Lopdon, March 12.—On the occasion of the marriage of the Duke of Connaught to Princess Louisa Margaret, of Prussia, the corps of gentlemen-at-arms will be entrusted with the escort of the procession and with duty inside St. George's chappel and the state apartments of the castle. The Duke of Connaught's guard of honor will consist of officers and rank and file selected from his own battalion of rifles. Brigade 300, of the metropolitan police are detailed with the Windsor and Royal House police for the maintenance of order. All mourning now worn for the Princess Alice will be haid aside Thursday, to be resumed Friday, except by the queen and her ladies in waiting, who will wear black. The extra preparations in St. George's chapel consists of temporary galleries north and south of the nave for spectators, a tribune for the representatives of the press, another for extra choristers and musicians, and a high dey for royally before the altar. Broad decorations of blue and white bunting in festoons line the passage by which the queen enters; then comes a crimson border pathway with ornamentations of blue and gold fringe with hellion. The Rutland and Bray chaped on the north and south asies are fitted up as retiring rooms in Windsor Castle. The statignage and state entrances are ornamented with flowers, ferns and shrube. The great corridor communicating with the queen's private apartments is richly decked with flowers. By Tuesday night every room in the castle will be occupied. St. George's will partake of refreshments while the royal party breakfasts in the dinging rooms. At the end of the hall will be placed a magnificent buffet on which will see part of that gold plate of which Windsor Castle is said to be richer than any other royal residence in the world. And the leven very room will be world.

London, March 12.—A dispatch to the Dally News from Seegedin this (Wednesday) morning at 8 o'clock says: After a fearful night of anxiety, all the forts are useless. While the vote was being taken in the Butler-Corbin case the other day, the hand-some and aristocratic mulatte senator from Missimippi remained in the cloak room, in conversation with a friend. Mr. Corbin searched him out and mid: "Mr. Bruce, they are taking the vote." But Mr. Bruce have a reply, and continued his conversation. Soon afterwards, Mr. Corbin, with increased earnestness, give him the same information, when the senatorial representative of the colored race coolly informed him that if he voted at all it would be to keep Gen. Butler in his seat. And yet Bruce was neither bulbdoned nor intimidated, and only acted just as independent colored people in Senatorial representatives of radicalism. The radicals will soon learn that all colored men do not wear their collars. By the way, Mr. Bruce did good service in the tobacco did him the respect of those with whom he has served.

Note and Depate.

Both Mr. Titlen and General Grant are alike in one respect. Neither party will nonsinate either of them except from necessity. The strength of each lies in the idea that he only person the party one sleet. But if the republicans feel strong enough to elect any-body, Blaine, not Grant, would be nontinated. And if the democrats feel strong enough to elect any-body, Blaine, not Grant, would be nontinated. And if the democrats feel strong enough to elect any-body, Blaine, not Grant, would be nontinated. And if the democrats feel strong enough to elect any-body, Blaine, not Grant, would be nontinated. And if the democrats feel strong enough to elect any-body, Mr. Tilden will never be nominated. Not the approximate another than the democrats feel strong enough to elect any-body, Mr. Tilden will never be nominated. Not the approximate that note that Tilden. Not due approximate that Tilden affection of his party can alone nominate drant. Yet such is the uncertainty of politics and the changeshillty of public opinion that it is by no means impossible that both Grant and Tilden may have to make room for new men as yet not even thought of metionsly.
