IT'S GOOD TO SPEND A SHIFTLSS WEEK END

It is always hard to get back into the saddle after a holiday, especially when it comes the early part of the week, and we find this week no exception.

Although we started to lay plans nearly a month ago for the observation of Independence Day on Monday, in case we should do so, we find that Tuesday morning is more like Monday than anything else. And that is in spite of the fact we had nearly all of our Monday work out of the way last week, by way of sandwiching it in here and there.

But the main point about a holiday is that one can and usually does attack his task with a new vigor, even though his schedule is somewhat upset.

Two days of doing nothing does tend to make one lazy, but if he only will roll up his sleeves and pitch in, he will find that some of the tasks which have been becoming more and more tedious seem more light.

So, although it was hard to jump into the saddle this morning, when we did get astraddle the job, we found we could go at whirlwind speed, much more so than most weeks.

Yep, it does a fellow good to be away from his two-fingered typewriter once in a while.

A HORSEY SORT OF EDITORIAL

We saw a woman recently, all decked out in proper regalia, assisted aboard a horse. It required the cooperation of the horse and a cowboy to accomplish the feat; the horse seemed to brace his feet and lean slightly to haw, while the cowboy pushed to gee.

After riding a hundred yards or so, during which she and the horse were properly photographed, by way of preserving proof of the accomplishment for posterity, the gal returned whence she had started and, again assisted by the horse and cowboy, with gravity also coming into the picture, she dismounted—if that is the proper term. The ride was over.

Amusing as was the incident, it is applicable to the everyday behavior of many people. Frequently have we contacted those who having come no nearer to learning and mastering a thing than did the woman rider to learning to ride, who nevertheless believe firmly and honestly they are masters of the thing, no matter what it be.

There's Andrew H. Brown, for instance, who has had only passing contact with the king's English, and who uses incorrect words frequently, but who uses them in a manner such as to impress his listeners with his "great knowledge."

Then there are the masters of almost everything, who, if they could realize their shortcomings, would know those with whom they come in contact secretly laugh at them—and sometimes pity them in their blissful ignorance.

We hope the lady with the photographs of herself and her horse does not take herself too seriously. If she does, she will be laughed at slyly; if she does not, and exhibits a sense of humor, we would say her experience was a great thing.

THAT'S TELLIN' HIM, SOLDIER!

A soldier in Africa named Thomas F. Byrd—we do not know his rate or rank—is said to have written the following letter to John L. Lewis, which we pass along as food for thought:

"I'm writing this letter from somewhere in Africa, in violent protest against your recent activity in the United States.

"Our morale, lifted by our victory in Tunisia, has been stifled by a rapidly growing feeling of rage against those in America, who in our greatest moment of need are stabbing us in the back. I refer to the action of the miners in America as striking. I refer to you personally, to you who could have stopped them but chose rather to lead and encourage them. By your un-American attitude, you have also caused other strikes in other industries, which followed your treasonable actions.

"Surely this can't be American Labor's answer to the Fighting Yanks all over the world, especially here, where we are on the brink of an invasion that will bring Germany to her knees. It was fast war production that paved the way for our victory here. It was our ability with, and our drawing power on tanks and more tanks and planes and more planes, along with allied supplies that decided the final round. Before this and before we wrested control of the air, our price in lives was costly.

"There are some of us who feel that there are many legitimate demands being made on the part of labor, but there isn't one of us including former union men who feels that you are justified in striking. You are fostering a feeling of hate here for labor, hate that will certainly last the war out no matter what course labor takes after these strikes are throttled.

"If conditions are unbearable in America, and the cost of living is so high, and the miners just can't get along on their salaries, and if they have the guts and are really sincere, they can get out and fight for their country, instead of fighting against it. They will find that they will not have to worry about the cost of living, but about life itself. They will realize too late that if that extra plane had been available that they would have been spared a nightmare of continuous strafing, that an extra tank or two would have made the difference between a quick victory and an inferno of hell.

"In spite of you and all labor, who are sabotaging our war effort, we shall win. In spite of you and all those in America who would keep us from coming back, most of us will come back. When we do there will be thousands of Fighting Yanks who will rip the heart out of American labor for letting us down, and you can bet that I will be one of them. There isn't anybody bigger than this war, not even John L. Lewis."

THEY'RE WOMEN SOLDIERS NOW, GENTLEMEN

Many problems in regard to the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps should have been solved, now that the word, "Auxiliary," has been dropped and the organization has become a part of the Army, subject to full Army regulations, rather than being an auxiliary thereto.

It should have been done sooner. Then there would never have been all the nauseating odor in regard to what should have been a proud corps of proud women. Those members who have taken their new oath, thus becoming members of the United States Women's Army Corps, now have the same status as the WAVES, SPARS and women marines.

But one thing the transition did not do was to change the euphonic name of the gals, and the jokes will continue, for whether it is "WAAC" or "WAC," it is pronounced just the same.

On the other hand, we would hazard the remark that the organization ceases to be a "Swoose," half swan and half goose, for now, gentlemen, the ladies are soldiers, not auxiliaries thereto.

Apropos of nothing in particular, but just by way of passing along some statistics divulged by Old Tack in The Amarillo News, there are seven fat-women for every fat man in the United States.

An all-time record of $3,784,385 in land office receipts for the 1942-43 fiscal year was reported by Land Commissioner H. R. Rodgers. He said the old record, established in the previous fiscal year, was topped by $53,328 in the year ending June 30. Gains of $199,459 in oil and gas rental payments and $75,763 in purchase contract payments were two major reasons for the record, Rodgers said. These helped make up for a loss of $222,677 in oil and gas royalties. June revenues clinched the record with a gain of $146,983 over the same month a year ago. The department took in $398,278 compared with receipts of $251,295 the previous June. Biggest gains for the month were $11,392 in contract payments; $88,039 in oil and gas rentals, and $45,873 in oil and gas royalties.

There is no change in the state's labor market classification, according to the War Manpower Commission's latest figures as released by J. C. Mitchell, acting state director of the WMC in New Mexico. "We continue to be classified as an area in which the labor supply is and will be adequate to meet all known labor requirements," Mitchell said. Of the 291 areas used as the basis for the WMC survey, forty-six are listed as having acute labor shortages, 101 as those where shortages may be anticipated in the next six months, seventy as being liable to have shortages after six months, and seventy-four as having an adequate labor supply.

Christmas Is Practically Here, As the Navy Department Sees It

One might not realize it, but Christmas is practically here—at least as the Navy Department sees it.

Because of limited cargo space and the vast quantities of war materials that must be shipped to the fighting fronts, the Navy has found it necessary to advance the mailing dates of Christmas letters and packages to Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard personnel overseas to the six-week period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 31, according to the Eleventh Naval District.

Strict attention must be paid to details of the addressing and wrapping of packages, and to the type of article to be sent, the Navy said.

For the purposes of Christmas mail, the term "overseas" is meant to mean those personnel who receive their mail through a fleet postoffice at San Francisco, New York City, or Seattle.

Christmas mail to personnel within the continental limits of the United States may be sent later, but with ample time allowed in mailing to avoid last minute congestion.

Letters and packages should be marked, "Christmas Parcel," and should have the name and address of the sender; the name and rank or rating of the addressee, and the naval unit to which he is assigned, or the name of the ship or fleet postoffice through which the mail is to be routed, plainly marked in ink on a conspicuous place on the package.

All articles should be packed in metal, wooden, or solid or corrugated fiberboard, or extra-strong cardboard boxes. Cardboard or fiberboard boxes must be securally wrapped in strong paper and tied with twine.

In addition, senders are cautioned that delays necessitated by censorship will be minimized if packages are wrapped so as to insure easy inspection of contents.

Under postal regulations, Christmas parcels shall not exceed five pounds in weight, or fifteen inches in length or thirty-six inches in length and girth combined. For example, a package may be ten inches long and five inches wide and deep, or eight inches long and seven inches wide and seven inches deep.

Parcels should not include any weapons, perishables, intoxicants, poisons, or inflammable articles, such as matches or lighter fluid. In general the public is urged not to send food or clothing. Men overseas are amply provided with both, so shipping space for gifts should be used for other purposes.

Mail may be insured or registered by the sender.

Mrs. Taylor, a popular member of the young social set in this city, is a graduate of Artesia High School with the class of '41 and has for the last six months been employed by the Artesia Auto Company in the bookkeeping department. Mr. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Taylor, Sr., formerly of Artesia, now of Oklahoma, is employed in the oil field. The newlyweds will make their home in Artesia.

Wheeler-Floyd

Miss Jewell Ett Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wheeler of Carlsbad, and Ray Lynn Floyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Getz Z. Floyd of the Artesia oil field community, were married at 7 o'clock Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents at 213 South Mesquite in Carlsbad, with Walter McDonald, justice of the peace, reading the ring ceremony.

Miss Wheeler wore a sheer, navy blue crepe dress, with white accessories and a corsage of rosebuds and stephanotis.

Mrs. Leighton Brown, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and B. A. Wheeler, brother of the bride, was best man.

Immediately after the wedding a dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents honoring the newlyweds. The house was decorated with roses and other garden flowers.

The table was centered with a wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and rosebuds. Covers were laid for twelve guests, members of both families and wedding guests. Gifts were also on display.

Pix Rhapsody

A rare combination of glamorous and practical gowns will be seen when Ingrid Bergman, lovely Swedish star, wears Orry-Kelly's fashions in Warner Bros.' exciting "Casablanca," coming soon to the Ocotillo Theater.

Though the action of the film is centered around Casablanca in Morocco and thus calls for almost tropical clothing, Orry-Kelly has used styles and cuts, that, copied in fall or winter materials and colors, would suit the most fastidious woman.

Suits, always a reliable standby and now more popular than ever as practical, sturdy and smart garb, have been given special importance in Miss Bergman's screen wardrobe. One of tan, mustard yellow and white, in a tiny hound's tooth check, is of particular interest, because it is styled with the unique feature of shirt sleeves—fitted cuffs, links, and all. The skirt is pencil-slim, and the fitted jacket has the advanced, small, turned-down collar which will be seen on fall and winter suits.

For evening wear, glamour abounds in the lovely gowns worn by Miss Bergman. One combines an exotic cotton print top in shades of pearl-grey and white, with a graceful, pencil-slim skirt of black crepe. Around the waist is a brilliant red sash of crepe.

Having Trouble Getting Help?

So are we. Like you, we're faced with the biggest production job in our history. And, like you, we've lost many of the men who used to help us.

Yet that's only part of the story. Every day, on farm and factory, there's something new to test the skill of those running the business. Not only getting help, but—mention a few others—rising costs, making a fair profit, and setting aside reserves for a rainy day. Essentially, those problems are the same for farm and factory, though they may at times differ in size.

But it is that thing called "management," that peculiarly American ability to think through problems no matter how tough, that is helping to see us through today. It is this skill in management that farmers and businessmen have most in common, a skill which insures the realization of our determination to produce all that's needed for our country today, and, tomorrow, to make a fair living through greater service to our fellow Americans. "I knew we couldn't bank on any new models for a long while after this mess, so I played safe with our car...kept her engine OIL-PLATED like always, with Conoco N/h motor oil, especially to not let the engine get ruined by acid. Your old Mileage Merchant pal told me why there was no worse wartime danger than engine acid."

"Dad, I learned that too, in the service..."

"Quiet Sergeant, till I show off what I know. That acid comes from ordinary combustion, but when the car was run often and got plenty warm the acid petered out—not causing rank corrosion the way it does the engine mostly resting. But knowing that did that chromium-plating won't do any good, I could see it would check corrosion of the engine's insides OIL-PLATING.

"A synthetic in Conoco N/h oil acts like 'magnetism'...to keep OIL-PLATING fastened to inside engine surfaces—draining down to the crankcase even when the car is standing still. The car ran sweet bringing me back home, didn't it? Too bad some have got to wait months for new cars when they should've used Conoco N/h OIL-PLATE and save their car. Let's go."

Explanation Clarifies Perplexing Aspects of New Withholding Tax

The new federal withholding tax—or the "pay-as-you-go tax," as it is popularly termed—which went into effect July 1, is much misunderstood and many persons from whose earnings the tax already is being withheld still do not have an insight as to its workings. So here is a question and answer explanation of some of the more perplexing aspects:

Q. What happens if the amount of my "withholding exemption" changes during the year? A. You should furnish your employer a new withholding exemption certificate within ten days of such change in order that your employer may give effect at the earliest date required by law to the change in your marital status or the number of your dependents.

Q. Is my employer required to withhold exactly 20 per cent of my pay above my exemption? A. No. Your employer may elect to use the "Wage Bracket Tables" provided by law which vary slightly from exact computations at 20 per cent. These tables set definite amounts to be withheld from each pay. For example, in the case of married employees with three dependents, whose weekly wage is anywhere between $50 and $60, the employer is authorized to withhold a flat amount of $2.60 per week, instead of requiring him to figure the exact amount for each individual employee.

Q. How about that part which is not canceled? A. The part which is not canceled you still owe to the government. You pay it in equal parts in March, 1944, and March, 1945.

Q. Since three-fourths of last year's taxes are canceled and I paid one quarter this past March, doesn't that clear me up on my 1942 tax? A. No. Your quarterly payment of March 15 applies on your 1943 tax. So does the June 15 payment which must be made. If part of your 1942 tax is "unforgiven," you still owe it to the government as part of your 1943 tax liability.

Q. Does the employer have the use of my money that he has withheld? A. No. The amount of tax withheld from your wages by your employer is a special fund in trust for the United States.

Q. What proof have I that I have that much credit against my taxes? A. The money withheld from your wages is paid by your employer to the United States Treasury. The amount withheld from you stands to your credit at the Treasury against the amount you owe on income and victory tax.

Q. Does the employer have the use of my money that he has withheld? A. No. The amount of tax withheld from your wages by your employer is a special fund in trust for the United States.

About 25 per cent of every dollar spent to produce motion pictures goes for salaries of the casts.

Shortly after the close of the year or termination of your employment, you will be furnished a receipt by your employer showing the amount of the tax deducted and withheld from your pay.

Q. Is the withholding tax an additional income tax like the victory tax? A. No. It's a deduction from your pay which goes toward paying your regular income tax, including the victory tax.

Q. What happens to the money my employer withholds? A. The money withheld from your wages is paid by your employer to the United States Treasury. The amount withheld from you stands to your credit at the Treasury against the amount you owe on income and victory tax.

Cooperation Will Make the Labor Program Succeed

The farm labor program, now the responsibility of the Extension Service, is progressing slowly but satisfactorily, according to A. E. Triviz, state supervisor of emergency farm labor.

The success of the farm labor program will depend on the cooperation of the farmers and ranchers and, in this connection, there are some things that farmers and ranchers, as well as agricultural workers, can do to make the program successful, Triviz said.

From the farmers' and ranchers' standpoint, they can: Anticipate their labor needs as far in advance as possible; place their requests for labor with their local county extension agent as far in advance of actual needs as possible; indicate to the county agent a fair wage they are willing to pay; request only the minimum number of workers needed; be willing to exchange labor with their neighbors.

Triviz asked that farmers and ranchers be tolerant and understanding, especially with inexperienced workers.

From the agricultural workers' standpoint, they can: Decide to work on a farm or ranch. Farm work is war work. Place their applications for farm work with the county agent. This applies to experienced as well as inexperienced workers; to women as well as men; to girls as well as boys.

If an application for work is placed with the county agent but they find employment themselves, inform the county agent and give the name of their employer.

Be tolerant toward employers, working conditions, and the work they are doing.
