Plans have been announced by a committee representing the Artesia Chamber of Commerce for the organization of a cotton compress corporation or association to serve the cotton farmers and gins of the Pecos Valley.

It Is Your Business

THE AFFAIRS OF THIS NATION, this state, this county, and this city are your business—the business of every citizen and taxpayer in this community.

It is your money, which is being spent by the federal, state, county, and city government. It is the money, which you pay in taxes, which provides the fund on which to operate the various forms of government.

We, of course, all know and realize this, yet we refuse to take the interest we should take in our government. We are still inclined to feel that this is becoming involved in politics and we can't do that for fear of losing some of the business, which we now enjoy. We are inclined to go along and forget the biggest business in which we are engaged, that of running our governments, for the small business in which we are actually engaged.

Yet if we had an expense in connection with our own business that we could reduce we would be vitally interested in that. If we had an employe not producing we would want to replace that employe. If we had an extra employe we did not actually need we would quickly reduce this phase of our overhead expense.

Taxes are a part of that overhead cost. We have to pay out extra taxes every year because we refuse to take an interest in our governmental affairs.

But by becoming interested and active in our governmental affairs we could reduce part of our tax bill. When we do that we actually are reducing our overhead costs.

It might not be possible to reduce the tax bill, but it is always possible to increase the economy and efficiency of our government's operations. And that means a saving.

But as good, loyal American citizens we need to become more interested in governmental affairs. We need to know more about the operation of our city, our schools, our county, our state, and our nation. We need to be informed and posted on these matters. And as good citizens and good business people we know this is just good business.

Because the fact still remains, as the United States Chamber of Commerce has pointed out repeatedly, that the government is the biggest business in which we are engaged as American citizens.—O.E.P.

We Just Complain

MOST OF THE PEOPLE in this world have trouble and problems of their own and they are not too much interested in our problems.

Despite this fact, however, most of us go around complaining and are of the opinion that we have more troubles than anyone else in the world. This, of course, is not true.

The fact is that many of the troubles we have are of our own creation and in comparison with others they are minor affairs. We can always look about to find others with greater problems than we have encountered.

But we don't think much about the other fellow. Even when tragedy strikes and strikes hard we are inclined to overlook the matter and forget it. If that tragedy strikes in our own home we become very much concerned. We are usually convinced it is the greatest tragedy, which ever came to anyone.

Recently we saw an outstanding example of those, who knew that the problems of others were greater than theirs. These people had suffered a great loss; their father had died. He was honored and respected and loved in that community.

About the same time tragedy struck in a home in that community. A father was burned to death rescuing his two children, who were badly burned in an explosion.

Those, who had lost their father; those who had tragedy, sorrow, and grief in their own home, were the first to think of the home which had suffered a greater loss. The daughters of that father, who had died, were among the first to visit those fatherless children so badly burned in the hospital.

They had learned that there are always greater tragedies occurring to other folks than the ones, which visited their home.

They knew there was more sorrow and grief for others than had come to them. How many of us have learned this lesson? How many of us can have such an attitude when sorrow and grief comes to us?

Few, we are afraid, But regardless of how unfortunate we may be, but to look about and we can see that others with greater sorrows and others have suffered O.E.P.

More Game Animals

WE HAVE NOTED with interest that Dr. Roy Webb of Pampa, head of the Texas Wildlife Federation, has suggested the importation of gazelles to the Southwest as a game animal, which thrives in desert country.

It was his suggestion that the game departments of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, and Nevada might go together in making arrangements for obtaining some of the fleet-footed Asiatic antelope.

Dr. Webb pointed out that gazelles have been planted in New Zealand, where they are doing well and providing game for the sportsmen.

Gazelles thrive in their native Iran and Iraq, where forage is scarce. They multiply well, and doe bringing one to three fawns each year. And it is said they can live where our American pronghorn antelope cannot.

We rather like the idea set forth by Dr. Webb, one of the leading authorities on game in the Southwest.

They could be planted in areas other than those in which antelope are being raised and protected and they would provide more hunting sport in the states having desert conditions. Furthermore, from what we can learn, they would provide some mighty good eating as well.

It is our suggestion that State Game Warden Elliott S. Barker and members of the State Game Commission kick the idea around a bit and feel out other commissions or departments in the five-state area, possibly leading to the importation of gazelles.—A.L.B.

We Want Margarine

WE HAVE NEVER TASTED oleo, margarine, or oleomargarine—whatever you choose to call it—that was rancid. We like the taste of it. We believe it is a food product, rich in fats, vitamins, and minerals.

We do not dislike butter, but we have certainly tasted it time and again when it was rancid, even to the point of being distasteful.

The battle for yellow margarine is on the ramp again and all signs seem to favor repeal of the margarine tax, which is as unjust as any tax in the United States.

Margarine is just as natural a food as gelatin, enriched flour, or any other manufactured food product, none of which is taxed.

We will admit that gelatin does not compete with such a "natural" food product as butter, but it certainly takes a bit more doing than mere agitation of a body fluid to produce it, the same as margarine.

We in the Pecos Valley, where we produce corned beef, one of the principal sources of margarine, certainly should stand shoulder to shoulder with the margarine industry in the fight to permit margarine—colored or white—to be marketed on an equal basis with butter.

Consumers like margarine for the delicious, nutritious, and economical product that it is. They want yellow margarine. And we hope they get it.—A.L.B.

Checks Still Bounce

HOT CHECKS STILL BOUNCE. They not only still bounce but they are still being written and they are still being accepted and cashed by those, who should not accept them.

And they will continue to be written and passed just as long as we as business and professional people continue to accept these worthless checks.

The quickest way to halt this cashing and taking of checks, which bounce or which are worthless, is for us to refuse to cash checks unless we personally know the writer of the check or the endorser of the check.

It is true, of course, that frequently people become angry if someone refuses to take or accept their check. And there may be times, of course, when they do have bank accounts and when their checks are good. That, however, does not give them the right or the cause to become angry when merchants and business people refuse to take their checks.

Checks, of course, are a convenience and there is no reason why they should be accepted either in payment for bills or for merchandise.

When someone refuses to accept our check we should know the experience these people have and we should realize that after all they have a perfect right to expect money for their merchandise. And if they want the cash there is every right why they should request cash.

The law, of course, provides punishment for those writing and passing worthless checks. But even if the guilty individual is caught and punished this does not return the money to the one, who cashed the bad check. And in far too many instances that individual, who passed the bad check is out and gone before they can be caught.

But we as business and professional people can halt and stop the passing of bad checks when we just refuse to accept checks from those we know are issuing bad checks or when we do not know whether the check is good.

After all the refusing to accept a check, which we do not know whether it is good or bad, is merely protecting ourselves.—O.E.P.

the guard as more and more equipment is being received.
 The unit now has practically all of the equipment needed except for the 40-millimeter AA guns that are due in any day.
 A new building is to be constructed on the National Guard property facing Centre Avenue just west of Roselawn avenue. It is to be approximately 50 feet wide and 126 feet long of concrete blocks and concrete floor. The addition of this building will greatly aid the unit in suitable storage space for equipment and provide a convenient meeting place. Another, larger building will be built in the future, which will be the main armory building.

 Since the recognition of Battery C Nov. 2, 1947, this battery has come a long way toward achieving the goal set by the National Guard Bureau. That is training the citizen soldiers so that in the time of a national emergency, they will be able to enter the field fully trained and equipped.
 The guard is set up so that those citizens who cannot spend full time training in the Regular Army may obtain that training and still live at home. These men are giving of their free time to meet once a week and train together as a unit. They are preparing themselves so that in the event their country is threatened they will be ready and willing to protect those things they hold close to their hearts.
 It is an unselfish attitude a man possesses who will give two hours a week and two weeks each summer for the protection of his country.
 There are those, who by joining the Regular Army, would create a hardship on their families. The guard is "made" for them. It need not be said that a man cannot benefit his country because he cannot enlist in the Army. For those men, the National Guard is the answer.
 It is the attitude of some that to stay out of the service in any form is the best way. This is wrong from the bottom up. A man will pride himself that he is the protector of his family. Should a man not pride himself just as much in the knowledge that is of vital interest not only to his family but to everyone? Too many men live in such a small world that they cannot see beyond their front porch.
 The time given is not "free," for each man is paid for each drill and each summer camp. Equipment is issued to him and schools are provided for those who wish to attend. A young man, during summer or after graduation, may attend one of many Army schools located in different parts of the United States, all expenses paid, and a "salary" is paid them while they are attending. After completion of the course, they return home as civilians again and take their places in the unit and community. It is a wise man who will ask questions about the guard, its possibilities for advancement, and education. For that extra spending money, for fellowship and training while living at home, investigate the National Guard. The recruiting sergeant is on duty Monday through Friday at the armory. Ask any member of the unit. They joined, why don't you?

are said to be of special interest to agricultural audiences.
 One of the films, "This Heritage of Ours," features the great episodes in the growth of America where freedom has always been a sacred heritage. In a dramatic way, it takes the audience on a tour of places that now live in history, including many made famous by the Oregon Trail, the Mormon Trail, the camp where gold was discovered in '49, and the Alamo, where a handful of brave men fought a great battle for freedom. This film also stresses the part agriculture has played in making America the great nation it is.

 The second film, "Reasons for the Seasons," is a story of the seasons, why they occur, and how they affect the lives of all living things on earth. This film is of particular interest to farmers who depend so much on the seasons for their livelihood. Colorful sequences also show how the modern farmer with the help of modern machinery is able to cope more effectively with the demands made by the seasons on him and his work wherever he may live.
 In announcing the showing of these films, which are scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock, M. L. Werley, owner, declared the program that has been prepared will include other events certain to be enjoyed by the entire family.

More than 800,000 known insects in the world have been classified—that is, named. But scientists believe that there are actually between two and three million different kinds of insects.

Local Implement Dealer To Show Colorful Movies

A colorful program which will include the showing of two feature films in color and sound has been arranged for farmers and their families in this community on Monday, Jan. 31, sponsored by the Artesia Implement & Supply Company, local Minneapolis-Moline farm machinery dealer, and will be held in the building at 808 South First Street.

Special invitations have been mailed out by the local dealer to farmers in this area inviting them to bring their families and their friends to enjoy the program which according to the sponsor, promises to be a gala event. The two movies

USDA Urges High Production Of Milk Per Cow

A goal of 120 billion pounds of milk for 1949, established in the face of dwindling cow numbers in the United States will require the nation's dairy farmers to boost the average milk production of their cows to an all-time high this year. U. S. Department of Agriculture officials said this week. Cow numbers are now the lowest since 1930. The average production of the 23,200,000 cows milked on farms in 1948 was about 5020 pounds. Even if the number of cows remains the same, average production will have to be increased to about 5170, or an increase of 150 pounds of milk per cow, if the 1949 production goal is to be met. In many herds such an increase could easily be accomplished by better feeding.

Since grain feeds are now more plentiful and cheaper in relation to milk prices than they have been for some time, heavier grain feeding is one of the measures recommended by the Bureau of Dairy Industry. On the average, less than a half pound of extra grain per cow per day would be needed to get the extra 150 pounds of milk, according to the dairy specialists.

While grain can now be fed somewhat more liberally, dairy farmers are also urged to give attention to the production of high-quality roughage. Good hay, silage, and pasturage are always essential for the most profitable milk production. Better methods of handling the pastures and hay crops would increase both the yield and the feeding value of the forage, the dairy specialists say.

Eggs And Cheese Head Plentiful List Of Foods

Eggs and cheese head the list of foods which the U. S. Department of Agriculture foresees as plentiful on markets generally throughout the country in February. The flush season of egg production usually begins in February and prices next month are expected to be well below those of early winter. As for cheese, the unusually large stocks of nearly all manufactured dairy products accumulating in recent months have led to sharp drops in prices at a time when they usually rise.

The abundant vegetables listed for February are cabbage, carrots, spinach, Irish potatoes, and onions, as well as dried beans and peas, canned corn, and canned peas in the lower grades.

Fruits expected to be plentiful next month include: fresh oranges, lemons or grapefruit as well as canned citrus juices; winter pears; dried prunes and raisins, and canned cranberries.

Other plentiful items to note for February food shopping are the still plentiful pecans, honey, peanut butter, fresh and frozen fish, oat products, and corn products.

Electric Power On Farms Used By More People

More rural people used more electric power for more purposes during 1948 than in any previous year, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

Figures released by the Rural Electrification Administration, based on operating reports from REA-borrowers for the first nine months of the year, show that use of electricity along REA-financed rural electric lines increased on an average of 15.1 per cent per consumer during the year. The number of consumers served by REA borrowers was almost one-fourth greater.

Practically all of the REA estimates showed new records established during 1948. REA-financed systems in operation, owned and operated by local rural people, reached 852, an increase of 41. A total of 54 others had received loans, but were not yet in service. The operating systems added 147,000 miles of line and 469,000 consumers during the year, bringing the totals to 750,000 miles in operation and 2,515,000 consumers getting service.

The production of felt hats in the U. S. used about one percent of the wool consumed in the nation.

Meat Production Is To Be About Same As 1948

Prospects for hog production and slaughter indicate that total U. S. meat production in '49 may be about the same as that of last year, says the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

"More pork in '49 may be just about offset by less beef and lamb," the Bureau points out. "But more

Good Feed, Care Mean Long-Wearing Alfalfa Well-Nourished Plants Resist Winter Killing

A deep, long-wearing carpet of alfalfa on rolling fields is a matter of liming, keeping the soil's dinner pail well filled with phosphate and potash and following pasture management methods that prevent premature "baldness."

Alfalfa will have a long life if it is well fed and cared for. When the plants are well nourished they are hardier and better able to resist diseases and winter killing. They will anchor their roots firmer and establish healthier, thicker growth above ground.

Like other deep-rooted legumes, alfalfa takes large helpings of phosphate and potash out of the soil. Agronomists recommend that heavy amounts of fertilizer carrying these nutrients be applied at the time of seeding.

The life of alfalfa can be prolonged and yields increased by top-dressing with phosphate or potash in the spring or fall. Tests at state agricultural experiment stations have shown that applications of 300 to 600 pounds or more per acre have been beneficial.

Good pasture management means going easy on grazing until stands are well established. It is wise to follow a rotation plan so cows will move from one field to another, before the pasture is grazed down to the ground. By this system the pasture will have a chance to renew itself while cows are on other fields.

of the beef will be of the better grades, as cattle feeding source of the better beef—promises to be larger this winter than it was last year.

The fall pig crop of about 34 million pigs turned out to be the larg-

Lower Support Prices, Goals Set For Potatoes

Lower support prices and lower goals for 1949 early potatoes have been announced by the U. S. department of agriculture.

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan said the low parity price had been set with extreme reluctance, and should not be regarded as a precedent for other commodities. The goal for 1949, as usual, will be broken down to counties and individual farms.

Reverse Irrigation

When it comes to moisture some farmers have a two-fold problem. For occasionally it is necessary to remove excess moisture from a wet part of a farm while irrigating adjoining dry area at the same time. Such actually is the case on a Virginia farm.

The story behind this southern farmer's problem is simple: His irrigated land was producing satisfactorily—but the low, wet acreage adjacent to it was wholly unproductive. The solution to making both areas equally productive also proved simple. Here's what was done:

No change was made in the irrigation serving the high, dry land. The low land, however, received an "irrigation in reverse" treatment.

First of all a ditch was dug across the area so that the excess moisture would drain into it. Then a vertical type centrifugal pump, as shown in the accompanying illustration, was located at the roadside end of the ditch. With this arrangement, the farmer got practically automatic results.

Drainage from the low land is pumped out as rapidly as it accumulates in the ditch. But the moisture isn't wasted. It flows into a creek which supplies water needed for the more orthodox irrigation system serving the farmer's drier acres. Now, he reports, the formerly neglected wet land is producing on a par with the irrigated acres.

U. S. population was compared since 1945; and an indicated crop this spring of 56.5 million pigs would be the largest spring crop since 1943 and the third largest on record. This promising spring crop is based on farmers' farrowing plans as reported to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, counting on an average number of pigs per litter.

New Mexico Extension Service Assists 16,000 Families In 1948

One of every two of New Mexico's 32,000 farm families used help in 1948 from the New Mexico Extension Service in learning about and using better methods of farming, marketing, and homemaking, and meeting a variety of other problems of rural life, according to Dr. H. R. Varney, extension director.

In addition to the farm people directly helped, more than 4066 non-farm families used educational help from the New Mexico Extension Service in doing a better job in gardening, food preservation, clothing the family, and other fields of family living.

The rural people reached by the Extension Service included 8013 4-H boys and girls in 354 community clubs. Through the 4-H program they worked during the year towards "Creating Better Homes Today for a More Responsible Citizenship Tomorrow." These boys and girls raised 230 acres of gardens, demonstrated the growing of food crops on a total of 7350 acres, produced 3471 head of livestock, and raised about 12,275 chickens and other poultry. They also conserved 16,302 quarts of fruits, vegetables, and meats.

Through the work with farmers and rural women and young people, improved methods of crop and livestock production, marketing, and soil conservation were introduced to 15,951 farms and better homemaking practices adopted in 6617 homes.

This educational program was conducted as a co-operative undertaking of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, New Mexico A. & M. College, county and local governments, and local organizations. It was carried on by 63 agricultural and home economics workers, most of whom were county extension agents located in every county of agricultural importance. A total of 624 rural men, women, and older boys and girls served as unpaid volunteer local leaders in carrying on the work in their communities.

In achieving these results, the county extension agents made 30,608 farm visits. More than 71,070 people came to the agents' offices for information and advice. Through nearly 3032 meetings with 48,996 in attendance, 175,000 copies of agricultural bulletins, news stories, radio talks, circular letters, exhibits, and many other channels, the agents helped people to meet their local problems of better farming and homemaking.

"Extension's job is to carry the full weight of science to the farm," Varney says, "not only to carry it there, but to help the people apply it to field, home, and market place. This is education in its full practical sense."

Premiums For Wool Show To Total $1000

Premiums amounting to $1000 in cash prizes and awards will be offered to winners at the 10th annual Wool Show, sponsored by the New Mexico Wool Growers Association, at the Hilton Hotel in Albuquerque Feb. 8 and 9.

Cash prizes for winners will be $650, and in addition there will be 26 cups, a trophy, and a wool blanket, worth a total of $350.

The show will be divided into four sections: Fleeces from sheep run under pasture or foot loose under net wire fences; fleeces shown from sheep run under herd, fleeces from registered sheep, and fleeces in the Junior Wool Show. Classes in each of these sections will be based on grade, age of sheep and sex.

Approximately 60 growers will exhibit 150 fleeces in the open classes in the show. The fleeces, which will be on display on the mezzanine floor of the hotel, will be judged Feb. 7 by a committee of three—a wool grower, a buyer, and a technician.

Something new has been added to this year's show as another educational feature: Fine-wool ewe fleeces from pasture sheep will be divided into spinning count classes of 80's and above, 70's and 64's. Small locks have been drawn from the side of each fleece for cross-sectioning to determine the spinning count.

The clean weight will be listed on the entry tag along with the grease weight, division, and class in which the fleece is shown. An information card, showing the value of fleece on the Boston market, will be attached to the fleece after the judging has been completed.

Another feature which is new in this year's show is the sweepstakes class, made up of entries composed of one ram fleece, two ewe fleeces, and two yearling or lamb fleeces. Eight growers have entries in this class and will compete for the large engraved cup which will be given to the winner.

To provide premium money, the New Mexico Wool Growers Association is offering 35 five-pound wool blankets for sale at the convention. There will also be a large number of displays related to the sheep and wool industry in New Mexico.

Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman and manager of the show, says "I feel that this year's wool show will be the best that we have ever had and would like to encourage wool growers and others interested to make plans early to attend."

Dr. Howard Snyder, head of the Highlands department of music, is working with NMMEA president, Mrs. Gillian Buchanan of Portales, and C. M. Stookey of Portales, secretary-treasurer, in completing the arrangements on the campus. Members of the organization in charge of specific units include: William Rhodes, Alamogordo, band; E. K. Oshel, Deming, orchestra; Miss Leonore Shafer, Roswell, chorus; and Mrs. Minnie Dee Weaver, Deming, public school music.

Miss Jan Crossley Becomes Bride Of Bert Shipp Friday Afternoon

Miss Jan Crossley of Artesia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Crossley of Loco Hills, became the bride of Bert Shipp, son of Mrs. Anna Shipp of Artesia, at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church of Hagerman. Rev. Mahone Ramsey performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a white dress with gold accessories and carried a colonial bridal bouquet. For the traditional something old, she wore a coin from Manila, belonging to Roy Jones. Something borrowed was a white Bible belonging to Miss Ray Dean Berry, something blue was the streamers on her bouquet, and her dress served as something new.

Roy Jones was the only attendant of the couple. Others attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Crossley and Joe Gilbert.

The bride received her high school education in the Artesia and Los Angeles, Calif. schools. Prior to her marriage, she was employed by the Cox Motor Company.

The bridegroom received his education in the Artesia schools. He was sports reporter for The Advocate when in high school and also editor of the school paper in his senior year. He is now editor of the Valley News at Hagerman, prior to which he was employed at The Advocate on the advertising staff.

After a short wedding trip to Ruidoso, the couple will make their home in Artesia.

Mayfield Speaks At Loco Hills P.T.A. Meeting

"Education Is Your Business" was the topic used by Tom Mayfield, superintendent of schools, when he spoke to the Loco Hills Parent-Teacher Association, which met at Loco Hills School Friday night.

"The administration of the schools of New Mexico is big business," the speaker said. "The outstanding needs at the present time are covered by the six bills in the state reorganization program." Superintendent Mayfield asked a careful consideration of these bills to be presented to the State Legislature and support of the bonds that will mean a new junior high building, as anything done for the upper grade benefits the children.

The P.T.A. voted to endeavor to establish a milk program in the school, and a committee consisting of Mrs. Ora McCann, Sam Beal, and Mrs. Earl Smith was appointed to work with Vernon Mills, elementary supervisor, toward this end. Announcement was made of a benefit bridge and "42" party to be held at the teachers' Friday, Feb. 11, to raise funds to further this project.

Rev. J. Roy Haynes dismissed the group with a prayer, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Pie, coffee, and hot chocolate were served.

Miss Katherine Coppinger had charge of the nursery. The next P.T.A. meeting will be at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, Feb. 18.

Women's Group Of Presbyterian Church Meets

Mrs. Ralph O'Dell, Mrs. James Mulcock, and Mrs. Tom Donnelly entertained the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church at the manse last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. J. A. Fairey, president, announced plans had been completed for a public enchilada supper to be given at the Presbyterian Church, Friday, Feb. 18.

Mrs. V. L. Allen gave the devotionals and Luther E. Sharpe addressed the group during the program hour, which closed with a prayer by Rev. Ralph O'Dell.

The hostesses served refreshments to 17 members and five guests. The next meeting will be held in the church parlors, Thursday, Feb. 3.

'Pinocchio' To Be Presented On Friday Afternoon

The Clare Tree Major Children's Theater of New York will present a performance of "Pinocchio" on the stage of the high school auditorium at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon for children of school age.

This "Pinocchio" that the youngsters are awaiting so eagerly is no animated cartoon, but the real, mischievous little wooden boy come to life exactly as his creator describes him in his famous story.

Old Geppetto will be on hand with his carpenter's tools and his warm heart; the circus ringmaster and the blue fairy, fire eater, and the cat and the fox. They will help make Pinocchio happy, to make him sad, to teach him right, to teach him wrong. He is pulled this way and that in his lively adventures.

And, as always in a Clare Tree Major production, along with the color, enchantment, hearty laughs, and an occasional tear here and there in each swift-moving scene, there will be the usual subtle reminder to the youngsters in the audience to watch their "P's" and "Q's."

"Pinocchio" is being sponsored here by the Story League, Parent-Teacher Association and the Girl Scout organization. No single admission tickets will be sold at the door. Members of the committee are selling all remaining tickets at the schools today.

Miss Prutzman Is Bride Of Mr. Haughtaling

Mrs. O. W. Roberts has just announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Nona Belle Prutzman, to Harold Noriss Haughtaling at the First Presbyterian Church at 8:45 o'clock Monday night, Jan. 17. Rev. Ralph O'Dell, pastor, read the marriage vows.

For her wedding ensemble, the bride chose a dressmaker suit of pale blue wool with black accessories. Her corsage was an orchid. For the traditional something old, she carried a handkerchief her mother carried at her own wedding.

Something borrowed was a strand of pearls belonging to her mother. Her ensemble was both something new and blue. She wore an old English coin in her shoe for good luck.

The bride's only attendant was Mildred Crusinbery. Miss Crusinbery wore an aqua crepe dress with brown accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations. The bridegroom was attended by Ray Broocke.

Only close friends and members of both families attended the wedding.

Miss Haughtaling received her education in Beaumont and Orange, Texas, and graduated from Artesia High School in 1946. The bridegroom was reared in Artesia and received his schooling here.

After a short wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the newlyweds are at home in Artesia.

Mr. Haughtaling is engaged in farming and trucking in the Cottonwood community.

Lakewood Club Is Entertained Here By Mrs. R. C. Gray

The Lakewood Extension Club was entertained by Mrs. R. C. Gray at King's Rest Courts last Thursday.

Informal visiting and a social hour were enjoyed, then the meeting was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Raymond Netherlin. Mrs. Tom Price took up her duties as secretary-treasurer.

After the current business was taken care of, Miss Wynona Sweptson, county home demonstration agent, gave interesting information on how to combat insects that are household pests.

Those present were Mmes. Roy Angell, R. L. House, Forrest Lee, Raymond Netherlin, Tom Price, R. T. Schenck, and M. A. Sinclair, and Misses Rosemary Hicks and Wynona Sweptson.

St. Louis Woman Holds Christian Education Clinic

Miss Ida Mae Irvin of St. Louis, for a number of years employed in the Department of Religious Education of the United Christian Missionary Society, held a Christian education clinic at the First Christian Church Wednesday through Friday.

First Meeting Of High P.T.A. Is Successful

The first meeting of the newly organized High School Parent-Teacher Association, which proved to be a great success, was at the high school library Tuesday night.

A highlight of the program was a report from Mrs. V. P. Sheldon on the signing of petitions of the bond issue on the new junior high school building. She said the results have been very heartening. A call for volunteer solicitors was made and a fine response was given.

Rev. R. L. Willingham, pastor of the First Methodist Church, spoke on "The Family." He reminded the parents and teachers that the family is the primary institution of human society where children are born, reared, and taught. The home is the background of building the children's personality. All other institutions, such as the church and school, are effective only as they contribute to the welfare of the home.

After the talk, an interesting discussion was held, in which the parents and teachers agreed that more attention should be given to the youth in preparation for marriage and parenthood, much of which is already being done in the schools. The greatest need is the awakening of parents, it was said.

There were about 35 parents and teachers present. The next meeting will be Wednesday, Feb. 8.

TO OUR DEAR FRIENDS:

We wish to thank each and every one of you for your unforgettable acts of kindness and sympathy to us in the recent loss of our home by fire. Such hearts as yours have indeed helped us through this trying time and we will ever be grateful.—Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Partlow, Melvin and Melba. 4-1p

A million more neighbors

Telephone service everywhere has expanded by leaps and bounds since the end of the war—and nowhere has the growth been faster than in rural areas.

The rural telephone expansion program actually ahead of schedule, for the Bell System's five-year postwar goal of adding one million rural telephones has already been reached—in little more than three years.

Every telephone added, whether in city, town or on a farm, means one more "neighbor" for every telephone user.

It is our objective in 1949 to bring service to more and more people, not only in rural areas but everywhere—and to improve the service for all.

THEY TAKE THE BLUE OUT OF MONDAY

A COMPLETE, modern electric home laundry not only takes the "blue" out of Monday, it's apt to take most of the work out of the proverbial "wash day."

With an electric home laundry in your home, you'll find yourself putting clothes to wash and dry, or ironing them whenever it's convenient... you won't be tied down any more by "wash day" or by a pile of ironing.

Washing's done automatically while you go about your other house work. Put the damp clothes in your dryer, and forget about them until you take them out, as dry and clean smelling as if they'd been on a "line" for hours. Then, you'll find it just a few minutes' work to go through an ironing with an efficient electric ironer.

See your appliance dealer soon about the advantages of an electric home laundry of your own.
