AROUND THE COUNTY

ARTHUR BARLEMANN, JR. COUNTY AGENT

Members and friends of the Sterling County Game Management Association are receiving letters this week inviting all to attend the annual meeting and barbecue of the association. The affair will be held at the park on the Nick Reed ranch as usual. Date and time is Tuesday, November 9 at 6:30 p.m.

It is hoped that some members of the Parks and Wildlife Commission can be present to answer your questions about the new regulatory authority that will prevail during the hunting season in Sterling County. This is just a few days before the season opens and the wardens will be busy but some of them probably will be present. Under the regulatory authority, deer and turkey season will open on Saturday, November 13th.

This is the sixteenth annual meeting of the Game Management Association. Organized in May of 1949, the association has promoted better management of wildlife, transplanted deer, sponsored programs on predator and rodent control, and been active in other programs of interest to its members. Officers this past year were president Stan Horwood, vice-president John Copeland, secretary-treasurer Marvin Foster, and directors Jim Hinshaw and Gene Alley.

Residents of Sterling County have been invited to participate in the first Tom Green County Pecan Show. Along with the pecan show, a food show utilizing pecans will be held. There are a number of pecan growers in the county who might be interested in certainly are a lot of good cooks in the county who might be interested in entering their sell bulbs from 1:30 to 4:30 cookies, pies, candies, and in the afternoon and possibly breads in the show.

The show will be held on December 9 in San Angelo. Entries are due in both the pecan show and food show by noon, December 8.

There will be classes for in-shell pecans and shelling pecans in show. Over sixty varieties may be shown in the various classes. In addition, there will be classes for the smallest pecan (a pound and half of them), the most attractive pecan, and others. Several sets of rules and regulations are available in my office if you are interested. I will be glad to work with anyone who might be interested in entering the show.

Power Off for Period Sunday

For about thirty minutes on late Sunday afternoon, electric power was off here in Sterling City. A power line from San Angelo went out, said local West Texas Utilities manager Wayne Loury.

Mr. Loury said that when a power failure happened, too many people call and tie up his phone, and some call to San Angelo trying to remedy the situation; thereby tying up the toll line to San Angelo—and he can't get a circuit call in about the trouble. He Sterling voters went to the polls Tuesday and voted on ten state constitutional amendments, along with the rest of the state. Although a light vote was cast, Sterling voters were definite in their voting and in some cases disagreed with the rest of the state.

LIBRARY CLUB

High School T.A.L.A. Group Attends District Meeting

Four members of the High School Library Club attended the District Convention of the Texas Association of Library Assistants in Big Spring last Saturday. The meeting was held in the Goliad Junior High School. Attending were Jeanie McDonald, local president, Ronnie Kilpatrick, vice-president, Paul Balaban, secretary-treasurer, and Randy Peel.

Highlight of the morning session was a book review by Mrs. Pauline Smith. This made the hearers feel as if they had lived with the pioneer ancestors in this part of Texas when ranchers lived miles apart because she gave a vivid account of those days as they are depicted in the book Big Spring by Shine Phillips. Following the review a group of students did square or folk dances such as were popular among the pioneers.

In the afternoon, Mr. Davis, social science teacher at Lakeview High School, gave accounts of folk stories he had collected in the Big Bend area as a student at Sul Ross State College at Alpine. This was a spell-binding treat, every story so well-told that the hearers lived the experiences.

Homecoming Parade This Afternoon

Today is homecoming day in Sterling City—at the school and the football game with Garden City here tonight at 7:30. A parade put on by the students of the entire school will march down the highway street beginning at 1 p.m. Each class will have a float or group in the parade. Traffic will be routed around through town as usual by officers.

Behind the 8-Ball

The parade today starts at about 1:30. It will start up by the Texaco Truck Stop and go to the state highway road—other side park in east Sterling. A pep rally will be held there—building up pep for the football game with Garden City tonight at 7:30.

All grades will have a part in the parade. Some have floats, some costumes, some football suits and some squad costumes. It is quite colorful. Be sure and come out for the parade.

The weather turned cool and damp here Thursday a.m. It wasn't so cold but it was disagreeable. It would have been nice if the mist could have been a rain.

Today is the day for landowners to get their doe permits for this season. Just go to the courthouse and talk to representatives of the Parks and Wildlife Commission. Anytime today.

One half of the amendments passed (statewide) on Tuesday. That's a 50 per cent win or loss—as you might look at it.

I didn't pick all winners myself. But I had a good average.

The serious part of the football season starts tonight with the first conference game for the Eagles. They will play the Garden City Bearkats, and it is always a hard fought, good game when these two teams play. Game time is 7:30.

Members of the junior class are selling pencils for 50c—and they are hootenany pencils, so I guess they are worth it. However, you also get a chance at a 15 pound smoked turkey. If you don't get the turkey, you can eat the pencil for Thanksgiving.

This is free advertising.

Not much damage or harm resulted from Halloween here. Trick or Treaters worked for three nights, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and got in pretty good locks. A few houses were decorated with tissue, but nothing out of the ordinary was done.

School Fair Held Last Friday

The Sterling PTA sponsored school fair was held at the school house last Friday night with a large crowd attending. Between six and seven hundred dollars was taken in at the door, the booths and at the supper. Money raised will be used by the PTA for more school air conditioning and the ground beautification. Door prizes had been donated

Play Garden City Here Tonight

The Sterling City Eagles played the Class AAA Del Rio Wildcats last Saturday in Lakeview Stadium and won the game 28 to 16. The game was the last non-conference game for the Eagles this year.

In the first quarter, the Del Rio boys drew first blood when Fern went over for a touchdown and Nations added the two extra points. Quickly there after Andy Gaston of the locals scooted over for six points and Wayland Foster added the two extra points.

Then in the second quarter Gonzales for the Wildcats added six more points and Nations added the two extra points. And before the half, Dusty Dillard, Sterling City's quarterback shot a short lateral to Wayland Foster, who in turn heaved a forward pass to Collin Douthit for a T.D. for the Eagles. Andy Gaston added the two extra points.

And before the half Wayland Foster scooted over for another touchdown. They try for side park in east Sterling. A extra point failed and the half pep rally will be held there—ended 22 to 16 in favor of the Eagles.

The third quarter produced no scores on either side but the fourth Dillard found a way over the goal line for six more points for the Eagles, making the final score 28 to 16.

GARDEN CITY HERE TONIGHT

The conference season opens for the Eagles tonight at 7:30 on the local field. The game is with the Garden City Bearkats. The Bearkats have not yet lost a game this season—and the Eagles have lost a non conference game to the Grandfalls Cowboys.

The Eagles are the defending champions of this district and region from last year. The Garden City team came nearest to beating the Eagles in last season's play.

Civil Disobedience

By J. Edgar Hoover

One concept which is wholly inconsistent with democratic processes is the totalitarian idea that the end justifies the means. In a free society sustained by respect for procedural as well as substantive rights, the "end," however noble, can never excuse unlawful "means."

A current move in this country advocating unlawful means has been labeled civil disobedience. This doctrine is based on the startling theory that if one does not agree with a law and believes it to be morally unjust, he may disregard it to achieve a particular objective.

I think society, by and large, is unaware of the long-term implications of this creed, primarily because those who seek immediate and temporary solutions have obscured the future by a smokescreen of slogans and high-sounding cliches. No matter what the goal, the fact remains that a peaceful, healthy, orderly society cannot exist, now or ever, if each individual may determine which laws he is going to obey and which he is not.

The basic question is respect for law and due process and whether dispassionate justice is to be rendered.

To my mind there are two frightening aspects to civil disobedience. One, sowing contempt for law and order and promoting pride in law-breaking among the Nation's youth can only result in an acceleration of our serious crime problem. In some quarters, it already appears that the social stigma formerly attached to lawbreakers is being replaced by sympathy for their actions and an irrational hostility to law enforcement.

Secondly, where is the line to be drawn against the snowball effect of civil disobedience? Willfully disobeying misdemeanor statutes today committing felonies tomorrow is a logical regression from a government of law to an anarchic society.

There is no question but that the right of dissent and the right to petition for redress of grievances are absolutely essential to the security of a free people. But the very life of liberty requires that these rights be asserted in a lawful manner. Civil disobedience and the unwillingness of many to resolve their differences by established legal means will surely lead to the destruction of the institutions which protect their freedoms.

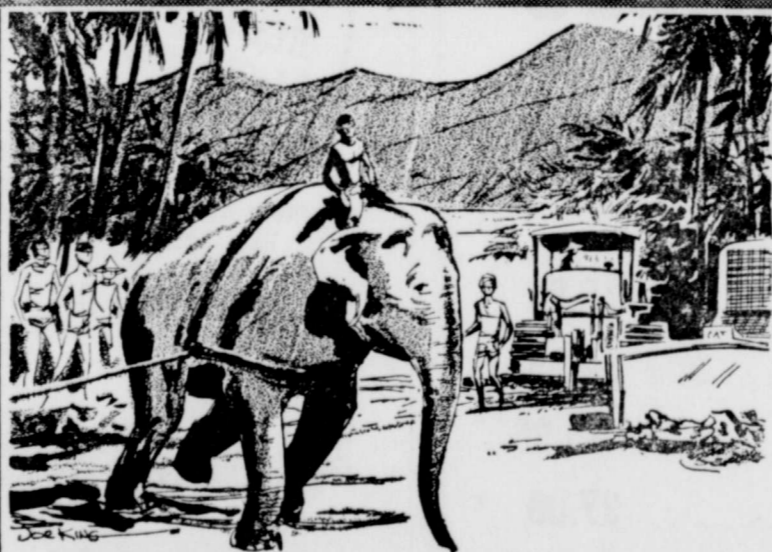

It is folly to hold that a utopia of individual rights will rise from the destruction of respect for law.

34,300 Miles of Progress

The day is near when you'll be able to drive over smooth concrete or asphalt from the English Channel to the China Sea. It's all part of what President Johnson calls "the most important battle of all"—bringing economic prosperity to Southeast Asia.

For the Asian Highway, being built under the aegis of the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE), aims at opening the Oriental region to motor communication with Europe to speed tourist travel and provide truck routes for goods.

The network, linking with Europe via the Middle East's existing roads, will be a web of modern highways 34,300 miles long. Of two alternate routes under construction, the priority highway—Route A-1—runs from the Turkish border through Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India, Burma, Thailand and Cambodia to South Viet Nam. The other begins at Iraq and continues through Iran, Pakistan, India, Nepal, Burma, Thailand and Malaysia. Ultimately, after a ferry crossing from Singapore to Jakarta, in Indonesia, it will run the length of Java. Benefiting countries are constructing the roads with assistance from ECLA, the United States, Russia and other countries. The major remaining gaps in A-1 are in Burma and East Pakistan.

She Makes 'Em Fast ---And Pretty

Mrs. W. B. Atkinson, who was hospitalized after a fall which broke a hip bone last year, has kept busy making afghans in her room at the Sterling County Hospital. She has made 12 of the covers for her grandchildren, as she says—and the local doctor, Dr. W. J. Swann, is rated as being a "grandson." The display of the completed colorful afghans almost dazzle one. They were all laid out on the other bed of her hospital room Tuesday. They are mostly pastels but several have bold colors in them, all contrasting to make a pleasing display of color.

Mrs. Atkinson, widow of the late W.B. Atkinson, broke a hip quite a few years ago as she was playing baseball with some neighborhood boys. She never regained full use of her limbs and last year she fell in an accident at her home, and has been hospitalized ever since.

One of her grandchildren, Diana Lou Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Cole, said Tuesday, speaking of the afghans, "Mine is the prettiest one of all."

How Old Is a Young Redwood Tree?

Don't feel badly if you think that California's coast redwoods are the oldest, largest, scarcest or slowest-growing trees, for though you're wrong, you have plenty of company.

Common misconceptions about Sequoia sempervirens get the axe in a new booklet, "Questions and Answers About the Redwoods," issued by the redwood timber products industry. Copies are available without charge from California Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery St., San Francisco 94111.

The 20-page illustrated publication is based on questions and conservationists from across the nation. Most of the queries show a general lack of knowledge about the tree and its future.

The redwood found growing from the southwestern tip of Oregon 450 miles down the coast to San Luis Obispo County is a youngster compared with other California species, the publication claims. At 2,200 years, the oldest known specimen of coast redwood is outranked by bristlecone pine at 4,600 years, the 3,200-year-old Sierra redwood and western juniper, aged 3,000.

While the tallest living thing is a 367-foot coast redwood growing on a tree farm near Orick, Humboldt County, the nation's largest trees in bulk are of the Sequoia gigantea species, found on the western slopes of California's Sierra Nevada. More than 98 per cent of the Sierra trees are preserved in government parks and forests.

Is redwood a slow-growing tree? Far from it, answers the booklet. Coast redwood, the commercial species, is the nation's fastest growing conifer, and the Sierra redwood is not far behind. Some regrowth trees are now more than 200 feet tall with 6-foot diameters.
