Good Words for Texas.

(From the Glascow (Scotland) Herald.) San Antonio, Texas, June 30, 1878. Sin-My attention has been directed to communication in your paper from a New York correspondent, dated April, 1878, in regard to emigration to Texas. As the state ments therein are entirely at variance with my own observations, and are calculated, if uncontradicted, to mislead intending emi-grants from our own country to this State, I trustryou will as a matter of truth and jus-tice, give equal publicity to this letter, de-detailing the experience of a Scotch emi-grant to Texas. I went out in the autumn of last year to Texas, and spent six mouths traveling over the country, going as far west as the Mexican border, and came to the con-clusion from personal observation that Texas was a most inviting field for English and Scotch emigrants. Early in the spring of this year I returned to Scotland, and, after making, some necessary arrangetradicted, to mislead intending em
