Encounter Crusade Kicks Off Saturday

Dr. Jess Moody, Evangelist for the upcoming Muleshoe Area Encounter Crusade, will be the pulpit guest of First Baptist Church for its morning worship service on Sunday, July 31. Dr. Moody is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Van Nuys, California with a membership of 11,800.

As a small boy, Dr. Moody resided in Muleshoe with his family. His mother played the piano in the Methodist Church at the time of his residency. He accepted Christ as an eleven year old boy at Littlefield and was baptized into the membership of the First Baptist Church.

As a much sought-after speaker, he has spoken five times to the United States Air Force Academy, the President's Cabinet, Ford Dealer's Convention, New York Broadcasters, National Religious Broadcasters and the Hank Aaron Appreciation Dinner.

Dr. Moody is also a writer, and has published five books: "You Can't Lose for Winning," "Don't Miss It If You Can," "A Drink at Joel's Place," "The Cathedral of God's Word" and "Jesus Freaks."

The people of Muleshoe and the area are invited to hear Dr. Jess Moody in the 11:00 a.m. worship service at First Baptist Church and for each of the services of the Muleshoe Area Encounter Crusade, beginning Sunday evening at the Muleshoe High School Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. The crusade will continue through Thursday evening, August 4.

ALMO District Team Still 'In Running'

As things stand right now, the Almo team of District 2, Senior Babe Ruth League, which is made up of boys 16-18 years of age from Muleshoe, Morton, Lazbuddie and Dimmitt, still have a chance to travel to Southwestern Regional playoffs in Arkadelphia, Arkansas during the first week in August. They will meet other top contenders of the other seven regions there.

The Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament is currently underway in Muleshoe, with games scheduled to run each night through July 30. Four teams are involved in these playoffs and the winner of the battle will go to regional.

Team members come from Districts 1, 2, 3 and 5, being Dumas, Muleshoe, Plainview and Graham.

District 2, ALMO, which is comprised of boys in the Muleshoe area was slated to play the District 1 (Dumas) team on Monday night; however, District 1 failed to show thereby forfeiting the game to District 2. On that same night, Plainview (District 3) beat Graham (District 5) by a score of 14-2, resulting in Muleshoe and Plainview being the top contenders.

Tuesday night at 8:30 p.m., Muleshoe met Plainview's contenders and came away with a 24-1 loss. The Plainview team from District 3 was tough and got the needed hits, including several home runs which were knocked out of the park. The ALMO team's errors cost them and Plainview really took advantage.

However, since this is a double elimination, Muleshoe is still in the running, having only lost one game. Muleshoe will meet the team from Graham (District 5) on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Muleshoe Babe Ruth Park. The winner of this game will play Plainview on Thursday for the overall title among the four competing teams here.

Once again on Tuesday night, the District 1 team from Dumas failed to make an appearance against the Graham team, thereby eliminating them from competition. No word had been received from them.

While we at the ASCS office realize that many of the farmers have been extremely busy with planting, replanting and such; the time has come that this acreage needs to be taken care of in order to prevent permanent damages to yours and perhaps your neighbor's land," explained Danny Noble, Bailey County ASCS Executive Director.

The CUA acreage clause in the 1983 farm programs so states that those acres designated to CUA must be protected from wind and water erosion in a manner approved for the county. CUA acreage may not be grazed during the six principal growing months as set for the County; additionally, no crops, including hay or silage, may be harvested from this acreage during the calendar year.

Special patrols could curb accidents involving stalled cars

COLLEGE STATION—Special courtesy patrols drawn from city police officers or licensed private firms may be needed to combat the growing number of accidents involving stalled or parked cars on interstate highways, say two transportation researchers.

Such patrols could carry gasoline to sell as well as flares or reflection gear to mark abandoned vehicles. Tow trucks could be called rapidly to remove stalled cars, explained Nancy Hatfield, and Cherry Kugel of Austin, accident analysis specialists with the Texas Transportation Institute, an agency of the Texas A&M University System.

In 1980, the period studied by the researchers, expressway wrecks involving stalled cars killed 37 people and injured 451 others—about twice the rate for other interstate accidents.

Social Security

A recent change in the law permits people who appeal the decision that they are no longer disabled under the Social Security law to have a face-to-face hearing with the reviewing officer. This permits them the opportunity to introduce additional evidence and gives the decision-maker an opportunity to see the person earlier in the appellate process.

The move is designed to facilitate the ongoing program of continuing disability investigations by encouraging persons to present their entire case at the first level of appeal. It affords a greater opportunity to determine the extent of the beneficiary's condition. Under prior law, the person was not generally seen until the next level, a formal hearing before an administrative law judge. When a beneficiary appealed a decision, he or she was given a reconsideration by a person other than the one who made the original decision.

The reconsideration consisted primarily of a review of the evidence in the folder, as developed by the initial application plus any new evidence submitted. An appeal could be made for a hearing before an administrative law judge. If the person did not agree with the administrative law judge's decision, he or she could seek a review by the Appeals Council in Washington, D.C.

The continuing disability investigations which have always been a part of the disability program have been increased in the last few years by Congressional mandate. A 1980 law requires Social Security to review most disability cases at least once every 3 years to determine if the person is still disabled under the law. The change in the law was based on findings by Social Security and the General Accounting Office (GAO) that many people receiving Social Security disability benefits were no longer disabled. Improvements in medical technology and general improvements in health care were credited with much of the improvement.

The Congress made note of the importance of promoting disability beneficiaries' understanding of the new role of the reconsideration, the disability decision. In the past, many decisions were reversed at the hearing level because beneficiaries tended to produce more credible evidence and appeared in person, giving the hearing officer additional data on which to base a decision

Pensioners May Owe Taxes

Because pension income may be either fully or partially taxable, federal income taxes may be withheld from pension payments. Withholding is not compulsory, and any person can apply to their payor for exemption.

However, many retirees may find the withholding a convenience that can spare them penalties when they file their federal income tax returns. Without tax withholding, a retiree who owes $300 or more for 1983 may be liable for an estimated tax penalty.

The habit of loafing isn't hard to acquire; in fact, many people seem to be born with it.

that may not have been available to the reconsideration reviewer. Under the new procedure, the beneficiary is encouraged to submit all additional evidence at the reconsideration level.

In addition to understanding the importance of submitting all evidence at the reconsideration, beneficiaries should also be aware of their right to representation by counsel any other person they request. Under prior law, many people did not hire counsel until they reached the hearing stage.

The face-to-face reconsiderations will be phased during the 3-month period before January 1984. People who have questions about the new procedure should call the Social Security office in Lubbock. The phone number is 806-743-7381.

TSTA Submits Proposal For Education Reform

The 95,000 member Texas State Teachers Association recently submitted a comprehensive proposal for education reform in Texas public schools to the Select Committee on Public Education, chaired by H. Ross Perot of Dallas.

Dale Young, new TSTA president, said the reform proposals represent the views of the majority of the state's teachers on the direction educational improvements should take.

Included among the many recommendations for reform are calls for higher standards for students, teachers and administrators; better salaries for teachers; state mandated discipline policies; return of grade integrity and teacher authority; the revamping of teacher and administrator education programs; and strong educator evaluation systems.

"Ultimately, the success of any reforms will depend upon the classroom teachers' ability to implement them," Young said. "For this reason, it is critical that teachers' needs and views be solicited in every step of the process."

Young, an instructor in the College of Education at Texas Christian University, said the most pressing need for immediate reform is in the area of teachers' salaries.

"There is a clear and immediate need to raise all teachers' salaries by at least 24 percent over the next two years because the current shortage of qualified, certificated teachers in Texas constitutes a genuine emergency," he added.

The president said TSTA cautions the Select Committee and the public to be wary of merit pay schemes which are touted by many to be "cure alls" to the many problems in education.

"While a case for some form of master teacher or merit pay certainly can be made, we must recognize that it will not solve the teacher shortage; it will not address the need to alter our manner of educating potential teachers; it will not speak to the need for reformed instructional environments; it will not alleviate the slip-shop and irresponsible manner in which too many educators are presently evaluated; and it will not weed out incompetent educators."

"Various versions of merit pay plans have been tried by a few states and numerous school districts throughout the country for many years and all have failed," Young said. TSTA has asked the Select Committee to "look hard" at the quality of teacher evaluation in most school districts before preparing any recommendations on matters such as merit pay.

The group calls for sweeping reforms in the process of preparing teachers to teach and administrators to manage the schools, state-mandated discipline policies, funding for high quality materials, including computer hardware and software, and funding formulas for determining class sizes and student-teacher ratios.

Another recommendation suggests tying student participation in extracurricular activities to academic achievement.

To offset the immediate teacher shortage, it recommends that the State of Texas fund at least 1,000 special-help scholarships for high-achieving students who could be recruited into the teaching profession. These scholarships, commencing in 1985, would continue through graduation, provided the student maintains a "B" grade average.

Young cautioned that the reforms would require time, money and public support for education.

"We believe that the people of Texas possess sufficient greatness of spirit and intellect to support these badly needed reforms," he concluded.

Aggie architect designing house with cheap utility bills

COLLEGE STATION—A Texas A&M University architect is designing a house that will be cool in summer and warm in winter with the goal of using less than $30 a month for energy.

Raymond Reed, professor of architecture and a member of the American Institute of Architects' Task Force on Energy Conservation, is drawing up plans for the house which will eventually be built in Port Arthur as part of a project sponsored by Gulf States Utilities.

Although Reed has not completed the designs, he said the house will have a double roof that will be a shading device in the summer and a heating device in the winter.

When completed, Reed's design will be made available to the public.

Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Acres reports on an odd dream this week.

Dear editor:

I don't know if it was all the news I've been reading about arms control between the United States and Russia, like whether they could agree to reduce their nuclear weapons from enough to wipe out each other's population 10 times down to just 5 times, or if it was something I ate, but the other night I had a dream.

I dreamed that way back in the early days before Columbus discovered America two Indian tribes constantly suspicious of each other and always preparing to fight, decided to hold an arms reduction conference. They were spending so much time preparing to defend themselves they had no time to hunt.

After arguing four months over what wigwam to hold the conference in, the chiefs finally got together in a neutral clearing.

The agreement finally hammered out, or as the smoke-signal network put it, tomahawked out, required each tribe to reduce by 30 percent its number of bows and arrows, multiple arrowheads, rock clubs, spears and able-bodied warriors. The discharged warriors were to be put to work planting corn, to give full employment to tribeswomen pulling weeds.

The agreement was sealed by passing around a peace pipe. Each chief took a long puff. In those days there was nourgeon general to warn against it.

Six months later scouts from one tribe reported the other tribe was hard at work doubling its supply of bows and arrows, multiple arrowheads, etc.

Challenged, the treaty-breaking tribe announced that it was ignoring the agreement because it was invalid—the tobacco in the peace pipe had been adulterated with hackberry leaves, in clear violation of the Geneva Conference agreement painted on the walls of a cave just outside the city limits.

Who put the hackberry leaves in the tobacco is now being investigated by the Tribal Ethics Committee. A report is expected in two or three hundred moons.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Poll Shows Fear Of Being Victim

According to the Criminal Justice Center survey program at Sam Houston State University, well over one-half (57%) of the Texans who responded to the latest Texas Crime Poll said they were afraid they would be the victim of a crime during the next year.

More than a third (36.4%) of those who responded had been victims of at least one crime in the previous year.

The poll was conducted by the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston State University.

Dr. Raymond H.C. Teske, Jr., director of the Center's Survey Research Program, said that Texans in general are rather pessimistic when it comes to their outlook toward crime.

A total of 1,442 Texans from 197 of the state's 254 counties, selected at random, responded to the most recent survey. Six in 10 (61%) said the crime problem in their community has become worse in the past three years, and about half (51%) expect it to become worse during the next three years.

As a response to their fear of crime, four of five (80%) say they have placed at least one type of security device in their home for protection.

In the past five years, said Teske, there has been a significant increase in those who have installed door bolts. In 1977, in response to an earlier Texas Crime Poll, 31% said they had installed door bolts. That figure increased 43% in the latest poll.

Respondents were asked about their experiences with crime for a year (1981) and for their lifetime. Of the 1,442 respondents, 525, or 36.4%, reported having been the victims of 1,128 crime incidents in 1981. Respondents also reported 3,962 lifetime victimizations, or an average of 2.75 victimizations per respondent.

Crimes which occurred most frequently were home burglary (32.5% lifetime, 13% in 1981); motor vehicle theft (15.5%, 5%); other theft (34.4%, 12%); assault with body (21.8%, 5%); assault with weapon (9.6%, 1%); and rape or attempted rape (7.5%, 1%).

Although many people experience crime, said Teske, not all report those crimes. Only slightly more than half (54%) of the respondents who were victims during the previous year reported the crimes to a law enforcement officer.

The crime type most likely to have been reported was robbery (91%); followed by burglary of a home (77%) and motor vehicle theft (70%).

The reporting rates for other crimes were: arson or attempted arson (50%); rape or attempted rape (50%); other theft (48%); vandalism or malicious mischief (42%); assault with body (39%); and assault with weapon (35%).

Plan For Retirement

Planning for retirement is an idea whose time has come. Today, more than ever, people realize that how they spend the latter part of their lives will depend largely on how they plan for it.

In terms of retirement income, the earlier planning starts, the better. It takes time to accumulate income unless you're a financial genius, and such sources as insurance, savings, pensions, and investments that have traditionally provided income for retirement generally look better over time.

Social Security continues to be the Nation's primary source of income in retirement. Recently, the Congress changed a number of Social Security provisions which ensure its financial soundness on into the next century. Social Security data show that 90 percent of people 65 and over receive Social Security and about 65 percent of them rely on Social Security benefits for at least half their total income. Thus, it's important to know such facts as how much your Social Security benefits might be, how benefits are affected by other retirement income, early retirement, and later retirement.

People may get an estimate of what their benefits will be at age 65 by writing the Social Security Administration. The Social Security office has a special form that may be used for this purpose. Estimates for younger workers are not as precise because of the uncertainties involved in the longer period over which the benefits have to be estimated. But, in general, people may expect their retirement income to equal from 28 percent to 55 percent of their monthly pre-retirement income. The percentage is higher for people with lower earnings, since the formula is weighted to produce a proportionately higher benefit for low earners. These percentages indicate the rate at which a person's earnings are replaced. Benefits increase automatically to reflect increases in the cost of living.

There is a limit on how much you may earn and still receive Social Security benefits; the limit increases each year with increases in general wages. For 1983, the limit is $6600 for people 65 and over and $4,920 for people under 65. Benefits are reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings above the limit. For people 70 and over all of 1983 the earnings limit does not apply. (Starting in 1990, the $1 for $2 withholding will become $1 to $3 for people 65 and over).

Under present law, other types of retirement income that do not result from current work do not count against the Social Security benefits. These include pensions, investments, savings and so forth. Benefits are payable as early as age 62, reduced for each month before age 65 to a maximum reduction of 20 percent for people retiring at age 62. Widows and widowers get benefits as early as age 60 reduced to 72 percent of what they would receive at age 65 on the deceased worker's record.

The benefit a person would receive at age 65 is increased by 3 percent per year for each year that he or she delays retirement. These delayed retirement credits are in addition to the annual cost-of-living increases that apply starting at age 62 whether or not a person retires. These credits will increase gradually starting in 1990 until they reach 8 percent by 2008.

For details on how Social Security provides retirement income to help you plan for your retirement years, you should call or write any Social Security office. We'll be glad to send you special leaflets on the subject.

More Employed Women Return To Home Sewing

"Both the economy and changing lifestyles are having a great impact on home sewing," says Dr. Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist.

Home sewing boomed when polyester doubleknits first came on the market in the late 1960's because they were so easy to use, explains Vanderpoorten, a home economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Since fashions at the time tended toward loose fitting, untailored garments with little detail, home sewers could easily produce quality clothing.

Once tailored clothes became fashionable again and people tired of doubleknits, many women realized they didn't have the skills to sew good-looking garments and gave up the activity, says Vanderpoorten. Until recently, only about 20 percent of American women used their sewing machines twice a month or more.

According to Vanderpoorten, economics has created a new interest in home sewing. "When women can make a quality dress for 30 percent of what it would cost in the stores, they are bound to be interested," she suggests.

Even employed women are returning to home sewing, says Vanderpoorten. They want clothes to wear on the job with enough style to last several years rather than just one season. If they can't find the styles they like, or preferred styles in their size, they are now more likely to sew the clothes themselves.

Also, some employed women are turning to sewing for "therapy" or as a hobby, rather than out of economic necessity.

The pattern companies and fabric makers are now trying to make their products more compatible with the employed woman's lifestyle. "They are aiming for the customer who wants to make something simple and fast," she says.

Enormous catalogs of patterns, each with complex instructions and five different views of the finished garment are seen less frequently, since they tend to frighten off potential home sewers.

Instead, many manufacturers are offering a simplified line with a few styles attractively displayed in fabric stores. Each pattern has few pattern pieces, one or two views, simpler instructions that allow for a graded fit, and a lower price than regular patterns.

Home sewing has also gotten a boost from the recent interest in crafts. Research shows that 30 percent of sales in fabric stores now go toward crafts and home decorating materials, says the specialist.

"It's difficult to predict whether the interest in home sewing will continue to grow. But with the new fabric blends, streamlined patterns and desire for high quality at a lower price, we may see a sewing boom again."

Panhandle Writers Workshop Planned

Advanced registrations for the Panhandle Writers Workshop are now being received by the sponsoring body, Panhandle Pen Women. To be held on Saturday, August 6, (1983) at Amarillo College's Technology Building, the Workshop will begin at 8 a.m. and end at 5 p.m.

Featured speaker for the event will be Texas/New York author, Shelby Hearon. Her topics will be "Fiction as Still Life" and "Fiction as Screen Memory." Eight other study-group sessions will be offered by leaders whose subjects deal with a wide range of concerns relative to writing and publishing.

Cost of the day-long workshop will be $35 and will include lunch and refreshments during breaks. Those wishing to enroll in the Workshop may write to Panhandle Pen Women, 2517 9th Ave., Canyon, TX 79015. Registration may also be accomplished between 8 and 8:30 a.m. on the day of the event, although advance enrollment is encouraged to facilitate luncheon preparation.

Additional information regarding the Workshop, along with a detailed schedule is available from the above-mentioned address.

Both experienced and would-be writers are invited to attend the Workshop.

People who reach the end of their road are often surprised by what is not there.

Reagan presents Texas A&M scientist medal of science

COLLEGE STATION—A Texas A&M University scientist who once said researchers have more bad days than good had a good day to remember when President Reagan presented him the National Medal of Science in a recent White House ceremony.

Dr. F. Albert Cotton, Welch Distinguished Professor of Chemistry and the second most-published scientist in the world, is the first Texas A&M University researcher to receive a National medal of Science while serving as a faculty member.

Hypertension In Children

Hypertension, or high blood pressure, has long been recognized as a serious health threat to adults, but only recently has its occurrence in children been noted.

For years hypertension was thought to occur in children only as the secondary result of other diseases, such as heart disorders.

However, recent research reported by the Texas Department of Health stresses that primary hypertension, or high blood pressure with no obvious cause, is probably the most common type of hypertension in children as well as adults, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

In the United States, 2.4 percent of children ages 3-15, 7.5 percent of adolescents ages 14-18, and 10-15 percent of adults are estimated to have high blood pressure.

Hypertension is called a "silent disease" says Shirer, because signs and symptoms will become obvious only when the condition persists over a period of time.

The symptoms of hypertension in older children and adolescents usually include frequent headaches, dizziness and visual changes. Infants or young children may not even be recognized as having symptoms until complications such as unexplained seizures result.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute now recommends that children three years of age or older should have their blood pressure measured annually, Shirer reports.

Children diagnosed as a risk for developing hypertension, those on the borderline and those actually hyperactive should be placed in a prevention program and monitored regularly by their physicians.

Long-term prevention and control programs include weight control, reduction of salt intake, regular exercise and elimination of smoking, adds the specialist.

"The important thing about routine blood pressure measurement in children," says Shirer, "is that it presents an opportunity to help change behavior and promote healthy lifestyles early in life that can help prevent problems in adulthood."

Culture is the product of versatility and leisure, aided and abetted by some cash.

It's just as easy to fill your mind with something worthwhile as with rancid humor.

Some men honor the positions they hold; others are supported by their positions. It's amazing how many people could do better, if they were in the White House.

Impact On Telephone Services Will Be Severe

In a recent consumer update report from the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC), facts show that the antitrust breakup and FCC rulings on American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) are going to have a profound impact on telephone services that consumers receive and on the costs of those services.

AT&T along with 1500 independent phone companies have been providing service in a single network with the average customer having access to a system that could handle local as well as long distance calls.

Most regulators and company officials stand on the premise that local phone rates have been kept low through the sharing of long distance revenues by all telephone companies. This traditional pricing approach let the U.S. pursue the offering of basic telephone service at an affordable price for almost 50 years. This was known as universal service.

The recent FCC battery of rulings eliminates the universal service approach according to the PUC. The new pricing system allows costs to be allocated where they are caused.

With the coming of the January 1, 1984 proposed divestiture, local operating companies will lose a significant portion and in one case most of their long distance revenues.

PUC officials question whether the current method and level of subsidizing local rates through long dis-

On July 21 Jerry Don Roderer was arrested on a warrant for revocation of probation for Potter County. Potter County picked him up.

On July 24, DPS Officer Kirk arrested Alberto Mendoza on a charge of alleged driving with license suspended. Mendoza was booked into the county jail under a $750 property bond. Also on July 24, DPS Officer Fernandez arrested Miguel Guadalupe Rodriguez, Jr. on charges of alleged DWI and driving with license suspended. He was booked into the county jail under two separate $500 bonds.

Sheriff's officers recently investigated three rural burglaries, but have no suspects at this time. Two of the burglaries occurred in the Bula area about July 15, where property valued at approximately $1,000 was taken from the Bula Gin office and property valued at $500 was taken from the Bula Cafe. The third rural burglary was reported to have occurred about seven miles north of Maple when persons unknown removed about $250 in tools from a tractor belonging to Herschel Lamar. They apparently gained entry by pushing out a bottom window of the tractor cab.

Revenues will be feasible with the loss of long distance revenues and increased competition.

In an effort to help replace lost subsidy from interstate long distance revenues, the FCC ordered access charges nationwide for both long distance carriers and local customers. An access charge is a charge for access to the telephone network. A minimum of $2 per month per local residential customer and $4 per local customer would be added. Other phone companies are expected to make similar requests in the near future.

Under both the FCC order and the Southwestern Bell proposal, access charges would be adjusted over a five year period so that long distance carriers only pay for their actual usage of local phone facilities, while local customers would pay all costs associated with extending plant facilities such as underground cable, et al.

Water Conservation Topic At Rotary

Wayne Wyatt, Manager of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, was the guest speaker at the Muleshoe Rotary Club's weekly meeting on Tuesday, July 26. Wyatt discussed the technique of air injection for the purpose of secondary recovery projects in the Ogallala Formation, stating that the project had proven to be economically feasible.

Wyatt also indicated that the same kind of recovery technique is planned for use on the Lubbock wells located just to the east of Muleshoe and Highway 214.

According to the HPUWCD manager, a large scale field test of air drive for secondary recovery of capillary water was conducted near Idalou, Texas with good results. These results showed that an area of over 140 acres was pressurized. Over ten million cubic feet of air were injected over a six day period. Water levels in wells around the injection site rose, and the area around the site contained an estimated additional 406 acre-feet of water available to wells 160 days after the test. An economic analysis showed that if the additional water was available due to air injection, it would cost about $50 per acre-foot. Water at this cost could currently be used profitably by an irrigation farmer if favorable commodity prices existed, according to the reports. A city could likely afford to pay up to $136 per acre-foot presently for ground water according to the field test information.

Don McElroy was responsible for the program on Tuesday. Guests for the Rotary meeting were Bob Bomer, Wayne Peterson, Bill Millen, Charles Flowers and Bret and Lance King.

BUSINESSPERSON OR SHOPKEEPER (Which Are You?)

It seems that the operators of small businesses can be divided into two main classes, businesspeople and shopkeepers. Businesspeople analyze, compare, budget, project, and review information to try to be the best in their business community and to make the most profit on their invested time and money.

Shopkeepers, on the other hand, open their doors at 8:00 and close at 6:00 day after day all year long. They show up at their accountant's office in April of the following year and ask, "What's left over for me?" or, "Did I make any money?"

Do you suppose that 20% of the businesses do 80% of the volume and the other 80% of the businesses get the remaining 20%? It's impossible to run a business properly without a record system designed for your specific needs. To be in the top 20%, you must have adequate financial information to make proper decisions. Whether your business is large or small, it needs management information. Such information will help you to control costs, manage inventory, assess equipment purchase needs, do tax planning, etc. If the business is small, your system will be simple and the cost to install and maintain it should be minimal in relation to the benefits. If your business is large, you need management information to survive profitably, and the cost to obtain such information will be returned in higher profits.

Many businesspeople with poor information systems promise themselves that each year they'll have a better reporting system. Well, next year is here and if you as the owner-manager don't decide to improve the system, no one else in your organization will get the job done. Get together with your accountant and decide your business needs.

Ranchers Roundup Set To Begin August 1

SAN ANGELO, Texas -- Ranchers from throughout the nation will gather at the Convention Center here for the 3rd Annual International Ranchers Roundup (IRR) which begins August 1 for five days of educational sessions and ranch tours.

Over 100 internationally renowned speakers from 25 states and South Africa will be on hand to share their expertise.

Headline speakers who will address the opening day general session at 1 p.m. August 1 are Dub Waldrip, National Cattleman's Association president; U.S. Representative Tom Loeffler (D-Texas); Dr. Cas Maree, animal science department chairman, University of Pretoria, South Africa; Dr. Fee Busby, range science department chairman, University of Wyoming; and Dr. Arthur Hansen, chancellor of the Texas A&M University System.

Participants have their choice of any or all of seven different concurrent sessions beginning at 8:45 a.m. August 2 continuing thru 5 p.m. August 5 in beef cattle, sheep and goats, ranch family business management, wildlife, grazing management, marketing and computerized ranching. Ranchers can attend talks in any of the sessions. Special registration rates favor ranchers and spouses. Several sessions will be repeated.

Perhaps the most important news to ranchers who have not yet made plans to attend is that IRR registration will be available in the Convention Center lobby throughout the week. The four ranch tours, however, are closed except for a few scattered seats which coordinators expect to fill early in the week. Registration information is available thru the San Angelo Convention Bureau (915/653-1206).

A special feature of the IRR will be panel and individual discussions concerning the much talked-about Savory Grazing Method, a grazing system that has attracted widespread attention throughout the Southwest.

The IRR's basic purpose is to offer the most practical comprehensive training available in all areas of ranch operation, according to coordinators Dr. LeRoy Hoermann and Dr. Larry White with the Texas A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Uvalde and Robert H. Kensing, farm management specialist with the San Angelo A&M Center. All are affiliated with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the main IRR sponsor.

"Our objective is to bring together the finest minds in the ranching industry so that everyone can benefit from the assembled expertise and interchange of ideas," the coordinators explain. "Ranchers are urged to bring their wives, ranch managers or foreman because there's just too much information generated here for one person to absorb." Many past participants have compared the two previous conferences with Texas A&M's animal science curriculum, which is recognized as one of the nation's best, for its superb instruction, versatile program, and outstanding speakers.

This year a special "discussion session" was created to allow participating ranchers to visit informally one-on-one with certain speakers for more indepth discussions of specific problems.

Premiums Set For SP Fair Barrow Show

LUBBOCK -- Premiums totaling $6,850 have been tabbed for an open barrow show, one of several livestock events on tap during the 66th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair here Sept. 24-Oct. 1.

Barrows will go into the arena of the Swine Barn beginning at 9 a.m. on Sept. 26, according to general manager Steve L. Lewis.

Malcom Osburn of Valley Spring will judge the entries and Lee Roy Colgan and Billy Roach will serve as superintendent and assistant, respectively.

Non-returnable entry fees of $5 will be charged per barrow and entries will close on Sept. 12. A maximum of 600 barrows will be permitted to compete.

It is a terminal event and there will be no "take home" barrows, Lewis noted.

Barrows will be divided into the following classes at weigh-in: lightweight, 200 to 220 pounds; medium 221 to 235 pounds and heavy, 236 to 250 pounds.

Champions and reserve champions in Duroc, Hampshire, Crossbred and Purebred divisions will be awarded $150 and $100 cash prizes, respectively, plus banners.

The grand champion barrow will collect $1,250 and a trophy while the reserve grand champion will get $1,000 and a trophy.

two of the largest single premium awards of the exposition.

Danna Ralston of Farwell exhibited the 1982 grand champion barrow.

The barrow show is one of the most popular on the varied livestock judging calendar each year, Lewis said.

Meanwhile, negotiations are continuing for entertainers to open and close the 1983 fair. Otherwise, the card is complete with Reba McEntire and the Maines Brothers co-headlining a pair of shows in Fair Park Coliseum at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Sept. 26.

Other shows, all set for 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., include Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers Band, Sept. 27; Ronnie Milsap, Sept. 28; Conway Twitty, Sept. 29; and Mel Tillis, Sept. 30. These shows will have no opening acts and the stars will present one-hour shows with no intermission, a new format being tried for the first time this year.

Tickets for all shows are $7 and $9 and may be obtained by writing to Show Tickets, P.O. Box 208, Lubbock, Tex 79408. Requests will be processed as received and orders will be filled after August 1.

Mail order requests must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New Mexico Boys' Ranch: "We Can Help"

A hand stretches forth to offer help to a boy who needs to be lifted from the ground. We can help! This statement has been voiced by many groups of individuals throughout the passing of time, but to an organization such as Boys Ranch, located near Melrose, New Mexico, it is the very basis for the ranch's existence. Men and women extending a helping hand. Individuals from all walks of life, working to give support to the Ranch in material goods, financial support, and a special kind of love to a boy who needs a home. Some of these people are Southwesterners, and some are contractors working with Southwestern Public Service Company, but all of them have one thing in common. They all have said, "We can help!"

Boys Ranch, New Mexico was founded by private donations in 1944, and included 2,350 acres along the east bank of the Rio Grande River in the first part of the Ranch. This first part is located 20 miles south of Belen on New Mexico highway 47. Since its founding the ranch located near Belen has been the home of many boys, today the Belen facility is the home of 50 boys. It is directed by Michael H. Kull, who heads a staff of 18 full-time staff members. The staff make their home at the Ranch, and act as parents to the 50 boys, ages 5-18, who call the Ranch home. Each of the staff members is also in charge of some aspect of ranch life—agriculture, cooking, animal care, secretarial work, and administration. They are all Christian people dedicated completely to the statement, "We can help!"

Boys Ranch, New Mexico, Melrose division was the gift of Beulah May Hart Walker, who before her death, May 17, 1974, placed the Hart Ranch in trust for Boys Ranch. The Hart Ranch was at one time part of the old Pig Pen Ranch whose legacy is an important part of New Mexico history.

Boys Ranch officials envision the Hart Ranch as an excellent development for the purpose of being a home for the Older Boys of the Belen Facility. The old 19th century Charlie Hart Ranch headquarter, rich with the history of the Old West, and some eight and a half sections of western Curry county will make an environment perfect for the extension of a helping hand. Carl Burnett, SPS Talk Station (Warehouseman), and the Eagles Lodge of Clovis, New Mexico are part of those who have said, "We can help!"

Carl, vice-president of the Clovis Lodge, and also a State Eagle Officer, became involved with the Melrose Boys Ranch when, Dorothy Zahn, past State President of the Women's auxiliary of the Eagles, made the request for steel cable to be used in the construction of corrals at the ranch. Carl mentioned that there could be some scrap steel cable in the Scrap Pile at Talk Station. Approaching Mac Whittenburger, Project Manager of Missouri Valley Construction Company, Carl made the ranch's need known. Mac's reply was, "you can have anything out of the scrap metal, iron, and wood piles that could be used in the construction of corrals or other items that will help dedicated men and women take a boy and construct from him, a man!"

Deral Roberts, Eagle member and a Melrose resident, along with Stan Henderson the Ranch's Supt. then came to the plant to visit and arrange for a day that the scrap could be picked up. Saturday, June 25, 1983, the scrap was loaded onto a truck and delivered to the ranch at Melrose.

Several men from the Eagles and the Ranch pitched in to help in this endeavor. "We can help," is the attitude that got the job completed.

Why did Carl Burnett extend his helping hand, because he says, "My hobby is helpin'!" "If I can help one boy that doesn't have a home, to have a home with love and care, then my time and effort will have been well spent."

Richard Zahn, an Eagle member also, speaking for his wife, Dorothy, and himself, says, "People we know have a home, but there are those who don't. If we can help give a boy that doesn't have a home a good home, and prevent him from becoming a troublemaker then we have our reward. If a boy goes bad, and no guidance or home-life can be given, and then he winds up in the pen, it costs the state of New Mexico, $40,000.00 a year. On the other hand, take a boy and make him a productive, law abiding citizen, then what value can be placed for the gift of love that we have given him."

The Eagles of New Mexico have said "We can help!", and they live up to this statement in their philosophy, and creed of "People helping People!" Southwestern employees like Carl Burnett, and Jimmy Gay, (Journeyman lineman of Clovis), and others in the New Mexico area are members of this worldwide organization who helps charities and individuals who have a need. They have made a commitment to help the Melrose Boys Ranch on a state-wide basis, financially and materially.

What about the ranch itself, and the man who will be in charge of the facility? Well, the ranch now has been given a new name, "The Hart Youth Ranch". It will center on a western way of life with a cow/calf, and horse raising operation. The ranch will consist of 12 boys initially with plans of someday being the home for 24 boys. They will go to school and church in Melrose. An old car has been provided for the boys to use for dating and attending school and church activities. Plans are being made now for the construction of the first home for 12, inclusive of living quarters for a set of houseparents, as soon as possible. It will be built near the old ranch headquarters which has become the home of Stan and Bienda Henderson, and their two daughters, Dawn (3) and Charity (just over one year old).

The Hendersons were houseparents at the Belen Ranch before coming to Melrose to take charge of the new operation. Stan's philosophies are many concerning the raising of boys. He is an excellent cowboy, and a Southern Baptist preacher. The two vocations, plus his experience as a houseparent at the Belen facility have prepared him well for the job he faces. Stan voices his beliefs and philosophies in the following statements.

"I never met a man I didn't learn from! I believe you have to let a boy respect you; teach him to respect authority; learn to know and like himself and live with peer groups. Let a boy learn the most valuable aspect of life; that there is a God; a friend who is always there. But, the most important lesson that he can learn is how to make the right decisions." In the end, "We can help!"

Yes, "We can help!", a statement that has been voiced by many individuals throughout the passing of time. And, it is good to know that some of those

Dent-Rempe

When Sandy Turner and Gereta Meissner discussed a mutual interest in the collection of antiques, they decided to open a store and share a few of their many collectibles with other aficionados of antiques.

Three years ago on July 18, 1980, they opened Antiques and Junk at 109 South First St. Then when Gereta found her cotton business kept her too busy to devote necessary time to a business such as the antique business, Sandy bought out Gereta's interest about two years ago and operates the business today, with an assistant.

At Antiques and Junk, you can find - Fancy Clocks to Exquisite Glassware; Fragrant Candles to Lovely Brassware; Tables and Quilts and Candles Galore; Things you won't find here in another store; Books and Boxes and Light, Shimmery Glass - To furnish your home with beauty and class.

If you are looking for something particular, if Sandy doesn't have it, she will try to find it for you. She tries to maintain a stock that will include a little of almost anything you may desire in the antique line--as well as a lot of new and unusual gift items.

Sandy Turner is married to a local farmer, Royce Turner, and they are the parents of two children, Steve and Jill.

Stop by and visit with her and check out her gift lines.
