ARTESIA TO HAVE NEW LIGHT PLANT

NEW EQUIPMENT TO BE INSTALLED IN OLD POWER HOUSE. BUSINESS MEN AIDING

The streets of Artesia will soon be illuminated with bright lights and the homes of Artesia brightly lighted and equipped with electrical power in a few weeks, according to the plans of the town council and prominent business men. Since the Pecos Valley Gas and Electric company has ceased operations in the town on account of broken and worn engines, the business men have been agitating a movement for the installation of a first class electrical plant, which will be a credit to Artesia or any town many times the size of our home town.

Members of the town council, aided and influenced by prominent and influential business men, have begun negotiations with several companies for the purchase and installation of a new engine in the old power house of the Pecos Valley Gas and Electric company. A two hundred or two hundred and fifty horse power engine will be purchased as soon as it is possible for the preliminary business to be transacted. The exact kind of engine or equipment is not known at present, but as the necessity for the plant is so great, very little time will elapse, until final arrangement will be made.

The new plant will be of much benefit to the farmers as well as the citizens of Artesia. Many pumping plants have not been in operation for several months on account of the inadequacy of the other equipment. These may be overhauled and operated again on a paying basis. Local citizens are adjusting themselves to the present conditions in a remarkable manner. The Artesia Auto company have electrical power by means of a dynamo operated by the power of a Fordson tractor. Auto engines are being used for other purposes, such as printing the Artesia Advocate. An effort will be made to repair the smaller engine, now at the power house, so that the town can be lighted, temporarily, until the new equipment is installed.

C. L. Firestone, salesman for the Firestone Rubber Company of Akron Ohio, with headquarters in El Paso, was in town Wednesday calling on his trade. Mr. Firestone says he has been traveling this territory for the past four years and has seen the Pecos Valley grow even beyond his expectation in that time. Although he spells his name identical with the owners of the company, he is not related to them, but says the name helps him to land orders. Mr. Firestone says he has always thought that Carlsbad is one of the best cities of New Mexico. If not the best in the state, it is always glad to have traveling men boost the city for they are in constant contact with the public and the advertising we get that way is very helpful.

Dr. Doss was a passenger on the Carlsbad stage Monday.

F. G. Hartell of Artesia, who served most acceptably in the state legislature last term, and who, by the way, was in Roswell Monday, is understood to be willing to serve as a candidate for congress to succeed the unlamented Nestor Montoya, if the democrats of the state insist on it. The party might go farther and do worse. Hartell is a snappy young fellow, with a clear head and lots of pep, who makes a good impression on everybody, and especially those who are gratified by the growing tendency by both parties to side-track the old political hacks in favor of new and vigorous young blood. We referred to Mr. Montoya so unkindly because it seems to be a cinch that he is going to be ditched in favor of Mrs. Nina Otero-Warren, who will in turn be defeated by most any democrat. This is a democrat year and unless the faithful make even greater mistakes than usual in their selection of a ticket it will mean the election of a straight slate submitted in the fall elections.—Roswell News.

ARTESIA HOSPITAL TO OPEN SOON

The Artesia Hospital, which recently ceased operations, will be reopened on August seventh or some near date, according to a statement made public a few days ago. Mrs. Frank Ohnemus, well-known train nurse, of Artesia, will be in charge of the institution and will attend to as many cases as possible herself.

The physicians, city council and Chamber of Commerce and other local citizens have been endeavoring to secure some competent person to undertake such a move for several months. A hospital is of great benefit to any town and has been needed very much at Artesia. The Sanitariums and hospitals at Roswell and Carlsbad have been attending to such cases at Artesia, which demanded the careful attention which such an institution offers.

Mrs. Ohnemus has had many years experience in the care of the sick and is well qualified to superintend any duty, which her position might demand. Local physicians will cooperate with the new institution in an attempt to make the undertaking successful from all standpoints and in every phase of its operations.

MASKS ARE OFF

Orders for his clannish majesty, the supreme wizard pro tem, dated the klappal in Atlanta, Invisible Empire:

Masks and regalia must not be worn except in lodge-rooms.

So now we may know by names and faces who stand for white supremacy, a sectarian U. S. A. 275 per cent Americanism, immaculate none life (especially for others) the down fall of all bootleggers (except one's own). Also, it should be possible to know from now on who gives $20 to the church out of a $16,000,000 wealth aggregation, who flogs and mutilates his neighbors at night who makes young girls undress in a room full of marauders, and so on.

In our eager desire to find something good in this klan besides its pretensions, we wish we might call this a step forward towards courage.

But we honestly can't. For the funniest of all the funny things about the klan was the night-shirt and pillow case displayed publicly to hide the faces of the men who were going to save society.

In taking them off, the klan—not notoriously an organization for the encouragement of the appreciation of humor about its shortcomings—is merely running away from the joke it has played on itself.

EXCITEMENT IN TAOS

The editor of the Taos Valley News says he is not going to sit in his swivel chair and stand for knockers. The "News" has the following:

"BOOST or GET OUT. There is no room in Taos county for any other sort of bipeds. If you cannot BOOST, please pack up and take French leave. Boosters build, knockers destroy. We want builders, not destroyers. We want empire builders not village brained calamity howlers. We WANT MEN not GUYS.

"The news is a friend to Taos and its people, its merchants, its industries, its progress. We are not going to sit in the swivel chair and put up with any knocking and if we know it the knocker is going to be knocked down A LA BILLY THE KID style, you know, that means QUICK action and prompt attention to details.

"We are not carrying a knife that sticks out of our trousers leg but with the pen that is mightier than the 'MACHETE' we will expose all those chronic knockers. Pictures of such characters will be made to order. Beware of knocking. If you cannot boost, get out!

"If there is not enough room in 122 thousand square miles in New Mexico, there is all of west Texas to roam in. But even out there they have no use for knockers.

"Kicking! Try other towns. Merchants charge less for their goods in Taos than elsewhere. Meat is cheaper here. We all cannot have the world with a fence around it and a slice of the moon thrown in for boot.

"Taos is our home. We want you to come here, but do not expect to find gold nuggets on the streets. We have plenty of it in the mountains, but it requires some effort to get it out of the rocks."

Parker Gage was here from Hope on business Tuesday.

Miss Eunice Peal has returned to Artesia from Carlsbad where she has been visiting for several weeks.

Among the Artesia rooters accompanying the baseball team to Cottonwood last Sunday were Luther Rideout, Wade Cunniffham, Oscar Samelson, Skelton Williams and Grover Kinder.

Lon Fletcher, assistant cashier of the First National Bank at Hope and little son were in Artesia for a short time Saturday, en route to Carlsbad where Mrs. Fletcher is in a hospital. They are glad to announce that she is doing nicely at this time.

ENGINEER AT ICE PLANT SCALDED

Mr. J. E. Reams, head engineer at the Artesia Utility Company's plant was severely burned on Monday afternoon, when the steam pipe blew off and was forced in the man's face. Zeb Womack was nearby and rushed to the man, rendering assistance. No other employee of the company was present, as they were gone to their lunch.

The man had turned the valve on the steam pipe, in order to allow the surplus steam to blow off. The pressure of the steam caused the pipe to turn, unscrewing a short piece of pipe with an elbow from the main pipe. This short pipe was blown a great distance away and the steam forced out in the face and over the body of the engineer. He remained with the task until the valve had been closed, but was almost exhausted when the task was completed. With the aid of Mr. Womack, the injured man was aided to the office of the company, where a physician was summoned. Dr. Russell soon arrived and administered medical aid. The breast and side of the man was a solid blister. The skin would peel off, whenever touched. His face was also badly scalded. After tearing the water-soaked clothes from the body of the man and his injuries treated, he was taken to his home, where further care and attention was given him. The accident was very peculiar and serious. The condition of the man is much better than many expected. He is improving at this time.

People from different parts of the State are coming to this Camp meeting. Also visitors from other states will be here.

This will be a good time for the Real Estate men to get busy and locate some of these good people in and about Artesia.

ARTESIA TEAM HAS NEW STARS

The Artesia baseball team has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Virgil Walker, Bill McPherson and Roy Walters, according to an announcement of manager Hawkins. These three stars played for Artesia the first time in the Cottonwood-Artesia game last Sunday and all showed up brilliantly. They will all be in the lineup against Hope next Sunday.

Walters is a second baseman and has been playing with the Melrose team before coming to Artesia. McPherson has been playing on a team in Kansas, while Walker has been with a strong team at Waco, Texas.

An outfielder by the name of Altman of Harper, Kansas, has been signed by the local club and may arrive in time for the game at Hope Sunday.

Manager Hawkins and Captain Flanders are now confident that they have a club that can lick any team in the valley. The fast team from Pecos, Texas, will play three games here the latter part of the month.

BATTING AVERAGES OF ARTESIA BASE BALL TEAM

The following players have a batting average of more than .200 per cent in the games, which have been played up to date. Feather has faced opposing pitchers for a total of thirty-three times. Black comes second with twenty-five "at bats" and Burkland with twenty-four.

STILL CAPTURED NEAR DAYTON BY PRO. OFFICERS

Local Officer M. Stevenson Assists. Army Deserter Arrested Here.

Prohibition officers Rector and Bowman, aided by Deputy sheriff M. Stevenson, captured a sixty gallon capacity still near Dayton during the earlier part of the week. One hundred and ten gallons of mash was also taken by the officers. A man giving his name as Bill Potetz was arrested and has been bound over to the next session of the grand jury on heavy bond. Other arrests have been made but only one man has been bonded.

The officers heard the still was being operated in the salt cedars on the Pecos river east of Dayton. They went in search of the place and experienced much difficulty in locating the desired "game." After working their way through the brush, crawling part of the time, they found the still in a clump of bushes. A well worn path was then discovered, leading to a nearby house. The manufacturers of this illicit booze were using a Continental oil barrel in the manufacture of the product.

The discovery was made last week and the arrests soon followed.

M. Stevenson, who is also the Artesia night watchman, as well as deputy sheriff, arrested Wm. Mays, alias Charles Sockett, on Tuesday on a charge of horse stealing. The man stole a horse north of Roswell and was wanted by the Chages county authorities. M. Stevenson notified the Chavez county authorities and the man was taken to Roswell by deputy Crane. It has been learned since the arrest that the man is a deserter from the United States army, enlisting under the name of William Mays, but now going under the name of Chas. Sockett.

STILL FREE

The attorney general of Oklahoma has replied to one inquirer with a certain pride in the prevalence of freedom in Oklahoma. The inquirer asked whether there is any law in Oklahoma to prevent posting in windows of placards expressing one's sympathy with laboring men. The attorney general answered that Oklahomans are still free to place what they like in their windows, so far as respectable printed announcements are concerned. He advised his interrogator to let his conscience be his guide.

We can appreciate a certain amount of pride in the preservation of ordinary freedom of speech and of the press in any community. Yet it is nothing to feel boastful about. We do not feel particularly righteous or meritorious because we no longer have black slavery in the United States. We take it for granted that men are reasonably free to work or not to work. It is the same way with free speech. Nowhere, except in Kansas is the right to express sympathy with workmen or non-working men even questioned. So Oklahoma is not distinguished for her liberty. Except for the inhabitants of a spot four hundred miles wide in the center of the United States, every square foot of the globe enjoys the same freedom of speech and of the press as does Oklahoma. Even in Russia, we are told, the restrictions upon expression of opinion have been removed by the dictators.

Yes, Oklahoma enjoys free speech. But who (outside of Kansas) does not?—Eagle.

ROSSELL JUVENILE BAND GIVE CONCERT

The citizens of Artesia were favored with a band concert by the Juvenile band of Roswell on last Friday evening. A large number of persons were present at this occasion. The members of the band passed through Artesia on their way to Carlsbad on Friday noon, playing a few selections at that time. The concert was given in Artesia on their return to Roswell. The entire membership which includes about forty boys and girls, were not able to be present, but an excellent program was rendered.

B. Y. P. U. ASSOCIATION AT HAGERMAN

The local Baptist Young Peoples Union was represented at the quarterly meeting of the Pecos Valley Association at Hagerman on last Sunday evening. Several carloads from Artesia attended the session. Representatives from Loving, Carlsbad, Hagerman, Artesia and Roswell were present. A large crowd was present at the First Baptist church at Hagerman, where the program was rendered.

The program included addresses on important subjects and special music. Addresses were made by Miss Lurline Mahan of Carlsbad, Mr. Lee Newsome of Hagerman, Mr. Fred Cole of Artesia, who spoke on Zionism and Christianity; Mr. H. F. Brennan of Roswell and a special talk by Ernest Truitt, a missionary to Cuba and other Indies islands. Miss Chilcoat of Carlsbad rendered a piano solo, and a quartette, composed of Mrs. Dayton Reecer, Miss Zanaida Mann, and Messrs. Harvey Klopfenstein and Fred Cole, of Artesia, sang a very appropriate selection. Miss Elizabeth Solomon was the accompanist.

A lunch, consisting of sandwiches, iced tea and wafers, was served to all the representatives by the Hagerman union. Miss Virginia Higgs of Roswell, presided at the meeting. The next meeting will be held in Roswell.

The young people who motored to Hagerman on Sunday afternoon from Artesia were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Widney, Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Reecer, Misses Elizabeth Solomon, Ethel Bullock, Herma Welsh, Marjory Wingfield, Lucile James, Margaret Tarbet, Josephine Parker, Zanaida Mann, and Messrs. Fred Cole, Harvey Klopfenstein, Jno. Richards, Warren George, Luther Caraway, Clarence Stoltz, Ralph Davis and Herman Cole.

OPENING SERVICES OF NEW CHURCH ON COTTONWOOD

The initial service was conducted in the new Methodist church on the Cottonwood on last Sunday, with a large number of the people of the Cottonwood community present.

Visitors were present from Artesia and Lake Arthur. Rev. J. C. Jones, presiding elder of this district of the Methodist denomination, preached at the morning hour. Following the morning service, a sumptuous dinner was served on the ground. Rev. R. F. Davis of Artesia, preached in the afternoon. Rev. Shapland, pastor of the Cottonwood and Lake Arthur churches, preached at the evening hour.

The building was recently purchased from the small community of Blackdon, where it has been the property of the Methodist church at that place. Cottonwood farmers moved the church to its new location, which is one mile north and two miles west of the Lower Cottonwood school house. The edifice is a large structure and is a credit to the community.

Misses Mary Owat, Marie Garrett, Lois Burns, Lucile Denton and Mrs. Bertha Mitchell have returned from Las Vegas, where they have been attending school.

CASE OF STATE VS. WORLEY STEPHEN

Tried at Carlsbad, July 31, 1922.

The above styled case to which the Advocate referred last week, has been one of unusual interest to the people of this community.

This case came up for trial on change of venue before Justice Frank H. Richards of Carlsbad. A jury was selected, composed of T. C. Horne, merchant; J. B. Leek, merchant; E. H. Weaver, owner of the Weaver Garage and two other business men; J. E. Nabors and I. J. Stockwell.

The State was ably represented by Honorable Fred E. Wilson of Carlsbad, Assistant District Attorney and the defendant was represented by Attorney J. H. Jackson of Artesia. The defendant was charged with having broken and damaged a number of hydrants, destroying flowers and shrubbery on a number of lots in Woodbine Cemetery, to which charge, the defendant pled not guilty.

A large number of witnesses were thoroughly examined and cross-examined by the attorneys and the case thoroughly investigated. After the argument of attorneys, the case was submitted to the Jury, and a few minutes thereafter, the Jury reported by its foreman, Mr. F. E. Hubert, that they found the defendant not guilty.

On account of the high standing of the men who composed the Jury and on account of their being so far from the place where the crime was committed, the verdict will be accepted by our people as having been fair and impartially rendered. This paper will not undertake to give the evidence in the case, but we are advised that the Jury believed, from the evidence that the State had brought charges against the wrong man.

The Advocate and every good citizen of the town condemn the crime, although, under our statute, it is only a misdemeanor, and will be glad to see the real perpetrator of the crime punished to the full extent of the law.

ARTESIA SHUTS OUT COTTONWOOD

MARTIN PITCHES GOOD GAME. FIRST SHUT-OUT OF THE SEASON

The Cottonwood baseball team was defeated by the Artesia nine on Sunday afternoon by the score of eight to nothing. The game, which was the first shutout, recorded by the locals this season, was played on the Cottonwood diamond. A large crowd of rooters for both aggregations were present at the game which was interesting, throughout, regardless of the one-sided appearance of the score. Few errors were recorded against either side, although the errors were all costly. This was the first full game played between the two teams, and a friendly rivalry existed between the two clubs. Some of Artesia's regulars are Cottonwood boys and were playing in the game with Cottonwood.

Martin was on the mound for Artesia and played the same consistent game for which he is well-known. He allowed only three singles during the game, and struck out eight batters. Never, during the game, was he in danger of allowing a score. Noah Buck, Cottonwood twirler, pitched six innings, allowing eight hits and sending only two men to the bench by the strikeout route. O'Bannon relieved Buck in the seventh, but was unable to stop the slugging Artesia stick artists. He struck out three men and allowed four hits.

A large part of the credit of the game belongs to Martin, who pitched an excellent game. However, the Artesia lineup included several new players, who proved to be players of the first class. These new men will strengthen the local team in many respects, especially in batting. Manager Hawkins announces that an attempt is being made to schedule a series of games with the fast Clovis team of the West Texas League. Games are now scheduled with Carlsbad, Loving and Roswell, with a fair prospect of a series with Pecos, Texas. The Albuquerque Grays are desiring a game with the Clovis aggregation. If this game is scheduled, an effort will be made to meet the Grays on the same trip.

Following is the box score:

The State was ably represented by Honorable Fred E. Wilson of Carlsbad, Assistant District Attorney and the defendant was represented by Attorney J. H. Jackson of Artesia. The defendant was charged with having broken and damaged a number of hydrants, destroying flowers and shrubbery on a number of lots in Woodbine Cemetery, to which charge, the defendant pled not guilty.

WHERE WEEDS ALWAYS WIN

Farming in Tropical Panama Consists of a Continuous Fight With the Invading Jungle.

A Florida orange-grower would turn gray if he had confronting him the problems which face any one who attempts to grow fruit in Panama.

The grass problem alone is enough to stagger the heart of the bravest planter. Think of your own vegetable garden in midsummer, when the days are steaming hot and the weeds are growing about as fast as you can pull them out; project these conditions indefinitely, for there is never any winter to check them, and you will get the endless vista of weeding which confronts the tropical planter.

Grass is certainly the curse of agriculture in the rainy tropics, and he who imagines tractor-work or the use of any of the ordinary tools of our northern agriculture in use on tropical farms should never lose sight of the grass.

There is really nothing so hopeless looking to a northern fruit-grower as a little orchard in a clearing in a tropical jungle. The great forest insists on taking back the little clearing to itself, and it is one continual fight with a machete to keep it from doing so.

When I was shown what looked from the deck of a launch like virgin forest, with great trees covered with creeping lianas, and was told that it had all grown up in eight years from cleared land, and when I recollected how fungus and insect pests haunt a clearing, I could better comprehend the feeling that, after all, for the individual of small means, there really is no other way to farm than to cut down and burn, plant and get a crop or two; then, when the plants and weeds of the returning forest drive you out, move on. It is the way of the native everywhere; clear a spot, rush in, rush out again, and let the land grow up to trees.—David Fairchild in the National Geographic Magazine.

WORLD ALWAYS HAD "CANDY"

Honey Probably is Earliest Form of Sweetening Known, and it Was Made Use Of.

The Egyptians made candy as well as pyramids, and made candy without sugar. Sugar and chocolate were unknown to the Egyptians. They used honey as their sweetener, and flour and crude starch were the basis of their confectionery.

In the Middle Ages what we would call candied fruits was the principal confection. They were boiled in honey. As a business the druggist was the first candy maker. Sugar at that time was considered a drug, and from coating drugs with sugar the pharmacist learned to coat nuts and other things. In the sixteenth century sugared roses were considered the best of confections. It was not until the seventeenth century that sugar became a big industry, and it was in the latter part of the century that confectioners were recognized as a distinct class. In the first half of the eighteenth century the first real candy factories appeared. It was about that time that lemon and peppermint drops became popular.

Convincing Argument.

A counsel for the defense once got the better of Judge Bramwell. He requested leave to address the jury in Welsh, of which Bramwell was ignorant. It was a simple case, and permission was given. Counsel said only a few words, and the judge left the decision to the jury with little comment from him. He was, however, startled at the prompt verdict of acquittal.

"What was it," he inquired afterward, "that the learned counsel said to the jury?"

"Oh," was the reply, "he just said, 'This case, gentlemen, lies in a nutshell. You see yourselves exactly how it stands. The judge is an Englishman, the prosecuting counsel is an Englishman, the complainant is an Englishman. But you are Welsh, I am Welsh, and the prisoner is Welsh. Need I say more? I leave it to you.'"

Timely Advice.

Brown had attended an auction sale of furniture and antiques and had bought a grandfather clock.

After the sale he looked round for someone to carry his purchases back to his house, but, alas! he could find nobody.

So at last, in despair, he decided to be his own beast of burden. After some difficulty he managed to strap his clock onto his back, and trudged off toward home.

A busy navy happened to come round the corner rather abruptly, and a collision resulted.

"I'm sorry," gasped Brown.

"So am I," said the navy, rising from the gutter. "If you can't blow your horn why don't you buy a wrist-watch?"—London Tit-Bits.

Just Matter of Honor.

Two French workmen were talking at a public bar. Of course, since they were not talking about horse racing, they were talking about politics.

"The various national debts go up into trillions of francs," declared one, with the air of a man who is saying something astounding.

"Trillions, I say," thundered the first. "Do you know what a trillion is?"

"Yes," growled his friend, "the same as a billion, only a lot more zeros."

GUILTY!

One of our citizens recently made a trip to the mountains and was caught in a heavy rain storm. In order to secure shelter he crawled into a hollow log. The rain continued for some time and the log became soaked and swelled until he found that he was held fast and could not get out. He then began to mediate upon his good and bad deeds in the past and upon reflection discoverek that he had never built a house in his home town, never repainted the old one he had bought, never repaired his fence, never built a garage for his car and when he happened to think that he had never made arrangements with the KEMP LUMBER COMPANY to place Mu-metal weather strips on his doors and windows to save his wife running all over the house with a dust cloth and mop and every time a car passed, he felt so small that he immediately crawled out of the log.

Call at our office and let us show you model of the best weather strip on the market for the money.

But he didn't step one side. He asked more questions, one right after another.

"Are you sick, Mary?" I shook my head.

"Did you hurt yourself?" I shook my head again.

"It isn't your mother—you haven't had bad news from her?"

And then I blurted it out without thinking—without thinking at all what I was saying: "No, no—but I wish I had, I wish I had; 'cause then I could go to her, and go away from here!"

The minute I'd said it I knew what I'd said, and how awful it sounded; and I clapped my fingers to my lips. But it was too late. It's always too late, when you've once said it. So I just waited for him to thunder out his anger; for, of course, I thought he would thunder in rage and righteous indignation.

But he didn't. Instead, very quietly and gently he said:

"Are you so unhappy, then, Mary—here?"

And I looked at him, and his eyes and his mouth and his whole face weren't angry at all. They were just sorry, actually sorry. And somehow, before I knew it, I was crying again, and Father, with his arm around me—with his arm around me! think of that!—was leading me to the sofa.

And I cried and cried there, with my head on the arm of the sofa, till I'd made a big tear spot on the linen cover; and I wondered if it would dry up before Aunt Jane saw it, or if it would change color or leak through to the red plush underneath, or some other dreadful thing. And then, some way, I found myself telling it all over to Father—about Mary and Marie, I mean, just as if he was Mother, or some one I loved—I mean, some one I loved and wasn't afraid of; for of course I love Father. Of course I do!

Well, I told him everything (when I got started there was no stopping)—all about how hard it was to be Mary, and how today I had tried to be Marie for just a little while, to rest me. He interrupted here, and wanted to know if that was why I looked so different today—more as I had when I first came; and I said yes, that those were Marie things that Mary couldn't wear. And when he asked, "Why, pray?" in a voice almost cross, I told him, of course—that Aunt Jane wouldn't let me; that Mary had to wear brown serge and calfskin boots that were durable, and that would wear well.

And when I told him how sorry I was about the music and such a noise as I'd been making, he asked if that was Marie's fault, too; and I said yes, of course—that Aunt Jane didn't like to have Mary play at all, except hymns and funeral marches, and Marie didn't know any. And he grunted a queer little grunt, and said, "Well, well, upon my soul, upon my soul!" Then he said, "Go on." And I did go on.

I told him how I was afraid it was going to be just like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. (I forgot to say I've read it now. I found it in Father's library.) Of course not just like it, only one of me was going to be bad, and one good. I was afraid, if I didn't look out, I'd add him how Marie always wanted to sick up rugs, and move the chairs out of their sockets in the carpet, and leave books around handy, and such things. And so today it seemed as if I'd just got to have a vacation from Mary's hot gingham dresses and clumsy shoes. And I told him how lonesome I was without anybody, not anybody; and I told about Charlie Smith and Paul Maybaw and Mr. Claude Livingstone, and how Aunt Jane wouldn't let me have them, either, even if I was standing where the brook and river meet.

Father gave another funny little grunt here, and got up suddenly and walked over to the window. I thought at first he was angry; but he wasn't. He was even more gentle when he came back and sat down again, and he seemed interested, very much interested in everything I told him. But I stopped just in time from saying again how I wished I could go back to Boston; but I'm not sure but he knew I was going to say it.

But he was very nice and kind and told me not to worry about the music—that he didn't mind it at all. He'd been in several times and heard it. And I thought almost, by the way he spoke, that he'd come in on purpose to hear it; but I guess that was a mistake. He just put it that way so I wouldn't worry over it—about its bothering him, I mean.

He was going to say more, maybe; but I don't know. I had to run. I heard Aunt Jane's voice on the piazza saying good-by to the lady that had brought her home; so, of course, I had to run and hang Marie in the closet and get out Mary from the corner before she saw me. And I did.

By dinner-time I had on the gingham dress and the hot clumsy shoes again; and I had washed my face in cold water so I had got most of the tear spots off. I didn't want Aunt Jane to see them and ask questions, of course. And I guess she didn't. Anyway, she didn't say anything.

Father didn't say anything, either, but he acted queer. Aunt Jane tried to tell him something about the missionary meeting and the heathen, and a great famine that was raging. At first he didn't say anything; then he said, oh, yes, to be sure, how very interesting, and he was glad, very glad. And Aunt Jane was so disgusted, and accused him of being even more absent-minded than usual, which was entirely unnecessary, she said.

But even that didn't move Father a mite. He just said, yes, yes, very like-ly; and went on scowling to himself and stirring his coffee after he'd drunk it all up—I mean, stirring where it had been in the cup.

I didn't know but after supper he'd speak to me and ask me to come to the library. I hoped he would. There were lots more things I'd like to have said to him. But he didn't. He never said a word. He just kept scowling, and got up from the table and went off by himself. But he didn't go out to the observatory, as he most generally does. He went into the library and shut the door.

He was there when the telephone message came at eight o'clock. And what do you think? He'd forgotten he was going to speak before the College Astronomy club that evening!

He Didn't Say Much at First.

Forgotten his old stars for once. I don't know why. I did think, for a minute, 'twas 'cause of me—what I'd told him. But I knew, of course, right away that it couldn't be that. He'd never forgot his stars for me! Probably he was just reading up about some other stars, or had forgotten how late it was, or something. (Father's always forgetting things.) But, anyway, when Aunt Jane called him he got his hat and hurried off without so much as one word to me, who was standing near, or to Aunt Jane, who was following him all through the hall, and telling him in her most amazing-absent-minded voice how shockingly absent-minded he was getting to be.

ONE WEEK LATER.

Father's been awfully queer this whole week through. I can't make him out at all. Sometimes I think he's glad I told him all those things in the parlor that day I dressed up in Marie's things, and sometimes I think he's sorry and wished I hadn't.

The very next morning he came down to breakfast with such a funny look on his face. He said good-morning to me three times, and all through breakfast he kept looking over at me with a kind of scowl that was not cross at all—just puzzled.

After breakfast he didn't go out to the observatory, not even into the library. He fidgeted around the dining room till Aunt Jane went out into the kitchen to give her orders to Susie; then he burst out, all of a sudden:

"Well, Mary, what shall we do today?" Just like that he said it, as if we'd been doing things together every day of our lives.

"D-do?" I asked; and I know I showed how surprised I was by the way I stammered and flushed up.

"Certainly, do," he answered, impatient and scowling. "What shall we do?"

"Why, Father, I—I don't know," I stammered again.

"Come, come, of course you know!" he cried. "You know what you want to do, don't you?"

I shook my head. I was so astonished I couldn't even think. And when you can't think you certainly can't talk.

"Nonsense, Mary," scowled Father. "Of course you know what you want to do! What are you in the habit of doing with your young friends—your Carries and Charlies, and all the rest?"

I guess I just stood and stared and didn't say anything; for after a minute he cried: "Well—well—well! I'm waiting."

"Why, we—we walk—and talk—and play games," I began; but right away he interrupted.

"Good! Very well, then, we'll walk. I'm not Carrie or Charlie, but I believe I can walk and talk—perhaps even play games. Who knows? Come, get your hat."

And I got my hat, and we went.

But what a funny, funny walk that was! He meant to make it a good one, I know he did. And he tried. He tried real hard. But he walked so fast I couldn't half keep up with him; then, when he saw how I was hurrying, he'd slow down, 'way down, and look so worried—till he'd forget and go striding off again, 'way ahead of me.

We went up on the hill through the Benton woods, and it was perfectly lovely up there. He didn't say much at first. Then, all of a sudden, he began to talk, about anything and everything. And I knew, by the way he did it, that he'd just happened to think he'd got to talk.

And how he talked! He asked me was I warmly glad (and here it is August!), and did I have a good breakfast, and how old was I, and did I enjoy my studies—which shows how little he was really thinking what he was saying. He knows school closed ages ago. Wasn't he teaching me himself the last of it, too? All around us were flowers and birds, and oh, so many, many lovely things. But he never said a word about them. He just talked—because he'd got to talk. I knew it, and it made me laugh inside, though all the while it made me sort of want to cry, too. Funny, wasn't it?

After a time he didn't talk any more, but just walked on and on; and by and by we came home.

Of course, it wasn't awfully jolly—that walk wasn't; and I guess Father didn't think it was either. Anyway, he hasn't asked me to go again this week, and he looked tired and worried and sort of discouraged when he got back from that one.

The next evening he took me out to the observatory to see the stars. That was lovely. Honestly I had a perfectly beautiful time, and I think Father did, too. He wasn't stiff and polite one bit. Oh, I don't mean that he was impolite or rude. It's just that he wasn't stiff as if I was company. And he was so happy with his stars and his telescope, and so glad to show them to me—oh, I had a beautiful time, and I told him so; and he looked real pleased. But Aunt Jane came for me before I'd had half enough, and I had to go to bed.

The next morning I thought he'd be different, somehow, because we'd had such a lovely time together the night before. But he wasn't. He just said, "Good morning, Mary," and began to read his paper. And he read his paper all through breakfast without saying another word to me. Then he got up and went into the library, and I never saw him again all day except at dinner-time and supper-time, and then he didn't talk to me.

But after supper he took me out again to see the stars, and he was just as nice and friendly as could be. Not a bit like a man that's only a father by order of the court. But the next day—

Well—and that's the way it's been all the week. And that's why I say he's been so queer. One minute he'll be just as nice and folksy as you could ask anybody to be, and the very next he's looking right through you as if he didn't see you at all, and you wonder and wonder what's the matter, and if you've done anything to displease him.

Sometimes he seems almost glad and happy, and then he'll look so sorry and sad!

I just can't understand my father at all.

ANOTHER WEEK LATER.

I'm so excited I don't know what to do. The most wonderful thing has happened. I can't hardly believe it yet myself. Yet it's so. My trunk is all packed, and I'm to go home tomorrow. Tomorrow!

This is the way it happened: Mother wrote Aunt Jane and asked if I might not be allowed to come home for the opening of school in September. She said she understood quite well that she had no right to ask this, and, of course, if they saw fit, they were entirely within their rights to refuse to allow me to go until the allotted time. But that she could not help asking it for my sake, on account of the benefit to be derived from being there at the opening of the school year.

Well, when the letter came I took it to Aunt Jane myself; and I was crazy to know what was in it, for I recognized the writing, of course. But Aunt Jane didn't tell me. She opened it, read it, kind of flushed up, and said, "Hum! The idea!" under her breath, and put the letter in her pocket.

How The Master Driver Became Master Tire Builder

IN 1908, driving the "999" racing car, Barney Oldfield started his career of victories that later earned him the title of "Master Driver of The World." To overcome the tire weaknesses that made racing difficult and dangerous, he studied tires—specified materials—supervised construction.

Today, Barney Oldfield is known as the "Master Tire Builder." Starting with the crude tires which carried the "999" one mile in sixty seconds, Oldfield gradually developed his famous Cords—a set of which covered 500 miles at eighty-eight miles an hour without a change.

In three years Oldfield tires have won every important race on American speedways. They are the only American tires that have ever taken first place in the French Grand Prix. They have won for three consecutive years in the 500-mile Indianapolis Sweepstakes. So far in 1922, Oldfields have lowered four World's Records and seven track records.

The Wichita Test Run gave evidence of Oldfield superiority in touring—when a set of four Cords covered 34,525 miles over rutted, frozen, winter roads—a performance attested by the Mayor of Wichita.

See your dealer and get a set of these rugged tires. Barney Oldfield has developed and perfected through a lifetime of practical tire experience. Their performance will convince you that they are "The Most Trustworthy Tires Built."

MERRY PARTY ON COTTONWOOD

A group of Artesia young people motored to the Cottonwood dam on last Thursday evening, where they enjoyed a chicken fry and general picnic supper. Soon after arriving at the designated spot, the members of the party enjoyed a dip in the cool waters of the lake formed by the dam.

Later in the evening the young people went to the home of Miss Viola Pierson, which was nearby, where they enjoyed a very delightful occasion. Miss Pierson proved a very charming hostess. Those present were Misses Phyllis Polk, Myrtle Polk, Loretta Linell, Elizabeth Solomon, and Messrs. John Richards, Skelton Williams, Luther Caraway, Oscar Samelson, Allan Sloan and the hostess.

SNAKES AND FISHING TRIP COMBINED

R. W. "Ruben" Dunn, and H. L. Murphy, representatives of the Texas Oil Company, journeyed to the Willow hole last week in quest of the funny tribe. They had great luck and all was well until a large rattlesnake was killed near the camp. Both members of the party were brave men, but the company of the reptiles was not desired or requested. Dunn, the smaller man of the two, made his bed above the car top by placing a few quilts above the raised top.

The fun commenced when Mr. Murphy, a small specimen of humanity, who usually weighs a little less than three hundred, became frightened and desired to "roll blankets" with his partner. The top proved too flimsy for so much avoirdupois, so the big man descended to the lower plane with the reptiles. After a few minutes of restlessness, he arose and very quietly, earnestly and successfully secured himself to the running board of the car and spent the rest of the night in a very uncomfortable position, but at a safe distance from any marauding bands of reptiles. It has been reported that many fish would have been caught if the two men had devoted more time to their quest. For further particulars, ask R. W. Dunn, by means of the telephone.

MISS ZANAIDA MANN IS HOSTESS

A merry group of young ladies enjoyed a slumber party at the home of Miss Zanaida Mann on last Thursday night. An excellent time was reported by those present. The earlier portion of the night was spent in interesting games and a little moonlight jaunt over the town. The girls were able to retire at a late hour and devoted a great portion of the night to pillow fighting and general combats. All present were excellent cooks as was proved at breakfast time the next morning.

Mr. John Richards states that he intends to put his car in a garage until the rains better the condition of the road. We cannot believe this however as he makes a trip to Roswell, Hagerman or some neighboring point each week. His last trip to Hagerman was very noteworthy.

8,000 HIKING CLUBS IN GREATER NEW YORK

They Swing Along Highways and Through Woods in Groups of Varying Size.

New York.—One must walk nowadays to be in the swim. Statistics gleaned from the out-door departments of the newspapers, from the Boy Scout and Campfire Girls' organizations, from the Y. M. C. A. branches and kindred bodies, from scores of amateur athletic clubs and from the leading dealers in sporting goods, indicate that today there are no less than 8,000 hiking clubs in Greater New York, with a total membership of more than a quarter of a million men and women, who are keeping themselves in the pink of condition and experiencing the real joy of living by getting regularly out into the open country with no other means of locomotion than their God-given legs.

The city of New York has taken official notice of the movement. On three occasions recently Mayor Hylan has congratulated the boys and girls of the public schools upon their enthusiasm in taking up the new sport of hiking. In his dedication of the great new public playground in the Bronx the other day Mayor Hylan extolled the athletic tendencies of the boys and girls and impressed upon them that there was no better or more profitable way in which they could pass their vacations and utilize their holidays than by the excursions into field and forest of their walking clubs. He gave the same message to the Amateur Athletic Union of Brooklyn a few days later, and when a club of East Side boys and girls visited him at city hall preparatory to a hike to the tomb of Roosevelt at Oyster Bay he assured them that the best walkers among them would make the best citizens.

Walk and Be Well

No less enthusiastic a champion of the walking game is Dr. Royal S. Copeland, city health commissioner. "The benefit to health and the safeguard to morals to be found in long walks," said Dr. Copeland in an interview, "are too apparent to speak of them. If one takes long walks alone it is well, for he walks the road of health, but if he takes long walks in company it is better for he adds the tonic of companionship to his exercise. Walking is the one form of exercise in which there is the minimum risk of overdoing it. In short, I consider walking the most beneficial of all exercises and it is never out of season."

"Never in my life-time," said Edward R. Wilbur, manager of a nationally known sporting goods store, "have I known such a demand as now for outdoor garments and shoes and stockings and appliances for the tourist's luncheon box. The rapid spread and tremendous popularity of the walking-club idea has no parallel in our experience."

"The hiker can make his requisite just what he feels like spending. Really, there are only two or three articles indispensable to hiking—thick walking shoes that allow lots of room, thick woolen socks and clothing that will give freedom of limb. He should have a canvas or leather musette bag, such as the soldiers used in France."

The Cow in the Knapsack

"To get the real benefit and joy out of hiking luncheon should be carried and prepared and eaten in the open. Bread and cheese, a few slices of bacon, some coffee, a can of condensed milk, and a cake of chocolate furnish high-powered fuel for the hiker and are readily and happily assimilated even by those who in their pre-hiking days were afflicted with digestive apparatus so feeble as to balk at crackers and milk. Fortunately for the hiker, he can replenish his simple larder at any cross-roads store and provide himself with the most nutritious and appetizing food in a form that can be conveniently carried."

"No single development in the problem of food transportation for the hunter, fisherman, hiker and all lovers of the out-of-doors can compare with the gift bestowed by the man who first found the way to make condensed milk, thereby putting a dairy in every man's knapsack. Before long there will be a national association of hikers, and Gail Borden will be its patron saint. Such an association could do much to encourage the spread of the most beneficial and universal of all outdoor pastimes, map out interesting routes, secure the establishment of shelters, rest-stations, and camp sites at suitable locations, and insure the rights of pedestrians on country roads."

STUCCO BUNGALOW IS CLASSY HOME

Five-Room Residence Adapted to Narrow Building Lots.

MODERN IN EVERY RESPECT

Popularity of the Bungalow Attributed Largely to the Ease With Which It Lends Itself to Artistic Effects.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The bungalow type of home appeals to many home builders, especially those who build in cities and suburbs. This is because the man with small capital does not have to invest in a large lot to accommodate the building, and less capital is invested in the home. In reality the average bungalow is nothing more nor less than the first floor of an apartment building—the room arrangement usually is about the same as in an apartment, there rarely is more than six rooms and usually five in such a home.

What probably makes the bungalow popular is the artistic effects that may be gained in exterior appearance and the convenience to the housewife of having all the rooms on one floor so that the housework can be done more easily. The interior is arranged so that the living and dining rooms and kitchen are in one unit and the bedrooms in another.

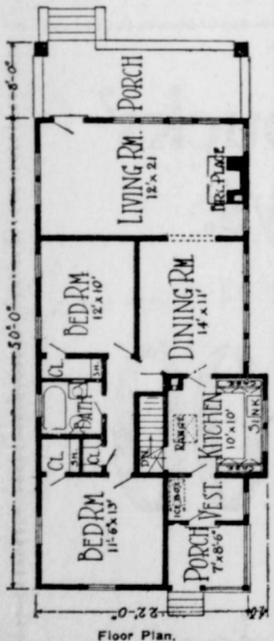

For the exterior walls of the bungalow stucco is most popular. It may be applied over metal lath, expanded metal, wood lath or any of the stucco bases that are on the market. Metal lath is fire-safe and will not expand or contract with moisture, so that there is little danger of the walls cracking, providing, of course, it is applied by a skilled workman in this material.

The stucco bungalow shown in the illustration is a good example of this type of home design. The building itself is only 22 feet wide, which makes it ideal for the narrow city lot. The foundation walls form a rectangle and are straight with the one exception of the jog for the bay window in the kitchen. This makes for economy in construction costs.

The simplicity of the treatment of the outside walls and the straight lines of the roof and porch make this bungalow attractive in exterior appearance. The overhang of the hip-roof and the dormer at the front help in this simple scheme of design. Another good feature is the wide porch, 22 feet long, with the high walls giving it the advantage of semi-enclosure.

The arrangement of the rooms and their sizes are shown by the floor plan that accompanies the exterior view. The living room, which is exceptionally large—12 by 22 feet—extends across the whole front of the house. At one end is an open fireplace, located so that it may be seen through the double eared opening that connects the living room with the dining room. Four windows opening onto the porch and a double window at the end make this a light, cheery and easily ventilated room.

Directly back of the living room at one side are the dining room, 11 by 14 feet, and the kitchen. A series of four windows light and ventilate the dining room, while the bay projection in the kitchen gives a well-lighted space for the sink and work table and wall cases for kitchen utensils and dishes. Back of the kitchen is a vestibule and further back is a rear porch, which is as large as an ordinary bedroom. By screening this porch it makes a comfortable, secluded sitting room in summer.

The two bedrooms are toward the back and are reached through the dining room. One bedroom, toward the front of the house, is 10 by 12 feet, while the other, at the corner is 11 feet 6 inches by 13 feet. The bathroom is between, a convenient location.

The size of the house, 22 by 50 feet, gives opportunity for a large basement for the heating plant, fuel storage and other storage rooms.

This is an excellent bungalow design, whether the exterior walls be of stucco or brick or of frame. The rooms are large and conveniently placed, while the appearance of the house is all that can be desired.

DADDY FISH PROTECTS YOUNG

Funny Father Provided by Nature With "Safety Pouch" to Which They Can Retreat.

The majority of fish are very bad parents, London Tit-Bits asserts. Once their eggs are laid they leave them to look after themselves, taking no interest at all in the babies that hatch out from them.

There are, however, fish which show parental affection, but, curiously enough, it is usually father who, so to speak, pushes the baby carriage, whilst mamma has a good time.

One of the best of the funny tribe is the pipe fish, a little eel-like creature with a long snout. He is often to be found in weedy pools, and has developed a pouch just like that of the kangaroo, in which he keeps his numerous family safe from all dangers whilst they are too small to look after themselves. In a quiet pool the little creatures, each half an inch or so in length, and no thicker than a fine needle, venture out to have a look at the world. The father fish remains near them, keeping an eye on their doings and seeing that they do not stray too far. Immediately an enemy appears he gives warning, and the whole family scuttles back into the pouch.

If You Have Tears.

They were not fair and they were very fat, and they probably were near forty, the two talkative persons who sat in front of the woman at the Saturday matinee. And though their costumes of dark material and their black satin hats were neat and up to the minute, their conversation was a rambling, old-fashioned affair of household talk, accounts of bargains and details about other plays they had seen.

It was just before the curtain rose on the second act that the fattest talker said:

"I felt so sentimental yesterday. And I was home all alone. And I knew I wouldn't be happy until I cried. But I just couldn't cry. So I went in to the kitchen and peeled onions, and I cried and cried and cried, and I felt much better and not a bit sentimental any more."—Chicago Journal.

Predicts Aerial Fire Fighting.

John Kenon, chief of the New York fire department, thinks the future will substitute roofs of skyscrapers for the present firehouses upon the ground. Here in the branches of the forest of concrete and iron will be stored the fire-fighting apparatus, which will be winged where needed. He is sure that by that time chemists will have discovered a gas harmless to life but destructive to fire. He also visualizes a radio alarm system installed on every building, which will automatically act upon an alarm of fire and "call out the gas" without human assistance.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Views Differ on Meridians.

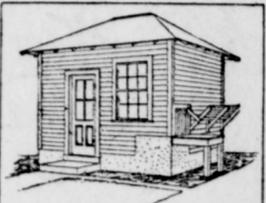

The meridian of Greenwich is generally accepted as the starting line from which to reckon longitude and time all over the earth. But objections are from time to time raised against the universal adoption of the Greenwich meridian for such purposes. Recently Italian savants have emphasized these objections by pointing out that on the meridian of Greenwich clouds and bad weather are frequent, interfering with astronomical observations. They suggest that the civilized world should agree to adopt the meridian of Jerusalem as a common reference line, because there the skies are clearer.

DAIRY POINTS

BEST SITE FOR MILK HOUSE

Not Good Plan to Get Them Too Near Cow Barn—Must Be Clean, Airy and Dust-Free.

Milk houses must be clean, airy dust-proof places, free from all insects and bad odors. They should not open directly into the barn, but it is equally injudicious to build them a very great distance away from the barn. Prompt removal and quick cooling are the main points to observe in handling milk. Put the milk house on a well-drained spot and away from rubbish heaps, manure piles and fly-breeding places. The outer walls, if of concrete, should be from 6 to 8 inches thick; if of brick,

Milk House Suitable for a Ten to Twenty-Cow Dairy.

9 inches; if of tile, 8 inches; if of stone, 14 to 18 inches; and if of wood frame, 6 inches.

Authorities say that particular care should be exercised in constructing milk house floors. Concrete is by far the best material for this purpose, as it resists moisture, decay and wear. Concrete floors should be built of a base made up of one part cement, three parts sharp, clean sand and five parts stone. This base should be about five inches thick and should be covered with a top coat one inch thick made by mixing one part cement and two parts sand. The top coat should be troweled hard and smooth.

SAFEGUARDING MILK SUPPLY

Form of Ordinance Drawn to Guide Communities in Framing Practicable Law.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In properly safeguarding the milk supply of a community, the enactment of a suitable and enforceable law is usually the first step, according to a reprint of department bulletin 555, "A Guide for Formulating a Milk Ordinance," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk, in its composition and natural qualities, is a most useful and acceptable food, but may acquire one form or another of insanitary taint on its way from the cow to the consumer; and it is not always possible to require either producers or distributors to observe all the precautions which science has shown to be necessary, unless there is a law to back them up.

The public and officials of a city realizing this need may sometimes, in their zeal to make the new regulations strict enough, go too far and insert provisions that cannot readily be enforced or administered. Even health department officials may not be familiar with all phases of this subject, unless they have already been engaged in the enforcement of milk regulations; and in any case, whether the city is just starting milk regulation or is revising its ordinances to bring them up to date, it is desirable to take advantage of the experience of other communities.

The United States Department of Agriculture has drawn up a form of ordinance to guide communities in framing a finished and practicable law. Copies of the bulletin may be had free upon application to the department at Washington, D. C.

IRREGULAR MILKING IS BAD

Not Only Lessens Output, but Tends to Disturb Functional Activity of Animal.

Early milking morning or evening one day and later milking morning or evening another day not only lessens the output of milk, but tends to disturb functional activity and prevents a maximum yield for the lactation period.

MIXTURE FOR YOUNG CALVES

Ground Corn, Oats, Bran and Oilmeal Is Recommended for Those Under Six Months.

For calves under six months old in good condition and having a soft, mellow hide, a mixture of 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground oats, 30 pounds bran and 10 pounds oilmeal, fed three to five pounds daily, is recommended.

Hard to Get Flow Back.

If a cow's milk flow is allowed to go down through neglect, poor feed or any other cause, it is almost impossible to get the flow back up to the first mark.

Milk Only Good Cows.

Milk more cows—but by all that's sensible, milk only good cows.

Cause of Stringy Milk.

Stringy milk does not occur frequently unless the cows drink water from stagnant pools, etc.

Highway Improvement

FEDERAL HELP STRENGTHENS

Much More Accomplished for Country Than Simply Provide Funds for Construction.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Federal aid has done a great deal more for the country than simply to provide funds for road construction, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. One of the most far-reaching results has been its influence in placing the greater part of the highway work of the country in the hands of experienced engineers of state highway departments.

In 1915, prior to the federal-aid act, 70 per cent of the road work was done by agencies other than state highway departments, most of it by county officials. Such a system was bound to be wasteful. Overhead costs were high, engineers were not always employed, systems to serve the best interests of the state as a whole were not developed, and the opportunities for corruption were greater.

With the passage of the federal-aid act of 1916 and the insistence of the government upon the construction of federal-aid roads under the supervision of state departments, existing state highway departments were enlarged and strengthened, and in 17 states adequate departments have been created where there had been none or the existing one was not properly equipped to perform necessary functions.

With adequate departments the work has been shifted to their control until at the present time they supervise more than 60 per cent of the road work. This assures to the taxpayer the services of engineers trained in road work, a centralized authority responsible for the expenditure of funds, and a far-sighted plan of development and financing.

COMPILING COST OF PAVING

Figures Secured by Bureau of Public Roads Cover 68,000,000 Yards of Work.

Average costs per square yard of various types of paving for country roads have been compiled by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The figures cover 68,000,000 square yards of paving constructed with federal aid in all parts of the United States during the period of 1919-21. The costs per square yard are as follows: Sand-clay, 18 cents; gravel, 40 cents; plain and surface-treated macadam, 95 cents; bituminous macadam, $2.10; bituminous concrete, $2.50; plain cement concrete, $2.57; reinforced-cement concrete, $2.74; and brick, $4.10.

These figures cover only the cost of the paving; they do not include the cost of grading, and officials point out that it must not be assumed that roads of the several types can be constructed in any locality at these figures. For example, the cost of bituminous concrete varied from $1.70 in the New England states to $3.43 in the group of states including Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. In one group of states the cost of brick dropped to $2.40. Costs of constructing these types in the various groups of states have been compiled and can be obtained from the bureau.

HELPS TO SUSTAIN PRICES

One of the Big Factors Is Construction of Good Roads Planned for the Coming Year.

One of the factors that will help to sustain farm prices is the large amount of road building planned for this year. The government will spend a larger sum for this purpose than ever before, and states and counties will co-operate to the extent of their financial abilities.

Money for Good Roads.

In Washington a bill authorizing $140,000,000 for good roads for the next two years was recently passed in the house by a vote of 239 to 31. The measure provides that $65,000,000 shall be available by June 30, 1923, and $75,000,000 by June 30, 1924.

Good Roads in Quebec.

During 1921 the province of Quebec constructed 416 miles of good roads. More than 4,000 miles of highway are now being kept in perfect repair in Quebec province.

Home Town Helps

HAVE STAKE IN COMMUNITY

Home-owning Citizens Feel Responsibility of Their Position and Govern Themselves Accordingly.

It almost goes without saying that home ownership is by far the most valuable adjunct to government and that the former is a tremendous power in stabilizing the latter. The nomad constantly desires change, because wherever he pitches his tent he considers himself to be at home. On the other hand, the responsible property owner abhors nothing so much as change, because his hearth is not one which can be moved and which would be the last thing he would wish to see affected. The classic illustration, which has been used before this by many writers, is that of Alexander's conquest of Persia; this country was a constant source of Civil war and rebellion until, acting upon the advice of one of the philosophers attached to his court, Alexander saw to it that the Persians became a nation of shopkeepers, which in turn caused them to set up permanent dwellings and ultimately to become the most peaceful and law-abiding citizens. The irresponsible cowboy was inclined in the old days to shoot-up frontier towns, since if the neighborhood became too hot for him he could simply pull up stakes and "drift" to some other part of the country; nobody to my knowledge in those days ever heard of a substantial ranchman being guilty of that sort of conduct.—Exchange.

WORK WITH DEFINITE OBJECT

Real Estate Men Have Right Idea in Their Advocacy of Zoning System for Cities.

The value and the salability of real estate depends upon what? Mostly upon the skill with which it is subdivided; upon the transportation facilities, the utilities and the street system which serve it; upon the parks and recreation facilities available to it; upon its outlook; upon the business and social wealth, and producing capacity to the community; and upon the protection given it against offensive use of neighboring property, says Jacob L. Crane Jr., zoning and city planning engineer and advisor on zoning for the Chicago Real Estate board.

The last of these factors is controlled by zoning. All the others may be controlled very largely by city planning, which deals with all of these things in a definite and comprehensive way. The real estate business, therefore, like all other business, to a large degree depends on the results of city planning, whenever it is taken up. This explains why real estate men are so vitally interested in the subject, and why they are usually the first ones to support city planning and zoning projects.

Aim to Prevent Fire Loss.

Let the city fire department be as efficient as is that of the district. There still remains much for the average citizen to do in preventing fire. After all, prevention is better than cure in this matter, as in all others. Even as modern medicine is coming around to a serious campaign through out the nation to prevent illness, rather than cure it after it occurs, so a city may campaign strenuously to prevent fires before they break out.

The responsibility of the individual man, woman or child, therefore, is the crux of the matter. Until, through educating the public in every way possible to the necessity of such prevention, the average person is made to be always on the watch for incipient fires and actively thinking about them a community is not true to itself along these lines.

What greater absurdity, for instance, than allowing a carelessly thrown match to set fire to a great building and then calling out half the fire-fighting equipment of a city, when the active thought of the man who threw the match might have prevented the whole thing?—Washington Star.

Schools Use Buses.

There are 12,000 schools in the United States now using busses to transport their pupils. The day of the little red schoolhouse is numbered. Consolidated or community schools are taking their place because of the increased educational facilities and standard permitted by pooling of appropriations. Better buildings, better equipment, better instruction are the immediate result. But with consolidation comes the factor of distance, so busses were the answer and this form of transportation is making good for better education.—From Federal Traffic News.

Teeth-Grinding and Adenoids.

Among 2,395 collected cases of adenoid growths, Benjamin states grinding the teeth was mentioned in 801 cases. Out of 1,791 personal cases Benjamin found: Snoring, 1,055 times; impaired hearing, 908 times; catarrh of the upper air passages, 873 times; grinding the teeth, 618 times; apnoea (inability to concentrate the mind), 596 times; enuresis, 462 times. Removal of the adenoids does not, however, always give relief from these symptoms.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

How many of our homes have perfectly useless, cumbersome and inartistic things in conspicuous places? What a gain for repose and beauty, to say nothing of space and care, if these objects could be eliminated.

ELIMINATING NON-ESSENTIALS

Can you remember the delight it gave you when a little child to have your mother's friends remember you with a box of ribbons and laces for your dolls, or a picture or vase for your play-house and tea table? If you do, just remember there are little children, perhaps next door, or if not, easy to find, who will be delighted with gifts from you of things not needed or used by you. It is hard sometimes to part with cherished things, but progress bids us throw off these hampering things, that we may be free to accomplish work worth while.

During the hot weather the housewife who is cook, nurse and mother needs to conserve her strength for the things worth while, which are keeping sweet and happy, saving herself physically by making housework as easy as possible.

In many homes where none or little help is hired, the children if trained can do a large share of the work, but often the mother rather does it herself than to bother with the mistakes and inefficiency of the children. If it were only for the children's sake, it is wise that each has his daily work; it fits him later for better work and a greater appreciation of what the keeping of a home means.

There has never been anything truer ever written or said, than that we will find time to do the things we want to do.

A spotless house and the best of food can never satisfy a family if it has cost the happiness, youth, and companionship of the mother. Better a dinner of pork and greens and happiness therewith, than the finest feast, served by an overworked mother.

In homes where there are no servants to lighten labor, much of the former displays of linens for the table have been laid away. The bare table with doilies is used for all meals.

Where help is scarce, if the pretty little decorated cloth oblongs and luncheons are used with paper napkins, a large part of the table laundry is eliminated.

The shortest and surest way to live with honor in the world, is to be in reality what we would appear to be: all human virtues increase and strengthen themselves by practice and experience of them.—Socrates.

SUMMER DISHES

As the early apples are on the market, the following may prove suggestive.

Apple Catsup.—Peel a dozen apples, stew them in a very little water until soft, then run them through a sieve. To a quart of the sifted apples add one cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of pepper, the same of cloves and cinnamon, two medium-sized onions, chopped fine; stir well, add one tablespoonful of salt and a cupful of vinegar. Boil one hour and bottle while hot.

Pineapple Supreme.—Grate a medium-sized pineapple and add sugar to sweeten. Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in a little water and add one cupful of hot milk. Cool and add the pineapple, then stir in one pint of whipped cream. Pack in a mold and set away to become firm. Occasionally stir down from the sides. Serve on plates, score with a fork to imitate pineapple and sprinkle with macaroon crumbs; decorate with green stems cut from citron.

Cheese Cakes.—Beat the yolks of four eggs with a pound of cottage cheese, eight tablespoonfuls or one-half cupful of flour and the same of sugar. Add a little salt, a pinch of mace or nutmeg, and lastly the beaten whites folded in. Add sufficient milk to make a batter like griddle cake batter. Line a baking sheet with buttered paper and spread the mixture uniformly thick over it. Sprinkle with cinnamon and currants and bake in a moderate oven.

Tomato Ice.—Cook a quart of tomatoes, seasoned with lemon, paprika, sugar and grated onion peel. Strain through a sieve and freeze. When serving use an ice cream dipper, putting a cone of tomato in a nest of lettuce. Cover with mayonnaise and serve with toasted crackers and cheese.

Baked Ham.—Take a center cut of ham one and a half to two inches thick. Place in a deep granite pan, cover with brown sugar mixed with a teaspoonful of mustard and pour milk to come to the top but not cover the ham. Bake in a moderate oven until the milk is absorbed and the ham a beautiful brown.

Cucumber and Nut Salad.—Peel and slice two cucumbers and let them lie in ice water for an hour. Serve with a walnut meat on each slice and pass French dressing prepared by using four tablespoonfuls of oil, two of tarragon vinegar, salt, red pepper and a bit of minced parsley.

NO LONGER IMPORT SULPHUR

Entire Supply Needed by the United States is Obtained Within Our Own Borders.

Deep under marsh land and quicksands, in which it is impossible to sink shafts, there have been for ages deposits of almost pure sulphur in Louisiana and Texas. For many years these deposits defied efforts to obtain them.

All the sulphur used in this country formerly came from Sicily, where the sulphur mines on the slopes of Mt. Etna had been worked for more than 2,000 years. It is only since 1896 that sulphur has been obtained in any appreciable quantities from our own sources of supply in Louisiana, and today, thanks to chemical ingenuity and acumen, all the sulphur used in this country is of native origin.

By far the greatest part of the sulphur produced in the world is used in the manufacture of sulphuric acid. Sulphur is a constituent of black powder, which is used largely in mining soft coal. It finds employment in the rubber industry as a vulcanizing agent. It is used in the bleaching of silk and wool.

The straw for use in straw hats is bleached with sulphur dioxide fumes, made by burning sulphur. Large quantities are used in the form of solutions and powders to combat injurious growths on grapevines. Its use as a medicine in the form of ointments is well known.

WHAT HE WANTED TO KNOW

Delinquent Subscriber Evidently Had Menial Use for Great Organ of Public Opinion.

The editor of the Smalltown Eagle, like some others of his brethren, experiences considerable difficulty in persuading his subscribers to come forward, from time to time, with the annual subscription price. "If it is agreeable to you," he finally wrote to one hardened delinquent, "I will accept two bushels of corn in payment of the amount you owe me." "I regret to say," responded Farmer Brown, in due course, "that in feeding my stock I have used all the corn I raised." "Dear Mr. Brown," began the next letter of the series, "inasmuch as you have used all your corn, I presume you have a large supply of corn cobs on hand, and I would be glad to accept a load thereof in payment of the amount due from you, as I can use them in place of kindling wood." "Mr. Editor," replied the farmer by the next mail, "your letter has been received and contents noted. What I want to know is this—what in Sam Hill do you think I'd want with your paper, if I had a supply of cobs to use in kindling fires?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Source of Eskimo Vigor.

Rev. Dr. John Marquis, explorer and missionary among the Eskimos, attributes their hardihood, vigor and great endurance to the fact that they get sufficient vitamins through eating almost the whole carcass of their kill, including brain, nerve and glandular organs. Otherwise it is hard to conceive, he says, according to the New York Times, of their being able to make such good use of an almost purely meat diet, and one so freighted with fat. Dr. Marquis says that, as the white man's white bread, refined sugar and canned goods gradually penetrate into the Far North the white man's diseases are likely to accompany them.

Not very much is known about the origin of the 50,000 or more Eskimos who live in a region where the temperature reaches and remains for long periods at from 40 to 70 degrees below zero.

Almost the only edible plant growth in this frozen land is the reindeer moss, the food of the great herds of reindeer that inhabit northern Siberia. This moss and occasional patches of coarse, wild grass are not considered palatable and are seldom eaten by man.

Mythical Mines.

There are frequent reports of parties of men in California going out into the desert in search of lost mines, such as the Gunsite, the Lost Cabin, the Cement Lode, the Pegleg and many others, which perhaps existed only in the minds of the original finders. For example, the Gunsite was so named because a prospector found somewhere between two mountains what he thought was a rock and when he brought it to Los Angeles had it fashioned into a gun sight and learned that it was pure silver. Then he so named what he thought was a mine. He made several trips, but failed to locate it.

He did not know that any more such pieces of "rock" could be found there, but so presumed, and this led to the death of ten or twelve prospectors at different periods.—J. M. Scanlan in the Los Angeles Times.

Detecting Remade Milk.

Because of the increased use of powdered milk, manufactured from powdered or condensed milk and sweetened butter, it has become necessary for chemists to devise some test that will indicate its presence in milk products. If the curd from remade milk is dissolved in sodium hydroxide, it shows a characteristic yellow color, after standing, while natural products, or products containing only a small percentage of remade milk, do not show this color. As little as 10 per cent of remade milk can be detected by this test when carefully made.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

PICNIC PARTY ON COTTONWOOD DAM

A party of Artesia young people motored to the Cottonwood dam, about sixteen miles from Artesia, on last Friday night, where they enjoyed a moonlight picnic and picnic supper. Several members of the party plunged into the cool waters of the beautiful lake, formed by the dam, a short time after arriving at the scene of the festivities. Some of the young ladies were "skeered" of the water and would not attempt to take a dip.

A few of the quieter members of the party were soon seated in a comfortable place on the bank with a fishing pole, waiting very patiently for some member of the finny tribe to take a chance at securing a long juicy worm for its supper. From all indications the fish were not hungry or were "wise" to the efforts of the fishers, because no help was needed to transport the fish to Artesia.

After running up and down the river bank and other exploration trips and escapades, the hungry group did justice to a sandwich supper, which consisted of sandwiches, salads, cake, pies, eggs, pickles and almost every other eatable, which was palatable.

The party returned to Artesia about eleven o'clock. Those who made the trip to the dam on this occasion were Rev. and Mrs. R. P. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harve Widney, Misses Gladys Cowan, Lorie Davis, Mildred Frisch, Beatrice Davis, Effie Glover, Zanaida Mann, Vesta Frisch, Adelle Ohnemus, and Messrs. Fred Cole, Herman Cole, Harvey Klopffenstein, Lloyd Cowan, William Meadows, Ralph Davis and Lewis Cole.

SLUMBER PARTY AT HOME OF MRS. ELDRIDGE SOLOMAN

A few friends of Miss Elizabeth Soloman were entertained at the home of Mrs. Eldredge Soloman on Saturday afternoon and evening with a delightful six o'clock dinner and slumber party. The affair was complimentary to Miss Elizabeth Soloman, who was celebrating her birthday (number of years not given).

Misses Lorie Davis, Effie Glover, Mildred Frisch, Zanaida Mann, Adelle Ohnemus, and Virginia Attebery and the honoree were the guests. During the afternoon, the girls went to Spring lake, where they enjoyed a swim. When they returned to Artesia, a delightful three course dinner was served by Mrs. Eldredge Soloman.

The night was very noteworthy and many unusual features were recorded before the break of day, according to the reports of the guests. The earlier part of the night was devoted to general pastime and the eating of watermelons and other fun. The girls tried to sleep a little but were unable to do so, on account of the kicking and other activities of several of the guests, who were not sleepy. Water proved a very satisfactory substance to arouse any sleepy head. At one time four girls were enjoying a general cover fight when a great deluge overcame their desire for combat and a retreat was in order. It has been reported that one girl did not sleep all night and pestered the other members of the party. An excellent occasion was enjoyed by all present.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

HAVE SOCIAL

The young people of the Methodist church were entertained at the church parlors on Saturday night with a delightful social. The Epworth League had been divided into two groups, captained by Mrs. Mary Abbott and Miss Mattie Mae Jackson. The losing side entertained the winners with a social.

About thirty-five young people were present to enjoy the games, contests and other amusements of the occasion. Refreshments were served to the guests by members of the losing division. A portion of the refreshments were stolen by some persons, but this was a small handicap and was easily overcome. All present declared the occasion to be very entertaining and the honored class were very grateful to their hosts for the royal good time, which was afforded them.

A large number of Artesia persons attended the court trial at Carlsbad on last Monday. The case was of unusual interest to the town as a whole being a result of the damage done to Woodbine cemetery recently.

Mrs. R. E. Horne has returned home after a several weeks visit in Mississippi.

When in need of a good reliable alarm clock we have a nice line of them at reasonable prices.
