Open House At Continental Plant To Be Wednesday

It seems that John J. Francis of Glendale, Calif., who contributed to these columns while here visiting his brother, Lee Francis, and has sent in more articles since, is still traveling around the country, giving his impressions about front pages and other matters.

"I don't know much about front pages," he admits, "except that I've read a lot of 'em. However—"

"This is universally true about the front page: For the woman reader, she will scan the top headline, then she will flip the paper without unfolding it and scan the bottom of the front page. Do you know what she is looking for? A current heart-throb item. And it had better be there. This item helps the woman reader through her morning pile of dirty dishes.

"Here is a typical headline item in small type: 'Bigamist Tries All, Then Ends Life.' Women like this. You will get 100 per cent woman reader reaction from this item.

"And now for your man reader: He will scan the top headlines. Then he will flip the paper without opening it and scan the bottom half of the front page. His eyes stop on this: 'Amazed Farmer Watches as Lost Bull Saunters Into Street Auction and Is Sold.' He will stand and read this item on the spot, then put the paper in his hip pocket, go pay all the bills he owes, and buy his wife a new hat, and then go home and finish his paper.

"In small communities, always keep national and local crop conditions on the front page... such as 'Cotton Up.'

"As for pictures, I like them. And my favorites are men and women with big open-faced smiles and huge laughs.

"Maybe John has something there. However, in the smaller communities bigamy stories are quite rare. But you can rarely always find a bull story on the front page.

In a personal postscript, John mentioned something that brings on a tinge of nostalgia. "Yesterday," he said, "I had cream of potato soup with fried trout dinner. It has been several years since I was served potato soup."

"We know what John means, for although we have potato soup occasionally at home, it has nearly become something of the past, such as mush and milk, fried tomatoes and potato pancakes.

Last week was an important one in the lives of two fine young Artesia couples, both of whom observed their wedding anniversaries—golden! Judge and Mrs. Arba Green celebrated on Wednesday and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. (Pearley) George on Saturday. May they have many more!

We noticed in Friday's issue of The Advocate that the Safeway ad was offering "dressed and drawn fresh hams for 59 cents a pound." Personally, we like our hams that way and our hens well smoked.

Francie (Mrs. Charles E.) Collier informs us that upon investigation of a noise the other night, in which the Collier dog was involved, it was found a porcupine had invaded the yard. But porcupines are more plentiful here than many people realize. They are found not only in the mountains, but in some of the draws and arroyos along which there are some trees.

The dog was not badly injured, but he'll bet he learned a lesson.

When the Artesia firemen, weary after two big alfalfa barn fires, arrived on the job Saturday morning and found the cause of the current alarm was a fire in the city garbage truck, one of their number remarked:

"Well, that ain't hay!"

We have just learned that Harrison Carroll, author of some of the syndicated material now appearing in The Advocate, is Mrs. J. D. Jossey's half-brother. Sorta like having folks on the staff.

Speaking of typographical errors, which we weren't, we understand a guest in one of the Artesia cafes found a button in his soup the other day and called it to the attention of the waiter.

"Oil Progress Week," being observed nationally Oct. 16-22 turns the petroleum spotlight on Continental Oil Company's Artesia refinery and bulk warehouse properties, where open house for residents of Artesia and the surrounding area will be held Wednesday.

Open house will be held at Continental's Artesia refinery and bulk warehouse from 10 to 4 o'clock.

"Continental Oil Company, in existence 75 of the 90 years of rich history of petroleum's progress in America, is happy to swing wide its doors in open house observance Wednesday and we heartily invite the people of this area to visit our facilities," said E. E. Gillespie, refinery superintendent.

Guides will be furnished to welcome and conduct visitors through the refinery and light refreshments will be served.

"Continental Oil Company, an integral part of Artesia, originated only 15 years after oil was discovered in the United States and therefore lack but a few years of being completely contemporary with the entire span of oil in America," Gillespie said. "For that reason, Continental is proud to be host at its manufacturing properties in this area, as well as at its properties elsewhere over the nation.

"In observing the 19th anniversary of the first well drilled for oil in the United States at Titusville, Pa., in 1859, the nation can look back to 90 years of progress, not only in the oil industry but in 90 years of America's greatest progress.

"The petroleum industry has contributed to the nation's progress by making possible more than 1200 useful products, by producing fuel and lubricants for machinery and vehicles that keep America going. It has developed products for the (Continued last page, this section)

Weaker Tigers Defeat Bulldogs 18-6 At Alamogordo On Friday

The Artesia Bulldogs, who a week earlier had smeared the Clovis Wildcats, 40-7, went down to defeat Friday at the hands of the weaker Tigers at Alamogordo 18-6.

Also on Friday the Artesia Bulldogs dropped a game, but gave a good account of themselves at Ruidoso, where the varsity squad of Mountaineers blanked them 24-0. Although the Ruidoso team is not rated in the "A" teams of the state, it was the first time the Bulldogs had met any other than a "B" or junior team.

Game statistics all summed up for an Artesia victory, but the Bulldogs lacked the punch necessary to win the game. Fans who saw the game said it is probable the Bulldogs were still smarting from the lashing given them and Head Football Coach Jack Tinson Sunday of last week in The Clovis News-Journal by Bern Gantner, sports editor, who accused them of "rough stuff" and the coach of instigating it.

Some of the Bulldogs themselves admitted they were afraid of the impression Gantner's writing left that hard hitting and blocking might be misinterpreted as "rough stuff," resulting in excessive penalties.

But the statistics showed the Bulldogs made 12 first downs to four for Alamogordo, all in the first half.

The Bulldogs attempted 21 passes, of which seven were completed and two were intercepted, one for a touchdown, while the Tigers attempted three, of which none was completed and one was intercepted by Artesia. Nevertheless the Bulldogs were out-charged and out-fought.

Bulldogs Junie Russell's kickoff was taken by Bob Fritz on the Alamogordo five and was run back to the

'Braceros' Are Bypassing Artesia Stores And Sending 'Dinero' Home

The "braceros" are sending home most of their money and are not spending it in Artesia stores as freely as in some past years.

Although many hundreds of dollars went into Artesia tills over the week end from the pockets of the Mexican nationals and some are spending every day, they seem in general to be spending here less freely.

So many were waiting their turn in the Artesia post office Saturday to send off money orders, it was nearly impossible to reach any of the windows. And others were sending money home to Chihuahua by Western Union.

Three and sometime four lines were in evidence at the post office Saturday—some of them double lines— with nearly as crowded a condition there Monday.

Postmaster Jess Truett said it had been necessary to put on extra help and the force might have to be increased further, in order to accommodate both the "braceros" and the local patrons seeking domestic postal money orders.

Most of what money the Mexicans are spending in Artesia is going for food—for they must eat. But the majority of them seemed to be wearing better clothing than those in previous years, so the clothing stores are not enjoying the brisk business they had anticipated during the cotton picking season.

Some observers attribute this to the fact the "braceros" were recruited at Chihuahua City through an agreement with the Mexican government, whereas great care is being exercised not to obtain the services of "wetbacks" who have flocked here in past years from all parts of Mexico and who are generally of a less stable class of workers.

The "braceros" who are processed in both Mexico and the United States and who must be accounted for, seem for the most part to be a better class, who are here to make some money for their families.

However, there are plenty of bad "hombres" among them and some of the cotton farmers have been having trouble.

One affair which came to the attention of officers was a little cutting affair on the Russell Rogers place Sunday night. It seems one of the "braceros" who had come to town, was charged by another one with having appropriated some of his money and that when the first returned to the farm, the second did a little carving on him.

As a result of the affair, the one who was cut was sewed back together at Artesia Municipal Hospital and four of the workers were taken to the Eddy County jail in Carlsbad by Sheriff Dwight Lee.

But for the most part, the "braceros" (Continued last page, this section)

Loss In Second Hay Barn Fire $25,000 Including 700 Tons

About 700 tons of baled alfalfa hay belonging to the Artesia Alfalfa Growers Association was destroyed by fire Friday night in a $25,000 blaze, which wiped out the large storage barn at the W. Leslie Martin dehydrating plant two miles north of Artesia.

It was the second large loss of hay by fire in the Artesia community within 48 hours. The previous fire was Wednesday night of last week on the C. R. Sharp farm northeast of Artesia, where about 200 tons of hay, a large barn and some farm machinery and equipment were lost.

The greatest loss in the Friday night fire was suffered by the association in the destruction of the 700 tons of hay, valued at approximately $14,000. However, insurance was carried on the hay.

Martin estimated his loss at about $10,000, including the destruction of the big storage barn, sacking house and some machinery. He said the loss would be covered about 80 per cent by insurance.

George Stockton of Carlsbad, who had the mill leased and was operating it, suffered a loss of about $2000 in hay, sacks and equipment. It was understood he carried no insurance.

Martin's dehydrating plant, removed some feet from the barn, was undamaged. Some of his machinery and equipment including motors, was saved by moving it back from the mill before the fire became too hot.

Likewise part of a carload of hay, which was piled adjacent to the dehydrator was moved and saved. Transformers belonging to the Central Valley Electric Co-operative, Inc., were moved out before the fire forced workmen back. And a boxcar on the Santa Fe was rolled beyond the effects of the fire.

By means of a hose line strung from the Artesia Alfalfa Growers Association dehydrating plant across a sideroad to the south of the Martin plant, a pole belonging to the REA co-operative adjacent to the barn was saved. Early Saturday workmen were removing partially burned but still smouldering hay and sections of sheet metal siding and roofing from around the power line pole, in order it might not be endangered further and knock out the electric line.

The Valley Lumber Company mill and stacks of lumber just north of the Martin plant were not damaged, although they were threatened because of the intense heat.

The fire, which was discovered about 7:15 o'clock Friday night, raged all night and could be seen many miles away. It continued to burn and smoulder throughout Saturday, as flames in the jumble of broken and partially burned bales broke out anew.

'Forget-Me-Not Day' Sales By D.A.V. Total $314

Donald S. Simons Chapter 19, Disabled American Veterans, realized $314.26 Saturday on annual "Forget-Me-Not Day," it was announced by John Simons, Jr., forget-me-not campaign chairman.

This was more than $200 less than the $533.33 which the memory flowers brought in the annual campaign a year ago, giving the chapter a much smaller amount with which to carry on rehabilitation work.

W. H. Ledbetter, commander, expressed the thanks of the committee and chapter to those who contributed to the fund, which was raised through the sale of artificial forget-me-nots on the street by members of the D.A.V. and their wives and high school juniors.

"In behalf of the officials and members of the chapter, I want to thank everyone who purchased a blue flower of remembrance, as well as the others who contributed to our campaign," Commander Ledbetter said.

"We especially want to thank all the people who volunteered their work in selling flowers and soliciting funds for our important work.

"All of the money collected in our forget-me-not drive will be used in this city and area—as it has in all past drives—in the welfare, rehabilitation and service work of our chapter."

Shrine Carnival Is To Be Given Here Next Week

A number of committees of the Artesia Shrine Club are speeding up their work this week in preparation for the fourth annual Shrine carnival, which will be given Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 27-29, in Baish Park, immediately in front of the Veterans Memorial Building.

Part of the equipment used in former years is being repaired and readied for the carnival, while some new equipment is being prepared, so there will be a number of concessions and games with which to raise funds.

The carnival is being given by the club for the benefit of the Masonic Temple building fund.

A feature will be the carnival dance Saturday night, Oct. 29, in the Veterans Memorial Building, for which there has been an advance ticket sale in progress a number of weeks. Tickets are $1 (Continued last page, this section)

Anderson Holds Underground Law On Water Valid

An opinion sustaining the validity of the Underground Water Law of 1931, which affects many farmers and others in the Artesian basin, was signed last week by District Judge C. Roy Anderson of Carlsbad.

As a result, permanent injunctions enjoining defendants in a suit brought by the state from unlawful use of water were to be issued.

Judge Anderson transmitted copies of the opinion to the clerk of the Chaves County District Court in Roswell, where the case was heard and to attorneys in the case.

Defendants in the cases, which were tried some time ago before Judge Anderson, were S. A. Lanning, Jr., Bert Dorthy and Loman Wiley. Lanning is a resident of Eddy County and the other two live (Continued last page this section)

Sgt. Holcomb To Attend Ordnance School In East

Sgt. Jack Holcomb, a member of Battery C, New Mexico National Guard, left Friday to attend the Ordnance School at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md. Sgt. Holcomb will take the instrument repair fire control course.

He has been a member of the National Guard unit since the Nov. 14, 1947 and attended the fire control course at Aberdeen last year. He is expected to complete the course and return to Artesia around Jan. 10.

After Sergeant Holcomb applied for the course, he was accepted with all expenses paid by the government, including transportation to and from Aberdeen. He will receive regular Army pay while in attendance at the school and will receive all the privileges accorded his rank while there.

Sgt. Albert Seals, Jr., recently returned from the Signal Corps School at Camp Gordon, Ga., where he studied radio repair.

At the present, besides Sergeant Holcomb, one other member of the local National Guard unit is attending radio operators course at Camp Gordon, Ga.

He is Cpl. Uel Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hooper. Corporal Fleming has been at school since June 15 and is expected to return in the near future.

There are several other schools open for those men who want to (continued last page this section)

Bat Flight Program At Carlsbad Caverns Is Stopped For Year

The bat flight program of Sunday was the last one scheduled for the 1949 season, it was announced by Acting Superintendent William E. Branch of Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

The increasingly cold temperatures of the last week have resulted in the migration of most of the bats of the colony within Carlsbad Caverns and it is not deemed advisable to encourage visitors to the cave entrance in the evening to see the present poor flights, he said.

During late summer and early fall the bat flights have been spectacular, some rivaling the intense flights of 1941 and 1942. Park officials attribute these good flights to the abundance of night flying insects on which the bats feed, brought on by increased precipitation this year. If heavy precipitation continues through the winter and spring, the flights next summer should again reach spectacular proportions, the acting superintendent said.

State Commander D.A.V. Attends Meet Last Night

Lake J. Frazier, New Mexico department commander of the Disabled American Veterans and mayor of Roswell, was a guest last night at the regular meeting of Donald S. Simons Chapter 19, at the Veterans Memorial Building in Artesia.

He was accompanied by George Deane of Roswell, a worker in the D.A.V. and a past New Mexico department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Among other visitors at the meeting was Ellerton Harmer, national service officer for the D.A.V. in Albuquerque.

It Appears That Gantner Has Intention To Stand By Guns

It appeared on Monday that Bern Gantner, sports editor of The Clovis News-Journal, would stand by his guns—the guns he fired Sunday of last week against Artesia's Head Football Coach Jack Tinson and his Bulldogs—for there had been nothing in his signed column or elsewhere in the Clovis newspaper to the contrary in any subsequent issue through that of Sunday.

As a result of a conference Tuesday of last week, between four Artesia school representatives, three representatives of the Clovis schools and three representatives of The News-Journal, it was thought Gantner would attempt to salvage somewhat the wounds he opened when he lashed the Artesia coach for alleged actions at the Clovis-Artesia game at Clovis Oct. 7.

This newspaper on that day demanded an apology, which Gantner had the privilege of ignoring, of course.

The game in question got out of hand, as far as the officials were concerned and there were numerous penalties against both teams. And at times when Coach Tinson felt decisions on the part of the officials were contrary to the football rules, he protested.

It was somewhat of a hard-hitting game on both sides and more than a dozen Bulldogs came home badly battered. And there were also injuries to Clovis players.

Then in the Sunday issue after the game, Gantner alleged that "Artesia was guilty of starting the rough stuff, no doubt instigated by Bulldog Head Coach Jack Tinson, who kept charging on the field every time an infraction was called against his team, which caused confusion and delay." That was only one of a number of allegations in Gantner's signed column and a by-line story.

Because of the implied or stated charges against Coach Tinson, he, in company with Superintendent Tom Mayfield, Principal T. Stoval and Athletic Director Floyd Davis, went to Clovis Tuesday of last week for a conference. The Artesia men returned home feeling much better about the matter, reporting the meeting quite amicable.

However, Gantner has not come through and it is presumed he took offense at two editorials in The Advocate last Tuesday, which in no way implicated The News-Journal other than as to the sports editor, the Clovis schools or the Clovis community.

In any event, no one has been found who holds the matter against anyone else and many feel sports relationships between Clovis and Artesia will be closer than ever before.

City Cops Attend Pistol Practice On Range Here Monday

Members of the Artesia Police Department attended pistol practice on the department's range at the municipal airport Monday afternoon, in the first of the monthly schools since all officers were instructed by a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation last month.

Chief Earl D. Westfall has announced the department will have its own school every month in order to perfect the shooting ability of its members.

All members of the force qualified at the time of the F.B.I. school instruction, according to standards prescribed by the F.B.I.

Newspaper Talk

IT IS GOING TO TAKE more than newspaper talk and conversation to convince the friends of John (Jack) Tinson, coach of the Artesia High School, that he is a poor sport, doesn't know sportsmanship and that he was altogether responsible for the misunderstandings that grew out of the Artesia-Clovis football game.

The fact is that Coach Tinson's friends in Las Cruces are pointing out that he who points his finger and shouts "poor sportsmanship" perhaps should look in the mirror before he talks too loud.

Friends of Tinson there know what he stands for; what he wants and what he demands in the way of sportsmanship on the part of his players. On the other hand they also know that he won't tolerate his boys being imposed upon or taken advantage of.

And when someone tries to win a football game in the columns of the newspaper—they aren't going to have much luck. Games are played and won on the field. And some of the comment made by "so-called" sports writers who apparently from their own comment indicate they are not qualified to judge a game, it isn't going to affect the situation to any extent.

There are, of course, more important things than winning football games. There are more important things than trying to explain away unfortunate situations that develop because of football games.

We know and everyone else knows that usually when a game becomes too rough that the officials let the game get away from them. We know and everyone else knows that officials can and do make mistakes and oftentimes it is rather difficult to officiate in a grid game.

Apparently the game at Clovis got away from the officials. But the mere fact that a coach defends his boys when he feels they are being imposed on and taken advantage of doesn't justify the comment that was made in the Clovis paper concerning this particular contest.

The fact is that some of the statements made were ridiculous to anyone and if the writer were called upon to prove some of them he would probably find himself in hot water.

Las Cruces had its experience a year ago with some of the situations that prevail in the high school athletics of the state. And she made the mistake of not fighting and fighting hard. She depended on fair play and fair treatment. She didn't receive it.

Artesia can profit from that experience and be proud she has a coach willing to fight for his team, his boys and for his school if that becomes necessary.—O.E.P.

We Want That News

THE MERE FACT THAT now and then you seem to encounter some difficulty in getting your news item in the paper doesn't mean we do not want the item—we do want it. But we also have to have certain deadlines when we can handle the article for the next issue of the paper.

There is far more work connected with getting a news item ready to be printed than most folks realize. And deadlines are set up and we seek to observe them in order for us to handle these details. In most instances after a story is brought in to us it has to be rewritten into the particular style we employ. It must be edited and it must have a head written for it.

After this work is done, it has to go back to the linotype machine to be set in type. This takes time. And when there is considerable copy ahead of it, then it is some time before it can be set.

After it is set in type it has to be proofed and the proof read. The errors marked, these errors set on the linotype machine and then the corrections have to be made—that is the lines of type with errors have to be taken out of the type and the new lines put in their place.

After this has been done, the type is ready to be put in the forms—the pages. But all of this must be done for every story written. It all takes time.

So when you seek to have a story put into the paper after our deadline, this may explain why we can not always do it. But we do want that news item and we want it in the paper. And we urge you to get the copy in at the earliest possible date. It helps us in the work we have to do to get the paper printed.

We not only want that news item about your accident, your new business, about other happenings, but we want the personal items about your visitors, about your neighbor who is ill, about where you have been on a visit.

All of this is news and The Advocate wants it to appear in your local newspaper. Your co-operation is appreciated.—O.E.P.

'Oil Progress Week'

THIS IS "OIL PROGRESS WEEK," a week during which we pause to think about the strides the oil industry has made in the United States since America's first well was brought in during 1859 at Titusville, Pa.

Many people take the oil industry in their stride and think little about it, especially in such communities as this, in which we are knocking elbows with it every day.

Few realize there are 34,000 individual companies which make up the petroleum industry, but that is a fact. And each of the 250,000 service stations in the nation is contributing something to the distribution and use of petroleum products. Besides, there are more than 20,000 independent marketing companies of all sizes playing their vital role in the oil industry.

These days the miracle of oil is taken for granted. But it is more than coincidence that the 90 greatest years of progress America has known are the 90 years since the discovery of oil, for the progressive new industry that was born with the discovery of America's first oil well in 1853 ushered in a new age.

Thanks to oil, Americans live better today, produce more and enjoy more leisure than any other people in the world.

Rivalry has been the key to petroleum's progress, the driving spirit of competition that pays off for all of us in every branch of the industry. Tomorrow's benefits will be even greater.

This rivalry is most noticed at our service stations, where men are on the job to help keep our automobiles and trucks rolling smoothly, helping to keep America moving ahead. This competition for our business results in higher standards of service and brings us better, more efficient oil products.

But this rivalry pays off for us in other branches of the oil business—in research, production, refining, transportation.

All of this sums up into greater comfort, better living and more convenience to all.

Truly, in this, the 90th year of progress in the petroleum industry, oil builds for America's future.—A.L.B.

We Have Permitted It

THE COMPLAINTS are becoming more numerous and becoming louder because of the personal rights and privileges being taken away from American citizens.

We should have started these complaints years and years ago.

We have been losing personal rights and personal privileges for a long time. And the more we permit them, the legislators, state and national, to take away from us the more they are inclined to deny us some of the various kinds and types of legislation.

For a long time now our legislative bodies have been passing and adopting laws for the special few or the favored few or the group with the best group of lobbyists. Legislation is not passed and adopted on the basis of need but rather on the basis of helping the privileged groups.

It depends on what a certain group can do for the politicians, rather than what the people need or want.

But that is our fault. We have permitted this to occur and happen. If the day and time comes we have to secure a special permit to drive our automobile down the road that our tax money has helped to build—then we have no one to blame but ourselves.

We are the folks who have turned our governmental affairs over to the politicians; have neglected to take any interest in what is being done and have devoted our time to our business and to making money.

We are the ones who have been responsible for what happens. We know that people will impose on us and take advantage of us in business, social and personal life. We watch for this and are on our guard and we soon voice our opposition to it.

But we let the politicians do as they please and impose on us in any way they desire and we go along and take it.

They are going to continue to do this and to go just as far as we will permit them to go. They are going to do everything they can to promote their own affairs and to help themselves just as long as we let them run the show.

For some years now the United States Chamber of Commerce has been pleading for business people to take an interest in the biggest business in this nation—their government.

They have emphasized that this is their business—the people's—and they should become interested and participate in the business of their government.

But our attitude has been that we are in business so we can't afford to participate in politics. We are afraid we might make someone mad; we might lose a customer; or we might lose a sale.

And that attitude on our part has meant we played right into the hands of the politicians and perhaps we should say the crooked politicians. All politicians are not crooked, but there are far too many involved in politics whose only interest is the serving of their own group and benefitting themselves.

But we as a people, as a county, as a state and a nation can change all of this when we are willing to accept our responsibilities and our duties as citizens. We can change all of this when we go to the polls and ballot; when we elect only honest and efficient qualified individuals to administer our public affairs.

But we are going to have to do it. Someone else is not going to do it for us. We, the citizens of our city, our county, our state and our nation are going to have to restore honesty to public office and demand a repeal of the laws passed to favor the privileged few and see that future legislation be passed for the good of the people.

The power to restore honesty to office rests in our hands—do we exercise that power?—O.E.P.

Black eyes are possessed by the clever, witty persons, says a writer. Or by the fellow who is slow at ducking.

As Artesia Grows

—TWENTY YEARS AGO—

(From The Advocate files for Oct. 24, 1929)

The first killing frost of the season was last night when the temperature ran down to 27 degrees. The frost followed in the wake of a cold wave that struck here yesterday.

A new cotton picker, known as the American cotton picker, recently received by L. P. Evans, attracted a great amount of attention in a street demonstration here yesterday. The machine is capable of picking a bale of cotton per day and is said to retail for about $500.

A number of farmers of the Dayton and Lakewood communities are harvesting their pinto bean crop.

The Lakewood community has long been known for its fine tomatoes and was once the home of a tomato canning factory. This year, it is said, M. C. Lee will realize approximately $2000 from a two-acre patch of tomatoes. A $1000 per acre yield is not a bad return on the investment.

Cotton growers on the Cottonwood are rejoicing because they have escaped the needie grass thus far and the indications are very good that the grass that gave so much trouble last year will not be troublesome.

Miss Eloise Reser entertained quite a number of her friends at her home on Cottonwood with a bridge party Friday night.

Mrs. G. R. Brainard was elected treasurer of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at the state convention held in Silver City last week.

Quite a number of friends gathered at the Wittkopf home Friday after school to help Leland Arthur celebrate his seventh birthday. Mrs. Harold Scoggins, who claims the same natal day, celebrated with Leland Arthur.

A Scotch golf tournament on the Artesia Golf Club course Sunday was won by Mrs. J. A. Clayton, Jr. and Paul Bugg, who turned in a score of 43. Second place went to Mrs. Nora B. Clayton and Leland Price with 46.

The Artesia Bulldogs chalked up their first win of the gridiron season, sending the visiting Tularosa High School boys down to a 32-6 defeat on Morris Field Friday evening.

Gov. John E. Miles assured a committee of Artesia businessmen Monday in a conference at Santa Fe, construction of a new bridge over the Pecos River east of Artesia on the highway leading to the oil fields will soon be taken care of.

About 30 persons were present for the joint meeting of the American Legion and Auxiliary at the hut Monday evening for a covered-dish supper.

Members Of 4-H Preparing For National Contests

New Mexico 4-H Club members are now preparing their records to enter in the national 4-H Club contests, according to L. S. Kurtz, state 4-H Club leader for the New Mexico A. & M. College Extension Service. These contests include all standard 4-H projects and in addition the more general fields of leadership, achievement, citizenship, better methods, safety, health and recreation.

Club members submit their records to the county extension offices and the best county record in each contest is sent to the state 4-H office, where state winners are determined. Records of county winners are due in the state office Oct. 10.

Records of all state winners in the nation are judged in Chicago to determine sectional and national winners. State winners in these contests will receive trips to the national 4-H Club Congress in Chicago or compete further for sectional or national trips. National winners in all programs receive $300 college scholarships, the state leader added. 1948, seven New Mexico club members received national or sectional recognition.

Object of national contests is to stimulate interest in self-improvement in all lines of 4-H work and among all 4-H members. Records are judged on all-around performance of the club member. Leadership, including service to the club and community, is considered in addition to the development of the individual's own projects and activities.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Today My New York is in the hands of a guest columnist, an editor of King Features Syndicate who is probably but definitely named Louis Messolonghites. Mr. Messolonghites, presently a man with a high professional standing and a handsome wife, has a dark past, about which he speaks:

In the several years I have known Mel Heimer I have found but one gap in his background. He will gloss over it when the subject comes up, or allude casually to his recent trip to Paris, but one can see that beneath his apparent sang-froid there is considerable shame. This is why: He was never a newspaper boy.

Mr. Heimer was unable to take note of National Newspaper Boy Day, which was celebrated recently, so he asked me to square him with the Mr. Heimer's office, but I have the distinction of being the only one within three feet of his desk.

When I started selling papers more than 30 years ago, I did not consider myself a downtrodden, exploited member of society. Nor do I today, despite what some social pontificators think. On the contrary, it opened a wonderful, new world to me. No teachers, no adults ordering you around. And at the end of each day, cash on the line to squander as you wished. Regular paper routes I squandered as a form of regimentation.

I sing of happy days in my home town, Zanesville, O., of the fights, feuds, games common to all newspaper boys. Where else could an 8-year-old boy walk into a saloon, enjoy the beauty of Custer's Last Stand, study the sleek lines of Dan Patch, in a painting of the famous pacer, receive lavish tips from the patrons, and, on top of all that confiscate a snack from the Free Lunch at the far end of the bar? The piece de resistance in Crippen's saloon, Zanesville, was a fried liver sandwich, and it still tastes elegant in retrospect.

—WAS IT SORDID, THIS EXPOSURE TO DEPRAVITY?—Would it mark a boy in later life? I shall ask my psychoanalyst at our next seance. I shall also offer him two additional, possibly conflicting clues: (a) the Zanesville Signal's plant adjacent, indeed, abutted on, the local vice strip; (b) I learned to shoot pool, another step along the primrose path, when a fellow newspaper boy introduced me to the Young Men's Christian Association.

To counter-balance this wicked life, my mother made me attend church each Sunday, the one day I could not engage in the newspaper business.

Now for a few trade hints. You could make more money by selling morning papers, in this case the Times Recorder, than on evening papers, because fewer boys cared to get up at 4 a. m. (Aside to economists: this involves supply and demand, competition, risk capital, and the scarcity of enterprising "little merchants" like you-know-who.)

However, that meant, in winter, you had to make your own path through the snow, a factor that dulls the edge of enterprise in any society, and finally led me to the snug haven of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station. There I got to know the visiting celebrities and nearly every traveling salesman in town.

On Monday mornings I gave them a cheery little smile and pep talk, and they gave me two cents apiece for a paper, a profit of 100 per cent. A glance at my present bankbook convinces me that I never had it so good.

—IN THE AFTERNOON FIELD there were different rewards, especially when summer vacation gave us a flying start about noon or 1 p. m. Our seminar in Applied Business Methods went this way: We gathered at the Signal plant, walked to a nearby delicatessen and bought a large loaf of bread and a roll of bologna. (This recipe feeds four hungry boys, or six in event of infiltration.) Then we walked to the railroad bridge a block away, and went swimming, leaving our food on the pier. After a half hour or so in the Muskingum river, we would come out and eat. Usually one of the scientifically minded boys would improvise a sun dial in the sand on the river bank so we could know when press time was approaching. Actually this was mere window dressing as we were within earshot of the office.

The Signal office bordered the railroad tracks. In summer the loosely locked freight cars on the siding held watermelons. Available watermelons plus small boys with ingenuity equals a violation of the legal code. Consequently, it became almost a daily ritual, like the swimming, to borrow some melons, eat the fruit, and pet one another with the rinds. By the time we were exhausted, soaken and dirty, the papers would be coming off the presses and we would have to abandon sport for commerce.

A trade recapitulation now shows: morning field, simon-pure business, no gossip, no jebba-jebba; afternoon field, dietitians, no place for the Man Who Wants to Get Ahead, but with compensatory touches. Most of us were torn between the two choices, and I confess that even today the option would leave me shaking with indecision.

local level in the county. Any club member may submit his records and be eligible for county recognition. To be a state winner, club members must have been 14 years of age last Jan. 1 and have completed three years of club work, including this year.

—LOOK! NO HANDS!—Burbank, Calif. (AFPS) — He has no hands, but Carl Moody, 35, was sentenced to 30 days in jail here recently for writing a bad check.

—WILL SHE?—San Francisco (AFPS)—Attendant William Wardley would like to continue the conversation started by the smartly dressed woman who drove her big automobile into his service station. She smiled and said, "Hello," but drove away before he could reply after (1) catching her bumper in a pop stand, (2) crashing into the oil display —STRIKE!—Wheeling, W. Va. (AFPS) — Charles Johnson didn't even slow down in his berry-picking when a poisonous copperhead snake scored a direct hit on his leg. The limb was artificial.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE desk clerk at a hotel in Hartford received an urgent appeal from a guest on the fourth floor. He rushed up, and found the guest wrapped in a turkish towel, complaining, "Fine soap you have in this place! I've been rubbing and rubbing and I can't get any lather." "Let's see that soap," demanded the clerk. The guest opened his hand and said, "Here it is." "But, my dear man," the clerk exploded, "That's not a piece of soap. That's your gold watch."

The guest scratched his head in perplexity. "So it is," he admitted. "But wouldn't you think a watch would produce a little lather?"

Bob Hope's elation when he heard that a new army jet plane had exceeded the speed of sound was tinged with self-interest. "Now," he exulted, "I'll be able to tell a joke in Hollywood over the radio, realize it has laid an egg, and send one of those planes out to shoot it down over Chicago."

maturity. Feather pointed out "Building financial reserves for home and business, through investment in U. S. Savings Bonds, is the program recommended for this fall," said Feather. "This is a good plan at any time, but particularly under present day conditions."

Investments in U. S. Savings Bonds by New Mexicans during September totaled $957,746, Edwin G. Hobbs, state director of the Treasury Department's Savings Bonds Division, announced. The total exceeds that of September, 1948, by $20,000 and that of last August by $70,000.

Investments in Series "E" "the people's bond," reached $669,616.50 in September at issue price. If held to maturity, holders of this one month's savings can pay for 89 houses at $10,000 each, 446 new automobiles at $2000 or provide monthly income of $50 to $66 a month for 110 people for 10 years, Hobbs pointed out.

Series "E" and "G" Bonds attracted $288,129.50 of investment capital at issue price during September. The $262,100 invested in "G's" will return to owners $78,624 as interest if held to maturity, paid in installments every six months, Hobbs said.

Washington Report

By Armed Forces Press Service

First separation notices to Army Reserve officers affected by the Defense Department's economy program have started going out, so that officers slated for separation by December 1 will have 90 days' notice.

The WAC Officer Candidate School at Camp Lee, Va., recently graduated a class of 42. They were commissioned second lieutenants, Reserve.

Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson is expected soon to appoint an inter-service committee to reclassify all Service jobs and write standard job specifications.

Some of the 3,127 Reserve Air officers slated for separation under the economy program, are expected to qualify for assignment under a new Air Force program for recall of 460 officers to man the 23 Reserve Training Centers throughout the U.S.

Finance officials of all Armed Services have completed plans for implementation of the new pay law. With scattered exceptions, all personnel affected will be paid under the new law November 1.

The Air Force's first postwar radar training program has been inaugurated at Keesler AFB, Miss., where 24 operators will be graduated weekly until January 1, 1950.

Second Army Area Headquarters is launching a pilot course in a forty-hour instruction program for TI&E discussion leaders. The intention is to produce better qualified leaders by practice and training in the most effective and interest-stimulating techniques.

West Point graduates now are required to serve three years, instead of four, as commissioned officers before establishing eligibility to resign.

The Senate has passed and sent to the White House legislation increasing the compensation of disabled veterans. Rates for 100 per cent wartime disability are increased 8.7 per cent, or from $138 to $150 per month. Compensation for peacetime injuries are 80 per cent of war-incurred disability rates.

Legislation to authorize a memorial in honor of the late Gen. John J. Pershing has been introduced in the Senate.

Pfc. "Why are you wearing those glasses to bed?"

Cpl. "Well, I want to get a better look at that girl I dreamed about last night."

Barstow, Calif. (AFPS) Radio announcer Si Willing is going to check his copy more thoroughly before going on the air after this. Shortly after he read carefully to his audience that footwear was selling "for peanuts—three ninety-eight," Mrs. Nara Privo showed up with 398 of the gubers and went home with a pair of shoes.

PARKED

Phillipsburg, N. J. (AFPS) — Heavy sleeper James Kiggins, 36, promises he'll be more careful hereafter in selecting his resting places. He woke up with a slight pain recently and says it was all a result of carelessness. Seems Kiggins had fallen asleep in a parking lot and somebody drove an automobile onto his chest.

Judge And Mrs. Arba Green Observe Their Golden Wedding Anniversary

JUDGE AND MRS. GREEN

—Gable Photo.

Judge and Mrs. Arba Green observed Wednesday night of last week the result 50 years prior of the meeting at a party on March 5, 1897, at which they became acquainted and to which they were invited with the words, "Lingering sweetness long drawn out."

In memory of that taffy pull at which they met, Judge and Mrs. Green provided small boxes of taffy as favors at their golden wedding celebration at the home of their daughter, Mrs. R. M. Stinnett and Mr. Stinnett, from 7 to 9 o'clock Wednesday night of last week.

About 120 guests were met at the door during the two-hour period by Mr. and Mrs. Stinnett, who directed them into a bedroom, where the honored couple's wedding clothes were on display. From there, the guests were shown into the library where the guestbook was on a table, on which also was one of the original invitations to the taffy pull, at which Miss Mary Margaret Sterrett and Arba Green became acquainted. They were married at Carthage, Mo., Oct. 12, 1899.

The guests at the celebration last week were greeted in the living room by Judge and Mrs. Green and their other daughter, Mrs. A. C. LaFollette of Athens, Ohio, who came here for her parents' golden wedding.

In the dining room on a lace-covered table, was a beautiful wedding cake, shown in the accompanying picture. At opposite ends of the table were silver services, from which coffee and tea were served with individual white cakes, on which were icing flowers and taffy, nuts and mints.

During the first hour, Mrs. Calvin Dunn and Mrs. John Rowland poured. Mrs. W. S. Hogsett and Mrs. Harold Kersey poured the second hour.

When the guests left, each was presented a box of taffy, wrapped in white tissue paper and tied with yellow ribbon, by Judge and Mrs. Green's grandchildren, Rosemary and Arba Henry Stinnett.

A number of gifts were on display, but they arrived too fast for Judge and Mrs. Green to have them all unwrapped, so they will be on display at their residence at 905 West Main Street, where friends may call the next few days to see them.

They also received many telegrams, cards and flowers. The flowers were distributed throughout the Stinnett residence for the reception.

Judge and Mrs. Green have two daughters, Irma, Mrs. A. C. LaFollette of Athens, Ohio and Helen, Mrs. R. M. Stinnett of Artesia, Mr. and Mrs. LaFollette have two daughters, Mary Sue and Margaret. Mr. and Mrs. Stinnett's children are Rosemary and Arba Henry.

All of Judge and Mrs. Green's granddaughters are named after their grandmother, Mary Margaret Sterrett Green and the grandson, Arba Henry Stinnett, after his grandfather.

Judge Green came here as an oil scout in 1924, when oil operations in Eddy County were starting. Mrs. Green came a few months later.

He was actively connected with the oil business a number of years and still has some oil properties. He served as secretary-manager of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce from January, 1936, to February, 1946. On June 1, 1943 Judge Green was appointed Artesia police judge in which capacity he is now serving.

Judge Green has always been quite active in civic affairs and was a member of the Artesia City Council 12 years. He became a member of the Artesia Rotary Club in May, 1936, since when he has never missed a meeting here or failed to make up elsewhere and holds the club record of 13 years for the longest period of attendance without a miss.

He likewise is quite active in the Masonic Lodge and satellite organizations. Forty years ago he served as master of his lodge in Missouri and for a number of years he has been secretary of the Artesia Masonic Lodge.

Judge Green is a past patron and past grand patron of the Order of the Eastern Star, a past watchman of the shepherds and at present district deputy grand watchman of the shepherds of the White Shrine of Jerusalem and is "Rainbow Dad" of the Order of Rainbow for Girls. He likewise is a Shriner.

Mrs. Green is a past worthy matron of the Order of the Eastern Star and is a member of the White Shrine of Jerusalem. She formerly was president of the board of the Artesia Public Library and is a past secretary of the Artesia Woman's Club.

IN THE vernacular of newspaper lensmen, "cheese" has long been a label for any photo showing a pretty girl wearing a bathing suit—or less. Cotton Acreage Must Be Diverted

The necessity of diverting some of the land which has been in cotton and wheat to comply with acreage allotments provides the farmers of New Mexico a real opportunity to improve their rotations, according to Thomas Roberts, member of the State Production and Marketing Administration committee.

Neglect of good rotations was encouraged by the demands of war and the necessity for feeding starving people in other countries after the war. Instead of depending on sound rotation practices, farmers resorted to heavier use of commercial fertilizers. These have been effective in increasing yields and have helped to get record production.

But on too many farms this continuous cropping of the land—growing the same crop year after year on the same land—is depleting the humus. The vegetable matter in the land that helps to hold the soil particles together is being lost. The land is becoming a greater erosion hazard each year.

Roberts points out that too often this danger is hardly realized until a heavy rain carries away several inches of topsoil and the land is left torn to pieces with gullies.

But where grass and legumes are grown on the land a few years, the humus is built up. The plowing under of a good growth of green manure does the same thing. Often the grass and legumes may be pastured and an income derived from them. With too much of the land in continuous cropping, the use of diverted acres to bring the farming operation more into balance will be a good thing for the farmers of Eddy County, Roberts said.

He urged farmers to consider this phase of the allotment program and to take advantage of this opportunity to improve their farming operation with a more balanced rotation. Not only will the land be in good use, but the whole farm will be improved. Reserves will be stored in the soil for future production and not wasted on surplus crops now.

'Primary Noxious' Seed Are Outlawed

The New Mexico seed law lists a number of noxious weeds as "primary noxious" because the danger of their spreading is so great that their seeds are not allowed in any commercial seed in any amount whatsoever.

But, according to the recent report of the state seed laboratory at New Mexico A. & M. College, these weed seeds were very seldom found in crop seeds submitted to the laboratory last year.

During 1948-49, dealers submitted only three samples of seed which would have been illegal for sale because of the presence of prohibited noxious weeds. One lot of oats contained whitetop seeds and two lots of wheat contained bindweed seeds.

These three lots of seed show what the farmer may get when he buys just grain—not seed—to start his fall or spring planting.

Screwy Radio Terms Dubbed 'Speech Of Nation'

Eve Arden of the radio, carrying out her role of English teacher has undertaken to translate some of the screwy radio terms into what she terms "the speech of the nation," a fine way of avoiding the term, "English," in this connection. Here they are:

- Arsenic: A boresome program.
- Beards: Noticeable errors in reading. Same as fluffs, muffs, busts or blurps.

- Blue gag: A comedy line improper for radio.
- Bugs: Cause of trouble in equipment by something not immediately apparent.
- Crawk: An animal imitator. (Like the actor who plays MacDougal.)
- Drooling: Adding unimportant talk to a program to occupy more time.
- East of Denver: Expression describing untraceable engineering trouble. (In the East, they say all trouble is "West of Denver." Wonder what they say in Denver?)
- Eighty-eight: A piano.
- Fish bowl: The client's observation both in a studio.
- Flesh peddler: A talent agent.
- Fluff: Stumbling over a speech.
- From hunger: Hack work of low quality.
- Gaffoon: Sound man who does several sound effects at once.
- Gelatin: Tenor with a voice that is thin and quavery.
- Hambone: Unconvincing black-face dialectician.
- Into the rug: Leading lines into drapes, into shelves or actually into a rug, to give a muffled effect.
- Kiss: To emphasize a note accented for solo entrance.
- Lady Macbeth: Superannuated tragedienne.
- Lockjaw: One who sings as if tired.

Farmers Urged To Report Crops Deteriorating

To protect themselves from loss in settlement value, farmers are advised to report immediately to the county agricultural conservation committee when any commodity under price-supporting loan is in danger of going out of condition.

"Since the farmer is responsible for maintaining the grade and quality of the commodity under loan, his eventual return depends upon the condition at the time of delivery to the Commodity Credit Corporation," Roy Forehand, Eddy County committee chairman, points out.

Where it is found that a commodity in danger of going out of condition cannot be satisfactorily conditioned, the county committee is authorized to call for immediate shipping instructions from CCC.

"To protect the farmer, samples will be taken at the time shipping instructions are requested, if shipping instructions cannot be furnished in time to prevent serious damage to the commodity," Forehand says. "Final settlement with the producer will then be made for the quantity delivered, based on the grade established from these samples."

If a producer fails to notify the county committee before a commodity has deteriorated to such an extent that it will fall below any grade for which loan or settlement values have been established, Forehand said that the settlement value will be the support rate for the grade and quality of the commodity placed under loan, less the difference between the market price for this grade and quality and the market price of the commodity delivered, as determined by CCC.

The same procedure for determining settlement value of off-grade commodities may be applied to purchase agreements when authority to accept deliveries is given by CCC.

Francis, who always has beautiful dahlias, gave a talk on all phases of dahlia culture and how to care for the cut flowers. A long table was filled with specimens of dahlias and after Mrs. Francis' talk three judges were appointed and prizes awarded as follows:

The attendance prize, a begonia donated by Mrs. Francis, was given to Mrs. Harold Kersey.

The Garden Club expressed regrets that Adlai Feather of Las Cruces was unable to be present, as had been announced. It was hoped to secure him at a later date.

Judge and Mrs. Arba Green observed Wednesday night of last week the result 50 years prior of the meeting at a party on March 5, 1897, at which they became acquainted and to which they were invited with the words, "Linger sweetness long drawn out."

In memory of that taffy pull at which they met, Judge and Mrs. Green provided small boxes of taffy as favors at their golden wedding celebration at the home of their daughter, Mrs. R. M. Stinnett and Mr. Stinnett, from 7 to 9 o'clock Wednesday night of last week.

About 120 guests were met at the door during the two-hour period by Mr. and Mrs. Stinnett, who directed them into a bedroom, where the honored couple's wedding clothes were on display. From there, the guests were shown into the library where the guestbook was on a table, on which also was one of the original invitations to the taffy pull, at which Miss Mary Margaret Sterrett and Arba Green became acquainted. They were married at Carthage, Mo., Oct. 12, 1899.

The guests at the celebration last week were greeted in the living room by Judge and Mrs. Green and their other daughter, Mrs. A. C. LaFollette of Athens, Ohio, who came here for her parents' golden wedding.

In the dining room on a lace-covered table, was a beautiful wedding cake, shown in the accompanying picture. At opposite ends of the table were silver services, from which coffee and tea were served with individual white cakes, on which were icing flowers and taffy, nuts and mints.

During the first hour, Mrs. Calvin Dunn and Mrs. John Rowland poured. Mrs. W. S. Hogsett and Mrs. Harold Kersey poured the second hour.

When the guests left, each was presented a box of taffy, wrapped in white tissue paper and tied with yellow ribbon, by Judge and Mrs. Green's grandchildren, Rosemary and Arba Henry Stinnett.

A number of gifts were on display, but they arrived too fast for Judge and Mrs. Green to have them all unwrapped, so they will be on display at their residence at 905 West Main Street, where friends may call the next few days to see them.

They also received many telegrams, cards and flowers. The flowers were distributed throughout the Stinnett residence for the reception.

Judge and Mrs. Green have two daughters, Irma, Mrs. A. C. LaFollette of Athens, Ohio and Helen, Mrs. R. M. Stinnett of Artesia, Mr.

'Primary Noxious' Seed Are Outlawed

The New Mexico seed law lists a number of noxious weeds as "primary noxious" because the danger of their spreading is so great that their seeds are not allowed in any commercial seed in any amount whatsoever.

But, according to the recent report of the state seed laboratory at New Mexico A. & M. College, these weed seeds were very seldom found in crop seeds submitted to the laboratory last year.

During 1948-49, dealers submitted only three samples of seed which would have been illegal for sale because of the presence of prohibited noxious weeds. One lot of oats contained whitetop seeds and two lots of wheat contained bindweed seeds.

These three lots of seed show what the farmer may get when he buys just grain—not seed—to start his fall or spring planting.

Cotton Acreage Must Be Diverted

The necessity of diverting some of the land which has been in cotton and wheat to comply with acreage allotments provides the farmers of New Mexico a real opportunity to improve their rotations, according to Thomas Roberts, member of the State Production and Marketing Administration committee.

Neglect of good rotations was encouraged by the demands of war and the necessity for feeding starving people in other countries after the war. Instead of depending on sound rotation practices, farmers resorted to heavier use of commercial fertilizers. These have been effective in increasing yields and have helped to get record production.

But on too many farms this continuous cropping of the land—growing the same crop year after year on the same land—is depleting the humus. The vegetable matter in the land that helps to hold the soil particles together is being lost. The land is becoming a greater erosion hazard each year.

Roberts points out that too often this danger is hardly realized until a heavy rain carries away several inches of topsoil and the land is left torn to pieces with gullies.

But where grass and legumes are grown on the land a few years, the humus is built up. The plowing under of a good growth of green manure does the same thing. Often the grass and legumes may be "pastured" and an income derived from them. With too much of the land in continuous cropping, the use of diverted acres to bring the farming operation more into balance will be a good thing for the farmers of Eddy County, Roberts said.

He urged farmers to consider this phase of the allotment program and to take advantage of this opportunity to improve their farming operation with a more balanced rotation. Not only will the land be in good use, but the whole farm will be improved. Reserves will be stored in the soil for future production and not wasted on surplus crops now.

Screwy Radio Terms Dubbed 'Speech Of Nation'

Eve Arden of the radio, carrying out her role of English teacher has undertaken to translate some of the screwy radio terms into what she terms "the speech of the nation," a fine way of avoiding the term, "English," in this connection. Here they are:

Adenoid: A tenor with a "tight" voice.

Arsenic: A boresome program.

Beards: Noticeable errors in reading. Same as fluffs, muffs, busts or blurps.

Belcher: A performer with a "frog" in his voice. (As in the case of Mr. Boynton's pet frog, MacDougal.)

Blue gag: A comedy line improper for radio.

Bugs: Cause of trouble in equipment by something not immediately apparent.

Crawk: An animal imitator. (Like the actor who plays MacDougal.)

Drooling: Adding unimportant talk to a program to occupy more time.

East of Denver: Expression describing untraceable engineering trouble. (In the East, they say all trouble is "West of Denver." Wonder what they say in Denver?)

Eighty-eight: A piano.

Fish bowl: The client's observation both in a studio.

Flesh peddler: A talent agent.

Fluff: Stumbling over a speech.

From hunger: Hack work of low quality.

Gaffoon: Sound man who does several sound effects at once.

Gelatin: Tenor with a voice that is thin and quavery.

Hambone: Unconvincing black-face dialectician.

Into the rug: Leading lines into drapes, into shelves or actually into a rug, to give a muffled effect.

Kiss: To emphasize a note accented for solo entrance.

Lady Macbeth: Superannuated tragedienne.

Lockjaw: One who sings as if tired.

Madame Cadenza: A flighty soprano.

Madame Lazonga: Performer who jigs nervously in front of microphone.

Old sexton: Bass vocalist with dark vocal quality.

On the beach: Unemployed.

Farmers Urged To Report Crops Deteriorating

To protect themselves from loss in settlement value, farmers are advised to report immediately to the county agricultural conservation committee when any commodity under price-supporting loan is in danger of going out of condition.

"Since the farmer is responsible for maintaining the grade and quality of the commodity under loan, his eventual return depends upon the condition at the time of delivery to the Commodity Credit Corporation," Roy Forehand, Eddy County committee chairman, points out.

Where it is found that a commodity in danger of going out of condition cannot be satisfactorily conditioned, the county committee is authorized to call for immediate shipping instructions from CCC.

"To protect the farmer, samples will be taken at the time shipping instructions are requested, if shipping instructions cannot be furnished in time to prevent serious damage to the commodity," Forehand says. "Final settlement with the producer will then be made for the quantity delivered, based on the grade established from these samples."

DOUGLAS' CONDITION 'SERIOUS' AFTER FALL

Justice Douglas in Yakima hospital . . .

Touring Greek mountains last summer.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE William O. Douglas is in serious condition and "extreme pain" at a Yakima, Wash., hospital following his riding accident near summit of Chinook pass. "Bill's horse reared and fell on him," according to Elon Gilbert, Douglas' only companion at the time. Douglas, 51, an outdoorsman in the summer when the court is not in session, rolled 50 feet down a rocky hillside, suffering 13 broken ribs and a dislocated shoulder.

'Duck Stamp' This Year Will Cost $2, Double Price Charged In Past

"Duck Stamps" required by law to be used by migratory waterfowl hunters over 16 years of age, will cost $2 this year under the terms of the Johnson-Thompson Duck Stamp Bill which was passed in the 81st Congress. The "duck stamp" has been sold for $1 since the law was first passed in 1934.

The Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service anticipates that the sale of stamps will exceed 2,000,000, last year's record figure. The service urges duck hunters to buy stamps at local post-offices.

The additional money obtained from the increased price will go to offset rising costs encountered by the Fish and Wildlife Service in its effort to expand the important work on the conservation of waterfowl. Ten per cent of the money secured from the sale of the stamps will be used principally for enforcement, the most important phase of waterfowl conservation. This limitation continues budgetary restrictions on game law enforcement, which have been in effect for some time.

Additional revenues, however, will permit the service to complete development work on existing refuges and to acquire critical areas along the important flyways. Rehabilitation work on refuge structures, in many cases delayed by the war, will be the first step in the program. Improvements of areas already under government ownership will provide additional food and protection for ducks and geese. Development work is only partially completed on many existing refuges and on recently acquired areas, work has not been started.

Purchase and development work to close gaps in the chain of refuges along flyways will also be undertaken. At present there are no federal refuges in Indiana, Ohio, Kansas, Wyoming or Colorado.

Waterfowl refuges are an advantage to the hunter as well as to the birds. The good feeding conditions and places to rest not only are essential to the welfare of the waterfowl, but holds the flocks in the vicinity longer so that shooting is improved over a longer period. Furthermore, the birds are benefited by being held over as it prevents their concentration too soon in southern feeding areas.

The new amendment to the duck stamp bill will permit the opening of not more than 25 per cent of the newly acquired areas to hunting—at the discretion of the secretary of the interior—when duck populations are at magazine. The first half of the split waterfowl season opened at noon Friday, day, Oct. 14, and will continue through Monday, Oct. 31, with shooting hours from a half hour before sunup to an hour before sundown each day except opening day.

Seek Reason For Epidemic Among Deer

Washington (AFPS) — Department of Agriculture officials and federal and state game conservation agencies are watching closely the progress of a disease epidemic which has killed hundreds of wild deer in the Middle Atlantic states in recent weeks.

It has taken the largest toll in areas where the deer population is abnormally high, according to Dr. Arnold Nelson, Chief of the Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service research laboratory at Patuxent, Md.

Dr. Nelson said there has been no positive diagnosis of the disease, but an unconfirmed field report has labeled it Blackleg, deadly to domestic cattle and sheep. Government agencies are taking steps to prevent spread of the disease to domestic animals.

SKYRIDE TO SCHOOL

Jal, N. M. (AFPS)—This young generation! Grandpa may have had to walk miles to school. Or maybe he rode the family nag. But 6-year-old Rubert Madera, Jr., will be flown 16 miles to school daily by his rancher-pilot dad.

HORSERACE GARDEN

Miami (AFPS)—Vegetables are growing in the homestretch of the Hialeah racetrack today. But it's not because of a depression. The racing strip is planted with cowpeas, velvet beans, okra, cucum-favorable levels. The purchase and development of these refuge areas will be costly. It will take several years of duck stamp revenues to be able to do it. The areas to be improved have already been tentatively selected, but state conservation departments will be consulted, and public hearings held, before purchases of lands are made.—Fly & Shell, the New Mexico sportsman

Little Known Facts About Search For Ark Disclosed By Amarillo News

(An editorial in The Amarillo Daily News gives an interesting side light on the recent unsuccessful attempt to locate the Ark on Mount Ararat on the Turkish-Russian border. It brings out an editorial point of persistence, but besides that the editorial discloses some otherwise little known facts about the search for the Ark.)

Back in the 1920's a young American missionary heard an ancient Chinese legend retold, all about how, in the dawn of civilization a man by the name of Nu-Wah saved himself from a flood. The missionary, Dr. Aaron Smith, instantly recognized the legend as the same story as that told in the Bible about Noah and the Ark. The methods of Nu-Wah and Noah were the same—building a great ship and taking aboard all the animals which could be rounded up. Even the names were similar—Nu-Wah and Noah.

The rotund little doctor thought long and hard about the two stories in the years that followed. He lost most of his hair and much of his youthful vigor in the course of time, but he never lost the similarity of the two stories. That grew and grew into an obsession. The doctor spent most of his leisure researching other stories of prehistoric floods, the legends of the other Eastern and Near-Eastern countries. And the more he studied and thought, the more determined he was that he would someday make a search of the traditional resting place of the Ark—Mount Ararat—on the Russian-Turkish border.

This opinion was confirmed years later, while Dr. Smith was on a tour of the country. In 1940 he met a man in Seattle, Wash., who said he was a former officer in the Czarist army, back in World War I. This officer, Alexander Koor, told Dr. Smith, at that time a Bible teacher, that he was stationed on the Russian-Turkish border during the war and knew of two other officers who said they had once seen the Ark on Mount Ararat from the air. The air officers said it looked like a large mass of dark wood, jutting out from the mountain.

Dr. Smith began then a more intense study of the Ark. Bit by bit, in libraries and letters, Dr. Smith pieced together what looked like an airtight case. He found newspaper clippings of a Turkish expedition to find the Ark in 1883. There were other stories of the Turkish border mountains. And many legends, passed along from generation to generation, told of men who had seen the big ship or pieces of it.

Dr. Smith then determined on an expedition of his own and in the winter of 1948 he and a dozen friends made their preparations for the journey. When the Russians heard of the expedition, they protested loudly, charging that it was merely a disguise for a spying expedition. And it took quite a while and a lot of diplomatic maneuvering to get that straightened out. Finally, however, the expedition set sail in June of this year.

Still another delay held up the expedition, this one in Istanbul, so that it was mid-August before Dr. Smith and his party finally reached the mountains and began the search. Days wore by and no Ark and the expedition turned back to Istanbul empty-handed. But in spite of failure, Dr. Smith hasn't given up.

Today Dr. Smith is on his way back to North Carolina—a Bible teacher once more. But he'll go on believing that the Ark is there, waiting for someone to find it. The Bible says so and then one doesn't give up a cherished dream of 30 years at one little failure.

Toll at Hiroshima Placed at 210,000

New York (AFPS)—New estimates of the Hiroshima atom bomb casualties, higher than any previously advanced, claim 210,000 to 240,000 persons perished in the blast, including 30,000 Japanese soldiers.

The new figures were compiled by Shimzo Hamai, mayor of Hiroshima, which was blasted with the first American atomic bomb on Aug. 6, 1945. The figures were included in an interview with Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature which was recorded and broadcast in the U.S. recently.

The best figures previously available were those supplied by the U.S. Strategic Bombing Survey and Supreme Allied Headquarters in Tokyo. The Strategic Bombing Survey reported on June 29, 1946, that the most reliable estimate it was able to compile was 70,000 to 80,000 dead with an equal number missing. Survey officials explained that conditions then were so chaotic as to make accurate figures impossible.

Supreme Allied Headquarters estimated 78,000 dead and 14,000 missing on February 3, 1946.

Mayor Hamai's figures were said to have been based on data in his hands when he served as ration commissioner during the war, and were computed from the number of individuals using ration cards. The troop casualty estimate was based on the number of soldiers stationed in and near Hiroshima, about half of whom were in the center of the blast area when the bomb exploded.

"Long Range Military Readiness" Guards U. S. Against Aggression

Washington (AFPS) — That "long-range military readiness" is a must for the United States as a guard against any hostility or conspiracy, was emphasized by Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson when he spoke recently at the graduation of the National War College Class before an audience which included President Truman. The defense chief officially announced that the Navy's ship construction program would be expanded to include the modernization of two World War II aircraft carriers at a cost of about 80 million dollars.

Balks Intimidation

With the assertion that the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact among other things, had welded its power into a "barricade against aggression by treachery or by force," Mr. Johnson told his audience:

"With the produce of our farms and the substance of our cities, we have resisted the communist virus that feeds on economic despair, the conspiracy that prowls in political chaos. We have challenged, Mr. President, the strategy of intimi-

ation. "In linking our security interests to those of the Atlantic Community, we have lessened the likelihood of resorting to armed defense against aggression. For where an aggressor is forewarned that his lawlessness must reckon with the judgment of the American people, he will not lightly challenge the combined resources of our free world."

The defense chief pointed out that while this lessened possibility of armed aggression, it did not reduce the need for "powerful military forces" in the United States.

Names Soviet Russia

"For only if American armed strength stands constantly on the political horizon," he declared, "can we hope to derive maximum value from our Armed Forces as a long-term deterrent to war. And only so long as constancy in American military policy reassures free peoples that our moral persuasions in behalf of peace are backed with military muscle can we expect to hold the free world's front against armed intimidation."

A strong military is not an admission that war is inevitable, the defense secretary pointed out, or a denial that the United Nations is "a forum for negotiations." "Instead," he said, "long-range military readiness is dictated by Soviet Russia's intransigent opposition to peaceful relationships with the free world."

Mr. Johnson spoke of three concepts embraced by Russia that forced the United States to arm for its self-preservation:

1. "That sovereign and independent governments cannot live peacefully as neighbors.
2. That peoples who do not concede the supremacy of the collective state are enemies of human progress.

3. That collaboration cannot serve the interests of both the communist and non-communist worlds. "No Other Choice"

"While our free world lies within the shadow of these incorrigible myths—a power hostile to its world environment, conspiratorial in its international conduct, despotic in its internal affairs—we have no choice but to maintain for an indeterminate part of our lifetimes military strengths as a deterrent to armed aggression." To meet the country's defense needs, Mr. Johnson pointed out "that the military has become a major factor in the fiscal life of our nation."

"Because of the weighty tax burden we represent to the American people," he said, "we in the Armed Forces must exert ourselves to provide honest value for the dollars we spend. The alternative to efficient and unified management of our Armed Forces is sacrifice by the American people of a share of their standard of living for waste, duplication and competition among the services themselves."

The defense chief made it clear that national defense was not a "competitive enterprise" and pointed out that "since the joint chiefs are mutually responsible for the nation's whole defense, it is their duty to consider the major decisions of any service . . ."

IF A LAMP CARRIES THIS TAG

IT'S GOT TO BE GOOD

The appearance of the "Certified" tag on any lamp, of any type, assures you that the lamp has been submitted to rigid testing by an impartial testing laboratory. It assures you that the manufacturer of that lamp, one of over 100 leading American companies, has submitted his product to a complete test.

For example, the laboratory has determined that the switch will operate efficiently. It has ascertained that the cord is at least seven feet long, has a certified plug, to assure safety. The lamp itself is properly weighted to resist tipping, and of a finish which will ordinarily resist scarring or marring.

And above all, the "Certified" lamp has an exclusive new type reflector which will gain the most light from the bulb, and apply the light correctly for the use for which the lamp has been designed.

The next time you buy a lamp, make sure it is "Certified." Inquire at your favorite store for this new lamp.

terrent to armed aggression."

To meet the country's defense needs, Mr. Johnson pointed out "that the military has become a major factor in the fiscal life of our nation."

"Because of the weighty tax burden we represent to the American people," he said, "we in the Armed Forces must exert ourselves to provide honest value for the dollars we spend. The alternative to efficient and unified management of our Armed Forces is sacrifice by the American people of a share of their standard of living for waste, duplication and competition among the services themselves."

The defense chief made it clear that national defense was not a "competitive enterprise" and pointed out that "since the joint chiefs are mutually responsible for the nation's whole defense, it is their duty to consider the major decisions of any service . . ."

IF A LAMP CARRIES THIS TAG

IT'S GOT TO BE GOOD

The appearance of the "Certified" tag on any lamp, of any type, assures you that the lamp has been submitted to rigid testing by an impartial testing laboratory. It assures you that the manufacturer of that lamp, one of over 100 leading American companies, has submitted his product to a complete test.

For example, the laboratory has determined that the switch will operate efficiently. It has ascertained that the cord is at least seven feet long, has a certified plug, to assure safety. The lamp itself is properly weighted to resist tipping, and of a finish which will ordinarily resist scarring or marring.

And above all, the "Certified" lamp has an exclusive new type reflector which will gain the most light from the bulb, and apply the light correctly for the use for which the lamp has been designed.

The next time you buy a lamp, make sure it is "Certified." Inquire at your favorite store for this new lamp.

Girl Scout Notes

Intermediate leaders met at the Episcopal fireplace Thursday for a cookout. Mrs. Herman Fuchs demonstrated "foil cookery" to the six leaders attending. She wrapped steak, potatoes, onions and hamburgers in heavy foil and placed them in the coals of the fire.

Troop 5 elected officers for this period. They are: President, Marjorie Newbert; vice president, Gene Havins; secretary-treasurer, Carol Ziegler. The girls played "Brownies and Fairies" and "Prisoners' Base" and sang several rounds.

Troop 6 had 10 girls and one new member present. They planned a hike for the near future and played "Pass This Shoe From Me to You."

Troop 8 appointed their committees for the party scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 1. Hostesses will be Florence Worley, Lynell Burns and Jo Ann Aiken. Games will be planned by Frances Fuchs, Sue Carolyn Miller and Annette Connor. Food buyers are Marsha Golden, Ariene Faulk and Yvonne Dew.
