In the house of commons today, Mr. Robert Lane, liberal, resumed the decate on Hartington's resolution. The debate led to a lively scene Lane accusing the government of acting a falsehood. Sir Stafford Northcote, chancellor of the exchaquer rose to a cote, chancellor of the exchequer rose to a cote, chancellor of the exchequer rose to a point of order, that the language of Lans was unparliamentary. The speaker ruled that as the remark was not applied to a merober of the government it was in order. Lane then repeated his statement, when the speaker ruled it as being out of order as being applied to members of the government. Lane withdrew the expression.

London, August 1.—The Times vehily attacks Mr. Gladstone this mornin ly attacks Mr. Gladstone this morning, and says of his speeches in the House of Com-mons. We listen with bated breath for his says of his speeches in the House of Commons. We listen with bated-breath for his contribution to the great controversy and for some prophetic glumpess in the future, He speaks two hours and a half, and occupies seven columns of our space. He carries his hearers irresistibly down a torrent of brilliant oratory, but when all is over, and we have time to breathe, what does it all amount to? With but few exceptions, to nothing but a prolonged investive against the present ministry. Scarcely anything they have done or said escapes denunciation. Peace has been made, but no thanks to them. They have preferred servitude to freedom; have pretended to defend the public law and have really betrayed it; have made a mad convention, violated existing treaties, brought into question an important prerogative of the crown, discredited us sbroad, and weakened as a thone. But who are these Plenipotentiaries where he demonaces with this unmitigated, unrelieved consure? They are not merely Lords Beaconsfield and Salisbury, they are the representatives of England before Europe and the world. Their work when ratified is the work of England. They have not usurped power over any unwilling recople. Chadstone himself admiss that they when ratified is the work of England. They have not usurped power over any unwilling people. Gladstone himself admits that they command the approval of the mass of their countrymen. There are other persons in the world besides Beaconsided, and larger questions at stake than that of the conduct of the ministry in the details of a prolonged negotiation. We regret to say it, but the whole tenor of Gladstone's speech, by what it omitted, was inconsistent with statesmanhip or generous patriotism, and he must Golumbia, August 1.—The State Democratic Convention met to-day with a full quota of delegates present from all the counties. Gen. John D. Konnedy was unanimously elected president of the convention. A committee on platform and resolutions was organized, and the convention took a recess until 5 o'clock.

Upon reassembling the committee on platform made a report, which readims the platform of 1876 substantially in language adapted to the present condition of affairs. Its provisions are in harmony with the pladges and performance of Governor Hampton in the administration of the government, based upon equal and exact justice to all citizens, without regard to race, color or previous condition, and guaranteeing full and maple protection to all classes in the administration of public justice. of the Dallas Savirgs Bank, to take a summore to Colorado. The creditors of the collapsed institution remain at home."

With the general stagnation of business
throughout the country, the yellow fever visitation will prove a terrible blow to the commorcial interests of the Southern coast office. They are entitled to the sympathy of the entire country.

Our morning contemporary's "bile" bursts about once in three days, and the issue of the day the catastrophe occurs is decidedly rich. From the childlike simplicity with tary regulations should be made and strictly enforced, and the city placed in as healthy injurious to the general health as impure water, and this, for the past few years, has been the great curse of a considerable portion of our people. A few years ago the inery, fried and packed in barrels, ped to any part desired. A factory within the city limits was comparatively oure and good, but as the city became more nn, Massachusetts, which employs sixty and more populous, the water became more and already ships about fifty barrels a and more impure; and now it has reached summer 'time especially, should be pre-vented from using it for drinking and' cook-ing purposes. In company with several other Confederate officers, I arrived in the City of Mexico after a journey of some thirteen hundred niles, principally on horseback, weary and worn, ill clad and scantily supplied with money; but we slept in peace and security for the first time in four long years. The relief from the cares and responsibilities which had pressed upon us so incessantly during the whole of this period was inexpressibly grateful. Our thoughts reverted not to the past, nor wandered to the future. Repose and tranquility were all we asked. Being refreshed by a few days of rest, I represented to the principal Confederate officers the propriety of calling to pay our respects to the Emperor and Empress. This was at once assented to, and having communicated our wishes, through the proper channel, to the Emperor, a day was appointed for an interview. Our nearly worn-out uniforms being exchanged for the plain dress of American citizens, we proceeded to the ancient palace of the Montezumas, now renovated and superbly furnished, and were shown into an ante-room to await the summons of their Majesties, As I, with many others, had become familiar with the palace eightsen years before, when the American army held possession of the city, I felt quite at home here. others, had become familiar with the palace eighteen years before, when the American srmy held possession of the city, I felt quite at home here. In a few on minutes an unher in uniform appeared and said the Emperor desired to see me alone I entered the hall of reception and was presented to the Emperor and Empress, who were standing at the other end of the room. The Emperor seemed to be about thirty-four years the Commanding in stature, his commanding in stature, his were rapidly progressing, and I had several interview with their Majestics. They seemed never to tire of the subject of the United States, and I think 'Maximilian had some idea of visiting this country hinself or of sending Carlotla to represent his views; for, one day after a long conversation in relation to the United States, the Empress exclaimed. 'Oh, how I should like to make a tour through your country!' And Maximilian said, ''Aud I should like it greatly. Do you think, General, that there would be any danger in doing so?'

I was about, to say no at first, but then answered quickly; 'Yes, your Majesty, there is great danger in your visiting the United States.''

"What is it?' he asked, surprised.

"What is it?" he asked, surprised.
"Why," I replied. "If your Majesty wer illusted sufficiency yo to visit the United States there is great dan-ger that, with your liberal principles, you would be sent to Congress!"

He laughed and said prophetically: "Perhaps a much sadder fate awaits me."

Indeed, so thoroughly did Maximilian prove himself American in policy and sym-pathy that the United States could not have had a more faithful representative of her in-terests than Maximilian himself, Envoy Ex-traordinary from the Government of the United States to Maximilian, Emperor of the bodies of the dead for three days before burial. The law requires the body of every-one in Munich to be conveyed to the come-tery within three hours, there to remain in buildings erected for the purpose for three days. During these three days a wire is attached to the hands of each corpse, lead-ing to a spring bell, so than an alarm will be given to those whose daty it is to be on the hall of reception and was presented to the Emperor and Empress, who were standing at the other end of the room. The Empress are not of the room and the person was a model of manly beauty and his face denoted greater strength and firm ness than I had expected from the photographs I had seen of him. The Empress was also tall beautifully formed and graceful in the highest degree. Her dask brown hair and long black cyclashes, vehicing lost trought of the high had regularly been kept up ever since, to avoid the recurrence of such a catastrophe. We immediately proceeded to the first of the halls, in which the bodies of the poor were deposited, and there found her completion was evidently injured by exposure to an and rain, which it was known she digregarded in the performance of her duties either of State or charity. Roose was the predominant expression of her face and form.

CONFEDENTIES EXCELUED BY THE EMPERON.

Seating themselves on a sofa and requesting mass to be seated, the Emperor, asked many questions in relation to the state of affairs in the United States, the foreign policy of the Government, and the trade and commerce of the country. At length the Empress, who was stitting nearest me, asked if any obstacle critised in the United States, the foreign policy of the Government, and the trade and obstacle to the recognition of the Emperial Government. I did not wish gravely to discuss points with a lady, particularly as I could give her no hope, and, therefore, treating the subject playfully, I answered in these words. "Yes, your Majesty, I was born of timidity, but I fear it is now the child of arrogance. It is alsoe a thing of air, for it is used to the contently and the contently political parties in the United States in the United States of the first of the house by friends in Balkimore.
