COOLIDGE LESS TACITURN

A Brockton man who made a tour of the New England states with his family last summer tells a story about Calvin Coolidge. It seems that the tourists made it a point to swing around to Plymouth, Vermont, while the former president was at his old homestead. Seeing him in a field not far from the road they kept driving about town until such time as he should come out of the field. As he did so they moved slowly down the road and stopped the car abreast of him.

Pretending he was not known to any of the party the driver asked: "Is this the road to Blanktown?"

Without lifting his head or even looking at the party the former president said: "No, you're on the wrong road."

That and nothing more. There could be no complaint, for he gave a full answer to the question. When the Brockton party thought it over they concluded that he had even wasted a few words, All he needed to have said was: "No."-Boston Globe.

YOU'LL ENJOY WEARING GLASSES

Strange though it may seem, most people who wear glasses enjoy them It is a most pleasant sensation to see clearly, distinctly, and without effort. Properly fitted glasses are never annoying. They are promptly forgotten by the wearer who, after the first few hours, does not even feel them on the face. Modern glasses are good looking. Most people look better with glasses than without them.

CAUSE OF CANCER

Competent authorities at present hold the opinion that cancers are caused, in a practical sense, by various forms of chronic irritations, to which the human body is exposed from the cradle to the Striking examples of this principle are numerous. A cancer of the tongue or inside of the cheek, for instance, is often found directly opposite a jagged tooth. Cancer of the lip produced by the repeated irritations of a hot pipe stem is another common example. Cancer of the female genital organs is preceded in the majority of cases by some form of chronic inflamation. Tar, pitch, petroleum, soot, arsenic, dye-stuffs, and a long list of similar irritants, are responsible for the production of skin cancers. On the experimental side, cancer was successfully produced in the laboratory, in 1924, by two Japanese scientists who obtained this result by repeatedly applying coal tar to the skin of rabbits' ears. Many investigators have since confirmed their findings. Exactly how much irritation, or inflammation, operates to produce cancer or to favor its development, is the great question cancer research today. For the spent the night there. They at- H. Felton and Victor Buell were average person, however, it is sufficient at present to know that some form of chronic irritation or chronic inflammation appears to play a most important part in > the causation of all cancers. While it has not yet been proved that a person can directly inherit cancer, it does occur more frequently in some families than in others; and there is reason, therefore, to believe that members of such families are more likely to have this disease. A few forms of cancer show a distinct hereditary tendency, but others show no apparent hereditary trace what-

The relation of heredity to cancer, however, is not sufficiently understood at present to warrant any statement which may be of real practical value. This is the third of a series of ten articles on cancer prepared for the New Mexico Bureau of Public Health by the American

DROP OF WATER MAKES COIN FALL INTO BOTTLE

An ink bottle or other small bottle, a match and a dime or penny are required for this trick. Crack the match so that it will be bent and yet hold together. Place the match on top of the bottle with its broken center on one side and the head and tail on the other. Lay the coin on the match and spread the match apart under the coin, so that the slightest movement of the match will cause the coin to fall. Then tell your audience that you will drop water on the match, and coin will fall in the bottle. Carefully drop the water on the broken ends of the match, which will cause them to draw together, and in doing so will pull the head and tail of the match further apart, thereby taking the support of the match from under the coin, and causing the coin to fall (Copyright, Will L. USE MODERN METHODS YOUNG DEMOCRATS

This was not meant as an agricultural expansion program, but one of saftey. Every farmer must agree to raise a garden sufficient for home use, also feed for all his work stock, which is another feature that has not been included in previous measures. In other words, the government attemps to protect its loan by making the farmer produce the necessities of life on his farm. Furthermore, to insure these conditions being fulfilled, field men have been employed to check on borrowers, assist them in any way possible in carrying out a sane and safe program, and keep a complete check on their operations and see that they expend the funds as provided in the regulations set up by the secretary of agriculture.
