DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING.

McKAYERS, August 14, 1878.

At a Democratic mass meeting in Lakewood on the 14th inst., District Attorney Wilkes who is a candidate for re-election delivered a very able address, in which he referred with pardonable pride to his past career as an officer and invited the support of the voters of this section. He was followed by Mr. Holmes of Adams, a candidate for the State Senatorship from the 20th District, who made an eloquent and stirring speech which was frequently interrupted by applause. Mr. Wilkes is a very popular man in this section and has the support of our influential citizens.

THE POTTER COMMITTEE.

New York, August 14.—Col. Roberts, of the 10th District, was again before the Potter committee and gave testimony concerning the appropriation of the white people of Louisiana that they would be punished by the State, when they refused to accept the 14th Amendment to the Constitution. He stated that he had been asked to sign a resolution in support of the 14th Amendment, which he refused to do, and that he had been arrested and held in prison for several days. He stated that he had been treated very harshly and that he had been subjected to various indignities.

THE CINCINNATI AND SOUTHERN.

Cincinnati, August 14.—A vote was taken today on the question of leasing $2,000,000 bonds for the Cincinnati and Southern railroad, and for conferring the contract to complete the road. Total vote cast, 26,649; majority in favor of the measure, 13,649.

Gen. Sherman is on his way to San Antonio. We are told his visit is not connected with Mexican border affairs, but was made for the purpose of seeing the true state of affairs by actual observation, there will be something going on like a snipe and kicking, and it won't be a mere affair.

"His crops everywhere" is the cry that goes up from Texas. Give us cheap facilities for getting these crops to market, and we will be a happy and prosperous people, whether the money we receive for them be gold, silver or greenbacks. We will back the soil of Texas and favorable seasons against all the financial troubles in the world for making money plentiful among our people, if they will try to secure it by work and not by making speeches and passing resolutions.

Some papers manifest considerable feeling on the subject of the exorbitant license charged for circus exhibitions in this State, and want the amount reduced. As circuses visiting this section invariably spend more money than they make, and are lucky if they do not lose their show also, the license would not amount to as much as at any other place. In that event, however, we would ask the enactment of a law compelling circus managers to bring nothing but good quality stock, that would bring a reasonable price at a sheriff's sale. That "protection" enough for Western Texas in the circus line.

A congressional call attention to some peculiarities in the operations of the silver money legislation of the country. He says: "It is a curious and I may say ridiculous thing in the operation of the silver law that an American dollar of 412 grains is a legal tender and worth gold, while the French dollar of 480 grains is only worth silver."

We have read many choice specimens of eloquence and oratory brought into existence at late of the so-called later meetings of St. Louis, and the public eye has been continually intoxicated with tears at the recital of how strong men were bowed down with grief as they heard their starving families crying for bread they could not give them, because no labor for the willing hands could be obtained. The St. Louis papers now come along, however, and knock the pathos out of the whole business by stating that although that city is full of idle men, a government without assistance has been unable to procure sufficient labor in response to the repeated efforts to pay more than $1.25 to $2 per day. Probably all the raging masses we read of professed to sympathize with work, good, honest, industrious laboring men have nothing to do with these wailing wretches. They should not be held responsible for the crime committed in their names.

ABOUT MANUFACTORIES.

It would be a difficult matter to find a man in this city, or in any other for that matter, so stupid as to not realize the advantages to be gained by the establishment of manufactories of different kinds here. It is not of record where an inland city ever reached a position of greatness or importance where trade alone was its reliance, for the bare profits of trade are an insufficient foundation. It is by manufacturing our wealth, by keeping every dollar at home and benefiting our own people that great prosperity can be reached, and in no other way can it be accomplished. We cannot prosper with a population in excess of the business we have—the employment we afford the people—and while we look elsewhere for our manufactured goods, we are simply building up the wealth and population of other cities at the expense of our own. We have the power and raw material for the cheap manufacture of cotton and woolen goods. Then why give all the profits of transportation to the agents and profits of manufacturing to strangers, while our own population remains idle?

It is true enough that all cities cannot become great manufacturing centers, but that general manufacturing centers could be profitably established in this city no reasonable man can doubt. We have cheap labor, and almost unlimited water power—the cheapest known—with raw materials in cotton, wool and hides in abundance at our very doors, with a large area of country already supplied with manufactured goods by our merchants. Yet the railroads, the steamships, the New England manufacturers and the eastern merchants must all secure a profit before the manufactured goods reach our hands. No other city of the size and importance of San Antonio can be found, where manufactures are so all practical, that some organized effort has not been made to secure their establishment. Is it on record here that our City Council ever made such a mention of the importance of such a thing, or invited capitalists to investigate our resources? Is our Council indifferent, or is it ignorant of its duty in this connection?

We find our business men all eager to talk about these things, but where are those willing to act? "Procrastination is the thief of time" and every day's delay in this matter is a loss to the community. Let the council have a statement prepared, setting forth the manifold advantages of San Antonio as a manufacturing point state what we need, what we can furnish in raw materials, and what market for manufactured goods, with the power at hand and the class of labor, etc., that can be procured. Then go to the capitalists of the country with this intelligent exhibit of facts. The establishment of large cotton factories, in some of the Southern States has almost stopped the spindles of many large cotton manufacturing institutions in New England, and the proprietors of these would gladly transfer their establishments to points where they could compete with their foreign rivals. Go to these and tell them of San Antonio.

Once or twice a year our leading merchants go to New York and other eastern cities to purchase goods. At such time as several of them meet there, let the council authorize them to act as a committee, having the mayor or some member of the board of Aldermen with them, and let them make an official and organized effort to attract the attention of manufacturers to this place. This would cost but very little and, we believe, would result in accomplishing the end desired. The shipment of such bodies of any commodity should be carried out by rail. We have no doubt any of our merchants would cheerfully act in the capacity named, and the expense to them and to the city would be trivial. What say the council to this, or some other proposition looking to the same end?

DEMOCRACY AND THE ARMY.

For the benefit of those who find so many things to fear in a standing army of reasonable strength and power, we give an extract from an address by France, republican or democratic leader of France, published in the Army and Navy Journal under the caption, "Democracy, the Soldiers' Friend." At a banquet, recently held at Versailles on the 110th anniversary of the birth of General Hoche, Gambetta said: "If there be a party which has its eyes necessarily turned towards the stars, which occupies itself with its origin, its material and moral amelioration, with its instruction, its development, the collision of its leaders, with the discipline which should reign in its ranks under pain of being regarded as a snail, and the superiority of the chief called upon to command it, and the sacrifices of all classes which the Fatherland may demand from chiefs and soldiers, that party is ours. Yes, this party is ours! Our tradition mingles with the history, progress and conquests in the army." M. Gambetta then spoke of the lessons of history from the time of the old French bands and the old parish militia downward to the middle of the 18th century, pointing out that the French and aristocratic army which included the infantry, the line, the regiment, entered more and more into the composition of the French army, and every time that we notice an improvement in that admirable infantry, of those regiments which are the very unity of France, we see corresponding to it an increase of exterior greatness in such a way that to write the history of democracy in the army would be to write the history of the progress of unity and French nationhood.

THE ST. LOUIS EXHIBITION.

The St. Louis Exposition furnishes an interesting statement of exports and imports for the years ending June 30, succeeding 1870, when our exports exceeded our imports by $43,172,029, and in 1875, when the excess of exports was $237,892,067. According to the Exposition's statement, for many years prior to 1874 the balance was against us; we bought more than we sold, and the excess represented gold and silver, or bonds shipped abroad to make the transaction even. In 1873 this extravagance—for that is what it was—was brought to light, and the balance against us was $179,417,000. In 1874, the year after the business collapse, we curtailed our purchases, and there was a balance in our favor of $18,078,000; and from that time, with the single exception of the year 1876, there has been a large excess of exports over the imports. In the year ending June 30, this excess was $237,892,067, the largest ever witnessed. In other words, instead of buying $182,417,000 more than we sold, as in 1873, we are now selling $237,892,067 more than we buy; and this balance in our favor has been made up either in shipments of gold and silver to us, or in our retaining bonds and other evidences of our indebtedness held abroad. At present it is being made up by sending our bonds back, but after while the old world will have to send gold and silver—and this prospect is already spoken of as likely to produce monetary disturbances in Europe.

The South Carolina Case.

The federal government and the South Carolina authorities have come to a satisfactory arrangement about the prisoners involved in the case of the late U. S. S. officers imprisoned at Greenville, for killing an innocent citizen, Amos Ladd. The U. S. Marshal has been authorized and directed to deliver the prisoners to the U. S. Marshal at Greenville, who will have a right to demand them when he wishes them. The marshal will be authorized to take the prisoners out and again turn them over to the sheriff for safe-keeping. This short-cut procedure has been agreed upon, and it is the intention of the sheriff, but unless some arrangement from the U. S. Marshal, who will have a right to demand them when he wishes them. The marshal will be authorized to take the prisoners out and again turn them over to the sheriff for safe-keeping. This short-cut procedure has been agreed upon, and it is the intention of the sheriff, but unless some arrangement from the U. S. Marshal, who will have a right to demand them when he wishes them.

Canada's New Governor.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

It is to be a "good-by" Government in Canada now. The Marquis of Lorne, who comes to Canada to represent his royal mother-in-law, is a nice, quiet, so-so young man, who will not give us any "venal" who will never keep a pack of hounds and ride a sheepchase into the fields of the Canadas like Lord Dufferin has. Then, as for the Lord Dufferin she is a pleasant, social little body, with an aptitude for water colors and cream meringue, but like Victoria's other, she is a devotee of style, and totally unlike Lady Dufferin, who could sit up all night in the House of Parliament and sing "God Save the Queen" with the best of them. The Lady's school can be revived among our northern border, but they won't have half as much fun.

No More Sugar and Coffee for L.

The total amount appropriated to the various tribes of Indians in the Indian appropriation for 1877-78, is $1,850,000, $55,000 less than the amount for the year ending 1876-77. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has promulgated orders forbidding the further granting of coffee and sugar to the Indians at the agencies, in order to secure application to duty on their part, he says that only as they work, and in payment for their labor, will they get their coffee and sugar ration. These two articles of diet are known to have an important influence with the Indian, and Mr. Hoyt believes they will be the key to the part of the agencies employed in controlling them.

His First Clean Shirt.

(Tribune.)

It was doubtless a happy day for the "Labor Reformer," who was the hero of the following true story: After one of the Kaituma riots in San Francisco, a Chinese water-carrier was observed sitting disconsolate on the ruins of his shanty. To him a passer-by said: "How about your wash basin, John?" "Wash-basin gone, mister!" "How about the hoodlums?" "Diam hoodlum. Got clean shirtie first time in life!"

Now there will be a carnival of fun in Utah. Brigham Young's estate is to be sold, and a brigade of dragoons, a battalion of widows and a platoon of lawyers are wheeling their knives for the fray. —Gallop Headed.
