OUR DEFENSE From Navy Yards To The Fleet

This One of a Series Prepared by the National Defense Advisory Commission

According to the United States Navy, it takes about a year and a half to build a ship to the launching point. As soon as it is launched, it is towed to the fitting-out basin and the crescendo of work increases. Under the great cranes, the additional half billion pieces that go into a ship must be nestled into their appointed places.

Under the current speed-up program, when the ship arrives at the fitting-out basin, the pre-fabrication of deckhouses, bulkheads, and fighting equipment will be done to such a point that the cranes seem to lift whole ships through the air as these parts are on the way to being welded into place.

Far away in the optical shops of inland cities, men with skill gained, not through years, but through generations of devotion to ten-thousandths of an inch, are gently rubbing slices of glass, bringing them to the focus that will aim the guns. In other places, dark men wade through fields of cotton, picking the bolls that will eventually become powder guards, awnings and mattresses. Down the nation's communication lines roll these tons of material, each arriving on time to be picked up by the cranes and dropped into place.

Arming a Ship

A year passes. Finally the cranes pick up the great naval guns. These may be a big as the battleships' 16-inch guns, with each tube 60 feet long and as big around as a flour barrel, ready to be dropped into place in the steel turrets. Lighter guns, the 8-inchers and the 5-inchers, are fitted into their places on the decks.

The anti-aircraft guns and the "Chicago Planes" are put into place. The latter are groups of twenty machine guns mounted on a single pivot which can fill the air with flying metal.

When the men have finished their work, the builder's trials begin. The ship is run forward and backward, tested for speed, fuel consumption, stability—everything the imagination of the Navy inspectors can suggest. If a hundred thousand men have done their job, if the designers' slide rules told the truth, if the men who placed the parts have done their job, the ship does better than the minimum predictions made for it by the Navy Board and chief of naval operations, when they first made up the specifications.

Essentials of a Navy Base

Prime essential of a base is an adequate anchorage for the fleet and its auxiliaries, or based on these far-flung home plates is the Navy's train—the transports, repair ships, the tankers, the mine layers and mine sweepers, the submarines, tenders, the ammunition ships and cargo ships; all these are vital to the Navy in time of war. In time of peace, many of these auxiliaries are not necessary to the fleet. In time of war, to supply the fleet, enormous trains are required. The Navy must be provided with sufficient auxiliaries in any emergency, and for this the Navy must depend on the merchant marine. That is why the Maritime Commission's program must go step by step with the Navy program.

Final Trials

Then the ship will be tried out under the Navy's guidance, over the deep water mile in the cool, clear waters of the Gulf of Maine. If it makes the grade here, it is a full-fledged ship-of-the-line in the Navy. But it is not yet a unit of the fleet. It must go through a six-month shakedown cruise. The guns must be fired in every conceivable position. It must work its way in and out of tight places until every last man from the captain's mate knows what it can do.

The U. S. Navy Ashore

But a ship, even in commission, is never free of the shore. It must have bases handy—bases where it can refuel, get fresh food, fresh ammunition, and repairs. There can be no blue water navy without these bases, for the maximum range of a modern fleet is about 2,500 miles. Even that short distance carries it dangerously far from fortified yards and fuel stations.

To supply the ship when the fleet is in blue water, the Navy has ten outlying bases. These are spread around the world from Cavite, Olongapo, Philippine Islands, stretching across the Pacific to Guam, to Pearl Harbor, to Pago-Pago, to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, to the Aleutian Island Archipelago, south again to the great Cocco-Solo base at Panama and to our eastern outposts at Guantanamo, Cuba, and the Virgin Islands. From Near and Far, Some Timely, Some of Human Interest

One consolation, men who get drafted won't be left out in the cold. A department store in St. Louis announced the unpaid balance on clothing or other items purchased before Nov. 15 by men who are drafted will be marked "paid in full."

In Kansas City, Charley Blood veteran newspaper man, took time out to buy a new pair of shoes, commenting that those he had on showed a little wear. The store's record book showed they were purchased in 1930. Blood mentioned he was one of those persons who alternate shoes daily. "Yes," said the salesman. "The other pair was bought in 1932."

A man just released applied to Jailor Jimmy Cantrell for readmission, at Wise, Va., pleading drunkenness. "Go away," said Cantrell, "you're not drunk." Later, while Cantrell talked with a magistrate, the man reappeared, made the same request, and supported it by whipping out a flask of gin and pulling deeply on it. They let him in.

Four years ago Donald S. Davis, Seattle fish cannery superintendent, laughingly promised to buy Harry Low, purchasing agent, an automobile if the Lows would have twins as companions for their only son, Larry, then 6. A few days ago, Low telephoned Davis that he had twin daughters. Mrs. Low and the twins will ride home from the hospital in the new automobile.

Chicago draft day notation: An automobile in which a newly wedded couple sped down the street bore this sign—"We're not draft dodgers; we're really in love."

At Paris, Mo., Mrs. Emerson Longnecker saw a rooster having convulsions and killed it. The autopsy disclosed it had swallowed a match which evidently had been ignited by the grit in the bird's gizzard.

J. W. Maxwell of Chillicothe, Mo., finds his driveway quite a problem. Three times drivers have mistaken it for a street extension and crashed into the Maxwell garage.

A letter which traveled at the rate of less than five miles a year has just been received by Mrs. Henry Grube of Kankakee, Ill. She said her sister, Mrs. Margaret Delanty of Streator, Ill., wrote it on July 19, 1929. It's 55 miles from Streator to Kankakee.

"Prof." Harry Best, self-styled "knower of the unknown," advised a client at Elkhart, Ind., to "act promptly on your first impression in business affairs" and predicted the client soon would get a promotion. Whereupon Thomas J. Danforth acted with dispatch and produced a policeman's badge from under his coat. Best, alias Clark J. Somers, paid a fine and costs of $20 for fortune telling. Danforth awaits the promotion.

Surprised Pan-American Airways officials discovered a sleeping beauty—and her swim—dozing in berths of a clipper cabin replica at the LaGuardia Field marine terminal in New York. Awakened, the couple explained they had driven from Boston to see the World's Fair, but couldn't find rooms. A helpful cop suggested the easy chairs at the terminal, but when they saw the berths they chose them instead.

There are lots of ways to kill a hen—but shooting the bird on a cement walk is not recommended. Norman Jarrett, 13, tried that one just as his brother Calvin, 15, and Bill Stanley, 17, walked around the corner. Doctors at Columbus, Kan., removed fifty-one shotgun pellets from Calvin's body and four from Bill's. The shot had ricocheted from the sidewalk.

On Farmer Cliff Page's complaint Bangor, Me., police made this entry in their files: "Lost, one cow; value $65." Weeks went by, and Page found the cow in the woods. To the police entry was added: "Recovered, one cow, value $65; one calf, value $15."

North Carolina University's football coach, Ray Wolf, tells this one: An unnamed college's star back failed his scholastic work. A special examination was arranged, and the professor decided to give only one question: "What is the capital of North Carolina?" The athlete rubbed his brow and replied: "Apex." The coach was floored but not the professor. "Well," he said, "let's see. Apex is 15 miles from Raleigh (the capital). Fifteen from 100 leaves 85. That's a good passing mark."

Finding that interments of dead dogs rose to 135 last year, the Yorkville, Ohio, city council has decided to stop donating a dollar for such burials. Youngsters received most of the money, and the city fathers were inclined to believe that obsequies for the same dog were staged more than once.

While driving along near Rochester, Ind., Leo Mow wondered why his automobile was so sluggish. He stopped for a new battery, but still the engine did not run. Properly. Next day he took the generator apart. In one end lay a mouse, pressed out flat and its tail cut off.

Near Alturas, Calif., Frank Vance had tramped all day without sighting a deer. As he started for home, he saw a large buck but quite a distance away. He fired and the deer fell. Vance was tired and he rested occasionally as he went to get the buck. But the animal was gone. Instead, there was a note: "Thanks for the buck."

Asked if the Fresno, Calif., city commission had authority to order a track for his chamber in the new city hall, City Attorney Christian M. Ozias sat down to think it over. Up he bounced with an affirmative opinion. He had dropped his own hat in the chair.

Glee Wareham, a nurse driving from Wabash to Peru, Ind., swerved her automobile to avoid a collision and the car turned over in a field. At a hospital physicians examined her and could find nothing wrong except—a run in a stocking.

During the excitement of a downtown fire in Anderson, S. C., a small coupe skidded a curb and rammed into the front of a department store. Disintegrating herself, an elderly lady emerged from the car and said she was in a hurry to get to the department store. "Lady," said the store manager, "you're in it. What can we do for you?"

At Phillips, Wis., County Judge Asa N. Owen, whose home was burglarized, received a box of jewelry in the mail and the following note: "My man was on a spree on your money. I found your jewelry in his trouser pockets."

At Milwaukee 2-year-old Roger Cielinsky toddled after a slippery chestnut into the path of an electric trolley. The motorcar brought the coaches to a stop, jumped to the ground, looked—and nearly swooned. Roger was climbing down from the train's "cowcatcher" still looking for his chestnut.

Policeman Dan Mangan went out on a tip to recover a stolen car in Spokane. He passed his own car going. He passed the same spot on the return trip, but his car wasn't there. He reported the matter to police.

With all its elaborate trappings, New York's $40,000,000 LaGuardia Field doesn't please Mrs. Ambrose Diehl of San Francisco. It lacks a sofa. Waiting for a plane, she felt the weakening effects of donating a pint of blood to a blood bank for British wounded, and couldn't find a place to lie down. "I'll buy a cot or chaise longue or something and send it to the airport as soon as I get back," she said, after accepting a chair in the press room.

Two Indianapolis Negro burglars caught in a downtown office were not good listeners. One, police said, carried a portable radio tuned to the call which sent officers to the place.

Kansas University lost its annual football game to Nebraska 53 to 2, but one feminine spectator refused to let the slaughter completely ruin her afternoon. She pulled out her knitting in the middle of the third quarter.

Miss Frances Webb of Kansas City gave a party for thirty pupils who have been studying China and Chinese customs. On chopsticks, with which the children tried to eat popcorn, were two mottoes in traditional American conception of Chinese phraseology. Afterward a boy gave Miss Webb a third—"Those who eat popcorn, with chopsticks go to a lot of trouble."

A man and a woman gave Henry N. Pownall, 94, a ride downtown in Rochester, Ind. They remarked how fit he looked for his age, and the woman poked him a little. The two said they were evangelists. Before letting him out, they got his promise to attend a night service. They also got $30 from his pockets, he discovered later.

Thirty sacks of potatoes arrived in Aberdeen, Idaho, from Oregon for distribution to relief clients. Aberdeen farmers couldn't quite understand. They raise the nationally famed Idaho potatoes, but prices are so low they've been giving them away.

Fog forced Lee Eyer, Salem, Ore., flyer and his four passengers down at Chehalis, Wash., as they headed home from a football game at Seattle. Obliging highway patrolmen acted as fog horns, clearing cars out of the way as Eyer taxied ten miles along two highways before taking off from a golf course.

Missouri cottontail rabbits rear 3.8 litters annually, with an average of 4.4 animals in each.

At Charlotte, N. C., a fellow walked into a drug store and asked for a mouse trap. "Sorry, but we're out," said the clerk, "but I'll lend you our cat." A little while later, the customer came back, carrying the cat under his arm. "Thanks," he said, "it worked fine."

Reporter Carl Moore was assigned by the Longview (Wash.) Daily News to learn which of the city's 6,139 draft registrants would be recorded as No. 1. The cards were shuffled, the first turned over. No. 1 went to Reporter Carl Moore.

A policeman's life is never a safe one, so Patrolman George F. La Tullipe of Salt Lake City shouldn't complain. He was typing his daily report when his finger slipped in between the keys, wedged. He finally wrenched it loose but it required hospital repairs.

A district board of education pondered hundreds of suggestions in a contest for a name for the new million-dollar East Greenbush (N. Y.) Central School. After much consideration, the board agreed the name will be "East Greenbush Central School."

At Oakland, Calif., Patrolman Henry T. Rose never thought a five-ton steam roller could lose a traffic argument. But the evidence was indisputable. Answering a routine call he found the steam roller 40 feet from the spot where an interurban train hit it. To make it more impressive—the steam roller was right in the middle of Patrolman Rose's lawn.

That's Why We Will

VOTE FOR WILLKIE

For President of the United States

Smart Roosevelt haters and proud haters of Willkie are not people who think when they read. What we think, not what we feel, can save us.

Paying tax bills or receiving government checks do influence people's thinking, but we have more than that to think about now.

George Washington and many of his presidential successors were great business men. In no other country in the world has labor and labor's leaders in business worked together so successfully as they have in the United States.

Successful politicians, not business men, have lately come to head the new governments of Western Europe. Their third terms have made their jobs permanent. They have deceived labor and the leaders of business in those countries.

The dictator countries have gone hopelessly in debt. And we have too. Their debts have been disowned. Their money has lost value. These people were led to war when their leaders could not deliver prosperity according to promise. All this can happen here. We should all consult our libraries for reliable information.

News Briefs of the "Sunshine State," Gleaned from Many Sources

The Agriculture Department forecasts an August farm income of $3,208,000 for New Mexico compared with $2,937,000 for August, 1939. Texas' farm income for August was estimated at $56,252,000, against $44,566,000 for the same month last year. The department predicted that farmers, for the first time since 1929, would receive this year a total cash income of at least $9,000,000,000. Such an income would compare with $8,518,000,000 reported for 1939, $11,221,000,000 for 1929.

For the benefit of those who will be out deer hunting this season, arrangements have been made with radio station KOB, Albuquerque, to send any urgent messages which should reach them. The arrangement has been made, due to the fact that each year the game wardens of the state are called upon to locate some hunter, on account of some emergency in his family such as illness or death.

George Weir, 52, of Hobbs, and Bob Crosby, 46, of Roswell, two weatherbeaten veterans of the rodeo arena are in daily training for a steer-roping duel in Carlsbad Nov. 10, which is believed to be the only match of its kind scheduled in the Southwest in twenty-five years. Although both men are considered top-notchers, they have never met in a match. Roping, throwing and tying ten big Mexican steers each, they are to compete for a $2,000 side purse. Carlsbad wagering already is said to have reached $3,000 or $4,000. Word has been received that rodeo fans plan to attend from as far away as New York City. Crosby twice has been acclaimed world champion all-around cowboy. Weir was a close friend of the late Will Rogers and has been a top roper since he was 16. He is training at Carlsbad and Crosby is practicing on his ranch near Roswell.

The State Health Department wound up on the business end of a complaint over a borrowed meat grinder at Santa Fe last week. "I want my meat grinder," an irate

Spike Bucks Are Taboo This Year, Game Warden Says

Must Have One Forked Horn Not Less Than Inch Point to Point

On the eve of the opening of the big game season, which runs from Nov. 1 to 15, Elliott S. Barker, state game warden, called attention to the fact that spike bucks are not legal game this year.

"Too many young bucks have been killed in the past few years, and too many does shot by over-anxious hunters hoping they would turn out to be spike bucks," asserted the warden. "This year a buck to be legal (except on the West Sacramento Deer Management Unit) must have at least one forked horn with each point not less than one inch long from fork to point," he said, and appealed to all hunters in the name of law observance and good sportsmanship to comply with the regulation and avoid the killing of spikes, fawns and does.

Barker said that the general deer situation over the entire state is the best in several years and that in most areas there is a good pinon and acorn crop. With forage conditions good, all game will be fat. There is a fair turkey crop and in many areas plenty of bear. The warden called attention to the fact that hunters should not only be extremely careful to avoid shooting other hunters or livestock, but should remember that there are lots of CCC, WPA and other working crews of men in many of the hunting areas. "Shooting near or toward construction camps or crews of workmen should always be avoided," he said.

The bag limit of big game which may be taken under a big game license is one buck, two turkeys, one bear and five squirrels. There is a special season on elk in the Upper Pecos area, where 100 permits at $10 each are authorized.

voice demanded over the phone. "You," coolly replied a department clerk, "must have the wrong number. We have no meat grinders." "Oh yes, you have," persisted the voice. "I loaned mine to a neighbor and you quarantined 'em."

Rep. J. J. Dempsey's suits attacking the validity of returns from the Sept. 14 primary in one Santa Fe and nine Rio Arriba County precincts were ordered dismissed by District Judge Irwin S. Moise, sitting for Judge David Chavez, Jr. The dismissal had been asked by attorneys for both Dempsey and his successful opponent for the Democratic senatorial nomination, Senator Dennis Chavez.

Enlistment in the U. S. Army offers no springboard out of unhappy marital life. "We absolutely will not accept enlistments from men with dependents," advised Major William Fisk, district recruiting officer at Santa Fe. Giving false information at enlistment, he added, constitutes fraud and the penalties are severe. Fisk also explained that volunteers would be classified in the same manner as conscripts and would not be accepted for immediate duty if they fall into a deferred class because of reasons other than dependents.

Albuquerque was chosen for the 1941 site of the New Mexico Grand Lodge of Masons, at the close of the 1940 lodge in Santa Fe last week.

Placements in construction work accounted for nearly 40 per cent of the 1,347 jobs found for workers during September by the New Mexico State Employment Service, J. C. Mitchell, director, said. Domestic service, agriculture and retail trade were other leaders in the fields of new employment. A steady decline in the number of persons seeking new employment or better jobs was recorded during the month. The agency listed 33,193 applications in September, compared with 33,805 in August, 34,315 in July, and 35,528 in June. Mitchell pointed out that not all of the job seekers are unemployed. Many of them are registered with the employment service in the hope of finding better jobs.

Draft registration lists from the Navajo reservation yielded up these names: Draftee No. 276—"Governor Hannett," Tohatchi; from Two Wells came "Jack Dempsey"; Crown Point, "Dummy Gray Mustache."

First steps toward compliance with the national cancer institute act of 1937 have been taken by the Women's Field Army of New Mexico, a division of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Dr. Evelyn Frisbie, chairman of the state organization, announced the state executive committee had voted to accept a limited travel fund from the state department of public health for use of Mrs. C. C. Meachem, state commander, in education and organization work. Members of the organization's state executive committee are Dr. Frisbie, Mrs. Meachem and Doctors J. W. Hannett, J. R. Van Atta and L. S. Peters.

State WPA Administrator J. J. Connelly announced that New Mexico's November WPA employment quota had been set at 9,350—the same as the October figure.

The New Mexico apple crop was reported as improved over indications on Sept. 1 by the Department of Agriculture. Indications were reported for a crop of 42,868,000 bushels in Western states, up almost 1,000,000 bushels from last year. The national forecast was for 115,162,000 bushels, 20 per cent under 1939.

He may not become first in war, but so far James Drake of Hobbs is consistently in peace, in this draft business. Drake, restaurant employe, was first to register in Hobbs. After the county board had given more than 2,800 cards a thorough shuffling, Drake's was the first drawn for assigning of serial numbers.

A survey of airport facilities in New Mexico will be made by G. D. Macy, appointed recently by Governor Miles as state coordinator for airports under the national defense program. The governor urged all communities to give Macy "full cooperation" in the project, in which a survey will be made of facilities available for airport construction in towns not having airports.

Average Weighted Yield Is Factor in Cotton Payments

Howard Points Out Importance Of Correct Serial Number

One of the factors used in determining the amount of cotton payments to be made to farmers is the average weighted yield per acre of lint cotton that is grown, G. R. Howard, chairman of the Eddy County Agricultural Conservation Association committee, said this week. This average is taken over a period of the preceding five years in making each year's allotted yield, he said.

"Our office now obtains its record of production directly from the gins—each gin making a semi-monthly report of all cotton ginned during the preceding two weeks," continued Howard. "The ginner reports this cotton under the serial number assigned to the farm by this office and the amount of cotton shown under each number is transferred to our records for that particular farm."

"It is extremely important, therefore, that the farmer see that the ginner is correctly informed as to the serial number of the farm on which each bale of cotton is grown. If an error is made in the serial number, credit for the production of such cotton is given to another farm and the real producer finds himself with a lower allotted yield than he should have.

"And the farmer himself is solely to blame," pointed out Howard, "for it is the farmer's responsibility to inform the ginner, correctly, as to the source of his cotton."

"I wish to urge each producer to be certain that whomever drays his cotton to the gin be informed as to the correct serial number of the farm on which the cotton was produced, and that he make certain that the ginner also receives this information."

Russia is mechanizing agriculture.

Since the Japanese invasion the price of cotton piece goods in a typical village in East Chekiang in China has risen 137 per cent, of silk 156, wheat 132, vegetables 74, meat 87, lumber 79, kerosene 394, soap 217, and cigarettes 316.

MEN REACHING 21 SINCE OCT. 16 TO REGISTER LATER

Draft officials have been asked about the registration of men who have reached 21 years since registration day.

The answer is that although they were not required to register on that day, the president will later proclaim succeeding registration days, each of which will take in men who have reached their majority in the meantime. It is not expected that another registration will take place before next spring.

ri Arums Honkala of Carlsbad, the second drawn, and No. 105, Leon Voss Portwood of Carlsbad, whose number was the nineteenth drawn.

Draft officials estimate the first twenty-five numbers drawn will produce sufficient men for the first call to training camps, which is scheduled for this month.

However, in order to raise the first complete quota of 800,000 draftees to be called before next July it is variously estimated from 390 to 650 numbers will be required.

In the first 650 numbers drawn were 131 in Eddy County, of whom fifty live in North Eddy County.

After considerable research The Advocate has compiled the numbers of those fifty men and their numbers are given here, each draftee's number coming after the number indicating the order in which they were drawn:

- 1-158; 34-2441; 41-188; 80-3495; 86-2748; 89-2698; 113-3461; 120-3011; 130-2470; 131-14; 140-3259; 141-3526; 164-3675; 165-3440; 170-3466; 178-3408; 196-3432; 201-3200; 210-2988; 211-153; 214-3670; 252-3045; 256-2880; 261-2540; 262-2782; 273-2514; 278-2780; 288-172; 295-3169; 279-3663; 359-2857; 391-3814; 392-2922; 393-3416; 401-3783; 423-3039; 431-3746; 432-338; 456-3655; 498-3738; 502-1355; 529-3279; 533-689; 572-2572; 581-1234; 590-3107; 602-156; 616-3034; 625-3005; 642-3530.

Elsewhere in this issue is a list of the registration numbers assigned all men residing in North Eddy County, whose postoffice addresses are Artesia, Hope, Lakewood, Dayton, Smith and Lake Arthur.

One may find his name there, and by comparing with the list above he may discover if he was within the first 650 men whose numbers were drawn, and if so, how far down the list he is.

Extreme care was taken in compiling the list of registrants, as well as the list of those whose numbers were drawn. However, The Advocate takes no responsibilities for omissions or mistakes.

As a public service the greater part of the registrants' numbers of men in North Eddy County have been posted on the front window the last few days, placed there as rapidly as they could be put into type for this issue. However, there is an additional list, including those who registered late, those whose addresses are Eddy County, but who registered elsewhere, and two oversights in the original list. This is published as an addenda at the end of the original list as posted.

Artesia's and Eddy County's No. 1 draftee, Charles Mack Brown, is married, but has no children.

Second Annual—

evening at a meeting of the Bulldog Boosters at the city hall, at which time Fred Cole, president, named committees which will be necessary. Hollis B. Watson, who was chairman of the Gateway Bowl Association, a group formed last year with the Boosters as sponsors and other organizations here cooperating, was again named chairman of that special group and general chairman of the 1940 Gateway Bowl game.

Enthusiasm in the several days in which the annual classic has been discussed has grown to white heat and already some of the committees are functioning.

Jim Ferguson and V. D. Bolton, who were tentatively appointed the scheduling committee Monday evening, subject to verification at the Boosters' meeting last evening, have eliminated Albuquerque as a possible contender here Nov. 29 and are concentrating on the records of Gallup and Clayton.

Hobbs definitely has been selected to represent Southeast New Mexico and Principal Bird was at the meeting last evening, as enthusiastic as the local fans.

Gallup seems enthusiastic also, and told the committee it was the desire there to come by special train, bringing the band and pep squad, as well as fans. However, Clayton is being considered just as strongly as is Gallup.

Besides the election of Watson as general chairman and the naming of the scheduling committee, committees appointed last evening were, the first named in each case the chairman:

You are a free American—You can VOTE AS YOU PLEASE

Any voter in New Mexico can vote for any candidate he chooses in the general election, regardless of which political party the candidate belongs to. Attorney General Filo Sedillo has announced at Santa Fe. Anyone who says differently is wrong—they do not know the truth or they are trying to deceive you.

Whether you are registered as Republican, Democrat or Independent, you can vote for any candidates on either party's ticket in the general election, Attorney General Sedillo said. His statement:

"A qualified voter who is registered in accordance with our laws may vote for any party or for any person's name on the ballot in the general election regardless of how the voter may have been registered with regard to party affiliation."
