Over in Harding county, the matrimonially eligible young men of the county, of all ages and walks of life have banded themselves together in a brand new kind of organization. They are not, according to their purpose and constitution, to "pay attention" to any girl who bobs her hair, rolls down her stockings or wears short dresses. The dues of this organization, which amount to $5.00 annually, are to be spent for wedding presents for the members who marry according to the rules and regulations of the clan. This is said to be the only organization of its kind in the world. This is easy to believe. But it is a little strange that it should have had its origin in New Mexico. It sounds more like Kansas or Texas. Another thing that one would naturally find about it what do the girls think of it? There are several things common in the conduct of young men that might make a rattling good set of by-laws for a girls' club. New Mexico has furnished something new for the world and it is to be hoped that the local papers of Harding county will keep the world posted as to the progress of the latest move. — Roswell Record.

EXTENSION OF KATY CONSIDERED AT MEET.

Roswell, New Mexico, Will Give $200,000 To Obtain East and West Road.

By Hamilton Wright West Texas Editor.

Coincident with the meeting of the various towns of West Texas at the general railroad meeting here Saturday, representatives of towns lying between Waco and Roswell, New Mexico, seeking an extension of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad westward from its present terminus at Rotan to the lively New Mexico city, met in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium and selected Lovington, New Mexico, as the place of meeting of all towns interested in the proposed extension.

Homer D. Wade, secretary of the Stamford Chamber of Commerce, presided at the group meeting. Other representatives present were J. R. Lowrie, O. E. O'Neal, C. T. Watson, and J. E. Debnam of Lamesa, L. O. Cunningham and Seth Alston of Lovington, New Mexico, W. B. Austin of Seminole, Texas, and Homer D. Wade of Stamford and W. C. Lawrence, secretary of the Roswell Chamber of Commerce.

Lawrence declared Roswell was willing to give $200,000 to get an east and west line. Representatives from the other towns declared that their respective territories would pledge co-operation and financial support.

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad several years ago absorbed the old Texas Central running from Waco to Rotan, according to Wade. One of the conditions on which the absorption was permitted by the railway commission was that the Katy should for a period of years construct not less than five miles of road each year. Despite the fact that the Katy took over the road under permission of that body, it has never extended its line.

It is sought to bring pressure to bear on the Katy to fulfill its obligation in the premises, the various towns west of the "dead end" evincing their willingness to encourage such extension by liberal bonuses and right-of-ways. It is proposed by the Katy extension association to get the road to extend from Rotan to Snyder, thence through the Tobacco canyon coal reserves to Lamesa, thence to Lamesa and on thru Lovington, New Mexico, to Roswell, the western terminus. It is understood that this extension was the dream of the Katy prior to the war. The extension of the road to Roswell, or even as far as the Seminole-Lamesa section, would be an important feeder for the Fort Worth and Plains railroad. If the latter road was built through Stamford, it was pointed out by Lamesa and Seminole delegates. In fact, they averred, the extension would put Ft. Worth in possession of about 300 mile of virgin territory that really belongs to El Paso at the present time.

The delegation expressed itself as confident that there is as much likelihood of this extension being constructed in the next few years as the Fort Worth and Plains.

No. that the interstate commerce commission has been deprived of some of its former power in matters pertaining strictly to intrastate transportation, it is believed the construction of this short line will be possible in a short time.

Seth Alston of Lovington, New Mexico, declares that his town will provide entertainment for the meeting of the route representatives, the next date for which has not yet been fixed. — Ft. Worth Record.

A musical comedy sketch dealing with the life and songs of old Ireland is one of the pleasing features of the program of The Fine Arts Quartet: The sketch is replete with Irish wit and pathos and is given in Irish costumes. Good music abounds.

A special arrangement of the best in Spanish music is given in appropriate costumes and, in addition, varied solos, duets, trios, quartets and readings are rendered with artistry and verve. Every member of the company is a soloist and the program becomes a recital of individual artists and a novelty program combined.

THE COMPLAINT OF THE HIGH SCHOOL MIRROR

Day after day I stand here faithfully reflecting the images of scores and scores of girls. I am the most popular place in the High School and more time and thought, I dare say, is put forth before my kindly face than upon any lesson.

My day's work begins with the arrival of the first "early bird" and from then until eight-thirty there is a constant stream of girls. How many different kinds too! The fat ones, skinny ones, and just medium, dark and fair, tall and short, clean and untidy, pretty and homely, yet each and all must take a peep at themselves before they can study peacefully.

Morning is bad enough but noon is worse. As soon as lunch is finished, here they come, a bunch of savages could not be worse. They crowd and push and pull as if each of their faces were some wonderful thing and their life depended upon seeing it. And such a noise as they make! Mercy! I wonder how much longer I can stand the strain. Everyday it is the same old thing.

"Who's got a comb! I just must comb out my bangs!"
"Lend me your powder-puff. A little dirt doesn't matter."
"Don't stay in front of that glass all day. Everytime I come in here you're primin'!"
"Let me have that loud lip-stick of yours. I forgot mine."
They keep up this rattle and clatter until my head begins to swim and then some girls remarks:
"This pesky old lookin' glass isn't worth a cent! It makes you look horrid. Wish I hadn't wasted my nickel on buying it."
Of course it is not all bad. I get to see some very pretty faces, as sweet and happy as youth should always be and some of their bright smiles quite repay for another's frowns. Besides I learn a lot about human nature. The homely girls never stay as long as the pretty ones. They only smooth down a stray lock, brush some powder across their face and are gone, but these beauties! They take up enough time for all the rest. I am not good in mathematics but I should estimate that fifty boxes of powder and half as much paint have been applied with my assistance this year. Then there is the neat little girl who would not think of letting her clothes be on crooked or upside down, but must be just so. Strange how mussy she lets her face look! I would like to shriek out to her, "You have your complexion on crooked, on crooked, on crooked!" But she would only laugh at me, so I do the best I can by giving her a true reflection of herself, which is more than any one else would do.

Yes, in spite of all my hardships I have a very interesting life, and would not change places with anyone. Though my value is not appreciated by the masculine element of the school. I am sure it would create no small panic among those of the opposite sex if the rumor should get abroad that I was to be removed but there is no danger for I am glad to do my bit in beautifying the girls of the A. H. S.

VIBRATION WILL LOOSEN ENGINES

Driver Immediately Begins to Realize That There Is Something Wrong.

SEARCH UNNECESSARY NOISES

Clicks and Slaps of Valve May Be Detected by Rhythmical Regularity—Cause of Several Other Troubles.

One of the greatest enemies of the modern motorcar is vibration. The effect of vibration is to loosen the various parts of the mechanism and the immediate effect of this is felt by the driver of the car, who realizes that his car is beginning to be the seat of numberless noises, which are a far from pleasant accompaniment to a drive. But the noises are only the beginning because the looseness that causes the noise will result in breakage at no distant date, if it is permitted to continue. The car owner, therefore, should take engine and chassis noises, not as mere passing annoyances, but as symptoms of something far more serious and should earnestly hunt them down, just as soon as they make their presence known.

Engine Seat of Trouble.
The engine is the seat of the greater part of the unnecessary noises that seem inevitable in the operation of the car. The commonest engine noises are valve clicks and slaps, both of which may be detected by the rhythmical regularity of their occurrence.

The reason for noisy gear operation is too great clearance between the valve and its seat. In the case of overhead valves too great a clearance between lifter and push rod will cause the trouble. The remedy is obviously the reduction of the clearance to the correct distance and this work should be done while the engine is heated, because of the expansion of metal when heated, in which condition the valves necessarily run.

While the valve system is the commonest seat of noise troubles in the engine it is not the sole location where this trouble may be looked for. The bearings in most engines are of soft metal, which must be kept copiously lubricated or it will burn and flatten out with a knock as the result. The ordinary remedy for this is to take up the bearing by removing the shim between the two halves, or else to trim the metal on the movable part. Care must be used in performing this operation to see that the bearing touches the shaft all around without being too tight.

Reason for Many Noises.
Transmission noises are not at all uncommon and generally result from one of the shafts being out of line by reason of a worn bearing or a binding gear. Sometimes the entire transmission is out of line, so that both shafts are out of true. Very often a gear may be broken because the shaft has been out of line. The car owner has a new one installed, but this does not help for long, because the entire unit is out of alignment.

Propeller shaft and universal joints are not usually troublesome through noisy operation, but the rear axle frequently is. While the driving pinion and differential master gear are not running true there will be a loud hum, with an accent or stress once in a revolution. Most units have some means of adjusting to take up wear in this location, the adjustment consisting of moving the entire differential unit, which is a job for expert hands.
This finishes the major noises, but there are several minor ones to look out for. Minor squeaks and rattles from springs and body come in the 1/2 class. The springs and shackles, if kept properly lubricated, will not become noisy. Body noises may be avoided by keeping nuts and bolts tightly drawn up. Felt inserts will stop door squeaks. Strips of rubber wedged under the supports will cure fender rattles.

COMFORTABLE PLACE FOR CHILD IN AUTO

But Little Material Needed for Making Hammock.

Hammock Takes Up Room Usually Occupied by Third Person Riding in Rear Seat and Is Easily Attached or Detached.

Six screen-door springs, a barrel hoop, and a yard of heavy cloth were the materials necessary to make a baby's hammock for the auto tonneau, which gives useful service and comfort. The hammock takes the place of the third person in the rear seat, as shown. It can be quickly attached or detached, and swings baby safe from jolting. The hoop was from a barrel, 16 inches in diameter, and was cut in half, each half holding one end of the hammock. These half hoops were held 30 inches apart by means of heavy cloth sewed to them. Attached to each half hoop are three screen-door springs, cut the right length to hold the hammock in a nearly horizontal position, when the baby is not in it. The springs are wired to a ring at each end, and the rings slip over hooks at the supports. When baby and the pillows are placed in the hammock, it sags down just enough to be comfortable. The blanket and pillows can be placed to cover the springs also, thus accommodating a larger child.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

CLEAR VISION IS GIVEN

To obtain a clear view ahead through the glass of the windshield in rainy and snowy weather is vitally important to the safety of the motor car and its occupants. Many schemes are used to keep the glass clear in wet weather, but perhaps the old-fashioned alcohol and glycerin mixture, which is carried in a small bottle and rubbed on the glass as needed, is best. If the bottle containing the solution is wrapped in a cloth and stowed away in the side pocket it will always be ready for use and a cloth to apply it with will be at hand.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

- Oil the spark and throttle lever connections at intervals.
- Common stove polish will keep the rims in good condition.
- The right temperature for the motor to run is about 140 degrees Fahrenheit.
- A new owner of an automobile, when searching for trouble, often creates more than he finds.
- The metal surfaces of the wheel spindle should be greased when making a change of wire wheels.
- Poor compression is the cause of an engine using an excessive amount of oil and gasoline.
- When painting the radiator use a thin dead-black paint. Dull black radiators heat more effectively than bright metal.

Hardings to Visit Alaska

THE President and Mrs. Harding have planned a vacation trip to Alaska this summer. According to tentative plans made long in advance they will leave Washington in June and will not return until about the middle of September. It's quite a journey you know, from Washington to Alaska and back and there are reasons why the President wants a month or more to look around in the Land of the Midnight Sun. According to the original plans, the presidential party will go by special train to the Pacific coast, probably alighting at San Francisco. Seattle will be a port of call. Thence the route will be through the Inner Passage and on to Alaska. Presumably Juneau, the territorial capital, will be visited. Access to the government railroad, now practically completed, can be had either at Seward, its southern terminus, or at Anchorage, on Cook Inlet. The road runs from Seward straight north to Fairbanks, about 460 miles. Mayflower, the presidential yacht, is likely to be sent through the Panama canal to be of service somewhere along the coast.

A wonderful vacation trip, worth the while even if the President of the United States of America! And the President is known to be a lover of the beautiful and majestic in nature and a loyal friend of our national parks and of such scenic enterprises as the National Park-to-Park highway. Incidentally an effort is being made to get the President to visit on this trip one or more of the national parks and the proposed "President's Forest," on the North Rim of the Grand canyon.

In Alaska—"The Frozen North" we used to call it—the President will have a chance to see various things that are far out of the ordinary. There isn't space here to catalogue them, but here are a few that any man would be glad to see:

At Ketchikan a stream plunges through the center of the town. And in the stream is a salmon-run where millions of salmon are to be seen making incredible leaps to ascend the rapids.
Juneau is the Alaskan capital. There the President can take an automobile and drive 11 miles right to the edge of Mendenhall glacier. It'll be summer weather. He can pick flowers for the way. He'll see vegetable gardens, strawberry beds and wheat fields surrounded by giant forests and overtopped by peaks white with everlasting snow. Of course the President will strike somewhere the Yukon—one of the great rivers of the world—and grandly scenic for the greater part of its 2,300 miles.
The President is likely to run across a big herd of reindeer anywhere from Point Barrow to the Alaskan peninsula. There are now about 225,000 of these "Camels of the Frozen North." One of these days we are likely to be eating reindeer meat instead of beef; several thousand carcasses are to be shipped in from Nome this year.
The seal rookeries on the Pribilof islands should be worth seeing; there were 552,718 of these curious animals according to the seal census of 1920, and they are increasing, although Uncle Sam takes more than 25,000 skins a year.
It is to be hoped that the President visits the new Katmai National monument—"The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes." Katmai volcano on the Alaskan peninsula blew its head off during three days in June of 1912, covering all Alaska with a thick coating of dust. The explosion left a crater 3,500 feet deep and eight miles around, with a lake at the bottom. Close by is a valley several miles long, from which are shooting up thousands of steam jets, some of them a thousand feet high. It is a sample of earth in the making. Some day these steam jets may cool off enough to become geysers, like those of the Yellowstone. In the meantime, cooking is easy in Katmai.
If the President travels on the government railroad to the gap in the steel he will have a glorious view of Mount McKinley, one of the great mountains of the world and the central feature of the 2,200 square miles of Mount McKinley National park. It rises 20,300 feet above sea level and is most impressive. It is a wonderful preserve of Alaskan wild game—caribou, bighorn moose, deer and bear—which live and breed there in immense numbers. At present this park is inaccessible, but the government railroad will touch the new east boundary line established by a recent act of congress. Then there will be a rush of tourists—very few of whom will reach Mount McKinley's glacier-covered summit.
So Alaska has the makings of a mighty interesting vacation trip for the President and his party. But don't get the idea that the President's trip is wholly and solely a vacation pleasure trip. For the truth is that it is a combination of pleasure and business; if it breaks fifty-fifty, the pleasure angle is in luck. For Alaska is one of the administration's "problems." And the President is reported to think the Alaskan problem important enough to warrant first-hand information.

Secretary Albert B. Fall of the Interior department, according to the tentative plans, is to accompany the President. Under the circumstances that is to be expected.
The Alaskan problem is one of many ramifications. The basic fact around which the various phases of the problem revolve is put in a nutshell by the question, "What's the matter with Alaska?" "Too much government by too many bureaus too far away" is one of the many answers to the question. Though Alaska has a governor (Scott C. Bone) and a legislature and a territorial delegate to congress (Dan A. Sutherland), it is really governed by Washington bureaus and apparently almost every executive department has a hand in that government.
You see, nearly all of Alaska's natural resources are directly or indirectly controlled by the federal government. About 99 per cent of the land is still in government ownership. Coal and oil development is under government leases. Water power and fisheries and timber are under federal control. And the activities of the many bureaus of the several departments dovetail, overlap and conflict in a bewildering tangle. Owing to the divided authority and the limitations of statutes and appropriations, there would be mixup, even were co-operation the watchword of all concerned.
As the result Alaska has not been doing well. The population has fallen off. The commerce has decreased. The country is not being developed. The fisheries are not prospering. The postoffice department can hardly be said to function. Ocean transportation is inadequate and costly. With oil and coal of her own Alaska is importing both.
Various plans have been proposed for Alaska's relief. A number of bills have been introduced in congress. One bill would put the administration into the hands of an Alaskan development board. Another would give the President authority to reorganize all federal activities.

The Interior department has many activities in the governing of Alaska. It is Secretary Fall's idea that the way to develop Alaska is to vest absolute authority in the President and to concentrate in the Interior department all functions pertaining to the development and use of natural resources and to construction work.
Of course this idea is not at all pleasing to many officials of bureaus in other departments.
Then there is another proposition which complicates the political phases of the situation: The proposed reorganization of all the executive departments. This reorganization would regroup the various bureau activities and bring about a wholesale transfer of bureaus among the departments. One contemplated transfer under this reorganization is that of the forest service in charge of the national forest from the Agricultural department to the Interior department.
The Agricultural department is fighting this proposed transfer. Its stake in Alaska is the Tongass and Chugach National forests, containing 20,000,000 acres.

The latest authoritative facts as to the Alaskan situation are contained in the report of Secretary Fall of the Interior department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921. He goes into detail and says generally, among other things:
"The report of the governor for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, emphasizes, as the paramount need of Alaska, liberalized laws and more flexible rules and regulations thereunder, with a concentration of authority and responsibility and an administration co-ordinated and brought closer home. Capital and people are required to develop the resources of the territory and until it is made easier for these two necessary factors to obtain a foothold the territory will not progress. The difficulties of administration are great owing to distances and inadequate transportation and mail facilities. Under the present long-range system of government individual initiative has been halted and the pioneer spirit nipped. To promote efficiency by minimizing relays, the governor earnestly recommends that the administration be centralized at Juneau, the territorial capital, to the fullest extent possible, while governmental supervision is maintained at Washington. To further this end, after he proposed consolidation of bureaus under one departmental head, he suggests that each essential bureau station a representative at Juneau, empowered to act upon all matters not affecting public policy. Obstructions met by capital seeking investment and by people in quest of homesteads have been lessened somewhat in recent years, but by no means removed; both capital and people, it is urged, are entitled to a fairer chance than they have ever had in the past."
"In conclusion, the governor submits the following recommendations:
"A co-ordinated and simplified system of government, with bureaus having jurisdiction in Alaska consolidated under one departmental head at Washington.
The stationing at Juneau of an authorized agent of each essential bureau exercising administrative functions in Alaska with power to act upon matters not affecting federal policy.
"A centralization of executive and administrative business in Alaska to the fullest extent consistent with continued governmental supervision.
An appropriation of $300,000 to supplement the fund of $155,000 now available for the purpose of constructing an administrative and executive building at Juneau on ground owned by the government and to provide quarters therein for the territorial legislature and the Alaska historical library and museum.
"Liberal mining and land laws framed to meet distinctive and divergent conditions in Alaska and regulations under such laws that will tend to stimulate enterprise and encourage settlement.
"A colonization plan to be worked out in conjunction with the operation of the government railroad to bring under cultivation the vast area of agricultural land in the interior.
"Improved transportation facilities and more equitable freight rates, through private enterprise, if obtainable, and under governmental regulation and control; or, as an alternative, through the operation of vessels of the United States shipping board and the establishment of a mosquito fleet to meet local needs.
"More liberal mail subsidies to enable the post-office department to function in Alaska and thus aid in the solution of transportation problems.
"Continued conservation and safeguarding of the fisheries of Alaska.
"Uninterrupted construction of roads and trails throughout the territory and necessary appropriations to carry forward the comprehensive plans of the Alaska road commission, working in co-operation with the territorial road commission; and the transfer of the work in the territory of the bureau of public roads to the Alaska road commission as a further step toward co-ordination, efficiency and economy.
"Allotment of a fair percentage, at least one-half, of the net revenues derived from the Pribilof islands, which are in Alaskan waters, to the general fund of the territory.
"More specific recommendations are not made because of the conviction that a co-ordinated system of government will facilitate the solution of many important territorial problems and the adjustment of collateral questions and issues."

THE CHURCHES

LOCKHART TO CONDUCT REVIVAL AT CARLSBAD

An announcement has been received at Artesia stating that Evangelist Wm. J. Lockhart and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Brooks will begin a revival meeting at Carlsbad on April 23. It has been stated that the various denominations in that town are cooperating in this evangelistic crusade, as the churches of Artesia cooperated in the meeting recently closed. Many Artesians will attend a portion of the services at Carlsbad.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church met for their regular business meeting and social hour on last Thursday at the church parlors. This was the first meeting of the organization for several weeks, on account of the revival meeting and sickness, which has prevailed for two months. Delicious refreshments, consisting of cake and fruit salad were served by Mesdames C. M. Cole and Dayton Reecer.

MANY BAPTISED DURING THE PAST WEEK

The various churches of the town have received many new members during the past week, as a result of the tabernacle meeting, which was conducted a few weeks ago by Evangelist Wm. J. Lockhart. Every denomination, which cooperated in the revival conducted baptismal services on Sunday. Some conducted similar services during the week. Approximately two hundred were baptised into the several churches and many others received by statements or by letters. Many others will be baptised in the near future.

Miss Lillian May, state secretary of the New Mexico Baptist Women's Missionary Societies, was a visitor in Artesia on Sunday and Monday of this week. While here, she was a guest of Mrs. C. M. Cole.

CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL

CLASS GIVE SOCIAL AT HOME OF MAYO ALEXANDER

The members of the Young, Married class of the Christian Sunday School, and a few friends, were entertained on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Alexander. About twenty were present, as many were unable to be present. The guests began to arrive at an early hour, fully equipped for a long journey. Soon after their arrival, each person was requested to present their baggage for inspection before embarking on the journey. Mr. C. Bert Smith was the official inspector and proved to be a "hard-boiled" official. Rev. Sheppard decided to remain at Artesia when he was informed concerning the ordeal, which he was to be subjected to in the beginning of his travels. Walter Graham came prepared to go to Arkansas. His suitcase, which was about six inches long and would not hold much wearing apparel, was well filled with the necessities of clothing only. The heart of the inspector was touched and he allowed the immigrant to go on his way to Arkansas with all three of his personal "belongings."

John Lanning and Mayo Alexander were persuaded to remain at home, because their folks feared that they might be mistaken for each other in some distant place on account of their similarity in size. Delicious ice cream and cake were served to the guests by Mrs. Mayo Alexander and Miss Corrine Smith. The evening was enjoyed very much by all present.

Rev. J. C. Jones, presiding Elder of the Roswell district of the Methodist denomination, delivered the sermon at the Methodist church on Sunday evening. Rev. Jones' home is at Roswell.

Rev. Davis and family drove to Roswell Saturday.

Rev. Jones, presiding elder of Roswell district, held quarterly conference at the Methodist church Sunday evening.

A Word to Our Women Voters

Women have been given the ballot and their influence is naturally expected to be for the betterment of our country.

We believe it the duty of every woman to study the ballot and vote for the person whom they believe will carry out the duties of their office with the best interest of the general public in view.

If Miss Corrine Smith will call at the Palace Drug Store and mention this ad, we will present her with one of the best ever sharp pencils with which to mark her ballot.
