Newspaperman's Notes:

Besides being a vegetarian, George Bernard Shaw is a hater of any sort of physical exertion. . . . Outside of occasional bicycling he debunked all athletics. Once, they say, Sandow, the Great Strong Man, cornered Shaw. . . . "Look at me," he boasted, pounding his frontage. "I can lift elephants, pianos and 20 men on my chest!" "Oh, foof!" said Shaw. "I want to keep bores off mine!"

Hy Gardner memos about the time Ann Sheridan, the star, met Jose Iturbi in Hollywood. . . . The talented man suggested that Ann phone him when she came to New York. . . . When she arrived here, she was a bit foggy about his name and addressed him as "Jose Shurbert." . . . A few hours later she received a reply. . . . It was addressed to: "Ann Schlepperman."

It happened in Buenos Aires. A minor gov't official bristled into the American Consulate. . . . Ignoring the room full of people, he stormed over to the receptionist and demanded an audience with the Consul. . . . He was politely informed there were several ahead of him. "But I am Gonzales!" he belted, impatiently glancing at his wrist watch. "At two o'clock I have the appointment." "I am Joe Kelly," replied the American in his best North Pole manner, "and at two o'clock you have the disappointment."

Zachary Scott was at a meeting where a lad with a fine war record made a speech. . . . It was dull, and the audience started walking out. . . . A man who meant well got up and announced: "Gentlemen, please sit down. This boy has gone through hell for us, we can do as much for him!"

One of the pet newspaper quips deals with the reporter assigned to cover an affair staged by the Greater New York Fund. . . . He turned his copy in carelessly and tardy. . . . The city editor bawled him out. "What's the idea," barked the boss, "of writing 'among the most beautiful girls was a Congressman?' You've got him wearing skirts!" "I can't help that," was the reply. "That's where he was!"

Baptist Revival to Close Sunday

The Baptist revival meeting will run through next Sunday night June 30. The meeting started on Wednesday night, June 19. Rev. W. A. Knight of Mertzon is doing the preaching and Mrs. W. J. McCawley, wife of the local pastor, is leading the singing.

Services are being held each week-day morning at 10:00 o'clock and each night at 8:15. All are cordially invited to attend these services.

The services are being held each night in the tabernacle and will be held there Sunday both services.

Mrs. D. Hall is in Fort Worth with her daughter, Mrs. G. H. Campbell, who is ill. D. would go but he can't get anyone to relieve him as station agent.

The L. S. Ivys moved to Fort Worth on Wednesday to take possession of a grocery store they have bought there. They sold their home here to Fay Cook.

The Ivys operated the Cosden and Humble Service Stations here the past year - selling out each in turn.

The Quipping Post: Nicol Smith, author of the soon-due book, "Into Siam, Underground Kingdom," was in office in the OSS. . . . One day he found himself seated next to a quiet little man at a Washington banquet. . . . "I'm Nicol Smith, Cloak and Dagger," said Smith introducing himself. . . . "Gled to nitt you," was the reply. "I'm Abe Lapidus, Clukkk and Suiter!" . . . Add snappers to people who boast of being self-made men: Horace Greeley stifled one such with this: "That, sir, relieves the Almighty of a terrible responsibility!" . . . Several members of the literati were moaning about the shortage of good nooch. . . . John Powers sighed and intoned: "That's what is known as wishful tanking."

Quotation Marksmanship: M. Carter: She indexed her memories, but time had shuffled the cards. . . . B. Lytton: A stiff man, starched with self-esteem. . . . Gene Fowler: To hide a secret from her is like trying to smuggle daybreak past a rooster. . . . Susan Cooper: Their eyes drew swords. . . . Ben Hecht: She looked like something carved out of a marshmallow. . . . Oscar Wilde: I can resist anything except temptation. . . . Larry Finley: They were joined in holy wedlock. . . . Evelyn Knight: It was four ho-hum in the morning. . . . Schopenhauer: Rascals are always sociable. . . . Anon: The trouble with life is that there are so many beautiful women—and so little time.

The Army short which shows what Hiroshima looks like. It won't be released because in one scene you see the imprints of bodies that were blown right into the pavement. . . . The talk that Mike Jacobs will retire after the Louis-Coon fight. . . . The two mid-western mfrs who were bilked out of $64,000 by a tout outfit. They haven't hollered because they fear the publicity will make them national jokes. . . . The glamazon named Gloria Carnera (she's 6-3) and she hasn't fiddle-fee, either. . . . The talk that Lucille Simmons of the shows may wed a coffee millionaire. . . . Sandra Rambeau ditching the British "mint" she was reported engaged to. . . . The all-Chinese gal show at the beautifully appointed China Doll on 51st St.

We offer that soldier Chris Morley's merciless doggerel, to wit: "I came home from years of war. Everything was like before. People hadn't changed a bit. That's the awful part of it!"

Sounds in the Night: At steuben's: "He will pat you on the back to your face and stab you in the heart behind your back." . . . At the Stork: "His father's success went to his head." . . . At the Anchor Room: "I saw her at the track yesterday." . . . "In which race?"
