LIFE AT SARATOGA.

(From the N. Y. Horald.)

is instructive to watch the bearing of the generalisation. All these people want good seater, they are bashful, hesitating, confused, patient; or haughty, busfling, pompous, irritable, exacting. Watch the generalisation, with what intuition he comprehends the disposition and wish of each hungry guest. With what a stately sweep of the arm he seats a family of six in such a way that even the brusque head of it unbends to acknowledge his satisfaction. At the same instant he has so signalled one of his captains that another group of four are equally well disposed. A word or two to the next party of guests and a nod to his assistant away down in the perspective, and that party, too, are piloted to a pleusant haven. A young couple desire seclusion; the generalissime himself conducts them to the end of a table near a breezy window, and turns to auticipate elf conducts them to the end of a table near a breezy window, and turns to anticipate the request of a party of four wine drinkers for a small table to themselves. Always polite and accommodating, never hurried, yet performing his task with a celerity that awas avery one from waiting, this potentate of the dining-room is also, as you perceive at length, an artist. When all the guests are seated and the tables are full, here and there dispositions of color and a general effect of grouping suggest a preconceived and masterly design.

Mr. Thomas was see good as to call upon me this afternoon and gratify my curiosity to know comothing of the secret of his engagement.

"Well," said he, there is a large force of places this season says there are fewer young beauties among the tourists than they have observed any previous year. As a rule, the round of midsummer dissipations has not been healthful for anybody's daughters; but the follies of Saratogs are not at present demoralizing. They are simply diverting. The worst that is going on would never be suspected by the innocents.

Mrs. George Oakes, of London, England has left £7,000 to the Women's School of Medicine, Henristta street, Brunswick Square. It is a reproach often and justly made that women rarely leave money for the benefit of their own sex. Mrs. Oakes is an exception, and we hope her example will be more generally followed.

A girl, seventeen years old, was recently fished out of the Regent's Canal, in London, before she had accomplished her smielda purposs, and it proved that she had had a quarrel with her lover because another young man had treated her to a glass of wine, and the lover aforasid had refused to go home with her as usual.

The announcement of the killing of Mr. Charley Lytle at the ranch of his brother on the Medina yesterday, by Mr. J. F. Pogg. occasioned no little surprise. The information of the killing was brought to the city by the man who did the deed, Mr. Fogg. a partner in the livery stable business at Case troville with Mr. William Lytle, a brother of the deceased. The details of the occurrence, as obtained by our reporter, are as follows: Priday evening Mr. Fogg and family stopped at Mr. Joe Lytle's ranch on the Medina, Mr. Fogg being en route to this city to see Mr. John Lytle, another brother of the deceased, who has just returned from a business trip to Nebrasia. Mr. Fogg and his family returned from a business trip to Nebrasia. Mr. Fogg and his family returned from a business trip to Nebrasia. Mr. Fogg and his family reserved to the might at Joe Lytle's ranch, and were undisturbed until yesterday morning, when Mr. Fogg was aroused by Chariety Lytle who began to abuse him. Lytle was asked to leave, Fogg telling him that there was no occasion or foundation for the abuse. Presently Lytle departed, fanying he would kill Fogg. No attention was paid to be threat, however, until Charley Lytle was seen advancing with ashot-gun. His brother Joe and some one else interfered, when the shot-gun was dropped on them and they were ordered to let him have his own way. Fogg by this time had obtained a shot-gun was dropped on them and they were ordered to let him have his own way. If the prother of the Turn-Verein annuello, were rendered with dazzling brillinger, and was out in the yard, taking was as whim, he raised his gun to fire, but Fogg was too quick and Charley Lytle fell in death. SAN ANTONIO, August 10, 1878.

Relitors San Autonio Expresse:

The thanks of a number of citizens of the 4th ward are due to Alderman Martin Muench for his personal exertions in trying to stop a horse-racing nuisance. This horse-racing is carried on to such an extent that to stop a horse-racing nuisance. This horse-racing is carried ou to such an extent that women and children cannot cross any of the streets without endangering their lives. A few days ago a child was run over, having its heel and toes mashed to a fearful extent, and the fellow who run over the child rode away as if nothing had happened. Policemen who are living in this neighborhood, but use in duty near the postoffice, have witnessed this racing time and again, and though it may not be their business or duty to arrest the parties, it is nevertheless their duty to report this or any other violation of the city ordinances, and if they neglect to do this they ought to be at once dismissed from the force. Alderman Muench recently sout a policeman after a fellow, who was irring his best to run over women and children, but said policemen failed to discover his man. This man, who is no other than young Zachman, who lives on Presa street, was boasting last night what he could do in spite of the police, &c. Hence we have given his name. All this nuisance is carried on in the vicinity of the Mission grocery store, on Alamo street. It is to be hoped that Alderman Muench will secure us an efficient policeman for that neighborhood.

through the world, and if the offering of flowers and the showering of presents—from slippers to pepper-pots—should become fixed customs, then the longer one remained in society the more onerous would grow the burden of obeying them.

The evil in question is well illustrated by a World correspondent, whose letter—dated, by the way, from the Thackeray club, wherever that may be situated—is too long for insertion, but whose salient passages we now quote:

ow quote:
"I am a bachelor and fifty years old.

now quote:

"I am a bachelor and fifty years old. I have been a society man since boyhood—if this be not a buil. Within the past five years the generation ahead of me has began to die, or, as the euphulsmi, to go before; and the two generations behind me are marrying by the score. What therefore, with attending funerals (and I am, of course, an eligible pall-bearer) and weddings (and I am not too old for usher, a I am a family friend in two or three hundred menages) life has become to me unbearable. I am worse than Monsieur, who said life would be endurable if it were not for its pleasures. " "But more than all, the mecossity of sending flowers and making bridal gifts was positively eating like rust into the dollars of my daddies and wasting a rather (of late) limited income. Not to have sent flowers or gifts was of course to be gazetted from the Brevoort to the Windsor as a shabby beau. And not to send gifts to the sweet daughters of my early loves, and to maidens: "ever so bright and fair," who when infants clumsily reposed in my arms or in girthood honored my knees as they pleasantly prattled, was to really do violence to any own feelings. "Yet how much more unfortunate than I am are families in society who have to reciprocate. With me, of course, it is only mage and self-pleasure, but when a family has lost a member by death unfortunate than I am are families in society who have to reciprocate. With me, of course, it is only usage and self-pleasure, but when a family has lost a member by death

when a family has lost a member by death course there are an hundred to receive returns at some time in the decree of fake. A family with six or eight married daughters also will have a trunendous long tariff of reciprocity when other weddings occur. I am therefore charmed to see that the usage now is "no flowers" when funerals are announced.
But I doubt whether it will ever be "no presents." Until this latter time shall come, I positively must go abroad and hecome as is said in Ireland "an absence." My income suffers. So it may be I shall become the suffers. So it may be I shall bec great society exile!"—N, Y, World.

The particular kind of smoothing-iron known among tailors as a "goose" came near upsetting the reason of a bright young clerk and the proprietor of a Chicago tailoring establishment one day this week.

The manager wanted two of the instruments mentioned, and so told the clerk, but after the latter had sat for some time writing on the order he looked up in a howildered way and asked:

"What do you call the plural of a taylor's goose?"

goose?"
"Why, geese is the plural of goose," said "Why, geese is the plural of goose," said the master.

"Well, you wouldn't have me write au order for two tailors' geese, would you?"

"That doesn,t sound hardly sensible in this connection," replied the proprietor. "how would it do to say two tailor's gooses?"

The boy turned to the dictionary, and shaking his head remarked:

"Webster doesn't give any such plural as that to goose, and I sin't going to."

The situation was growing serious, when the clerk suddenly set to writing with the exclamation, 'now I'll fix it."

And the order which he soon handed to the head of the house to sign did fix it, for it read:

it read:
"Messrs. Brown & Co., hardware dealers

"Messre Brown & Co., hardware dealers, Fifth areque: Please send me a number one tailor's goose, and—by the eternal—send me another just like it."

But further than this the question of what is the plural of a tailor's goose has not been settled in this town, or any other that we know of.—Chicago Journal.

which is a contract of the con inended, consequently seven thousand millions means more, verbully and financially, than seven billions. How much solid gold would that make?, Pure gold in nineteen times as heavy as water, and a cubic foot of wire weighs one thousand ounces avoirdupois. A cubic foot of gold would weigh, therefore, over nineteen thousand ounces avoirdupois, and each such ounce of fibre gold is worth, as we reckon, rather more than $18;00 that a cubic foot of the precious metal would have a value of about $333, 333.

A cubic yard of gold being twenty-aeventimes as much, would be worth over $9,000,000, and seven hundred cubic yards would contain considerably more than the whole sum of gold on the globs.
