neighbor for shelter and attention.

there—why change horses in midstream?

Martin Dies has done a wonderful job in suppressing subversive activities. He has gone so far in this most necessary work that he has even trod upon the toes of the President and some of his friends. His knowledge of how to get at the fifth columnists is perhaps greater than any man in America. Then why not keep him on this most important job—just as we kept Roosevelt in the presidential chair? The present emergency demands that we not swap horses in midstream.

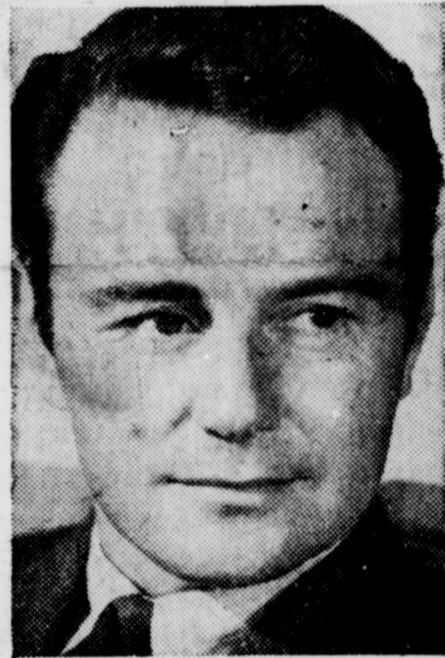

Gerald C. Mann is conceded by all to be one of the most capable men of our state. As Attorney General of Texas, he has proven his honesty and ability. He is young, energetic, highly educated and thoroughly conversant with the present needs and aims of our national government. He is thoroughly in sympathy with the foreign policy of our government. He believes in the defense program. What more can be required in the present emergency? Then why not elect him to the Senate and thus strengthen the Texas delegation in Congress?

If either Martin Dies or Lyndon Johnson is elected to the Senate, then a new congressman must be elected from the district of the winner; and no one can even surmise what kind of man may be elected. Instead of taking the chance of weakening our congressional delegation, and possibly hampering the national administration, lets take this opportunity to strengthen it by electing Gerald Mann to the Senate. We will be consistent in our policy in doing so.

Let's be sincere and consistent in this time of great danger.

Wheat Marketing

If you have a wheat marketing quota card, you are free to dispose of your wheat in any way you wish, Lee R. Reed chairman of the Sterling county AAA committee, pointed out this week.

Under AAA regulations, which went into effect with the approval by wheat growers of marketing quotas in the referendum May 31, wheat producers cannot obtain a marketing card until they have satisfied any claims the AAA might have against their wheat for production on excess acres, the AAA committeeman said.

Since this is true, then it naturally follows that a producer holding a card on his wheat can sell it, store it or do whatever he wants to with it, he continued. "This wheat is absolutely clear as far as the AAA is concerned and is eligible to move in the regular channels of trade.

Producers who do not clearly understand the operations of wheat marketing quotas should ask for fuller explanations at the county AAA office the committeeman declared.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis, Mrs. Pearl Sewell, of Dallas and Mrs. D. T. Jones of San Angelo, visited relatives here yesterday.

Connally Measure To Stop Strikes

With word from the War Department that more men were on strike than at any other time since the beginning of the emergency, the bill to stop strikes by Senator Tom Connally of Texas effected a crystallization of sentiment among both executive and legislative authorities expected to end this irritating interference with national defense efforts.

The measure, known as Senate 1600, authorizes the government to take over and operate in the national interest any plant or factory engaged in the production of defense articles in which the production of such articles is hampered, delayed or impeded by the existence of a strike or other labor disturbance.

Senator Connally emphasized that strikers, who are stopping work in plants that ought to be running twenty-four hours a day in behalf of our defense, are attacking the national welfare and the national safety by a form of creeping paralysis. "My bill", pointed out Connally, denies to no man his fundamental rights. It does demand that there shall be no stoppage of work in national defense plants. In the meantime, however, the plants must continue to operate under government direction and government protection. Men who do not desire to work may quit their jobs. Those who desire may continue to work with the government's protection. No right is denied any citizen.

America faces a great crisis. The national security is involved. The nation does not propose to have its safety imperiled and its program for national defense delayed or bogged down by selfish and wilful group who seek to take advantage of the nations necessities to improve their own condition at the expense of the safety of one hundred and thirty millions of people. Strikes in defense plants must stop. My bill will stop them.

Rev. Geo. M. Sullivan, while enroute from Kerrville to his home in Pecos, stopped over for awhile yesterday to visit with old time friends here.

Second Registration Day

State Director of Selective Service, General J. Watt, Page, in announcing the second registration of young men eligible for military training on July 1, said today that local boards and their assistants would handle the registration in most sections of the State.

General Page added, however, that additional assistance will be required in some of the densely populated sections, and that all local boards are authorized to enlist and accept, if necessary, any volunteer assistance in handling their registration problems. He said: "Most of the local organizations as well as individuals, who assisted in the first registration last October have volunteered their services, for the second registration. Texas has been fortunate in the patriotic response of both organizations and individuals in this connection.

General Page emphasized that all local boards are authorized to make their own arrangements for registration and permission or approval from State Headquarters in this instance will not be necessary. Many of the counties having more than one local board will arrange for joint registration at some central point, he said. Other counties having more than one local board, but each board having a well defined geographical area within the county will provide separate registration places.

New forms are being sent to all local boards since slight changes have been made in the procedure since the first registration last fall.

General Page indicated that there would be approximately 65,000 men registered in Texas on July 1. Registration will be conducted between the hours of 7:00 A. M. and P. M. he said.

When The Court Failed

About three years ago, a negro man raped a white woman near Conroe, Texas. She is said to have been terribly mistreated by her assailant.

The negro was promptly arrested, indicted and brought to trial. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at death in the electric chair.

The negro's attorney appealed the case to the Court of Criminal Appeals. That court took its time in considering the appeal, and after so long a time, it reversed the case on a technicality and sent it back for another trial.

After a delay of months the case was tried again with the same results. The case was again reversed and remanded for trial.

Last week the court began the trial for the third time. Just as the ninth juror was accepted the husband of the victim of the brutal negro, leaped to his feet and drew a gun and shot the negro's brains out in the presence of the court, the officers and a room full of spectators.

No doubt the husband of the victim of this brutality had waited for the courts to do something about the negro who had committed an unspeakable wrong against his wife and himself. So he did what the court should have done years ago.

He had lost faith in the courts. To him the courts were a time wasting sham and a perversion of justice. He felt that if the courts did not do justice, he would and he did.

A great majority of our courts are not guilty of the laws delay, but there are some which seem to make delays their chief business. These dilatory courts are dangerous institutions. The blood of that negro is on the skirts of those who delayed justice to the shooting point.

As an editor and a citizen, I would say that the husband of that woman has committed murder and should be punished, but had I been that woman's husband, all hell could not have saved that colored man—

Mr. and Mrs. Sam T. Dowty of Coleman were last week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Kellis. Mrs. Dowty is Mrs. Kellis's sister. Billy Sam and Jim Tom were the happy recipients of a new pup as the gift from "Uncle T" and "Auntie Mug". This dog is a matter of much importance to these two young possum hunters and rabbit exterminators. Perhaps a polecat will be mixed up in their activities in the future. A boy a young ignorant dog are the only things on earth that do not fear a polecat.

Twenty Years Ago

I wondered to the village, Tom,
And sat beneath the tree,
Upon the schoolhouse playing ground
That sheltered you and me,
But none were there to greet me,
Tom
And few were left to know,
Who played with me upon the grass
Just twenty years ago.

The grass is just as green dear Tom
Barefooted boys, at play,
Were sporting just as we were then
With spirits just as gay,
But the master sleeps upon the hill,
Which coated o'er with snow,
Afforded us a sliding place,
Just twenty years ago.

The river's running just as still,
The willows, on its side
Are larger than they were, dear Tom
The stream appears less wide,
The grapevine swing is ruined now,
Where once we played the beau,
And swung our sweethearts—pretty girls
Just twenty years ago.

The old school house is altered some,
The benches are replaced
By others, very like the ones,
Our penknives had defaced,
The same old bricks are in the wall
The bell swings to and fro,
The music just as sweet, dear Tom
As twenty years ago.

And then dear Tom, I read the names
The spring that bubbled neath the hill
Close by the spreading beach,
Is very high, 't was once so low
That I could scarcely reach,
And stooping down to get a drink,
Dear Tom I started so,
To see how much that I was changed
Since twenty years ago.

Close by this spring upon an elm,
You know I cut your name,
Your sweetheart's just beneath it,
Tom
And you did mine the same,
Some heartless wretch has peeled the bark,
'Tis dying, sure but slow,
Just as the one whose name you cut,
Died twenty years ago.

I visited that old church yard,
And there inside the wall
The graves were many, and the grass,
O'er them was thick and tall,
And then dear Tom, I read the names
Of those who slept below,
And they were names we loved to hear,
Just twenty years ago.

Some now are in that churchyard laid
Some sleep beneath the sea,
But few are left of our old class,
Excepting you and me,
And when our time shall come, dear Tom
And we are called to go,
I hope they'll lay us where we played
Just twenty years ago.

Heavy rains, accompanied by hail and strong winds, fell over much of Sterling County last Sunday afternoon, causing the North Concho to rise to the twelve-foot mark. The total precipitation is reported to have been from two to three inches the heaviest being on the Divide north and east of town.

Considerable damage was done to crops and fruit on the Divide, and especially did the small grain, which was being harvested, suffer severe loss.

Primitive Love

There is a story of Fort Davis more or less of a legendary character. But it is undoubtedly true: Fort Davis stood the brunt of the Indian attacks. One morning just at day light the inhabitants were awakened by the Indian war cries, and Apaches poured into the Fort from the high cliff west of the officers line. The attack was totally unexpected but aided by the men accompanying several large freight outfits, Chihuahuas bound, the soldiers and freighters defeated the Apaches, inflicting severe losses. Many dead and wounded Indians were left on the battle field among them a young Indian girl. She would have been taken to the army hospital but her pathetic plight appealed to the sympathy of the mother of a young officer, and she took her home with her caring for her until she recovered. For two years the young Indian girl remained with the woman and her son. A love grew between the girl and officer, but the vast space of civilized and uncivilized raised a barrier that even love could not overcome as far as the young officer was concerned. A new American family came to the Fort and a young girl was with them. The young officer was instantly attracted, because in this case he could love and woo the white girl with the sanction of his mother and friends. And, love whether it be savage or civilized, manifests itself to the world.

One night the Indian girl disappeared from the Fort and for a year nothing was heard of her. Then one dark night the sentry saw some one trying to approach the officers line. He called, "halt or I'll fire."

Instead of stopping, the intruder started running toward the officer's quarters. The sentry fired and his shot was answered by a woman's scream. Picking her up in his arms, the sentry carried the girl to the Commanding Officer's quarters where it was discovered she was the Indian who had lived at the post and left because of her love for a white man. With her dying breath she said, "My people, they come at daylight to kill all the white people here. I come to save Tom. As she stated, at the break of day the Indians charged the fort, and had they not been warned it would have been a sad day for the occupants.

The Indian girl's remains rest among rocks on the north side of the old Fort, a mute reminder of a great love.

The boys who raised oats this spring have been put to it to take care of their crops that are in the shocks against the daily rains that have fallen over the country. When threshed these crops are estimated to you from 50 to 70 bushels per acre.

An Old Art Flourishes at Greenfield

DEARBORN, Mich.—In the days when the tintype was the last word in photography, the gentleman was always seated and his lady stood when they faced the camera. That's still the procedure at the Tintype Studio in Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Michigan, where thousands of visitors have called since the Village was founded a dozen years ago by Henry Ford. The 75-year-old tintypist, Charles Tremear, learned his trade over a half century ago.

ON THIS YEAR'S BIG FORD!

ANYBODY WITH A CAR TO TRADE will find it smart to see how much his car is worth in trade on a Ford this year!

Its engine is the only Eight in its field. Its economy was proved again this year when it was first in its class for gas mileage in the official Gilmore-Grand Canyon Economy Run.

In size, the Ford is the biggest car in passenger room in its price field. In comfort, it offers a soft and quiet ride that's new this year right down to a rigid new frame and long, soft springs.

Your Ford Dealer's certainly the man to talk trade with now!

Its hydraulic brakes are bigger than any other car's near its price.

LET AMERICAN MANAGEMENT HANDLE IT

When the going gets rough when quick, accurate and courageous decisions are necessary, people forsake their popular idols and seek those quiet, unassuming but confidence-inspiring men who are admired not for their popularity, but for their ability to get things done. This country is fortunate to have the greatest group of managers in the world. It only remains for the people to wake up and help in their utilization.

Kyes

America has been shaken by the course of events in Europe. Diplomats have rushed back and forth with a suitcase in one hand and a radio microphone in the other. The drums of war have been beaten in the pulpits. Learned academics have theorized on democracy. Politicians have fought and traded for the spoils of the defense program. Business men have groaned at the prospect of profit and investment losses.

Through all of this the public has maintained a stunned silence. It has only been during the last few weeks that this country has begun to collect itself sufficiently to do some sound thinking. Our conclusions have been about the same. We are about to "shoot the rapids," as they say in the backwoods. Our canoe will be in constant danger. Next comes the question of who is going to handle the paddle. We find ourselves looking for cool-headed men who have been forged in the fires of adversity and emergency.

America is about to fail on Charlie, John and Sam—those great managers who have come up through the ranks because they are natural leaders. Every day is election day for them because their men must love and respect them as they work shoulder to shoulder. Such managers have the courage to make spot decisions and, yet, their vision enables them to make a series of correct decisions that lead to planned results. They are accustomed to handling management on one side and labor on the other. They must blend the interests of these two successfully so they can produce the goods.

America has the best managers in the world. No matter what turn the world emergency may take, we have able managers to handle the situation. There is more ingenuity in American management than in any other group in the world. Our army and our navy are both in the hands of good managers. If we have an economic war to fight, our managers are equal to the task. If it is manufacturing, we can produce it. If it's food, our farmers can grow it.

Other countries have economic resources, but it takes management to get the most out of these resources. A natural leader, as a result of his accomplishments and ethics, can command the respect of his fellows where neither law nor emergency can accomplish that end.

Fear has defeated many nations, even before they put a man on the field of battle. A true manager knows no fear. He will try anything because his life has been filled with the successful completion of so-called "impossible" tasks. Management will not only lead America to victory in any endeavor, but will prove to be her greatest symbols of democratic inspiration.

Few people realize it but there is a fundamental reason why democracy cannot be destroyed. Totalitarianism and communism are failing because of lack of proper management. Socialism has failed without management. Why can't these ideologies interest management brains? The answer is simple.

Managers are the most democratic men in the world. They are democratic in thought and action. Democracy is the only form of government that appeals to them, and they will not stand by and see it destroyed.

Last Tuesday night tire thieves again raided the North part of town taking tires and automobile wheels. Among those who lost these accessories were W. N. Keed, Kenneth Germs, and Miss Prebble Durham. The Sheriff's office is investigating.

Restrictions Lowered

High school graduates who are ambitious to become pilots in the Regular Army Air Corps now have the opportunity. Even if their educational qualifications will not permit them to become commissioned officers, they still may fly Army airplanes and may look forward to careers as pilots.

All they need to do is to enlist in the Army Air Corps and this course of training will be open to them after July 1st, 1941, as soon as administrative details can be arranged. They will be taught to fly and they will be paid while learning. After they have qualified as pilots their futures as Regular Army pilots are assured.

All this is made possible by a bill which has just passed Congress and which has been signed by the President. It authorizes the Secretary of War to detail men for

The Alumni Association of Sterling High School wishes to extend a special invitation to members of the class of '17 to attend the annual banquet June 27th. Because diplomas were not issued to this class, officers of the association have failed to obtain the names and addresses of the members. Any member of the class or any one else who may know the personnel of the class of '17 please give Miss Prebble Durham the names before June 27.

I have leased the J. O. Longshore recreation hall and wish to invite all the men to visit me. Luther Hallmark
